Peel 'em and eat 'em
With Steak Out's unlimited
Salad bar.
$4.95
The Steak Out
Rt. 5 Brattleboro 257-1333
Rt. 9 Amherst 256-8557

Trackmen to Championship

By KENNETH D. ROLT
Collegian Staff

'The older they are the better they get,' is an expression that could very well presage tomorrow's Yankee Conference Track and Field Championship, and the Minutemen hope to do their part in verifying that adage.

Although it will be the last time for this meet, held this year at the University of Rhode Island, it shapes up to be a good one.

"It should follow the format of last years meet, which was hotly contested by Boston University and the University of Connecticut for the top spot," men's head coach Ken O'Brien commented. "It looks like we will be battling URI for 3rd place in the meet," added O'Brien.

John Wright, coming off a superior performance at the Penn Relays where he equaled the varsity 200 meter record and broke it with a sizzling 21.7, will again have his hands full against his B.U. nemesis Bob Daville. Wright defeated the British import in the 110 meter high hurdles two weeks ago at the Boston College Relays.

Rick Walls appears to be following in a tradition of the Finnish distance ace Lasse Viren (gold medals in 1972 and 1976 Olympic games), by shaving off his beard before his key race of the season. In perhaps emulating Viren, the beardless wonder of UMass won't be going after any world records but will be facing a very tough 5000 meter field which will be doubtlessly strengthened by B.U.'s strong distance corps. He will be joined in the metric equivalent to the 3 mile with Mike Doiron and Kevin Corcoran.

Mickey Baugh looks ready for anything in his 800 race. He has run a number of 1:53 races this year, and last week blasted a 400 meter relay leg in 48.6 seconds.

A big question mark for the Minutemen is horizontal jumper Mark Grasson. Hampered by injuries throughout this year, he still remains a big threat to score points in the long jump (he has popped 22'9.75") and possibly win the triple jump. Grasso came from nowhere to win the Yankee Conference Indoor title this year in his first meet, after having sat out nearly all the season.

Sophomore Paul Beaulieu at the finish of the 1500 meter race at the UMass relays held last month. Staff photo by Ben Marsden.

★ Mittwomen

CONT. FROM PAGE 20

clear over the leftfielders head this time easily rounding the bases for two R.B.I.s.

The fifth inning started out brightly for UMass as designated hitter co-captain McManus contributed a nice rip to right for a single. McManus, who was out most of the season due to an ailing knee injury, was trapped in a rundown and reinjured her knee and had to leave the game. The last two innings were uneventful with neither team hitting as the game ended.

The third inning was the highlight of the second game as it was in the first with Chris Coughlin reaching first base on an error, LaVerdiere belting a single, topped off with a Peters triple for two runs. Simmons then singled sending home Peters, followed by an O'Connell hit for a 5-4 edge. The Minutewomen grabbed one more run in the sixth with the help of an O'Connell triple, a Cornaccioli single and a sacrifice by freshman Maryanne Lombardi.

Tomorrow is the last home game for UMass when they will take on the tough Rams of the University of Rhode Island at 1 p.m. at N.O.P.E. field.

Baseball notebook

By MIKE ESTRADA
Collegian Staff

BASEBALL NOTEBOOK: The Minuteman baseball team eyes this weekend as the major indication of the season's goal, the NCAA tournament.

The Minutemen travel to the University of Maine for a double header that will provide some further clues as to which is the team to beat in New England. The Bears are currently ranked first in the New England poll with a 18-8-1.

The Harvard Crimson is in a Golden position to make the NCAA tournament. They are members of the newly formed Eastern Intercollegiate Baseball league which includes all the Ivy League schools plus Army and Navy. The winner of the league gets an automatic berth in the NCAA's. They are currently second with an 8-3 record.

With all the new facilities that have been built on the Harvard campus, the baseball field is somewhat of a dissapointment. Situated in the shadow of the legendary Harvard Stadium, the varsity field has only one set of stands, and a five-foot high chain link fence for a home-run wall. The red-tiled dugouts stand out against all the history around the grounds. They resemble the upstairs bathrooms in Bartlett Hall...

SCI-TECH BOOK SALE
part of our Annual Spring Sale
65-90% SAVINGS OFF ORIGINAL PUBLISHED PRICES
Come pick up a stack of high-level scientific and technical books from leading publishers. Our selection ranges through numerous disciplines including physics, chemistry, medicine, mathematics, engineering, computers and more. Your savings range from a tremendous 65% to an unbelievable 90%.
on special sale tables at "the bookstore"
in the campus center at umass
the UNIVERSITY STORE

The Hungry-U
Join Us For
Sunday Brunch 10:30-2
Free Bloody Mary with any Brunch Entree
55 University Dr. Amherst 549-5713

PUT A STOP TO BAD BRRRRRAKES
Precision Bendix brake parts are built to stop you on a dime. We feature a complete line of Bendix parts including shoes, pads, drums, rotors, master cylinders, for nearly every car. Bendix, it's a brand worth stopping for.
Inspection Special
$1. savings on any purchase over $10 with this coupon
(Expires May 15, 1980)
Specialists in Parts For:
*Foreign brake systems
*American passenger car & truck systems
*Drum & Rotor machining
Buy Bendix brake products at:
Campus Auto Parts
"Turn to us to keep your wheels turning"
Tel. 549-3945
107 Sunderland Road
No. Amherst, MA 01059
Bendix

Minutewomen sweep Owls

Record now 17-0

By RANDI MARCUS
Collegian Staff

The Owls of Southern Connecticut State College gave UMass a bit of a scare yesterday threatening to break their unblemished record, but the Minutewomen pulled ahead in both games to grasp 7-3 and 6-4 wins. Despite their impressive 17-0 record, the Mittwomen are seeded fourth in the Regionals next Friday and Saturday at the University of Rhode Island. The fourth place seeding is misleading because UMass has defeated Rutgers (seeded first) in a pre-season scrimage and also has beaten the University of Connecticut and the University of Rhode Island (seeded second and third) in regular season play.

In yesterday's first game with the Owls, Sue Peters took to the mound striking out four and allowing six hits, increasing her record to 8-0. The Owls got one run in the first, but Peters reached home on a hit to center field due to an error, to tie the score after one inning.

In the second inning, the Owls held UMass scoreless with their lucky defensive plays. This luck served to frustrate the Minutewomen and a rally began at the plate with a blast to centerfield by Jackie Gaw for a two run homer.

Peters followed by parking the ball in deep left, but she was caught in a rundown between third and home, and eventually tagged out. Brenda Simmons lined one to center for a base hit and was knocked in by a Rhonda McManus single. Co-captain Fran Cornacchioli walked, and later scored due to an error by the Connecticut catcher to increase the score to 5-3 in favor of UMass.

The Minutewomen played big "D" from the fourth inning on holding the Owls to 3 runs. At the plate the Umies really picked up starting with a Jen Parker single Jollowed by Peters, who made up for not making it a homer before, by smashing the ball

TURN TO PAGE 19

UMass' Karen LaVerdiere gets set in the field as teammate Sue Peters makes the pitch in a game earlier this season. Staff photo by John Bunting.

Chris Corin and the Gorillas will host Army in a crucial test for a plyoff berth tomorrow at Boyden. Game starts at 2 p.m. Staff photo by Rich Newman

Crucial lax game tomorrow

By JIM DEGNIM
Collegian Staff

The UMass men's lacrosse team faces eighth-ranked Army tomorrow at 2:00 p.m. at Boyden field in a game that could eliminate the loser from NCAA playoff contention.

The Gorillas, 7-2, are ranked eleventh nationally in the latest United States Intercollegiate Association poll. Eight teams are selected for the NCAA Division One Lacrosse Tournament, but they are not necessarily the top eight squads in the final USILA poll.

"From here on in, all the games are important," UMass coach Dick Garber said.

The Cadets, 5-3, have lost to Hofstra (11-9), second-ranked Johns Hopkins (11-10) and third-in-nation Syracuse (8-5). Army has defeated Pennsylvania, Bucknell, Connecticut (13-1), Boston College (14-7) and Rutgers (9-8). The Gorillas defeated UConn and BC by similar scores and topped the Scarlet Knights, 15-14.

"Army is a very strong defensive team," Garber said, " but they're not bad offensively. They have several outstanding offensive players. They don't have one guy we can key on."

The Cadet attack is paced by midfielder Joe Fetzer, a third team All-American in 1979, and freshman attackman Frank Giordano, whom Garber calls "very good". Giordano leads the team with ten goals. Senior goaltender Kevin MacGibbon has allowed 51 goals and has made 83 saves for a .619 percentage. He was honorable mention All-American in '79.

Garber said he plans to use freshman Chris Benedetto in goal. Benedetto has allowed 25 goals in five games.

The leading scorer for UMass is sophomore attackman Jim Weller, who has scored 31 goals in nine games. Junior attackman Skip Vosburgh has 24 goals for the Gorillas, who have won their last three games.

Despite Army's defensive prowess, Garber doesn't expect a low-scoring game. "We've been scoring a lot this season regardless of who we're playing," he said.

But Army assistant coach John Baldini doesn't want a high-scoring contest. "We rely on our defense," Baldini said. "We don't want to get in a 13 or 14 goal shooting match."

UMass goes into the game injury-free. Last year at West Point, the Gorillas defeated Army, 8-5.

Gazelles take finale

By MAUREEN SULLIVAN
Collegian Staff

"It was the best team effort this season," UMass women's lacrosse coach Pam Hixon said of her team's 7-2 victory over Yale University yesterday at New Haven.

"Everybody played super lacrosse," she said, "we needed this game to pull everthing together for the Regionals at Dartmouth this weekend."

Cari Nickerson led the Gazelles' scoring drive with three goals and one assist. Captain Jean Hackett collected two goals and three assists for the day, while Margie Anderson and Julie McHugh scored one goal each. Anderson assisted in one of the Gazelle efforts, while McHugh helped out twice.

Once again, the UMass defense told the story, plugging up the lady Elis to just 18 shots for the game. UMass goalie Robin Jennings saved eight shots, while Gazelle defenders Judy Strong, Maria Minicucci, Kathy Hourihan, Holly Jennings and Laura O'Neil took all the steam away from Yale's attack by intercepting and passing away to its own attackers.

"Laura kept the Yale high scorer to just a few shots on goals," said Hixon, "she shut her off. Our defense was outstanding. On attack, everyone contributed and played very well."

The 10-0 Gazelles, assured of the top seed in the Regionals will travel to Dartmouth College today to practice for its first game at 2:30 p.m. tomorrow afternoon. Its opponents is not known yet.

With this, the final game of the regular season, UMass has averaged 12.4 goals per game and has given up 2.6 goals per game.

Early Harvard barrage halts Minutemen in tracks, 9-3

By MIKE ESTRADA
Collegian Staff

CAMBRIDGE—Umass pitcher Chuck Thompson suffered a four-run second inning here yesterday from which the Minutemen never recovered as Harvard University tromped in the wind and cold, 9-3.

A 5-0 Crimson lead was never seriously threatened by UMass (14-9-1). The visitors plated two runs in the second to cut the lead to three, but Harvard (15-9) scored once in the fifth, twice in the seventh, and once in the ninth to offset the Minuteman offense which managed only six hits on the day.

Thompson, 5-2, the righthanded ace who had led the Yankee Conference with a 1.79 earned run average, was tapped for six earned runs yesterday including four doubles. He walked four and struck out none.

"Every game I've pitched so far I've had something going for me. Today I had nothing," the junior said. "I was flat."

Freshman second baseman Dean Bennett and leftfielder Mark Litano combined for four of UMass' hits. Bennett hit singles in the third and fifth innings. Litano stroked a double for two runs batted in in the third and added a single in the sixth to go two-for-four on the day and raise his batting average to .346.

Thompson's troubles began with an unearned run in the first. With two outs, Harvard captain Charlie Santos-Buch reached first base when shortstop Vin Bonanno's throw drew Mark Brown off the bag. On the next pitch he stole second and was called safe after an apparent tag. Santos-Buch scored on a single up the middle by Mark Brigham.

In the Crimson second, Bobby Kelley (4-for-4, two runs scored) singled and scored on a double to leftfield by catcher Vincent Martelli (two RBI's). After two walks and a sacrifice fly by Brad Bauer, Santos-Buch (three RBI's) got his second hit, a double to left that scored two Crimson runs to make the score 5-0.

In the UMass second inning, Mark Litano doubled to left score Dean Bennett and Doug Alyward who had reached on a single and error respectively.

Alyward was only running at "half speed" because of a line drive hit off his shin in practice Wednesday. He left the game in the seventh for defensive reason, replaced by Tom Grimes.

The Minutemen's final run in the eighth was scored on ground balls by Warren McReddie and Dave Oleksak to score Mike McEvily, who walked.

Harvard pitcher Bill Doyle (4-2) struck out six batters en route to his second complete game of the year. He faced only 19 UMass battters through the first five innings.

After giving up a lead-off triple in the seventh that caused Litano and McEvilly to collide in left-center field, UMass reliever Vin Todd retired four batters.

MASSACHUSETTS DAILY

Collegian

VOLUME CIX, ISSUE 134 Student newspaper of the University of Massachusetts/Amherst Monday, May 5, 1980

Guest passes available this week

To be distributed Wednesday and Thursday in residential areas

By ED LEVINE
Collegian Staff

The 3,500 students who were awarded guest passes for Spring Concert weekend may pick up their passes this week.

Ken Burnham, of the Office of Residential Life, said distribution of the guest passes will be handled in each residential area on Wednesday and Thursday. The 3,500 names were randomly picked by the University computer two weeks ago.

The passes will bear the names of the guest, host and dormitory, Burnham said, as well as various rules and regulations. Each pass will be numbered.

Students who want to transfer the pass to another student within the same building should appear, along with the new host, at the distribution point where area government officials will process the paperwork and issue the passes.

Residents of the Northeast area may pick up their passes on Wednesday and Thursday from 5 to 7 p.m. in 102 Johnson house. Passes for Sylvan residents may be obtained on Wednesday and Thursday from 6 to 8 p.m. in the Cashin lobby. Orchard Hill residents can pick up their passes in 03 Dickinson from 7 to 9 p.m. on Wednesday and Thursday. Residents of Central can obtain their passes in the Van Meter lobby on Thursday from 6 p.m. to midnight. Southwest residents can obtain their passes on Wednesday and Thursday from 7 to 9 p.m. in the Hampden Commons front lobby.

Students who are unsure as whether they are to receive a guest pass should check with their Head of Residence. Lists are also posed in dormitory lobbies and at the Fine Arts Center Box Office, Burnham said.

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

STUDENT STRIKE SWEEPS NATION

And in Asia The War Continues — See page 4

Four Students Killed In Ohio — See page 6

UMass Strike Set Today; Student Senate Favors Protest — See Stories on pages 2, 3

Strike Bulletin Board — on pages 6-7

Campus Strike Roundup — Details, page 3

Rally to commemorate Kent State killings

On Sunday, May 4, 1970, 28 National Guardsmen fired 61 rounds of ammunition in Kent, Ohio. Four students, who attended Kent State University, were killed.

And today, by UMass' campus pond beginning at noon, an as yet unspecified number of students will rally to commemorate those Kent State killings.

In Kent, 10 years and one day ago today, the rally began at noon as well. The subject: escalation of U.S. intervention in Vietnam and the invasion of Cambodia.

Today, the subject: "Social Change and the Student Protest Movement," sponsored by a group calling itself the May 5 Coalition and composed of students from: the Student Government Association, Students Against the Draft, the Radical Student Union and Students United for Public Education.

May 1, 1970 at Kent, about 500 demonstrators, calling themselves World Historians Opposed to Racism and Exploitation, buried a copy of the U.S. Constitution. Later that night, windows of storefronts were smashed—and the Guard was called in.

Today, in commemoration of the shootings at Jackson State as well, a memorial stone will be dedicated to the students killed in those times of social unrest. Then four people will speak and music will be played.

Bob Korb fulfills a popular fantasy by playing piano in a concert hall. He was found practicing last Friday afternoon in Bezanson Recital Hall. Staff photo by Doug Faulding.

Opposition to draft urged

By DEBBIE COHEN
Collegian Staff

"All people must actively oppose the reinstatement of the draft," was the message given at last night's discussion on "Race, Sex, Class and the Draft," held in conjunction with last week's "Threat of War" teach-ins. The event took place at the Unitarian Meeting House in Amherst and was sponsored by the Socialist Feminist Collective.

The panelists, speaking to a large and varied audience, explored several issues raised by the possibility of the draft, concentrating on those effecting women and Third World peoples. Speakers included representatives from the Third World Women's Task Force, a Vietnam veteran and author, and UMass faculty and staff.

Discussion moderator Kim Christianson of the Socialist Feminist Collective said the talk was prompted by such issues as government manipulation of the people, and the resurgence in American imperialism and militarism as a means to gain and retain world power. She cited the importance of a strong solidarity among different peoples, who along with their varied perspectives, are necessary in building a movement to combat our government's oppression both world-wide and within our country.

Speaker Carroll Dunne, a Vietnam veteran and author compared the draft to a loaded gun. "If you have one, you're much more likely to use it," she said.

Dunne, along with the four other panelists, stressed the necessity in stopping the draft. "I think we all must think about struggling against the draft and against war. We have to stop killing each other," she said.

Ann Ferguson, a UMass philosophy professor and a socialist feminist activist, said that it is likely that men will be required to register for the draft and women will not. It is womens' obligations and duty to oppose militarism and fight the draft, she said.

"Can we create a country truly worth fighting for?" she asked.

DIGEST

The Associated Press

Priests, not politicians

BOSTON (AP) — The Roman Catholic Church has ordered Rep. Robert F. Drinan, an ordained Jesuit, and other priests around the world to get out of politics, and the liberal Massachusetts congressman "accepts the will of the Pope," a political associate said yesterday.

Drinan, the only Roman Catholic cleric in national office in the United States, was planning to seek election to his sixth term in Congress in November and is affected by a world wide Papal decision, said Jerome Grossman, National Democratic Committeeman for Massachusetts and chairman of the Committee to Re-Elect Robert Drinan.

Drinan, who has favored legislation permitting the use of government funds to pay for abortions, a position contradicting the church opposition to abortion, was not immediately available for comment.

An aide, Dorothy Reichard, said she expected him to make no statement before a news conference tentatively scheduled for this morning.

BElla Abzug addresses the crowd at Kent State University, on the tenth anniversary of the controversial shootings that left four students dead in 1970. About 1,000 people listened to speakers yesterday afternoon. AP LASERPHOTO

Refugees give thanks

FORT WALTON BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Hundreds of joyous Cuban refugees feasted on scrambled eggs, grits and hotcakes from an Air Force field kitchen Sunday before an open-air Mass to give thanks for a safe journey to the United States.

For many, it was the first chance in two decades to worship in complete freedom.

The refugees were airlifted Saturday to a hurriedly built tent city on a 42-acre city fair-grounds near Eglin Air Force Base in the Florida Panhandle.

About 600 Cubans were at the Fort Walton Beach processing center Sunday morning, and federal officials said at least five charter flights from Key West to Eglin were planned during the day. The center here can accommodate up to 15,000 refugees.

In Key West, the "Freedom Flotilla" from the Port of Mariel in Cuba picked up its pace Sunday after a temporary lull a day earlier. By mid-morning, 46 boats carrying 1,213 refugees had docked, bringing the number processed by the Immigration and Naturalization Service since the boatlift began two weeks ago up to 10, 673.

US censures Libya

WASHINGTON — The United States is expelling four Libyan diplomats and withdrawing the U.S. diplomatic staff from Libya because of "intimidation activities" aimed at Libyan dissidents, a State Department spokeswoman said yesterday.

The spokeswoman, Anita Stockman, stressed, however, that the United States is not breaking relations with the North African nation.

She said the four Libyan diplomats have been declared "persona non grata" and given 72 hours to leave the country.

"Libyans have been engaging in intimidation activities toward Libyan dissidents in this country," she said. She would specify what activities she referred to.

Tito dead at 87

Ruled Communist Yugoslavia for 35 years

By IVAN STEFANOVIC
Associated Press

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia — Yugoslav President Josip Broz Tito, whose staunchly independent 35-year rule kept his Communist nation on a tightrope between the great powers of the East and West, died Sunday. He was 87.

Tito, one of the last surviving leaders of World War II, died hours after his team of eight doctors issued a medical bulletin saying he had slipped into critical condition with heart failure. He had been hospitalized for nearly four months following a blood vessel blockage that led to amputation of his left leg.

The official Yugoslav news agency Tanjug said he died at 3:05 local time, 90 minutes before it was announced.

"If someone had a useful role in life than the world will not tumble down when he dies," Tito who would have been 88 Wednesday, was once quoted as saying. "That which he did will remain forever."

And leaders from East and West were looking closely to determine the future of the nation Tito led for so long.

Tito's wartime partisans were credited with ridding then-monarchist Yugoslavia of German and Italian occupiers in World War II and it was chiefly his success in that effort that vaulted him over monarchists and other nationalists in 1945 to the undisputed leadership of Yugoslavia.

Josip Broz Tito

His determined independence led him to a historic 1948 break with the Soviet Union that was never entirely mended.

More than three decades after Josef V. Stalin eased Yugoslavia out of the Soviet bloc, Tito was still openly opposing Moscow's policies and ruling unchallenged over a Communist nation armed to defeat Warsaw Pact aggressors.

A waiter and metal worker in his teens, Tito rose to become a venerated national hero.

Born Josip Broz on May 7, 1892, son of a Croatian farmer, Yugoslavia's legendary leader took the name Tito during the years in the pre-war Communist underground. He kept it the rest of his life.

Tito burst on the world scene as the handsome, robust leader of Yugoslavia's wartime Communist partisans. Their campaign, aided by the country's rugged geography, became one of the ar's most successful guerrilla efforts.

Once in control of the country after the war, Tito's forces moved relentlessly against opponents, cementing their hold on the country.

In 1948, Tito defied threats of economic boycott and Eastern invasion to hold to his

TURN TO PAGE 6

Iran, Cuba discuss US protest

Associated Press

Iranian President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr met Sunday with Cuban officials to consider a conference of non-aligned nations to protest the American attempt to rescue the hostages, Tehran Radio said. It said the bodies of the commandos killed in the aborted mission may be turned over to the Swiss Embassy Tuesday or Wednesday.

The 53 American hostages began their seventh month in captivity Sunday. The Islamic militants who seized the U.S. Embassy in Tehran on Nov. 4 said they had moved an unspecified number of captives to two more Iranian towns, Arak and Mahallat, about 155 miles southwest of Tehran.

The militants had earlier announced the transfer of groups of hostages to eight other locations outside Tehran following the U.S. rescue attempt. Some hostages have remained at the American Embassy and the Iranian Foreign Ministry, they said.

Bani-Sadr last week asked Cuban President Fidel Castro, as current chairman of the Non-Aligned Movement, to summon a special meeting of nations professing non-alignment to discuss the April 25 rescue mission. Bani-Sadr asked that the meeting be held May 10-12 in Tehran.

Tehran Radio quoted Cuban Foreign Minister Isidoro Malmierca Peioli as saying upon his arrival in the Iranian capital Saturday night: "Naturally, we all agree to the holding of such a meeting. We hope that it will take place as soon as a venue has been fixed and the way to hold it has been decided on."

Malmierca also was quoted as saying he was confident that non-aligned countries would voice complete support for Iran and that "in case of need it will be given not only moral but also material support by Cuba." He did not elaborate.

Malmierca was quoted as saying he carried messages from Castro to Bani-Sadr and Iranian revolutionary leader Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, but the contents were not disclosed.

An Iranian Foreign Ministry spokeman said Sunday the charred bodies of the American commandos killed in the rescue attempt probably will be handed over to officials at the Swiss Embassy in Tehran on Tuesday or Wednesday, Tehran Radio reported. But Swiss Ambassador Eric Lang said he would take possission of the bodies Monday and send them to Zurich "probably Tuesday."

The remains are to be returned from Switzerland to the commandos' families in the United States.

Corruption panel investigates Holyoke College contracts

By DAVID HERN
Associated Press Writer

BOSTON — The focus of the state corruption commission returns this week to the Holyoke Community College design contract, which allegedly involved sizeable cash payoffs.

James Siragusa, a financial investigator for the commission probing abuses in state and county construction, is expected to provide detailed information on the contract. Four other "outside" witnesses have been called.

Daniel, Mann, Johnson, & Mendenhall of Los Angeles so far has received $1,681,918.14 in fees for the $30 million job. In statements release earlier, Dim-Jim, as it is called in hearings, declined comment until all testimony has been given.

The payoff issue surfaced in testimony in March from Frank R. Masiello Jr., former owner of the Worcester architectural firm which has been dissected in a series of commission hearings.

Masielo alleged that $11,000 in cash was paid to Albert "Toots" Manzi of Paxton, a member of the turnpike authority who was chief fund-faiser for Republican Govs. John A. Volpe and Francis W. Sargent.

He said $5,000 was from a check he said he received

TURN TO PAGE 6

Subscription rates

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian (USPS 333 220) is published daily Monday through Friday, excluding January, June, July, and August, for $15 at 113 Campus Center, University of Massachusetts at Amherst, MA 01003. Second class postage paid at Amherst, Mass. Postmaster: Send address changes to Massachusetts Daily Collegian, 113 Campus Center, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, MA 01003.

THE VELVET HAMMER INN

BACK-SIDE SALOON
GOOD FOOD & DRINK BEING SERVED
OPEN DAILY 11:30 A.M.
BEST PIZZA & HOT OVEN GRINDERS ON CAPE COD
TAKE OUT 771-0727
Our Kitchen Keeps Cookin' til 12:30 AM

CAFÉ RITZ hyannis
LUNCHEON
DAILY HAPPY HOUR
RAW BAR
DELI-COUNTER
Specialty desserts & coffees
Approx May 1-Oct 13

ANYBODY WHO'S ANYBODY
WILL BE DANCING AT THE VELVET HAMMER

209 MAIN STREET HYANNIS, MASS 775-5505

THE IN-SPOT TO RALLY ON CAPE COD THIS SUMMER
VELVET HAMMER FEATURING A SUMMER OF POPULAR ROCK WITH "THE STOMPERS", "ACES & 8", "JET", "BREAKERS", "ARROW", "OMEGA", "BRANCH BROS.", "SUNDANCE", ETC. HAPPY HOURS WITH "THE SHOES"
Applications for Summer Employment now being accepted.

Concert choice explained

By ED LEVINE
Collegian Staff

UMass students will be teated to the music of the Allman Brothers and Bonnie Raitt at the annual Spring Concert in Alumni Stadium next Saturday, but this year, as in the past, controversy has arisen over the selection of the bands.

Some people have expressed disapproval at the choice of the Allman Brothers, just as some students protested the selection of the Grateful Dead, last year's headline act.

"The selection of bands is always controversial. You're never going to please everyone," Union Program Council Talent Coordinator Art Edelstein said last week. "we try to bring in a wide spectrum of things. It's very difficult to come up with a program that is going to please everyone."

Edelstein explained the band selection process, saying he first compiles of list of possible acts and presents them to the UPC Executive Committee, which chooses the final bands. The acts must then be approved by the membership, which unanimously accepted the Allman Brothers, he said.

"We spoke to every booking agency in the U.S. that handle most of the acts and ask who they have touring," Edelstein said. "Nobody had anything available in May."

Edelstein said he attempted to book many major bands including The Who, Bruce Springsteen, Stevie Wonder, the Doobie Brothers, Marshall Tucker, The Cars, Neil Young, Bob Seger, Earth, Wind and Fire, Joni Mitchell, the Crusaders, Third World, Gil-Scott Heron and Bob Marley, among others.

"As far as the big bands go, there wasn't much out there," he said.

When the booking agencies proved unproductive, Edelstein said he began contacting individual band managers.

"Finally we approached Monarch Entertainment who we did the Dead with last year. They said there was the possibility of the Allmans doing a college tour, including us and four other shows. They're recording an album in Nashville now and they want to warm up for the summer," he said.

"We were looking for a band we hoped

TURN TO PAGE 6

Two women share some thoughts while being viewed from the third floor of the Student Union building. Staff photo by Doug Paulding

Stormy skies briefly interuppted the festivities at Southwest concert Saturday. The showers, though, caused several rainbows throughout the valley. Staff photo by Doug Paulding.

Music under the sun

Serving as a prelude for "bigger things to come," this past weekend saw the staging of several concerts on campus, just one week prior to the University's annual Spring Concert, scheduled for next Saturday.

This past weekend was actually the conclusion of a flurry of week-long activities which began last weekend with the Northeast/Sylvan Area Concert. At that residential area's music offering, performances were given by Shenandoah (formerly Arlo Guthrie's backup band); B. Willie Smith, a 50's-style rhythm and blues group; T.M. Stevens, a funk-rock fusion act; and Carolyn Moss, a female rock and roller reminiscent of Bruce Springsteen in style.

Friday in Southwest, the band The Move entertained students at a concert on that area's "Pyramids," as part of Southwest Week, winding down an annual festival which included concerts by The Bastards, The Scientific Americans and The Kidz, among others. Coffeehouses, barbeques, arts and crafts fairs also played a prominent part in the week-long festival.

Southwest Week concluded on Saturday, with an afternoon of traditional rock, rhythm and blues, new wave and reggae. The concert opened with music by Martian Highway, a local favorite known for its Grateful Dead-sounding style. Manaka, a reggae group, provided the audience with some entertaining and innovative tunes derived from the increasingly-popular Latin American form. Blue Angel, a new wave band, entertained the crowd, followed by a performance from The Nighthawks, a new wave act.

The music continued on Sunday, with a concert by The Bastards, sponsored by the UMass Commuter Collective, at the Campus Pond, and ended with the Orchard Hill/Central Area Spring Concert, which featured performances by the jazz band – FX; Heidi & the Secret Admirers, a punk band; Loose Caboose, and Fountainhead.

Despite a downpour of rain Saturday afternoon, thousands of students "camped out" on blankets, enjoying two afternoons of partying, sun and, most of all – good music.

UM women organize for ERA push

By DEBBIE ROBERTI
Collegian Staff

Ten university women have organized a UMass Equal Rights Amendment Campus Campaign, headed by Laurie Weinstein and Christina Mollen, as a result of International Women's Week las March.

"The ERA Campus Campaign originated after a woman from Washington, who organizes pro ERA groups on campus, came to UMass to give a workshop for International Women's Week," Weinstein said.

At this time, the group has a table set up every Thursday at the Campus Center to sell buttons and to give out information about the ERA. The campaign is also using letters and petitions to inform the community.

"We urge interested students to sign a petition that will authorize us to use their signature on letter," Weinstein said. The letters are directed toward Governor Thompson of Illinois because the state plans to vote on the Equal Rights Amendment this month.

"We only need three more states to ratify the ERA Amendment," Weinstein said, "and Governor Thompson has said that he is pro ERA, but he hasn't really been doing anything about it."

The UMass ERA Campus Campaign meet every Tuesday at 4 p.m. in Earthfoods, in the Student Union building.

This mime was one of the several performers at theOrchard Hill-Central concert yesterday. Delays in the music allowed ample time for mimes magicians and jugglers to do their thing. Staff photo by Doug Paulding.

Student loses in delegate bid

Saturday was a bad day for Paul "Tim" Walter Jr.

The Lee resident, who is a part-time UMass graduate student in English, was confident Thursday that he would be picked as a John Anderson delegate to the Republican National Convention. But Saturday at Smith College's Wright Hall, Walter lost out in his bid for a trip to Detroit. Burton S. Resnic, a Holyoke attorney, proved to be his nemesis.

There is a chance, thought, that Walter could still be traveling to Detroit. Anderson's state GOP campaign committee could disapprove of Resnic, in which case Walter – as the second-highest vote getter Saturday – would get the nod.

Walter said the Anderson people had asked him to run for the 1st Congressional District delegation. But he had thought there wouldn't be any oppostion to his nomination either.

Thirty-six delegates to the GOP convention were elected statewide Saturday. In Northampton, U.S. Rep. Silvio P. Conte, State Sen. John H. Fitzpatrick and Resnic were chosen by th 150 who attended.

TURN TO PAGE 6

Opening act set

Jazz keyboardist Lonnie Liston Smith will appear as the opening act at this year's Spring Concert, a Union Program Council Spokesperson announced Friday.

UPC Promotion Director Darlene Lorkiewcz said Smith was booked late Friday and will appear first at the concert, scheduled for this Saturday in Alumni Stadium.

Student tickets for the show are no longer being distributed, Lorkiewicz said. Students and guests wishing to attend the concert may purchase guest tickets for $15 each at the Fine Arts Center Box Office. Tickets will be sold for as long as they are available or until the end of the week, she said.

Lorkiewicz also asked students to encourage their guests who do not passes for the dorms, to leave the campus following the show.

Weight Watchers

Values to help you keep in great shape!

*Weight Watchers Dinners Lasagna, Ziti or Eggplant Parmigiana 13 ounce package $1.29 ea.

Veal Parmigiana $1.49
Turkey Tetrazzini $1.69
Fillet of Fish $1.29

8½ oz pkg. Luncheons *Weight Watchers Flounder, Sole or Stuffed Haddock $1.39 ea.

Soft Margarine 69¢
Mayonnaise 99¢
Cheese Singles $1.29

FILM DEVELOPING SPECIAL!
A second set of prints absolutely free at extra charge with every 110, 126 or 35mm color print film. That's what you get at Stop & Shop every time you bring in your color print film for us to develop. We always use Kodak paper to give you better looking prints and extra prints! With 2 sets of prints, you can share the fun!

seafood Deliciously fresh!

Fresh Haddock Fillets Delicious broiled or baked! $1.99 lb
FRESH OCEAN PERCH FILLETS 2.89 lb
FRESH CUSK FILLETS 1.99 lb
FRESH DRESSED HADDOCK 1.59 lb
FRESH DRESSED BUTTERFISH 1.79 lb

self service deli Values!

Stop & Shop Extra Mild Franks 1 lb pkg. 99¢
Meat Hot Dogs 1.19
Armour Bacon 1.09
Meat Bologna 1.09
Colonial Bacon 99¢
Nepco Beef Franks 1.49

corner deli May we serve you!

Available in stores featuring a service deli
White's Domestic Cooked Ham Sectioned & Formed $1.89 lb
Colonial Olive Loaf 1.49
D.A.K. Danish Salami 1.39
Cheddar Cheese 2.19
Imported Cooked Ham 2.49
Corned Beef Brisket 3.99

kitchen Dinner's ready!

Countryfine Herbs n' Butter Cooked Chicken or Home Style $1.09 lb
Rice Pudding 1.39
Potato Salad 98¢

frozen meats Time savers!

2 lb. Pkg. Fried Chicken Stop & Shop $2.29 lb
Steak Umm's 2.29
Rath Sausage Meat 69¢

Stop & Shop Coupon 3-28
SAVE 75¢ WEAVER CHICKEN THIGHS & DRUMSTICKS 28oz. pkg. Batter Dipped or Dutch Frye
Good Mon., May 5 - Sat., May 10. Limit one per customer. 211
MEAT GROCERY

Come fill your life with 'The Joy of Great Music'
Now, experience "The Joy of Great Music" right in your own home. Subscribe to any series of 3 Time & Warner Bicentennial Eras Masterpieces of Music with each album.
Album 1 99¢
Album 2-24 only $2.99 each

ECO ETERNA Flatware Soupspoon 3 for 1 With each $3 food purchase
Kitchen Tools Fork 2 for 1 With each $3 food purchase

Stop & Shop Coupon J27
With this coupon and a $7.50 purchase
89¢ Bonus Pack 19oz. pkg. HYDROX Chocolate Sandwich CREME COOKIES
Good Mon., May 5 - Sat., May 10. Limit one per customer. 207
GROCERY

Stop & Shop Coupon J26
With this coupon and a $7.50 purchase
79¢ From Concentrate Half Gallon STOP & SHOP ORANGE JUICE
Good Mon., May 5 - Sat., May 10. Limit one per customer. 206
DAIRY

Stop & Shop — Honest values are what we're all about

Get Our Value-Filled Circular
4 pages packed with savings! Extra copies in the store!

USDA CHOICE Stop & Shop "Great Beef" USDA Choice
Beef Bottom Round Roast Stop & Shop GREAT BEEF $1.79 lb
Naturally tender, very lean beef, an excellent choice for pot roast!
Rump Roast Beef Round "Great Beef" USDA Choice $1.99 lb
Beef Bottom Round Steak For Swiss Steak $1.99 lb
Beef Eye Round Roast "Great Beef" USDA Choice $2.39 lb

1st of the White Gem Chicken Leg Quarters "White Gem" With Back Attached 49¢ lb
Each one a meaty, generous serving
Breast Quarters With Wing Attached "White Gem" Chicken 53¢ lb
Chicken Legs With Thigh Attached "White Gem" Chicken 69¢ lb
Chicken Breasts With Ribs "White Gem" $1.09 lb

Stop & Shop 5 lb Canned Ham $5.99
Prices effective in Hadley-Amherst Store only

Smoked Pork Butts Boneless water added $1.19 lb
Make a nutritious boiled dinner with fresh vegetables.
Lamb Legs Whole Oven Ready New Zealand Frozen $1.59 lb
Shoulder Lamb Chops New Zealand Frozen $1.59 lb
Armour Boneless Ham water added $1.99 lb

produce
Lots of luscious, ripe berries for your money!
Fresh Quart Calif. Strawberries $1
Or Family Size 6 Pint Tray 2.99

Give your Mom and loved ones a nutritional, useful gift.
Hostess Fruit Gift Tray 15 pieces of fruit in a simulated crystal tray $5.49 ea.
Extra Fancy Fruit Tray 16 pieces of fruit in a re-useable table container. $5.49 ea.
Deluxe Fruit Gift Bowl 23-pieces of extra fancy fruit $7.49 ea.
Plus... All Stop & Shops have beautiful floral gifts for Mother's Day, including flowering and foliage plants, geraniums, annuals!

Rice A Roni Beef or Chicken 8 oz pkg	2 for 89¢	Puritan Vegetable Oil 48 ounce bottle	$1.99
Chicken of the Sea Tuna Chunk Light in water or oil 6½ ounce can	69¢	Franco American Spaghetti/Os 14½oz can	3 for 89¢
Hi-C Fruit Drinks Fruit Flavored Assorted Flavors 46 oz can	2 for $1	Paradise Spring Water Natural gallon container	39¢
Hunt's Ketchup Thick, rich tomato 44 ounce bottle	99¢	Stop & Shop Pasta Elbow, Thin, Regular or Ziti with Links. 16oz pkg	2 for 89¢
Lipton Tea Bags Package of 100	$1.59	2 Liter Coca Cola 67.6 ounce bottle	$1.09
Betty Crocker Snackin' Cakes Apple Sauce, Raisin or Choc. Chip 15 oz. pkg.	99¢	Chips Ahoy Cookies Chco. Chip or Coconut Choc. Chip, Nabisco 13oz pkg.	$1.19
Cottonelle Bath Tissue Bathroom 4 pack. White or Ass'd Colors 400 ct. 1 ply roll	99¢	Stop & Shop Potato Chips 12 ounce bag	79¢
Fantastik Cleaner 22 ounce bottle	89¢	Glass Plus Cleaner with Trigger 22oz bottle	99¢
Cycle Dog Food Beef or Chicken 1, 2, 3, or 4, 14oz can	3 for 95¢	Stop & Shop Cat Food 4 varieties 6½oz can	5 for $1
New Tangled Corn Muffins Stop & Shop 16oz pkg of 6	99¢	Wonder Home Pride White Bread 20oz loaf	75¢
Stop & Shop Baby Powder 24oz plastic container	99¢	Scope Mouthwash 30oz Bonus Bottle	$1.79

frozen foods Brands you can depend on for quality!

John's Cheese Pizza 12oz. or Sausage 13oz. pkg.	99¢	Sun Glory Orange Juice 16 ounce can	89¢
Rich's Coffee Rich Non-dairy Creamer 16 Ounce Container	3 for $1	Ore-Ida Golden Fries 2 pound package	89¢
Banquet Entrees Cookin Bags 6 varieties 5oz pkg	3 for $1	Celentano Cheese Ravioli Cheese 13oz pkg	$1.19
Sara Lee Rings Blueberry, Raspberry, Maple or Almond 9½oz pkg	99¢	Half Gallon Sherbet Stop & Shop 3 flavors ent.	99¢ dairy Freshness comes first at your Stop & Shop!

All Natural Plain Yogurt Stop & Shop 32oz container	99¢	Imperial Margarine 1 lb Pkg Qtr. lb. sticks	69¢
Colombo Yogurt 7 flavors 8 ounce cup	3 for $1	Cottage Cheese Pineapple Breakstone 1 lb. container	99¢
Sliced Swiss Cheese Stop & Shop 8oz pkg	$1.29	Borden's Cheese Slices Process American White or Yellow 12oz pkg	$1.39
Hood or Nufarm Cottage Cheese Small or large curd 16oz container	79¢	Pillsbury Biscuits Buttermilk or Countrystyle 4½ ounce package	6 for $1

Prices effective Sun., May 5 - Sat., May 10, 1980, in fairness to all our customers, we reserve the right to limit sales to three packages except where otherwise noted. Items offered for sale not available in case lots up to other retail dealers or wholesalers. Copyright 1980 by Stop & Shop Supermarkets. All rights reserved.

HADLEY-AMHERST Route 9 at the Hadley-Amherst Line. 8 a.m.-10 p.m., Mon.-Sat.
We redeem your Federal Food Stamps.

Editorial/Opinion

Convocation for Public Education

Every student at UMass should be concerned with the following questions: Why are our dorms becoming slums? Why is it so hard to get into required courses? Why does financial aid get cut while hikes are being made in our tuition? The answer to all of these questions is really very straightforward: Our state government is not concerned with fulfilling its obligation to sustain the quality, accessible system of public higher education that the people of Massachusetts have worked for, established and deserve.

In the 1960s UMass received enough support to become a first-rate university with a national reputation for academic quality and diversity. Now, in the name of reducing corporate taxes and eliminating "comoetition" with private schools, our fine public university is being threatened by a 20 percent hike in tuition, by reorganization plans geared specifically to satisfying employment interests of Big Business, and by the most drastically reduced budget proposal that we have ever faced. Here are a few facts and figures:

—Massachusetts ranks 50th in the U.S. in per capita spending on public higher education.

—Tuition may rise $125 this year, and if it does, only one-tenth of the extra revenues will return to the University.

—Academic departments are being cut back or eliminated, especially within the College of Arts and Sciences.

—There is a shortage of faculty everywhere: for example, the School of Business Administration may lose accreditation because it has to rely on graduate students to teach basic courses.

—UMass is by no means the only school that would be affected by the proposed budget, in fact Roxbury Community College will fold if the cutbacks are adopted.

Our legislature attempts to justify these facts by appeals to "cost efficiency," but there is no kind of efficiency gained in neglecting the needs of public higher education.

We have a right to demand the high quality, accessible education that we have enjoyed. We must not let our elected officials tell us that it is a luxury, and we must let them know that we will not accept a further deterioration of our schools.

On Wednesday, May 7, there will be a rally at the State House to demand that our government:
——STOP CUTBACKS
——STOP TUITION HIKES

We encourage the entire University community to participate in this rally. Free transportation to Boston will be provided. Sign up in the Student Union, Room 409 for a seat on one of the buses.

Karen Fitzpatrick, SUPE

Letters

Letters Policy

Letters to the editor should be kept as short as possible, preferably no longer than two pages. They should be typed at 67 characters per line, triple-spaced.

All letters should contain the author's name, address, and telephone number for verification. Telephone numbers will not be printed.

Recognized disorganization

To the Editor:

During the past year I have served as Co-President of the Student Government Association with Rich LaVoice. The experience has been most rewarding. I had the opportunity to be exposed to and learn from many of the organizations that comprised the SGA. I have developed skills which I could have never learned in a classroom environment.

I have also been in a position where I have observed the University administration in their management of the University, particularly in the area of Student Government. In the past year Rich and I, and other active members of the SGA have attempted to work with the administration in good faith. When I say good faith, I mean being up front, showing all information in order to come up with a well thought out decision. This, to my knowledge, has not always been the case with the administration.

Throughout our administration, Rich and I tried to address many of the internal policies of the SGA. We appointed a Constitutional Task Force, chaired by the Attorney General of the SGA to revise the constitution.

When we observed that the accounting system was deficient in meeting the needs of the Recognized Student Organizations we negotiated with the administration to develop a system that would meet our concerns [both of the SGA and the adminstration]. When we felt we were dealt with unjustly on this matter, we approached the adminstration only to have our words fall upon stone ears.

There were no resolutions between the SGA and the administration so we took our case to the Board of Trustees. The Board granted the SGA a mandate to look for an outside accounting system which would meet both the University and SGA concerns. We always contended that we would address both SGA and administrative concerns, but that was not the case with the administration. They were more concerned with their own.

The accounting branch of the SGA SA/RSO is controlled by the administration. In Fiscal Year '80, there was $20,000 of student money [SATF] for professional staff within the office. This office is to assure that student organizations, RSO groups, follow University policies and stay within their budget. The SA/RSO receives $201,000.00 in personnel for this purpose, but when organizations fail the administration says that the SGA screwed up. We [SGA] have had three audits done in the SA/RSO office over the last three years by Peat, Marwick and Mitchell, stating that "non-compliance with internal policies" is a major problem within the SA/RSO office. Vice Chancellor Madson will tell you that he controls the SA/RSO office. It is a fact that students do not control that office. I feel that they should not have total control over the office, but that they should have more control than flowed. The budget for the SA/RSO is set by Vice Chancellor Madson. The budget should have been on the floor of the Senate Wednesday April 30. The officers of the SGA have been asking for a budget for several months. The officers received a memo Monday, April 28, stating that the budget "will be in the area of $312,000." The Budgets Committee of the Student Senate have been developing a budget since February. A budget request like this means that money will have to be cut out of student organizations to fund an office that has not performed well at all.

This brings me to another area that the student body should be informed of—the SATF budget. In 1978, the student organizations cut between 26.5 percent to 10 percent of their budgets to cover a deficit by the Black American Music Festival.

The year before, most groups were level funded. In 1979, the Student Senate again implemented a budget cut of three percent to seven percent so that we could start a deficit liquidation program. You see, the SA/RSO was so screwed up that a deficit of $124,000 accumulated. The total deficit was $184,000, $60,000 of which was attributed to a fee short fall. The original budge for FY '79 had in it a deficit liquidation category. The students wanted to liquidate the deficit in three years, at a$60,000 per year. This would allow the SGA to receive more for their money and provide more funds for student programming. The administration wanted to do it one year, all $184,000. This shows the administration's incompetence in management and its lack of concern for student programming. We settled on a compromise of two years. That meant a cut in the FY '79 budget and an extremely austere budget for FY '80.

Although there have been increases in the SATF, I feel that students have not been recieving the most for their money. I wouldn't blame this on the student government. I would direct the blame toward the adminstration. The SGA here at UMass provides services and programming for student [i.e. buses, concerts, legal services, coops, etc.] unprecedented at most universities. This is done without any assistance from the administration; in fact, they often obstruct progress.

The administration is an obstacle which has attempted to eat away at the accomplishments of the SGA. I have no respect for administrators of the university that I have worked with, because the only time they ever want the students to work for them [at least in the cases I have worked with them], is only when they could get something out of it.

What I am asking of the student body is this:

1. Please do not criticize your SGA unless you have done the research. You may be criticizing the wrong people.

2. If you are not satisfied with what is going on, give the SGA feedback or get involved to make a change. That's what I did.

Brian Burke
Former SGA Co-President

Freshman advocation

To the Editor

Most everyone who passes through this university has a tendency to recall their first year here with rose-colored fondness. In many ways the first year is a "liberating experience," but academically the "experience" can drive even the most studious person to drink [non-alcoholic beverages for those under 20, of course]. Inadequate academic advising and little or no advertising of special programs and internships contribute to the confusion in those first two semesters.

The academic team of the Student Center for Educational Research and Advocacy has just completed a survey of 100 freshpersons on such topics as advising, awareness of special programs, and class size and we invite all first year students to come and hear the results and discuss their own views at a Freshperson's Forum. The forum will be held on Monday May 5 from 8:00-10:00 p.m. in CC 164. Professor Harvey Kline of the Political Science department, who is also the Secretaty of the Faculty Senate, and Professor James Chumbley of the Psychology department will be there to answer questions, along with a representative of CASIAC.

We hope this forum will address any unanswered questions that Freshpersons still might have in planning for next year.

Candyce A. Carlon
Academic Team
SCERA

MASSACHUSETTS DAILY
Collegian

STEPHEN B. KLEIN, Editor-in-Chief. JULIE EAGLE, Managing Editor. FREDERIC M. KEELOR, Business Manager. KEN GRANDPRE, Advertising manager. JACK GALLAGHER, News Editor. ROB BURBANK, Executive Editor. LISA CAPONI, Women's Editor. RENEE MOBLEY, Black Affairs Editor. JIM MAHONEY, Photo Editor. SUZETTE COURTMANCHE, Graphics Manager. JIM DEGNIM, Sports Editor. JIM MORAN, Fine Arts Editor.

Associate Editors

Jeff Baker, Fran Bastie, Ellen Davis, Carolyn Mooney, Rob Stein. Associate Managing Editors: Ed Levine, Brian O'Connell. Associate News Editors: Eric Janssen, Associate Feature Editor: Joan Daly, Katie Kress. Assistant advertising manager: Debbie Walker. Associate Women's Editor: Marcia Hospedales. Associate Black Affairs Editor: Peter Berry. Associate Photo Editor: Andrew Burnham. Associate Fine Arts Editor: Jane Wyman. Associate Sports Editor: Jeffrey Bauer. Associate Graphics Manager.

The Collegian is the student newspaper of the University of Massachusetts. The staff is responsible for the content and no faculty member or administrator must approve the paper before it goes to publication.

Unsigned editorials represent the view of the paper. They do not necessarily reflect the views of the faculty, administration, or student body as a whole. Signed editorials, columns, reviews, cartoons and letters represent the personal views of the author.

The Collegian is a member of the Associated Press. Rates, plan of their operation does not constitute endorsement.

The Collegian does not guarantee advertising space in a specific unit (program) but takes responsibility for an advertisement's first day with the individual advertiser.

USPS 339 220

★ Tito

CONT. FROM PAGE 2

independent policies in spite of Stalin.

Stalin expelled Yugoslavia from the Communist Bloc as a result, and Tito tried to build strength among what came to be known as the "non-aligned" and less developed nations of the world.

Tito was the last surviving founder of non-aligned nation movement.

The man who became known through his exploits as a World War II guerrilla leader was a Croat sergeant in the early months of what became World War I. He was part of the army that Austria sent into the field against Serbia after the assassination in 1914 of Archduke Franz Ferdinand in Sarejevo.

Tito became a Russian prisoner of war shortly afterward and spent five years in Russia, joining in later with the Communist revolution that overthrew the czarist monarchy. It was this that sent him into the Communist underground in Yugoslavia and in 1930 to prison for five years. He fled to Austria after his prison term and became a high-ranking member of the Yugoslav Communist Party in exile.

★ Concert

CONT. FROM PAGE 3

would appeal to a wide spectrum of the University community," he said. "I think we have done it. A good 80 to 85 percent of the undergraduates should be there. We tried to keep in line with our charter: to supply music to campus keeping in mind the Third World and women's communities. We looked for a lot of different women's acts. Bonnie Raitt was touring the the Midwest and was interested in appearing. She has been pretty much headlining except for the no-nukes shows and an appearance with Jackson Browne, so we're lucky."

Edelstein said the council has trouble locating a Third World band, but one should be signed shortly.

★ Corruption

CONT. FROM PAGE 2

at his new home in Florida from DimJim. He said it was cashed by his brother, Bill, at a Boston bank and delivered to Manzi at his turnpike office.

He said $6,000 in $5 bills was delivered by Barry Mountain, a DimJim executive, when they called on Manzi at the meat counter of the Worcester market he operated.

Manzi has been ailing and unavaiable for comment. He and Bill Masiello were acquitted on extortion charges related to other contracts, following a jury-waived state trial.

Holyoke Community College, primarily because of the political clout Holyoke then claimed, was a top priority on Beacon Hill after its renovated quarters were destroyed by fire Jan. 4, 1968.

The majority leader of the House, later the speaker, David M. Bartley, was from Holyoke and is now the school's president.

★ Delegate

CONT. FROM PAGE 3

In his 2nd Congressional District, Talbert W. Swan, Norma Cash Smith and Gilbert were elected by the 130 attending the meeting at Tantasqua Regional High School in Sturbridge.

SELL IT
SELL IT
SELL IT

Collegian Classifieds

WORK STUDY STUDENTS

Summer jobs as telephone interviewers on a study of urban parks.

Must be available in June and August, primarily evening hours; 20+ hours/week, $4/hour.

Call The Environmental Institute before May 16, 545-0648.

Great Prices
Spring Clothes
Jewelry
THE MERCANTILE
AMHERST CARRIAGE SHOPS
Daily 10 am - 6 pm

Needed at Once!
· Business Manager
· Circulation Manager
Apply by Wed. May 7 4 pm
Jim Ristuben , Collegian Office
Room 113, Campus Center
THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY Collegian Telephone (413) 545 3500
The Collegian is an Equal Opportunity Employer

OMEGA BOOKS carries COMICS MOVIE POSTERS BUY AND SELL (SOME TRADE) QUALITY USED BOOKS 10-1230 2-5:00 MON-SAT 213 MAIN STREET NORTHAMPTON

EQUAL OPPORTUNITY T-SHIRTS

Be the first on your block! All shirts are made in U.S.A., 50% cotton, 50% polyester, quality.

Ladies' Light Blue T-Shirt, V-Neck, French Cut, cap sleeves with navy blue printing.
Size ☐ Small ☐ Medium ☐ Large

Men's Light Blue T-Shirt, Crew Neck with short sleeves
Size ☐ Small ☐ Medium ☐ Large

Name .....
Address/Zip Code .....

I am ordering ..... shirts at $7.50 ..... $ .....
Make check payable to ..... (Add 50¢ per shirt packaging & postage)

AIM MARKETING SERVICES
806 SUMMER STREET, LAKE WORTH, FL 33461

The Umass Music Theatre Guild
is now accepting staff applications
for the Fall '80 Production of
ON THE TOWN
Needed are:
Director Producer Choreographer
Music Director Stage Manager
Tech Director Master Electrician Master Carpenter
Costume, Set, Lighting Designers
For more info call Chris at 549-3589

Deduct $1.00
from any
Large Homemade Italian PIZZA

Menu

	SM	LG		SM	LG
Plain	2.05	2.85	Sausage	2.65	3.45
Onion	2.15	2.95	Pepperoni	2.60	3.40
Pepper	2.15	2.95	Hamburg	2.60	3.40
Mushroom	2.60	3.40	Bacon	2.65	3.45
Pastrami	2.50	3.30	2-Way	2.90	3.70
Pepper & Onion	2.20	3.00	3-Way	2.95	3.75

Our pizza dough is prepared fresh daily and we use only first quality ingredients. Use a coupon to try our delicious homemade Italian pizza. Served every evening at the Campus Center at the Bluewall Bar and Coffee Shop.

5:00 PM - 10:30 PM
Bluewall Bar & Coffee Shop

Deduct 50c
From any small PIZZA at the Bluewall Bar or Coffee Shop. 5:00 PM - 10:30 PM Every evening
Offer expires 5/16/80
Only one coupon per pizza

Deduct $1.00
From any large PIZZA at the Bluewall Bar or Coffee Shop. 5:00 PM - 10:30 PM Every evening
Offer expires 5/16/80
Only one coupon per pizza

American Greetings The Fresh Idea Company . . .
campus center, umass
the UNIVERSITY STORE

Louis FINE FOODS
76 N. PLEASANT ST. AMHERST, MASS.

Specials Effective: May 5 thru May 10, 1980

SWIFT'S BROWN N' SERVE Sausage 8 OZ PKG 93¢
OSCAR MAYER Bacon SUPER VALUE LB $1.43 PKG
OSCAR MAYER SLICED Meat Bologna 8 OZ PKG 89¢
OSCAR MAYER SLICED Beef Bologna 8 OZ PKG 99¢
U.S.D.A. CHOICE ROUND Tip Steak $2.39 LB
U.S.D.A. CHOICE ROUND Beef Kabobs $2.29 LB
SKINNED & DEVEINED Baby Beef Liver 99¢ LB
U.S.D.A. CHOICE BONELESS Chuck Roast $1.89 LB
PERDUE 5-7 LBS AVERAGE Oven Stuffers 73¢ LB

Keebler Cookies VANILLA OR FUDGE CREME REAL VALUE 12½ OZ PKG 69¢
Tomatoes SWEET LIFE WHOLE CALIF TOMATOES 16 OZ CANS 3 89¢
Applesauce SWEET LIFE FAMILY SIZE 35 OZ JAR 69¢
NABISCO FAMILY SIZE Triscuits 13 OZ $1.19
Wheat Thins 16 OZ PKG
LIPTON Tea Bags 100 CT PKG $1.79
FRIEND'S Oven Baked Pea Beans 28 OZ CAN 79¢
GARDEN, 3 BEAN OR VEGETABLE Hanover Salads 14 OZ JAR 59¢
SWEET LIFE Cake Mixes ALL VARIETIES 18½ OZ PKG 59¢
SMUCKER'S Strawberry Preserves 12 OZ JAR 89¢
SWEET LIFE UNSWEETENED Grapefruit or Orange Juice 6 PACK 6 OZ CANS 99¢
JIFFY Corn Muffin Mix 4 8½ OZ PKGS 89¢
SWEET LIFE AUTOMATIC Dishwasher Detergent REG. OR LEMON 56 OZ PKG $1.29
SWEET LIFE Cranberry Juice Cocktail 48 OZ BTL $1.29
MOHAWK BRAND Foam Cups 7 OZ 2 50 CT PKGS 89¢
HIFTY Lawn & Leaf Bags 5 CT PKG $1.19
TROPICANA Fruit Drinks or Apple Juice 5 10 OZ BTLS $1
HOMESPUN White Napkins 2 120 CT PKGS 89¢
SWEET LIFE TALL Kitchen Bags 30 CT PKG $1.89

SPARKLING SPRING PRODUCE . . .
FRESH Zucchini Squash 39¢
LB 49¢
TASTY FRESH Green Beans 12 OZ PKG 99¢
SNO WHITE Mushrooms
CRUNCHY CALIFORNIA Carrots 2 1 LB PKGS $1

WE RESERVE THE RIGHT TO LIMIT QUANTITY NOT RESPONSIBLE FOR TYPOGRAPHICAL ERRORS.

FROZEN FOODS & DAIRY
SEALTEST Ice Cream ½ GAL $1.59
SWEET LIFE Orange Juice 12 OZ CAN 69¢
24 OZ PKG $1.99
89¢
ELLIO'S CHEESE 9 Pack Pizza 10 OZ PKG 59¢
2 LB BOWL Shedd's Spread 10 OZ PKG 99¢
REGULAR, COUNTRY STYLE OR NUFORM Hood Cottage Cheese 9 OZ PKG 79¢
BIRDS EYE Broccoli Spears 10 OZ PKG 59¢
SARA LEE RASPBERRY, BLUEBERRY Coffee Rings 10 OZ PKG 99¢
TASTE O' SEA Haddock Dinner 9 OZ PKG 79¢

LIMIT ONE PER FAMILY VALID THRU MAY 10, 1980 COUPON LU82 3 OR 5 LB CAN Krakus Ham WITH COUPON 50¢ Off Louis

At Louis Foods we want to help you express your appreciation for all she does during the year! Shop Louis Foods for the finest quality foods for your home-style feast! From our great Produce department, where you'll find fresh vegetables and crisp salad fixin's to our service meats, we'll be glad to serve you!

Make this Mothers' Day a really special one — take Mom out to dinner in her own home! Have her just sit back and relax while you prepare a spectacular meal just the way she likes it! She'll love being pampered, and she deserves it!

For Mother's Day or Any Day . . .
Louis Foods Makes The Difference!
SERVICE . . . SELECTION . . . QUALITY . . . VALUE

LIMIT ONE VALID THRU MAY 10, 1980 COUPON LU78 WELCHADE Grape Drink 46 OZ CAN 39¢ WITH COUPON PLUS $7.50 PURCHASE OR MORE EXCLUDING COUPON ITEMS & TOBACCO Louis
LIMIT ONE VALID THRU MAY 10, 1980 COUPON LU79 SWEET LIFE APG Coffee 16 OZ CAN $1.99 WITH COUPON PLUS $7.50 PURCHASE OR MORE EXCLUDING COUPON ITEMS & TOBACCO Louis
LIMIT ONE VALID THRU MAY 10, 1980 COUPON LU80 SWEET LIFE CHUNK (IN WATER) Light Tuna 6½ OZ CAN 49¢ WITH COUPON PLUS $7.50 PURCHASE OR MORE EXCLUDING COUPON ITEMS & TOBACCO Louis
LIMIT ONE VALID THRU MAY 10, 1980 COUPON LU81 BOUNTY Jumbo Towels ROLL 59¢ WITH COUPON PLUS $7.50 PURCHASE OR MORE EXCLUDING COUPON ITEMS & TOBACCO Louis

Collegian Classifieds

To place a Collegian Classified
•Come to Collegian Office CC 113
•8:45 to 3:45 Mon-Fri
•Classified deadline is 3:45 two days prior to publication day

Collegian Classified Rates
•15c per word
•Student rate 10c per word
•Cash in advance
•5 consecutive days 5 % discount
•Phone number FREE

AUDIO

Pioneer 680 Receiver EPI 100 speakers duel 1237 turntable AKG earphone 1 yr old $400 David 253-5009

AUTO FOR SALE

Must sell 1970 Saab 30+ mpg excellent condition $950 negotiable 546-4806 eves

1971 Hornet AM/FM 8-track 5 steel belted tires runs good, some rust, need to sell by May 10 Call evening 665-4859 500 or best offer

1974 Toyota Celica 500 665-7734

1968 Blue Torino great heat dependable inexpensive to repair 8 cyl asking $700 call 549-6018 after six

1966 Ford Econoline 6 cyl 3 spd runs, needs work $250 546-6512 wkdays 283-7469 wkends must sell

Ford Grand Torino 4 door sedan 50000 mi. automatic transmission power steering air conditioning radio snow tires excellent condition best offer 253-9649

1970 Maverick reliable car in good running condition 2 new tires, stereo cassette deck included $400 or BO 665-3976 Larry

1973 Chevy Impala AM/FM, low mileage, great cond. $1500 after 6:00 665-2189

1966 Jeep CJ5 V-6 4WD, new top, price negotiable 549-1098

1978 AMC Gremlin 4-cylinder, 4-speed, 16000 miles, $2900. Visit 1022 Lincoln Apts., Amherst, after 3 pm

71 Colt 4 spd runs good, no rot, 25 mpg, AM/FM, cassette, sticker MUST SELL $575 546-4268

BEER

Beer, homemade, fun, simple, inexpensive, original German beer recipes, $2.00 Wine recipes $2.00, Kalua Recipe $2.00 #6 Wilniams Box 1685 Pompano, Fla 33060

CAR INSPECTION

Get ready for Spring Inspection May 15 See S.A.W.

COLD BEERS; ICE

Large refridgerator $125 or BO call Paul evenings 546-9247

ENTERTAINMENT

Soundsystem for Hire perfect for bands. discos, coffeehouses Rick 584-4105

Nancy Shea pours it on in the S.B.A.

FOR RENT

Five bedroom house in Belchertown Summer sublet, Fall option 323-5262

Puffers Pond--2 bedroom apartment for Summer. 549-4055

Room for rent in large South Amherst home for Summer with Fall option 75/mo includes util, private pool, close to bus route call Jay 253-5133 furnished

2 bedroom Apt available June 1 with Fall option $240 includes all utilities Call 549-5935

Sunny 1-bedroom apartment for summer with Fall option. Puffer's Pond; rent includes all utils. Call 549-1372 evngs except Tues.

FOR SALE

1969 Plymouth Fury-four door sedan, good engine, dependable transportation 400.00 or best offer 1-788-6167

80-205 zoom w/macro great for concert pictures will fit all screw-mount cameras need money $85 or BO Kris 665-3580 call nights

Couch, reclining chair, bed (box spring, mattress, & frame) cheap, good condition call 549-5125

Dead Tix 4-sale Hartford May 10 Kristi 549-5968

Dependable Car; 68 Catalina; PS, PB, runs smooth, int perfect! See it. 546-9244 Asking $650

Guitar 6-string acoustic, gd. cond. $75.00 w/case call Mark eves 256-8889 lv. msg

Mens 10-speed bike Astra good condition $65 or BO call 6-8114 Nettie

Carpet Kelly green plush, 5x6, 7x6. 8 mos old. Price negotiable. Call 546-9577

Thick rust shag carpet brand new Nancy 546-4008

Rosignols (180) & Binding & Ski Boots for sale Call 546-5480

Peavey Guitar Amp 130W $250 1 Allmans ticket $10 584-3351

FOUND

Calculator in Physical Science Library 546-6798

GAS

Does your car suck gas? See S.A.W.

HELP WANTED

Paid Positions at the Collegian: Assistant Managing Editors, Copy Editors, Layout Technicians. One semester terms. Car helpful. Experience helpful but not necessary. Training available. Apply at Collegian Office, 113 Campus Center, or contact Fran at the Collegian.

Back-to-School Editor position available responsible for coordinating Collegian Back-to-School Issue must be available end of August through first week of Sept editing, lay-out and reporting skills a must. Contact Rob Stein or Fran Basche, Collegian Office, 545-3500

College Students-Summer Opportunities Unusual opportunity for qualified undergraduate and graduate students who have initiative, mature judgement and salesmanship ability to enter the Life Insurance business now. Please submit a resume of past experience and qualifications to: Northwestern Mutual College Internship Program, P.O. Box 354, Hadley, Mass. 01035.

Summer work with the oldest, largest and best-paying student program in the country, Call 253-2597 for interviews.

Colorguard Rifle and/or Sabre instructors 549-6125

The Collegian needs you for the Fall '80 to sell advertising space. A minimum of 15 hours a week is needed and also a car. Apply in person to Katie, Advertising Dept., Room 113 CC. An excellent opportunity to gain marketing experience and commissions

Camp Hale Boys' Camp on Big Squam Lake in Center Sandwich N.H. is looking for responsible counselors 18 and over with interest and or training in hiking, camping, canoeing, boating, sailing, riflery, nature or swimming. salary is $800-$1000 for Summer plus complete room and board, medical and recreational benefits. Call Steve 549-6332 Mon-Fri after 6 pm

Collegian Photo Dept. needs asst. editors for next semester. See Paul Price at Collegian Office, 113 Campus Center or call 545-3500

$5.00 or more per hour to start Western MA and CT area. No experience necessary. See Mr. Lamont Wed May 7th Campus Center Room 802 from 9 am to 5 pm car necessary Many openings

HOUSE TO SUBLET

Reasonably priced four bedroom fully furnished house, easy walk to campus. Must be seen available for Summer sublet 5/30-8/30 549-4187 early AM or late PM

INSTRUCTION

Basic Auto Mechanics Workshop Summer class forming 28 hours of instruction, classroom theory and shop. Limited enrollment 253-7967

LOST

Lost Green backpack/jacket reward 253-7307

Man's gold watch in Quad Sunday call Tom 546-4645

Gold Tigereye Ring with two diamonds on Thursday in SU Bathroom Please call Cathy 546-6826

Lost Golden Labrador Retriever 2 year old male named Wally $50.00 reward Call Joe Frank 549-5397

MOTORCYCLES

1976 Triumph Bonneville excellent condition $1500 665-4171

1978 Kawasaki KZ650 well maintained, sissy, crash bars, rack, helmets, book. 11500 careful miles $2000 or BO Doug 549-4547

Yamaha 400 Enduro 1978 950 mi excellent on off road $1100 or BO Randy 253-2625

Suzuki 750 GT excellent $1500 546-7665

NANCY M. SHEA

Happy 21st! Hugs & kisses Webe BCS Slim and the boys

RIDE NEEDED

Ride needed to VA or NC at end of semester will pay $100 call Theresa 546-5133

ROOMATE WANTED

Bdrm in Brittany Manor for 1 or 2 people Jun, July, Aug call 253-9694

Downtown Amherst available June 1 $85 Sept option call 253-7986 evenings

RIDE NEEDED

Ride needed to VA or NC at end of semester will pay $100 call Theresa 546-5133

ROOMATE WANTED

Bdrm in Brittany Manor for 1 or 2 people Jun, July, Aug call 253-9694

Downtown Amherst available June 1 $85 Sept option call 253-7986 evenings

Roomates wanted 3 females preferred (21 or older) spacious furn apt excellent location in Newport R.I. 600/season call Patti or Moira anytime 413-253-5755

Female roomate own room three bedrm apt Pleasant St Northampton June-Aug 80$ 256-8784 Nicky

Male roomate wanted Summer own room in 4 bdrm ranch S. Amherst 95+ 256-0343

Roomate wanted Dennisport Summer rental not a cottage Chuck 549-2785

Female roomate wanted own bedroom in 3 bedroom apt in center Amherst Summer only 256-6150

June 1 $112. + elec Carol 256-6023

Harwichport two bedroom cottage needs on female for Summer 550$ Robin 549-2859

3 quiet housemates seek 4th Pelham, yard, woods. Summer, Fall option; $106+ negotiable 253-3528 after 6 pm

Male or female for Summer 2 bedroom Brandywine rent negotiable call Wendy 546-6970 Dan 546-6971

Townehouse Apt need 2 or 3 roomates June-Aug $70/mo fully furnished call 549-1420

Roomate wanted for Fall semester Brittany Manor call Mike or Mitch 546-5097

Female for own bedroom in Lantern Court apt. On bus route. Summe with Fall option. Rent negotiable 665-2515, after 4

$$$$$ room needed on Cape Cod in/near Hyannis 549-1412

2 males to share room 2 bedroom Brittany Manor Apt. Aug-May call Doug or Bob 546-6631

Summer roomate wanted Pool $100.00 546-9366

2 housemates wanted friendly supportive relaxed home 110+ Roz 253-5978

Roomate wanted June-August beautiful Hadley house, older student preferred 586-3529

Summer roomate wanted Cliffside own large bedroom, furnished, pool, tennis courts 135/mo negotiable 665-2020 late evenings best

Large bedroom three story house available June $77.50+ 584-1354 N.H.

PERSONALS

There will be an organizational meeting Mon May 5, 6 pm Rm 176 CC for anyone interested in helping with the 1980 MS Dance Marathon If interested please call Stu 5-2150

UMass Horse Judging Team Forming Interested? Come to room 319 Stockbridge, Thursday at 5:30 P.M.

Wade Geller cordially invited 23,000 of his closest friends to a birthday bash, May 10 at Alumni Stadium Bring ID

STICK IN YOUR EAR: Free ear piercing with purchase of studs. Silverscape Designs 253-3324

Charismatic Bible Study CC 803 Tuesday May 6 8-10 pm

Get!!

70's revival party Fri May 2 Delta Chi 314 Lincoln Ave free refreshments $1 admission acid to rock to disco to punk where were you in 72?

Mandy, June 12 and goodtimes are coming Get Psyched! JK

Happy Birthday mary Senger! Love, Cath

Be Assertive!! Wish Nancy a happy 21st

Hey Package deal Did you hear about the alchemist who wanted to make sure she had pure gold? She melted it down to see what was inside and lost it in the process. She never talkedto the dealer who was in fact reputable. Sad Sad Sad DEALER MAN

Hey Ferdy! (you too Kevib) have a happy 19th love Alison

To my friends: I never would have made it this far without you. I'll miss you more than you think I will. Love, T.

ChewHong—Here's one we forgot: "What's a nice guy (girl) like you doing in a place like this?" —Juloid

Ziggypoo—Hope that burning sensation goes away soon! —Juloid

Larry Happy Belated Birthday! Love always, (Especially in your single) Laurie, Bath & Karen

Bill you're wicked

Anne Beckwith—Finally a personal of your own hope it makes you happy

Hey Franny McDonald! Let's get together for a date in the D.C. to crack plates over your head! Love and kisses, S.B. and S.S.

Alcholics: You can't win with us, you can't win without us. Your Cheerleaders

SABBATICAL HOUSE

Responsible woman seeking furnished home for next semester/year. Call 545-3500 ask for Kathy.

S.A.W.

FIX YOUR OWN CAR at the Student Auto Workshopp. Space, tools, friendly mechanics Tue., Wed., Thurs., 3-9 Fri., 12-5 Sat., 10-5 545-0673

SERVICES

UMass Legal Services Office offers free legal services to fee-paying graduate and undergraduate students in the areas of University administrative problems; landlord/tenant disputes; and uncontested divorces and guardianships. LSO also gives advice on Small Claims Court, and limited counselling in criminal matters. Call 545-1995; Room 922 Campus Center UMass.

Need help moving? Student with truck will help or consider renting truck. Tim 253-3366

SUMMER SUBLET

Inexpensive Summer sublet! Only $200.-per month 2 bedroom fully furnished, A/C, pool, garden plots, etc. to see it is to love it! Call now! 665-7756

TO SUBLET

2 bdr apt Colonial Vlg June-Aug $190/month bus rte 256-8454

2 bedroom Townehouse apartment June-August 549-1325

1 4 bedroom apt Swiss Village bus rte Fall option scenic view 256-6344

4 bdrm apt with Fall option on bus rte utils incl rent negotiable 253-7975

Townehouse Apts Summer sublet, Fall option, 2 bedrooms, dshwshr, etc. 549-1414

Live in a house! 95/mo. plus utilities 253-5077

1 bedroom in 5 bedroom house $80 per month Belchertown on Rte 9 323-5572

2 to 4 people for a 3 bdrm Puffton Apt fully furnished CHEAP 549-6932

Sunderland 2 bedroom Summer sublet Fall option 665-7954

Summer Sublet Swiss Village 4 bdrm 2 baths has sliding glass door on to second floor balcony. Best offer 253-9407 after 5:00

3 bedroom Townhouse apt for June 30 to Sept please call 549-4049 for info

1 bedroom apt Amherst Fall option 253-7959

4 bdrm/2 bath 320/mo bus rt ut inc Fall opt 253-5570

2 bedroom Presidential Apt reduced rent for Summer option for Fall 549-6382

3 bedroom apt 2 baths 1.5 miles from campus ½ mile from Ams center close to bus stop $300/month available May 25th August 31 call 253-2657

Apt in Sunderland on bus route pets OK call 665-3463

4 bedroom Amherst House quiet, lots of land, pets OK avail June 1/Fall option 425/mo 586-4320

Brittany Manor 2 bedroom May20 - Sept 1 you pay June July we pay Aug call 253-7616

2 bedroom Colonial Village bus route pool Fall option price negotiable call 253-2010 after 4 pm

2 bedroom Colonial Village Summer sublet Fall option furnished pool cable TV bus rt 225/negotiable 256-0503

2 bedroom Southwood AC pool, for Summer. furnished 275/mo 665-4921

3 bdrm apt to sublet June 1-Aug 31 Townehouse Apts fully furnished $250 mo 549-5995

1 bedroom Cliffside available June 1 200/month with Fall option call 665-4313 after 6

1 bedroom to sublet for Summer w/Fall option reasonable rent, nice area near waterful & nature trails call 549-3984 nights

Sublet house June-Aug in Northampton $341 per month plus utilities call 5-6 pm Skibiski Realtors 584-3428

2 bdrm Cliffside furn A/C pool all util Fall option 665-4644

2 bedroom apt available June 1 with Fall option South Amherst behind Riverglade call Rich 12 Hollister 253-9469

Own rm in 2 rm apt bus pool, AC, furnished, June-Aug (Aug optional) 253-2742 eves

2 bdrm sublet/Fall option Sunderland 665-4824

1 bedroom in three bedroom Puffton Summer sublet $70/month call Len 549-5480

One bedroom Southwood Apt Summer sublet Fall option $90/mo 253-2017

To sublet 2 bedroom Col Vill apt for Summer Fall option price negotiable August rent paid for 256-8809

June1 - August31 2 bedroom Puffton Village rent negotiable 549-0455

3 bedroom Rolling Green June-August $265 a month or BO utilities inc 546-9637 546-9609 546-9748

3 mos for the price of 2! 3 bedroom Rolling Green Apt 6/1 - 8/29 546-9843 or 546-9853

1 bdrm effic S. Amherst bus rte, $160 utils incl, Fall opt. 253-3289 eves

1 bedroom in house in Sunderland bus, lawn, garage May rent paid $90/mo occ may 22. 665-4395

1 bedroom Colonial Vlg apt June-Aug price negotiable 253-2961

Townhouse Apt 2 bedroom, rent negot. w/Fall option 549-4373

Presidential Apts one of 2 bedrooms air cond June-Aug negotiable Chris 545-0731 549-4167

Riverglade Apt 2 bdrm $2o5. Call 253-7478

Nuke the Whale by Danny Guidera

4 by Frank Emery

Bean by Kevin X. McNamara

Wimpman by Evan Carlson

Doonesbury by Garry Trudeau

Crossword

ACROSS
1 Wise one
5 Container
9 Small rooms
14 Govt. agts.
15 Pier
16 Daisy
17 Portable cots
19 Atomic device
20 Greek epic
21 Insomniac
23 Some cinch cards
25 Rye disease
26 Clutch
28 State
32 Kind of home
37 Stale
38 Rowing need
39 Fisherman
41 Moo
42 Ringlet
45 Looks like
48 Chooses
50 Follow
51 Mythical spirit
54 Blood fluid
58 Promise
62 Mary or John J. —
63 Bushed: 2 words
64 Away: 3 words
66 Known as 67 Later
68 Gen. Robert — —
69 Growls
70 Dispatched
71 Venture

DOWN
1 Peel
2 Scap plant
3 Cold
4 Magnify
5 Crow's cry
6 Duck genus
7 Method
8 Comforter
9 Behave
10 Glorifier
11 — majeste
12 Caustics
13 Indian weights
18 Decorate
22 Self
24 Locale
27 Breakwater
29 Fish organ
30 Amerind
31 Report
32 Timber rot
33 Noble
34 Oak or elm
35 Madrid "rah"
36 Nidus
40 Harvest
43 More alarming
44 Beaches
46 Where La Scala is 47 Confounded
49 Vice
52 Lab heaters
53 Sierra —
55 Roman dress
56 Grass cutter
57 Indian buffalo
58 Crew
59 German lancer: Var.
60 — mater
61 U.K. school
65 Bank abbr.

UNITED Feature Syndicate
Friday's Puzzle Solved

A	L	T	A	R		A	D	A	M		B	I	T	T
L	A	N	G	E		F	I	V	E		A	M	O	I
G	U	A	R	A	N	T	E	E	D		R	A	I	L
A	D	V	I	C	E		T	R	I	A	N	G	L	E
		E	N	T	A	D		T	A	M		E	E	R
M	I	L		O	R	A	D		N	O	W
A	C	E		R	E	N	E	E		S	O	F	A	S
L	O	R	D		D	E	N	T	S		N	E	N	E
I	N	S	E	T		S	T	E	A	D		R	O	N
			R	U	G		S	A	L	E		E	N	D
P	R	I		R	U	L		L	A	M	A	S
R	E	L	E	A	S	E	D		D	E	M	I	S	E
I	R	A	N		S	H	O	E	S	T	O	R	E	S
C	U	T	S		E	A	S	T		E	R	E	C	T
A	N	E	E		T	R	E	E		R	E	N	T	S

DC Menu

Lunch
Sausage grinder

Farmer's Omelet
Basics Lunch
Vegetable grinder

Farmer's Omelet
Dinner

Veal Parmesean
Baked Cod
Fruit plate
Basics Dinner
Eggplant Parmigiana
Baked Cod
Fruit plate

Sunny 2 bdrm apt in Colonial Village bus rt swimming pool Fall option $225 253-7714

Room in Belch house 6/1-8/31 Fall option bus route $125+ negotiable 323-5784

2 bdrm furnished on bus route 15 min walk to campus A/C washer/dryer dshwsr available 6/1/80 - 8/31/80 $240 call after 5 pm 549-5532

Brandywine 1 bdr apt Summer sublet 549-6786

June-July-August efficiency apartemnt fully furnished all utensils, color TV, adjacent Route 91, West Springfield $170.00 per month 1-788-6167

Furnished 2 bedroom apartment CLOSE to campus on bus route 549-1083

Sunderland 2 bdrm $295 bus rt all utilities included pets allowed June 1 665-7674 eve 256-0711 wkends

1 bedroom apt sublet 1 free month with Sept option all utilities paid 253-9362

Rolling Green June-August 2 bedroom A/C pool al utilities $260/month 253-3231

Bdrm 6/1 to 8/31 nr UM & Am Center great for Summer rent neg 549-6467

Large sunny 3 bedroom apt in Amherst Center 253-7405

in 2 bdrm Squire AC pool 7500 opt 665-7564

room in Brandywine Apt from June 1 with all option pool, air condition, call 549-5063

Sublet with Summer Fall option two bedroom townhouse bus route pool 260 month Riverglade 253-7661

Rolling Green 2 bdrm A/C, dshwsr, pool, partially furnished 6/1-8/31 call evenings 256-8091

Two bedrm Cliffside furnished, bus, pool, tennis, dishwshr, woods. negotiable 665-2713

Summer rooms for rent $70, $80, and $90 Price includes utilities, use of kitchen, color TV, much more. Single, doubles, and triples available 295 N. Pleasant St., call 253-9787

2 bdrm Townhouse at Cliffside pool rent neg. 665-2077 after 5

Luxurious 5 bedroom house Ecto Hill, 3 bedrooms available washer/dryer tennis, pool, pond 253-2294

3 bdrm Twnhse Rolling Green 3 months for price of 2 util inc AC pool 253-5217

House in S. Amherst 2 bedrooms, living room with fireplace huge yard, much more! June-July with option 253-5560 keep trying

1 bedroom in 3 bedroom Puffton apt June-Aug furnished 2 baths air cond tennis, pool bus route rent negotiable 549-4914

4 bdrm 300/mon utilities incl on bus route for Summer w/Fall opt 256-8209

To sublet 3 bed rm apt in Puffton we need 1 roomate Summer only call Kerry 546-5482 or Cathy 253-2647

Rolling Green 2 bdrm June-Aug 546-6044 5546 6948 night rent negotiable

Summer Sublet 2 bedrooms in 4 bedroom apt $90 mo + utilities 675 Main St bus route call best between 5-6 pm 256-6032

4 bedrooms/2 bath apt on bus route rent negotiable Fall option 253-5908

1 bdrm Cliffside Apt Summer with Fall option rent negotiable 665-2487 eves

2 bedroom apt Cliffside completely furnished 180/mo Summerw/Fall option call 665-4258

2 bedrm apt furn, air cond, pool call 253-7478 Summer only

Beautiful 2 bedroom apartment furnished A/C on bus rte Fall option call evenings 665-2006

Furnished 2 bedroom Townehouse rent negotiable 549-4734

2 bedroom Cliffside Apt Sunderland Summer w Fall option 200 mo 665-7703

Northampton Summer Sublet 3 bedroom furnished apartment $225/mo call 586-1893 late evenings/early mornings

YA CAN'T GO WRONG!! 2 bedroom sublet with possible Fall option Pool, tennis, dishwasher, disposal, "furnished completely" spoons, forks!!! $200 negotiable!! 665-3024

Puffton Village 3 bedroom apt lease June 1 call 549-0165

One minute from campus one room in large house Fall option 549-4409

To lease—one bedroom apartment Puffton air conditioned pool call 549-4911

WANTED

Cash for Gold or Silver items Antiques too call 546-7369 Cheryl

Cash! Top dollars for school rings, goid, ect. At Wendy Fun Funk & Punk CC Concourse twice a week

Dining table, chairs 546-7701

Motorcycle 350-500 for $500 546-6798

Fast immediate cash for gold-school rings-diamonds- silver Jeff anytime 527-7078 586-0180

Used Electric Typewriter call andy 546-6785 evenings

WANTED TO RENT

Wanted—Two bedroom in Puffton for Summer with Fall option willing to pay full rent call Joanne anytime 253-7503 keep trying!

Wanted for Fall centrally located house for 4 in Amherst or Northampton Carol 256-8833

Wanted for Fall 4-5 bedroom house on or near bus route Karen 546-6499

3 women looking for housing in Hyannis area for Jun-Aug call Lisa 546-8006 or Toby 546-7436

Student play debuts at UM

By SARAH SCHULTZ
Special to the Collegian

The sound of laughter filled the packed Curtain Theatre this weekend as the University Ensemble Theatre presented "The Bride." This piece, written by UMass graduate playwright student Constance Congdon, will be presented as an entry in the American College Theatre Festival this fall.

The work, still in progress, made an excellent debut. Suprisingly, the present version has been in rehearsal for only seven weeks, and during this short period has had many modifications. The cast mostly theatre majors, handled the material well and seemed very comfortable with the script.

In order to provide playwright, director and cast with the opportunity for experiment and change, no elaborate production elements were employed. The sets, lighting, and costumes were kept simple and many actions pantomimed.

As the title implies, the story revolves around a wedding. What is not implicit is the wedding never happens because, as the priest says, "Weddings can always wait. Funerals can't." The bride, Bobbie (Carla Pipes) is hesitant about the marriage; so hesitant in fact, that she misses it altogether.

The script includes many flashbacks to the couple's youth – the first meeting of Bobbie and Ken (Gary Trahan); the introduction of their best friends, Wesly and Pooh Bear; Bobby's first dance; Wesly's homosexual experiences; Pooh Bear's abortion; and collective puberty. The common element binding these characters together is parental problems. Pooh Bear and Wesly are blemished; Bobby and Ken remain relatively untainted. Only their love flourished.

Despite the heavy nature of the subject matter, the performance was punctuated by laughter. The play was well-recieved by the audience and seems to be, even at this unpolished stage, a promising entry for the American Theatre Festival.

One of the scenes from The Bride at the Curtain Theatre this past weekend. Staff photo by Doug Paulding.

AMTRAK
CAMPUS TRAVEL CENTER
CENTER UNIV OF MASS
AMHERST, MASS 01003 413-545-0500

Graduate Senate
Elections for President
& Vice President
VOTE
near Blue Wall in C.C.
9:30 to 5:30 Mon, Tues, May 5, 6
ID required
Nominations open for
Secretary and Tresurer

Interested in a Career in Communications?
Boston University's Summer Public Communication Institute May be For You!
A Representative will be on Campus Thursday, May 8th, 10 am.
Sign up at Hampshire House, Rm 109 or call 545-2224

Aqua Vitae RTE. 9 HADLEY 584-9892
Pizza & Free Beer or Soft Drink
Every Monday from 4 pm till 11 PM only
A free 32 oz. Pitcher of SCHLITZ or Soft Drink with Any 12" Item Pizza!
OR
A Free 60 oz. Pitcher of SCHLITZ or Soft Drink with Any 15" Item Pizza!
expires 5/31/80

UPC PRODUCTIONS presents
SPRING CONCERT 80

SATURDAY, MAY 10
ALUMNI STADIUM 9:30 - 5:00
TICKETS ARE STILL AVAILABLE!! at FAC BOX OFFICE

Trackmen take 4th in conference

By KENNETH D. ROLT
Collegian Staff

Kingston — The Yankee Conference Track and Field Championships concluded its 33 year history yesterday at the University of Rhode Island, going out with a very loud bang.

When the smoke cleared, many were astounded to find Boston University, considered to be the best team in New England by far, to be in third place with 120 points, and the Minutemen right behind in 106. The team title was taken by University of Connecticut, just nipping URI by 11 with 147.

The Minutemen came away with three individual winners: Paul Beaulieu in the 1500, Chris Omeltchenko in the 3000 meter steeple chase and Rick Walls in the 5000.

The 1500 began very slow and tactical, with Steve MacDougall leading the Terriers John Wilson through the first 3 laps, Paul Beaulieu exploded with 300 meters to go, and sewed up a 3:54.2 meet record victory. MacDougall faded to fourth place and Rick Doiron took sixth.

Omeltochenko's winning time of 9:20.8 steeple equalled the meet record for the event. Paul Kirksey followed for fourth place with his best steeple effort ever of 9:46.5, while Gerry Pratt took fifth.

The 5000 was almost humorous, seeing five UMass runners exchanging the lead everytime they passed. Walls (1st), Kevin Corcoran (2nd), Mike Doiron (3rd), Dan Fitch (4th) and Frank Prial (6th).

Bill DeVarney broke his own UMass 100 meter record by a rather large two tenths of a second, doing so by placing fifth in a very deep 100 race. After his swift 10.6 run in the century, he ran another personal best in an equally as deep 200 field, placing fifth again in 22.1

Mark Grasso got sixth place in the long jump with 21'11.75", and then triple jumped for second with 46'10.25".

Shoals Marine Laboratory
Summer 1980
credit courses, one week to one month in field marine science, vertebrate & invertebrate anatomy/behavior/reproduction, ocean research management, phycology and underwater research.
For information write: Shoals Marine Lab, GF 14 Stimson Hall, Cornell University, Ithaca, NY 14853
a cooperative field station of Cornell University and the University of New Hampshire
Appledore Island in the Isles of Shoals

AMC AMERICAN MULTI CINEMA
ADULTS $2.75 STUDENTS & SR. CITIZENS with AMC CARD $2.25 TWI-LITE SHOW $1.50 - Special Engagements Excluded Twi-Lite Show – Limited to Seating
TIMES SHOWN FOR TODAY ONLY

HAMPSHIRE 4 — 584-7550 HAMP. MALL ON CAFE SQ. – RT. 9, HADLEY, MASS.
SISSY SPACEK TOMMY LEE JONES Coal Miner's DAUGHTER (6:00 @ $1.50) 8:30 PG
Walt Disney's Lady and the Tramp (6:30 @ $1.50) 8:30 G
FOOLIN' AROUND (6:15 @ $1.50) 8:45 PG
WHERE THE BUFFALO ROAM (6:15 @ $1.50) 8:45 R

MOUNTAIN FARMS 4 — 584-9150 MOUNTAIN FARMS MALL ROUTE 9 – HADLEY, MASS.
PETER SELLERS SHIRLEY MacLAINE BEING THERE (5:45 @ $1.50) 8:30 PG
ROY SCHEIDER ALL THAT JAZZ (6:00 @ $1.50) 8:30 R
FOXES (6:15 @ $1.50) 8:45 R
the Black Stallion (6:00 @ $1.50) 8:45 G

Notices

THERE WILL BE A MANDATORY lobbying workshop tonight at 7 in CC 101 for persons going to the Senate budget rally Wednesday.

UMASS HUNGER TASK FORCE last meeting today at 4:30 p.m.: RSO status, committee chair elections, decision on OXFAM Nicaragua partnership. All present and prospective members urged to be present. Commonwealth Room (Earthfoods).

UMASS BICYCLE CLUB Meeting Tues. in Rm. 902 CC. New officers will be elected, T-Shirts will be distributed. This will be the final meeting this semester all members should attend. Check the bulletin board for more info. on the T-Shirts.

HILLEL: Fri. 5/9 – Sabbath Services. Special service to honor seniors, with performance by the Mizmor Chorale. 7:00 p.m., Duke's Room, SU 310. Followed by Oneg Shabbat.

WEDNESDAY at 7:30 p.m., three speakers will address the issues involved with Iran and Afghanistan – the latest chapter in Washington's war drive. The talks and discussion will be held in the UMass Campus Center room 811-815. The public is invited; there is no admission fee; refreshments will be served. For more information, call Rick at 546-5942.

EURAIL PASSES
CAMPUS TRAVEL CENTER
CENTER UNIV OF MASS
AMHERST, MASS 01003 413-545-0500

KITES & FRISBEES
A.J. Hastings Inc.
newsdealer & stationer
45 S. Pleasant St., Amherst

Tuesday May 6
The Final Tour of the David Bromberg Band
"When it comes to igniting an audience Bromberg is electrifying. Don't miss Bromberg's final area appearance prior to his retirement."
Shows at 7 & 10
Tickets $6.50
Available at FACES
FLAT STREET BRATTLEBORO, VT. 802-254-8757

CAMPUS TRAVEL CENTER
New York to London
Standby
Laker Airlines
$363 round trip
CAMPUS TRAVEL CENTER
CENTER UNIV OF MASS
AMHERST, MASS 01003 413-545-0500

UPC PRODUCTIONS presents Spring Concert '80 with the Allman Bros and Bonnie Raitt
Security
Any UMass student who is interested in working security for Spring Concert '80 must attend the following MANDATORY Meetings

Tuesday, April 22	7:30	Bartlett Auditorium
Wednesday, April 30	7:30	Mahar Auditorium
Tuesday, May 6	8:00	Mahar Auditorium

for more info contact Andy at UPC 545-2892

Senior Day 1980
Date: Thurs May 22
Rain or Shine
Place: Metawampe Lawn & the Hatch
Time: 12 - 5 pm
Buy your tickets now on the C.C. concourse
Seniors $2.50 Guests $3.50
Featuring: Robin Lane : Chartbusters
Beaver Brown, Lazarus

Cadets surge past Gorillas, 10-9

UMass' Tim Cutler moves past an Army defender in Saturday's 10-9 loss to the Cadets. Staff photo by Jim Mahoney

By JIM DEGNIM
Collegian Staff

Army, trailing 7-3 at the half, scored six straight goals in the third period Saturday and went on to a 10-9 win over the UMass men's lacrosse before an estimated 1500 spectators at Boyden Field.

The loss puts the 7-3 Gorillas in a "precarious position" as far as selection for the NCAA tournament is concerned, according to UMass coach Dick Garber. "We have to beat Harvard, Syracuse and Dartmouth to have a chance," Garber said. "We can't afford a loss." The Gorillas have been selected for the eight-team tourney three of the last four seasons.

"I can't believe we only scored two goals in the second half," Garber said. "We didn't convert on four or five fast breaks that we normally would. We didn't convert on our extra man situations either and that's our bread and butter."

UMass played well at the start and broke out to a 4-0 lead after ten minutes on goals by Jim Weller (2), co captain Peter Schmitz and freshman Tim Cutler. Meanwhile Army had managed only two shots on the UMass goal. Weller and Ed Haverty added first period scores for Umass while the Cadets got two of their own. After one period the Gorillas led, 6-2. UMass goaltender Chris Benedetto made two saves in the period while Army's Kevin MacGibbon stopped six shots.

Midway through the second period, Weller scored the fourth of his five goals when Chris Corin made a textbook pass to him at the side of the Army cage.

Harry Jackson scored for the Cadets with just under four minutes remaining in the half. Still, the Gorillas appeared to be secure with a 7-3 lead at halftime when the multitudes descended on the field with their frisbees.

But Army scored six goals in the third period while the Gorillas were shutout. The Cadets took their first lead of the game with just under three minutes to play in the period. A Joe Fetzer goals with just 11 seconds gone in the final period increased the Army lead to 10-7 and the cry to "sit on the ball" came from the Army bench.

But Weller and Dave Martin scored in the next four minutes to make it 10-9 Army. UMass had several opportunities to tie the game in the final minutes, but couldn't. The last came with less than a minute left in the game. The crowd stood and applauded as the Gorillas worked the ball. But a Schmitz pass was deflected by Army to dash any hopes of tying the game.

"We set up a play but they clogged it," Garber siad. "Schmitzie said that he had a man open but he couldn't get a pass to him."

"I think controlling the faceoffs was a major turning point," Army coach Dick Edell said. The Gorillas won nine of twelve faceoffs in the first half, but Army improved to take five of 11 in the second half.

Benedetto and MacGibbon each made 14 saves.

The Gorillas host tenth-ranked Harvard University tomorrow at 3 p.m.

Mittwomen, Rams exchange wins, 1-0, 3-2

By MELISSA GALLAGHER
Collegian Staff

"She's my granddaughter," he said, smiling and holding the game ball. Mr. Peters' granddaughter, Susan, had just scored the winning tally against the University of Rhode Island. The UMass softball team (18-1) captured the opener of Saturday's double-header, 1-0, and lost its last home game, 3-2.

Mr. Peters said he knew Sue would score after leading off with a single on a 3-2 pitch in the bottom of the seventh. He has seen Peters spark a team before.

In this case, Peters singled, stole second and beat the wide throw home after Brenda Simmons' grounder to first was mishandled.

Greeting the senior at the plate, was the entire UMass squad. Peters (9-0) fired her second one-hitter of the season and was responsible for the Minutewomen's two hits. Earlier Peters hurled a no-hitter against the University of New Hampshire.

The second contest was another tooth and nail battle, but this time a UMass miscue proved costly. In the third inning, a walk issued by Kathy O'Connell (8-1) and a bunt single set the scenario for what coach Elaine Marsco called the strangest play the Minutewomen have seen all year. The Rams' Allyson Rioux bunted and O'Connell threw wide to third hoping to get the force. The ball went by short stop Fran Cornacchioli, who was covering the bag, and past left fielder Sue Peters who was rushing in to back up third. Two runs scored as a result and Rioux, who advanced to third on the play, scored on a sacrifice fly. The tallies dwarfed Peters' efforts in the first frame as she singled to center, went to second on a pass ball, stole third, and scored on Simmons' base hit.

Jackie Gaw's solo home run in the third pulled the Minutewomen within one, but Nancy Grigor held UMass to one hit for the remainder. The lone hit came with two out in the seventh when Debbie Stolecki singled and was stranded.

UMass coach Elaine Marasco said the loss may have a positive effect by relieving the pressure of remaining undefeated. Saturday's defeat was the first regular season loss for the Minutewomen in two years.

"No one's going to worry about our record at the Regionals," Marasco said. UMass is seeded fourth in this weekend's tourney behind URI, the University of Connecticut and Rutgers, respectively.

"I hate to see K.O. (O'Connell) get the loss because she pitched a good ballgame," Marasco added. O'Connell allowed only three hits. She had brilliant defensive in the fifth from second basewoman Karen LaVerdiere, who ranged into the hole to rob a hit, and from centerfielder Simmons, who dove to make a backhanded catch of a fly ball between center and left.

After the contest's final out, Mr. Peters sat in a lawn chair and gave a shrug that seemd to say, "You can't win them all." For UMass that may be, as Marasco said, "a blessing in disguise."

Gazelles sweep Regionals, await Nationals berth

By MAUREEN SULLIVAN
Collegian Staff

The UMass women's lacrosse team outplayed both the University of Rhode Island and the University of New Hampshire to take the New England Women's Lacrosse Association title this weekend at Dartmouth College.

The Gazelles, now 12-0, will wait for the seed for the Nationals competition, to be held this weekend at Princeton University. Last year, UMass received the fifth seed, defeated James Madison University, William and Mary University, and UNH, then dropped the final game to Penn. State University, 8-5.

Saturday, the Gazelles downed a physical and close-playing Rhode Island squad, 6-1. Earlier this season, UMass had beaten URI, 3-2, by passing and running against the Rams' zone; the Gazelles ran out the clock without letting the Rams break away.

The next afternoon saw UMass face UNH, a rival that had fallen to the Gazelles four times in the past year. Thanks to a defense led by Laura O'Neil and goals by Margie Anderson (three) and Lynn Herbert (two), UNH fell for the fifth time, 5-3.

"Margie and Lynn really came through in the clutch offensively, considering they're not our leading scorers," she said.

"Both were very tough and physical teams," UMass coach Pam Hixon said, "they plugged up our best scorers by double-and triple-teaming them. Our defense was outstanding and overall, you just couldn't ask for anything more. Laura O'Neil was an absolute standout on defense, though everyone — Kathy Hourihan, Maria Minicucci, Holly Jennings, Robin Jennings, who made some key saves at goal, Judy Strong — everyone played like a team and contributed."

The victory marked the second consecutive year the Gazelles have captured the Regional title. In addition to the win, several of the Gazelles were placed on both the first and seonds squad of the Regional All-Star temas. Anderson, O'Neil, Cari Nickerson, Gazelle captain Jean Hackett and Julie McHugh made first team, while Holly and Robin Jennings, Minicucci and Strong were named to the second squad.

Mittmen split with Maine, 3-5, 6-2

UMass catcher John Kraham during the second game of the double-header against the University of Maine Saturday. Staff photo by Stacy G ber.

By JANE WOLFSON
Collegian Staff

Orono ME—A four run eight inning outburst for the UMass baseball team gave them a 6-2 victory over the 19-9-1 Blackbears of the University of Maine spliting a doubleheader, the Bears taking the opener 5-3.

In the first game UMass, 15-10-1 staked themselves an early lead in the first inning when leftfielder Mark Litano singled to left. Centerfielder Mike McEvilly hit a bouncer to the first basemen advancing Litano to second. Next up was designated hitter Jim Aulenback who after fouling off two pitches hit a long fly ball to deep leftfield which Maine leftfielder Kevin Buckley lost in the sun and landed in front of him, scoring Litano. Aulenback ended up on second and the official scorekeeper ruled the play an error.

UMass added another run in the third inning when rightfielder Doug Aylward beat out a dribbler to first base. Aylward advanced to third when Bears starter and eventual winner Skip Clark (5-1) threw an attempted pickoff to the first basemen which he missed sending the ball rolling to the fence. Aylward scored when McEvilly reached base on an error by the second basemen.

Offensively Maine was stilffled by Minuteman righthander Mark Brown (4-5) through the first three innings. Brown struckout four, allowed no hits and faced only ten batters.

The fourth inning was another matter.

Maine scored two runs on two hits, a two base error by Aylward, two walks and a passed ball.

Brown lead off the fifth inning by hitting the leadoff batter in the foot, he proceeded to walk the next and then delivered a hanging slider to Buckley which he deposited over the fence in leftcenter to give Maine the lead they would not lose, 5-2.

UMass' only other scoring came in the top of the seventh when pinch hitter Kelly McDonald blasted his first homerun of the year.

Once again in the second game the Minutemen gave themselves an early lead when in the first Aylward lead off the second game by walking and Litano followed him with a two run homer to stake UMass a 2-0 lead which stayed until the fourth and fifth inning when Maine picked up a run in each inning to tie the game at 2-2.

Chris Collins had Maine under control the entire game, giving up only four hits, walking two, and striking out four in eight innings.

In the eighth enning thirdbasemen Barry Bennett leadoff with a double followed by a towering two run balst by Aylward, for his third hit of the game. UMass would add two more runs before they were through to insure the split.

The Minutemen face Amherst college today at 3:00pm at the Earl Lorden Field.

NUMMO
volume 8 issue 24 5 may 1980

Third World Community Gains Victory Over Racism At Everywoman's Center

The Third World Women's Task Force, strengthened by a strong show of community support, has gained an important victory over racism at the Every Women's Center. Under mounting community pressure, the Center was finally forced into taking action against its own institutional racism. During dialogue between the Task Force and the Center, four things were accomplished. (1) The Center's staff apologised to Jamila Gaston and Suman Bohm for having racistly isolated them. (2) The Center acknowledged that no justification existed for holding Jamila and Suman responsible for decisions made during International Women's Week, and that therefore it had no charges of anti-semitism to be leveled against the two women. (3) The Center agreed to restructure itself in such a way so that a larger percentage of its staff would be Third World Women's Task Force. (4) It was established that Suman and Jamila would be excused from sitting on Center committees with three of the white staff-Susan Tracy, Mary Wentworth, and Myra Hindus - who had been particularly insensitive to racial issues during recent weeks.

It is important to point out that success in the struggle with Every Women's Center wasn't handed to the Third World Community on a platter. Neither the Center or the university administration voluntarily gave us anything. What we got we took from them by pursuing a course of collective action. This was accomplished along with supporters from both the Third World community and sections of the progressive white community. If it had not been for community activism, the staff of the Every Women's Center would still be comfortably pursuing its racist policies and the university administration would still be saying, "Racism, what's that?"

But victory itself, although we are thankful for it, is not a complete solution to the many questions that have been raised during the last weeks. There are still problems to be solved. One example of this would be that although many white women, as individuals, offered us support in our struggle, the local white women's movement as a whole was not able to organize mass support. This is a sign of how difficult it is, even as we enter the 1980's, for parts of the women's movement to forthrightly face and take a stand against racism and elitism in their own ranks. This is too bad given the importance of the women's struggle. There are too many people who say "we don't like racism" but who let it exist by finding excuses not to act against it when it is pointed out. We could not help but notice that some so called feminist administrators and professors stayed in their offices while other progressive whites and Third World people were struggling their hearts out.

Another problem still to solved is that there is a great deal of white resistance to the legitimate aims of the Palestinian movement. People in the white commiunity have to familiarize themselves with the just struggles of the Palestinian people. Along with this, people have to get beyond narrow mindedness and realize that support of Palestinian self-determination is not, by any progressive international definition, an anti-semitic or anti-Jewish position. The white community especially needs alot of education in this area. At the same time that this is true it is also true athat anti-semitism is a kind of cultural bias and racism that must also be studied and attacked whenever necessary, since it is fascist and unacceptable.

There is also the continuing general problem of how best to deal with institutional racism in a place like the university. Although there is no siple answer to this question, one thing as least is clear: the community cannot rely on the bureaucracy to solve the problem of racism for us. The Bureaucracy (whether at WFCR or at the Every Women's Center or in any part of the university) only moves when lots of people get themselves together and begin speaking in one well-organized voice. We are very serious here when we are talking about lots of people. The struggle for social change cannot be led by one or two quick-talking individualists who want to speak for everybody else and who are in love with the spotlight. We must work together, sharing our talents and helping each other to become leaders. We all have things of course that hold us back - shyness, feelings of inadequacy, and so on. But if we join together and treat each other with respect we can overcome these obstacles. And at the same time we can develope a strategy of true united action that will increase our chances of destroying racism and other forms of oppression, both locally as well as on a larger scale.

We see our victory in the struggle against Every Women's Center as merely one small step in a much larger struggle that requires alot of people. ●

EQUAL OPPORTUNITY AND RESPECT

by Semaj Lycurgus
President of the Afrikan-Amerikan Student Organization.

The Five College system in the Pioneer Valley is an educational center of a high caliber. As a member of the five college community, one has a very distinct opportunity to examine the goals of Amerikan society as it is reflected in a cooperative of educational institution - the five college system. In this system the societal value expressed also include various forms of oppression. This oppression is felt no more in its direct effect, than it is felt by Afrikan-Amerikan and members of other minorities. For these people, the experience of being part of these institiutions can't and often is one of being caught in the machinery or totally refected by a system that pretended to want them. In many ways the system is a monster, a monster which is relentless in its effort to oppress and divide Afrikan-Amerikans, all other minorities, and all people in a more general sense - from each other.

Since the late sixties drive to increase the enrollment of Amerikan minorities (particularly Afrikan-Amerikans) into the five college system, some progress has been made. However, a good part of that progress made. However, a good part of that progress made has been lost, and this is most apparent in the percentage of enrollment which has been decreasing yearly for Afrikan-Amerikans. Another area of decline has been in the number of minority faculty and with it staff support for minority students has also declined: Over the decade of the seventies the term "Equal Opportunity" has gain greater emphasis. Unfortunately, the pathways to reaching that opportunity for minorities have been cut off in the process.

Whenever I entertain the idea of being an Afrikan-Amerikan student within the five-college system in this valley, I think first of being proud of my "blackness". I think of the sacrifices that it took from me as an individual and my people collectively to make this opportunity possible. I am greatful. However, I also think about feeling stranded and isolated in this college oriented, but very "white" community. In this community an Afrikan-Amerikan must struggle for the very maintainence of their own "selfhood". Scanning the pages of the Collegian for the academic year of 1968-69, it is not very difficult to see that my very thoughts are a reflection of those shared by the students who took

turn to page 2

EXPOSING THE MYTH OF THE BLACK BOURGEOISIE

"can the upper lower or lower class black relate to the struggle of the upper to to middle class black"

Article by Michelle L. Laney

Last Thursday I was a participant in a conversation with a friend of mine concerning a method of recruiting more Third World student for a counceling postion on campus. He stated that it is sometimes hard recruiting minority students for certain postion because of the limitted amount of funds they can earn due to the guidelines of their finanical aid packets. I agreed, but added, that there was still a good number of minority students on campus that did not recieve financial aid, and could apply for the postion. He agreed, but stated, that we really didn't want them because they couldn't relate. His postion was supported by another minority female as well as a white female. When I questioned them further they stated that although some may be able to relate most of them could not due to the class differences. NOTE: when I refer to the word relate Im using it in the context of relating to ie., oppression racism etc.

Unfortunately this opinion is held by to many people on this campus as well as in this country concerning the Black middle and upper middle class, and I believe it is high time something was said about it. I could see if this was an isolated incident but it is not. I have heard comment such as "I don't deal with any Blacks raised in the white community because, they can't hang or they can't relate", or "I can tell when a black comes from a white community by the way they walk. A favorite is "you sound like a white boy or you sound like a white girl.". This is in reference to speech patterns, not content of conversation.

About seven months ago I was in the car with one of my roomates co-workers. He knew that I was from a surburban white community and began making negative comments about it. He finally asked me what kind of music I listen to I told him and he said come on Michelle "I know you must listen to the Grateful Dead, Kiss, and Led Zepplin I told him I did not. He commented further and my roomate gave me a sharp nudge indicating that I should just let the comment go, so I did.

The article that follows concerns what it is like growing up middle or upper middle class in the White community. The question that I am now asking is this: "Can the upper to middle class black relate to the struggle of the upper to lower class black." Read and judge for yourself.

I consider myself a prime example of what is labled by many as the Black Bourgeoisie. I have always lived in the White community. I was given ballet lessions at the age of five and went to summer camp each year without fail. My father was never unemployed and we always had two new cars in the drive way. Because of the nature of my fathers work we moved regularly. I was born in the town of Lynn Massachusetts and my parents later moved to Hull Massachusetts.

I remember my first experience with racism at the age of four while living in Hull. The white boys who lived across the street, use to throw rocks and call as niggers when ever we came out to play. I remember my older brother who was about six coming home from school. It seemed as if a day didn't go by that he didn't get into

turn to page 2

"TELL NO LIES. MASK NO DIFFICULTIES. HIDE NOTHING FROM THE MASSES OF THE PEOPLE"

An Interview with Micheal Thelwell

turn to page 3

editorial

Jose Trejo for President of the Graduate Student Senate

On May 5 and 6 the Graduate Student Senate will be holding elections. NUMMO News supports Jose Trejo in his bid for election as president of the Graduate Student Senate. We support Mr. Trejo for a number of reasons including his broad experience in the UMass community. Mr. Trejo was, among many other important organizations on campus, the treasurer for the GSS in the fiscal year 1979, Senator from the CE Department, Eco Latino Editor for Nummo News, Teaching Assistant in a Southwest Internship Program for student Heads of Residence, Co-President of the North Village Tenants Association, Member of the coalition for Public Involvement. Jose Trejo advocates a progressive political platform that will bring much more benefits directly to our graduate constituency and UMass community as well. This platform includes, an increase in Revenue Sharing fund in order to promote more graduate student organizations and participation in the reinbursment of the tax we pay to the Senate. The reinstatment ot the benefits to GSS employees taken away during this year. The creation and implementation of an effective Affirmative Action policy by ensuring minority membership to the Finance Committee and other committies. The total support and endorsment of the tenates rights against rent increases. The creation of a Progessive Allience of many active organizations of graduate and undergraduate students, employees and groups around the Pioneer Valley, as well as the organizations from UMass Boston campus. Jose Trejo feels that strength through Unity is the most effective way to bring about the solution of the problems of the community. In view of the importance of Jose Trejo to the community we urge you to cast your ballots for him in the May 5 and 6 elections at the Campus Center Concourse. ●

RACISM IN THE WOMEN'S MOVEMENT

Recently there has been considerable dialogue about the relationship of the struggles and concerns of Third World women to the women's movement. For reasons as diverse as the women themselves very few Third World women elect to be active participants in the feminist movement which was promoted primarily by white women during the sixties. More often Third World women who recognize the need to focus on issues of concern to women's lives work through community groups, national liberation organizations and political groups which address the needs of both women and men. Smaller numbers are involved in various types of organizations which parallel the majority culture's groups and these women identify themselves by racial and or national name and feminism, for, example, the National Black Feminists Organization. From within these types of Third World feminist groups has emerged independent Third World feminist lesbian groups such as the Cohambee River Collective. All of which is testimony to the reality that Third World women have a deeply rooted interest in dealing with sexual issues. Most Third World women, however, express this concern in a way that is quite distinct from white women, even in instances where they are members of parallel organizations, because our experience as people is impacted by race and class issues as strongly as by sex.

White women's organizations are involved with issues which are so far removed from the primary concerns of Third World women that there is no reason for coming together. When there is an issue on which white women and Third World women could work together the differences in our perspectives and approaches to issues make it impossible to form a coalition. An example of this in the Valley is the 1979 Take Back the Night March. The white organizers felt the need to invite Third World women from the Third World Women's Task Force to attend one of the initial planning meetings. Several representatives from the Third World Women's Task Force were sent. During the course of the meeting the Third World women expressed the opinion that although they agreed with the aims of the march, to end violence against women, the society's racism also victimizes Third World men. For instance if a Black or Puerto Rican man is out at night and a white woman yells rape, police have historically picked up the most conveniently available Third World male. These men have been imprisoned and killed, regardless of their innocence. Consequently, representatives of the Third World Women's Task Force asked that Third World men be encouraged to participate in the march. This suggestion was responded to with charges that Third World women are backward and politically reactionary. Although some of the white women present agreed with the Third World women their viewpoint was silenced by the advocates of a separatist march.

The Take Back the Night March took place in March of 1979 and was successful in bringing out 5000 women. The racist aspects of rape in capitalist society, however, were never discussed. The Third World Woman's Task Force expressed support for the aims of the demonstration but did not participate in any official way.

Another situation where white women active in the woman's movement could have dealt with racism was when the three Black women were brutalized by the police at Russel's Liquor Store inAmherst. It came to the attention of Third World women that several white women had experienced similar abuse in that store. A wide variety of women's organizations did work cooperatively to garner support for the three Black women. Sexist and racist practices of Russel's Liquor Store employees and members of the Amherst Police Department were exposed. The presence of Third World and white people in the courtroom during the trial was a positive sign of the potential for political alliance. Yet when it was all over everyone went home. Third World people present in the court were left wondering if the progressive whites who show up at these demonstrations go home and dialogue with other whites about issues of racism.

Uprooting racism requires more than a superficial exhibition of righteousness. Some white women seem to enjoy telling everyone that they were at this demonstration against racism or that one. Others like to impress both uninvolved whites and Third World people with their expertise on racial issues. Some whites like to drop 'significant names' and inside information. They have taken Afro-Am courses, can speak Spanish and Swahili, can dance African and may even have had a Third World lover at some point in their lives. They behave as if this puts them in a position to attack other whites who don't know as much about race issues. They like to pass themselves off as experts, particularly since they have given support to all the 'right' issues. This attitude, however, is elitist. It allows whites to escape the real work, which is to deal with racism in some kind of fight with children three and four years older than himself because he was black. We stayed their for a whole year and the neighbors never spoke to us.

turn to page 4

myth

The next three years of my life were spent in Germany. Racism existed in Germany also but nothing to the degree that I had experienced in the United States. After leaving Germany we moved to a small Cape Cod town called Manamette where at the age of eight experienced racism of a different kind. I will never forget my first day of school in Manamette. When I got on the bus I was told girls on one side boys on the other. When I sat down by a white girl she jumbed up out of her seat saying she didn't want to sit near no nigger. The other children gave themselves make believe nigger shots to protect themselves from me. When I go to class it was worse the teacher would talk at me not to me. At last lunch time, when I got my tray and sat down at the table all of the children got up and left. This happeneed for two days on the third day I went to an empty table an ate my lunch , and from that day on I went to empty tables. On occassion when their weren't any empty tables I would pick a table with the least amount of people to it and sit as far away as possible even then

turn to page 4

announcements

IMPORTANT MEETING OF ALL THIRD WORLD STUDENTS CONCERNING THE BUDGETS OF OUR ORGANIZATIONS

●●●●●●●●●●●●●●●●

4 PM TUESDAY 6 MAY 1980

NEW AFRICA HOUSE

equal

over a dorm called Mills House - which has since been known as New Afrika House.

Difficulty is a fact if life in the valley of the five-college system. A central and most common difficulty has been the inavility and near impossibility for minorities in general to gain recognition. This is a problem which is shared by students, staff, and faculty. Recognition as a community is no different, and equal recognition individually or as a community has never happenedand indeed appears a ing way into the future. How can minorities expect "equal opportunity with out equal recognition"? The difficulty which attaining "equal recognition" proposes is further enhanced by the inability of Afrikan-Amerikans and other minorities to come together collectively to deal with community concerns. Students, staff, and faculty division surmounts to almost a "caste system". Minorities divided themselves from one another socially and fail to demonstrate an adequate interest in each others problems and differences. A lack of chesion has caused an open exposure to greater setbacks, leaving us divided and almost conquered; we can ill afford to maintain this course of obeyance.

As a result of our difficulties and obeyance, we begin to irritate one another in the midst of our deeper fustrations. As one problem builds on another and disunity increases, an exaggerated sense of individualism serves to further divide us, through useless attitudes and understandings which show a totally lacck of comprehension. Lack of comprehension is the greatest irritant to those who strive to remedy our situation. Obeyance within our community is most specifically caused by a "selfish, illiterate understanding of this environment." It has been said, "The eye cannot see ,what the mind cannot comprehend." Without understanding there can be no vision and without a vision the future is never inevitable. Our obeyance leaves us open to pick-up some of the negative traits of

turn to page 4

WHO RUNS IRAN

IN Response to : "Who Runs the Government of Iran" Mr. Foad Vafai in an article on April 28 has explained "who runs the government of Iran". We do not agree with his 'centrist' analyisis and here by wish to criticize his views.

Vafai claims the reason for the leadership of the clergy during the revolution was "the fact!" that "All desires, hopes and political beliefs have been expressed through Islam". In other words he claims traditional culture as the basis of the clergy leadership. If the writer had taken unto himself to study the historical culture of his society, especially in the past two hundred years, he would have found some very interesting facts. He would have discovered many political movements and beliefs expressing values other that those in Islam or even contrary to it. A vast amount of Iranian Philosophy and poetry upholds anti-religious, atheist values. Strong religions with different political motives have appeared. Islam is an ideology and contrary to the writer's belief not a universal and absolutely engulfing manner of thought. Furthermore he prescribes socialist remedies to the Iranian problems forgets the basic law of historical materialism. Namely that all ideologies express class interest. The reason why nationalism was not the leading ideology of the revolution was simply that the national bourgeoisie was uprooted in Iran and the reason why the ideology was not Marxist was the immense oppression of the revolutionary left. In absence of organized labour and national bourgeosie the petty bourgeoisie and the clergy led the revolution with their brand of islamic ideology. So contrary to the author's cultural explanations, the leadership of the revolution was the result of political circumstances. In recent past history national bourgeoisie has led the constitutional revolution and the oil nationalization, both under democratic bourgeois nationalist banners not islamic ones. Other more progressive movements among minorities have had closer views to proletarian ideologies (in Kurdistan, Azerbaijan, Gilan and Mazendaran). To further dissillision Mr. Vafai, other more progressive revolutionary and democratic movements of the recent revolution who upheld islamic ideologies were desclaimed and labeled anti-revolutionary by the clergy. So if one isto take the authors word Islam is fighting Islam in Iran.

The ruling class contrary to the writer's approval is not dualist and "ambiguous". Every step it has taken, has been to futher strengthen the broken bonds with Imperialism through the liberal bourgeoisie. All progressive and revolutionary ideas, platfors and forces have been ruthlessly oppressed.

There are no antagonistic contradictions in the ruling class. The "Anti-Imperialist" gesture is only used to further strenghen their popular support to oppress revolutionary factions. These organizations that are strongly anti-imperialist are massacred in Turkaman Sahara, Kurdistan (Kurdish fighters and guerillas oppose the fascist Iraqui regime) where there is confrontation with the puppet Iraq, and driven out of universities (the traditional platform of revolutionary opposition to the Shah) just at the time when unity of the people and the progressives is required to face the danger of an Imperialist military attack. As far as "progressive" measures of the government are concerned, there are none. Mr. Vafai, to support his argument, must have contemplated a long time and all he could come up with was "Khomeini has nationalized the banks". This is very ironical since the banks belonged to the Court, Royal family and other comprador capitalists who have fled with their money leaving the banks in shambles of foreign debt. It is these foreign debts which takes the sweat and blood of Iranian toilers to pay back, which the government has nationalized to insure the same investors.

As a last word the deeds of the Revolutionary Council, Khomeini, Bani Sadr and everyone involved in the government are the same. Contradictions exist as to who gets a bigger share of the power and profits. The people, as far as tradition is concerned, are left out. Mr. Vafai's "scientific" analysis is nothing but a superficial explanation in contradiction with historical facts. ●

By Kaveh Ehsani

"TELL NO LIES. MASK NO DIFFICULTIES. HIDE NOTHING FROM THE MASSES OF THE PEOPLE"

Interview With Mike Thelwell By Carl Yates

Mike Thelwell, first chairman of the W.E.B. Dubois Department of African-American Studies at UMass Amherst, is a former activist in the Civil Rights Movement in the South and presently teaches black literature in the Black Studies Department. He is the author of the recently published Jamaican novel The Harder They Come which is being brought out in the U.S. by Grove Press and is being simultaneously published in England and the British Commonwealth by Pluto Press.

Even before publication on April 30th, the novel had received an unusual amount of attention. Excerpts from it were published in the Massachussetts Review, Essence Magazine and a New York based carribbean journal called Everybody's Magazine. It also received favorable mention in the New York Times publishing column where Thomas Lask called it "a novel that is virtually an in depth study of Jamaican culture and folkways ... Yet The Harder They Come is both local and universal, a blend that all good regional novels aspire to ..." At this writing only one review, The Black Scholar's has come in, but the previews have been uniformly good.

Chinua Achebe, author of Things Fall Apart and a former member of the W.E.B. DuBois department called the novel "a magnificent achievement and a major milestone in the cultural history of Black people." The book has also received high praise from Michael Manley, the Jamaican Prime Minister, Stokely Carmichael, Andrew Salkey ,the Jamaican novelist and poet and Harold Bloom the prominent literary critic, who called it "one of the few novels to be worthy of the black experience in our time."

NUMMO News asked Carl Yates, the editor of Drum magazine,(Drum is publishing in its next issue an exchange of letters between Thelwell and the critic Irving Howe on literary racism in the writing about African and the Black World) to talk with Bro. Mike. The interview follows.

DRUM: Bro. Mike, the book seems to be doing very well...

THELWELL: What do you mean? Its just out and the reviews havent really come in yet. Ain't sold a copy yet so far as I know.

DRUM: But thats not quite true. The reviews Achebe, Carmichael, Salkey, Manley, said "the book shows a broad and deep understanding of cultural dynamics. It recounts with great sympathy the begavior of a long colonized people in the process of liberation." and so on...

THELWELL: (laughs) But those are allies. We still have to hear from the enemy. Actually what the opposition says doesn't matter, so thats not quite true. I mean bad reviews in the white media could finish it off among white readers, but the black folk have been really kind to the book. Essence, Black Scholar etc. And folks whom 'I like and whose politics I respect have been very supportive so I think... and hope, that the book will have a life among black people, which wasd my intention in the first place. But if it does in the white world, that would be very welcomed too.

DRUM: You mention the enemy. You don't mean by that , white people?

THELWELL: Hell no. There's cultural politics and a colonial mentality involved. A number of white writers and critics have linked it. And I'm sure some black intellectuals with colonized mentalities will hate it. The enemy in this case is a particularly obtuse, recondite, cultural chauvinist group of writers in the bourgois literary establishment who are convinced of a number of things all of which are false.

DRUM: (laughing) Like what? Or better, like who?

THELWELL: Like V.S. Naipaul and his little brother Shiva, you know the arguments you're running in Drum next issue. Look! There is a long trtadition of outsiders - - usually European, but sometimes native, that are non-white people who feel closer to European culture and values, and consequently alienated and divorced from their own people and culture, writing about black peoples and societies in a distorted, racist, dismissive, reductive and ultimately condescending way. In these books, black people emerge as "primitives" or "backward" sub-human in some way. Conversely European culture and values appear vastly superior. What is at the core of this kind of writing and the establishment critics who praise it ignorantly, is of course and affirmation of the moral and cultural superiority of "the great shining evidence of western culture."

DRUM: So you seem to be saying that the writing and reviewing of novels is political?

THELWELL: Absolutely. Of course it is. Why the hell you think that a crudely and offensively racist book like Joseph Conrad's The Heart of Darkness is taught in damn near every English Department in this country as a masterpiece of western literature?

DRUM: But what has that got to do with your book?

THELWELL: Directly very little. Indirectly a great deal. Let me try to explain... See,, as you know writing is hard work. I do not love work enough to waste my time and energy writing against certain kinds of European cultural chauvinism. Maybe when they get me mad enough a letter... but not an entire novel. See, I've been saying for a long time that the black novel--whether it be African, Afro-American or Carribbean should be the most vital and important body of literature in the modern world. I believe this and for a number of reasons. But for the most part it hasn't been happening to the extent that I think it should, except for the African novel

DRUM: Why do you think that is... I mean that it isn't happening?

Photo By Ed Cohen

THELWELL: I have some ideas. But first let me tell you why I think it should be happening. See, the novel is an excellent fopolitical reality. It is also a vitally important weapon in nation building, It is also a vitally important weapon in nation building, in developing national and cultural possibility can be aided immeasurably by good novels that cronicle and illuminate that struggle andt that history. So there is a real role for the novel in the black world.

DRUM But not in the white world?

THELWELL: Well apparently not. The novelists and critics of the western bourgoisie don't seem to think so. They appear to think that all that took place in the European world in the 19th century. What they are concerned with how is literary modernism. By which they seem to mean a looking inward. They are concerned with their "interior Life," with individual consciousness, with single, alienated figures poring endlessly over their own neuroses. They seem to think that all a novelist has to know is himself. Screw tha reality of the social political and moral world. And when that subjectivity gets boring as it inevitably must, instead of creating real, complex and interesting characters and situations in the real world... they make the form more complex, eccentric and obscure. Consequently nobody much reads modern novels because they have abdicated moraland political responsibility. This represents a profound failure of intelligence and a kind of bankruptcy of western literary culture.

DRUM: You seem to be saying that the role of the novel is different in the black world?

THELWELL: Unfortunately not different enough.

THELWELL: Too many young black writers are over influenced by their education is western universities and by literary fashion. They are concerned with what the establishment critics are gonna say about their work. You know the syndrome...you are not a bona fide writer until the New York Times, of The Times of London or the New York Review of Books praises your work. That profoundly and distressingly stupid and sad. Because what then happens is that these writers begin to imitate modernist fashions and to address their work to the bourgeois literary establishment. What this means is that you are no longer addressing your work to your own people and in away that they can understand and recognize. You are failing in your historical and revolutionary duty. You see? Its absurd. You get some african sitting in the middle of a cohesive traditional culture and writing some abstract novel about" the existential void and nothingness". Or some Jamaican sitting in the middle of dramatic and important social upheaval writing an experimental novel, without characters or dialogue and from the psychological point of view of a fetus.

DRUM: And you think they should be writing political books.? Wouldn't some people say that that was not Art but propaganda?

THELWELL: Sure they would. And mostly they'd be wrong. But even if they weren't... If Art is the fetus, then I'll take propaganda any day. But that's a false argument usually. They call V.S. Naipaul a great Artist. But far as I'm concerned he is a cynical propagandist. He repeats and refines western bias and prejudice against black peoples and cultures, but since thats what they emotionally want to hear its art.....'em anyway.

DRUM: Calm down and tell us, if you would, what you consider the role of the black novelist to be, then.

THELWELL: Look, the black writer today is supremely previleged if he or she has the wit to recognizee it. First of all they inherit an incredibly rich history. Our history is that of a resourceful, courageous, people struggling for their physical and cultural survival. It is at once the most tragic, painful, ironic, noble, inspiring, moving history of alsmost any people in our time. Instead of looking inward at their own navels. They should be looking at this rich mine of experience that can be made into great literature. Chinua Achebe does that. Then, we have an audience that the white writer does not have. Our people arent bored with reading about themselves. They need, they have a deep need to see their story honestly told. As James Baldwin says, "To read their names, their true names in the pages of literature." We should be addressing them. What can be more exciting than that?

DRUM: So Black writers should be writing about our experience and addressing our own people. But isn't that what has been happening?

THELWELL: Yeah...its happening more and more. The writing about the black experience, yes. But who is being addressed most of the time, is not so clear. See, its not just that a book is about black people or a black society. It is how that society is presented. How that experience is percieved. What techniques and literary references the work has. For example, how can one write about an oppressed people in a non political way? Also, whose traditions and literary styles are used? I make a point in my book to use jamaican language, and to show the african origins of much of that language. I try to use the legends, oral tales, the cultural style and linguistic traditions, the songs, jingles, rhymes and idiom of the masses. Most of the characters are peasants, poor folk, "Sufferers" they call them. And I thinks it works as literature, and what we get is the point of view and values, the world view of a group of poor often non-literate black folk. And what I hope we learn is that there is an entire cultural point of view, away of seeing, talking about and responding to reality that is not western. But which is no less eloquent and moving, and indeed, which is often truer and more poetic. And in which we do not appear as grotesques and exotics. There are some grotesques in the book and they are not us.

DRUM: I think we have enough. (laughter) Thanks Bro Mike...

THELWELL: No Sir. It is for me to thank you. It is a profound honor and a high previlege to be interviewed by the distinguished editor of the DRUM...You remember what Amilcar Cabral said to his cadres in the struggle?

DRUM: He said a lot. What in particular?

THELWELL: He wasn't talking about the Black novel, but it applies exactly. He said "Hide nothing from the masses of the people. Tell no lies. Mask no difficulties. Claim no easy victories.

Surely that is the best contribution the writer can make ●

Homenaje al valor de la mujer en la resistencia popular

Tradicionalmente, las mujeres, los campesinos, y la gente indígena han tenido la menor cantidad de poder en América Latina. Ahora estan surgiendo como oposición fuerte a la represión de las dictaduras.

Las mujeres siempre han resistido, pero hoy se estan uniendo, conscientes de su opresión y de los abusos de poder llevados al extremo. En lugares como Nicaragua, mujeres estaban prominentes en la defensa armada del pueblo contra el asesino Somoza .Hoy continuan en marcha en el proceso de reconstrucción nacional en el país. En paises como Argentina, las mujeres estan resistiendo con vigilias silenciosas: actos que son igualmente amenazantes a la junta militar.

Las vigilias empezaron en 1976 cuando un grupo de mujeres se reunio en la Plaza de Mayo en Buenos Aires exigiendo información sobre donde se ubicaban sus parientes y compañeros que habian desaparecido — "Los desaparecidos' son personas que mayormente despues de haber sido detenidos por grupos de hombres armados desaparecen y no se sabe donde estan. El gobierno militar respondio ridiculizando públicamente a las mujeres, diciendo que no eran 'verdaderas' madres, no eran más que locas.

"Estas mujeres no estan locas...solamente estan "locas" de dolor e impotencia ..."locas" porque a sus seres queridos se les han llevado brutalmente...porque ellos pueden estar en cualquiera de los varios campos de concentracion que existen en Argentina, donde se sufre en sistemas de tortura que son entre las más diabólicas en la historica del mundo, "locas" porque a ellas tambien se las reprime por haber estado transformando la "locura" en lucha contra la represión.

Alto al apoyo de EE.UU. al regimen en El Salvador y a las otras dictaduras

"Para los Estados Unidos es muy importante que los extremistas armados de izquierda no triunfen en El Salvador, y los Estados Unidos hará todo lo que legitimamente puede hacer para prevenir tal resultado."
[Joseph White, embajador norteamericano en El Salvador dirigiendose a la Camara Americana de Comercios en El Salvador, periodico New York Times, 7 de abril, 1980.]

En el pasado, los Estados Unidos ha invadido con tropas a El Salvador, a Nicaragua, al Haiti, a Santo Domingo, a Puerto Rico, a Cuba, etcetera...En 1954, el presidente norteamericano Eisenhower dio la orden para un golpe de estado, ejecutado por la CIA (el servicio secreto de los EE. UU.)en Guatemala. Esto fue en reaccion al hecho de que el gobierno guatemalteco quiso redistribuir algunas tierras que no se usaban, pero eran propiedad de la compañia norteamericana United Fruit Company.

En el año 1965, 20,000 de tropas ("marines") fueron enviados a la República Dominicana para prevenir que llegue al poder un gobierno que era reformista y popular. En 1973, Nixon, Kissinger y la CIA — del gobierno norteamericano fueron responsables por la llegada al poder del actual régimen asesino en Chile. Estos son los métodos "legitimos" de cuales está hablando el embajador Joseph White.

Por lo menos el embajador se ve claramente de que los Estados Unidos quiere todavia ser el que decide qué sistemas económicos y sociales van a tener los pueblos de América Latina. Cuando el gobierno norteamericano habla de "defender a intereses nacionales" sabemos que se refiere a intereses de las grandes corporaciones. No es casualidad de que haya una Camara de Comercios "Americana" en El Salvador, ya que la economia salvadorena esta organizada de modo de que este al servicio de la burguesía salvadorena y las compañias cafetales norteamericanas. Mientras la mayor parte de la tierra se utiliza para producir cafe que se exporta al exterior, un cuarto de la poblacion se muere de enfermedades causadas por deficiencias de vitaminas.

Ultimamente ha habido algo semejante a una reforma agraria, peroisigue como antes el poder y la riqueza de las 200 familias que controlan el 90 por ciento de la economía. La represión ha aumentado y más de 1,000 personas han muerto este año. La hipocrisia de la retórica de "derechos humanos" que usa Carter es obvia en las presiones que ha puesto en el congreso norteamericano para que se envien 5.7 miliones de dolares de ayuda militar, incluyendo a 36 asesores militares.

La intervencion norteamericana en Vietnam comenzo con unos cuantos asesores que luego llego a incluir a 500,000 de tropas. La propuesta ayuda militar, los atentos para reestablecer el Draft, el aumento en el presupuesto militar, y el aumento en el poder de la CIA, son parte del esfuerzo del gobierno de los EE.UU. de prevenir cambios progresistas y necesarios en América Latina. ALTO A LA INTERVENCION NORTEAMERICANA EN AMERICA LATINA!

Solidaridad con los movimientos de liberacion nacional

En America Latina los que estan luchando lo estan haciendo dentro de organizaciones sindicales, campesinas, femininas, estudiantiles, guerrilleras y populares. El movimiento de liberación nacional en El Salvador incluye tales organizaciones.

Es importante para nosotros, gente latina aquí en Norteamerica, ver las conecciones entre las luchas de los pueblos en America Latina y nuestras propias luchas por la justicia. El pueblo salvadoreño esta luchando por liberar a su pais de la dominación política y económica del imperialismo yanqui, el cual es responsable por la represión y pobreza que se soporta. El imperialismo yanqui es la misma estructura militar e industrial el cual es responsable aqui por la inflación, el desempleo y las reducciones en servicios sociales. La solidaridad entre los pueblos que luchan ayuda a debilitar el sistema internacional de opresion.

dia de las madres

MITIN PUBLICO

amherst commons
sabado 10 mayo
al mediodia
oradores y musica

REPRESION Y RESISTENCIA EN AMERICA LATINA

REPRESSION AND RESISTANCE IN LATIN AMERICA

APOYADO POR

Lucha Collective
Committee in Solidarity with National Liberation Struggles
Commuter Collective
Latin America Solidarity Committee
Ahora
Third World Women's Task Force
Venceremos Brigade
Office of Third World Affairs
Students Against the Draft
Che-Lumumba School
La Familia
Task Force on Jewish Liberation
Iranian Muslim Students Assn.
Union of Iranian Students
Radical Student Union
SCERA Anti-Racism Team
Socialist-Feminist Collective

(This is a partial list.)

Commemorate women's courage in the resistance

Traditionally, women peasants and indigenous people have had the least power in Latin America. Now they are emerging as powerful opposition to repression.

Women have always fought back, but today they are uniting, conscious of their oppression and of the abuses of power carried to the extreme. In places like Nicaragua, women were prominent in the armed defense of the people against Somoza, today they continue in the forefront of national reconstruction. In places like Argentina, women are fighting back with silent vigils--acts which are equally threatening to the military junta there.

The vigils started in 1976 when a group of women met in Plaza de Mayo in Buenos Aires demanding information on the whereabouts of relatives who had disappeared--"Los desaperecidos" are persons who usually after being detained by teams of armed men vanish without a trace into a world beyond all legal and human rights--the military responded by publicly ridiculing the women, declaring that they were not "real" mothers, they were just "mad" women.

"These women are not mad...they are just"mad" from pain..."mad" because their loved ones were brutally taken away...because they can be in one of the most diabolical torture systems in the history of the world, "mad" because they themselves are repressed for transforming their"madness" into struggle."

End U.S.support for the El Salvador regime and other dictatorships

For the United States it is very important that the armed leftist extreme not be victorious in El Salvador, and the United States will do everything it legitimately can to prevent such an outcome."
[Joseph White, U.S. ambassador to El Salvador addressing the American Chamber of Commerce in El Salvador, N.Y. Times, April 7, 1980.]

mothers day

RALLY

amherst commons
saturday may 10
12 noon
speakers and music

eco latino

In the past, the U.S. has militarily occupied El Salvador, Nicaragua, Haiti, Dominican Republic, Puerto Rico, Cuba, etc. In 1954, Eisenhower ordered a CIA coup in Guatemala because unused land controlled by the United Fruit Co. was to be distributed. In 1965, 20,000 marines were sent to the Dominican Republic to prevent a popular reform government from coming into power. In 1973, Nixon, Kissinger and the CIA were instrumental in putting in power the present junta in Chile. These are the "legitimate" methods that ambassador White is talking about.

The ambassador's statement indicates the U.S. still seeks to determine the economic and social systems for the people of Latin America, not to protect "national" interests, but the interests of the large corporations. It is no accident that there is an American Chamber of Commerce in El Salvador since its economy is organized to meet the needs of the Salvadorean upper class and the U.S. coffee companies. Whereas most of the land is used to grow coffee for export, ¼ of the population dies of diseases caused by vitamin deficiencies.

Recently there has been some land reform in El Salvador, however, the power and wealth of the 200 families that control 90percent of the economy is intact. Repression has increased and over 1,000 people have been killed this year. The hypocrisy of Carter's human rights rethoric is evident from his PRESSURE ON Congress to resume 5.7 million dollars of military aid, including 36 military advisors.

U.S. involvement in Vietnam also started with a few advisers that grew to over 500,000 troops. The proposed military aid, the attempts to restore the draft, to increase the military budget and the power of the CIA, are part of a renewed effort of the U.S. government to prevent progressive and much-needed change in Latin America. STOP U.S. INTERVENTION IN LATIN AMERICA!!

Solidarity with the national liberation movements

The people in Latin America who are fighting back are doing so through organizations of workers, peasants, women, students, and guerilla fighters. The national liberation movement in El Salvador includes such organizations.

It is important for us here in the U.S. to see the connections between the struggles of Latin American peoples and our own struggles for social justice. The people of El Salvador are struggling to free their country of the economic and political domination of U.S. imperialism which is responsible for the poverty and repression that they suffer. U.S. imperialism which is responsible for the poverty and repression that they suffer. U.S. imperialism is the same military-corporate structure responsible here at home for the rampant inflation, unemployment and cutbacks in social services we suffer. Solidarity among struggling people all over the world can only help weaken the international system of oppression.

Photo: Bobby Davis

En la foto se aprecia al grupo de Charanga cuando con su tremendo ritmo entretenian y daban cierre a la [illegible] latinoamericana celebrada en U Mass la semana pasada.

Politica En La Semana

Con motivo de la Semana Latinoamericana que se celebro de abril 26 a mayo 2, se llevo a cabo una reunión el martes 29 con caracter de tertulia en el Commonwealth Room en el Student Union Building. Se discutio y analizo la actual politica de Colombia y se conjeturo acerca de las posibles razones que existieron en el exodo de diez mil cubanos a los EE.UU. durante el pasado mes.

Uno de los aspectos mas importantes y que fue tambien a su vez, motivo de controversia y polemica entre los concurrentes era la preocupacion de que este hecho fuese a ser utilizado por los diferentes medios informativos (que son capitalistas, imperialistas y anticomunistas) para atacar la eficacia del regimen comunista en Cuba. El argumento seria de que si el sistema cubano proporciona beneficios a su pueblo, no hubiera sido posible de que tantos hubiesen querido emigrar. Ahora bien hay que tener en cuenta que el nivel intelectual y de percepcion politica del publico concurrente era uno de los mejores debido a que entre ellos se encontraban varias personas que habian estado en Cuba y sus opiniones por ende cobraban mas valia que de costumbre. Se formularon varias teorias producto ellas de la madre del mejor razonamiento el analisis logico y detallado de los hechos.

Primero que todo nos interesa esclarecer que no entendemos porque se le ha dado tanta importancia a que menos de 1. de la poblacion cubana hay querido emigrar a los EE.UU. Cuando un porcentage mucho mas alto de personas viajan a este pais provenientes de otros paises latinoamericanos.

Como segunda medida queremos exponer las posibles razones existentes para el exodo y que este fuese permitido por Fidel.

Primero cuando Fidel tomo el poder muchos buscaron asilo politico en EE.UU. dejando tras de si sus respectivas familias, los que viajan van mas que todo a su reencuentro.

Por Gabriel Velásquez

Segundo, el sistema de Fidel es completamente incompatible con el mundo homosexual haciendo que este prefiera salir de donde no es aceptado..

Tercero, los EE.UU. son como un mito para mentes jovenes de Latinoamerica quieren venir a ponerse blue jeans y T-shirts, mirar television a colores y escuchar musica de rock--es propagandas imperialista que al parecer dan sus frutos tambien tienen derecho y Fidel asi lo comprende.

Cuarto, es una buena oportunidad para deshacerse del hampon y delinquentes enviandoles a los EE.UU.

Quinto, mas que todo para preocupar a los pentagonistas: "dentro de los que vienen hay espias, agentes secretos al servicio de Fidel."

Basta yo creo de especular. Lo importante es reconocer que el sistema de comunismo en Cuba es tan amplio que otorga a los que asi lo quieran, la oportunidad de viajar--fuera de proveer alimentos para todos, un techo donde guarecerse, atencion medica gratis, y educacion hasta nivel universitario tambien gratis.

Es tambien el unico pais donde encontramos que la taza de mortalidad infantil es la mas baja en Latinoamerica, y su porcentage de alfabetizacion es aun mas alto que el de los EE.UU. Unico pais donde se concede a la mujer compensacion monetaria por tiempo de hospitalizacion debido al embarazo. Unico pais donde en la enmienda de los derechos civiles se estipula que en un hogar donde ambos conyuges trabajen los quehaceres del mismo deben ser igualmente rapartidos. •Que otro pais de America o del mundo (que no sea comunista) puede aspirar a igualarlo• Caso cerrado.

COLOMBIA

Colombia, conjuntamente con Venezuela y Costa Rica son conocidos en el exterior como las unicas democracias estables que existen en Latinoamerica. En cuanto se refiere a Colombia, yo podria decir que esto es solo un "espejismo" o producto de la prolifica imaginacion de algun candido e ingenuo. Pues como es posible denominar a ese pais localizado en el norte Sudamerica como democratico, cuando existe tanta represion politica, desigual distribucion de riquezas y posee uno de los fenomenos sociales que mas verguenza nos debiera dar el problema del gamin: ninos callejeros, de 4 a 10 anos, desamparados y sin hogar que deambulan por los millares en las calles de Bogota, Medellin, Cali, etc..durmiendo en las aceras, cubriendose en las noches invernales y de frio con papel periodico--robando a tan temprana edad para poder subsistir. •Y el gobierno colombiano que hace• Yo no lo se, pero de lo que si estoy seguro es que la instauracion de un sistema comunista-socialista en Colombia se hace todos los dias mas imperativo y esto es algo que ya se oye con frecuencia. El pueblo, aunque lento, empieza a entender. Prueba de ello es la casi apoteosica despedida a los revolucionarios que habian tomado la embajada cuando salian hacia La Habana.

COLOMBIA Y CUBA

GRAN BAILE

El viernes con un baile-concierto celebrado en el Student Union Ballroom, se dio por cerrada la Semana Latinoamericana que fue todo un exito tanto politica como culturalmente. Comenzando el sabado con el concierto de Roy Borwn, seguido el domingo con el grup folklorico colombiano de Lucia Martinez y posteriormente con la conferencia de Juan Angel Silen. Mas adelante con la noche politica-cultural donde se discutio sobre la actualidad politica de Colombia, Cuba, El Salvador y Nicaragua. Con filmes de trendo impacto emocional sobre la historia de los movimientos independistas y nacionales de Puerto Rico y la tragica historia de una gran poetisa puertorriquena Julia de Burgos. Se debe agradecer a la directiva de la organizacion Ahora por hacer posible esta clase de realidades tangibles que concientizan y divierten al estudiantado latinoamericano en Amherst.

El gamin y el perro tienen algo en comun... La calle donde viven su angustia,y su penar, ignorados por una sociedad o suciedad que les percive igual.....

alcohol and stress program health education division university health services

General Statement of Duties:
Responsible for presenting community alcohol-stress education programs for students and community development-outreach efforts.
Supervision Received
Works under the close supervision of the staff health educator.
Examples of Duties:
1. Participation in training programs. 2. Responsible for presenting alcohol-stress education programs for students, including workshops and related activities. 3. Assist in Community Development-Outreach efforts. 4. Assist in evaluation efforts.
Qualifications One or more of the Following:
1. Enrolled in an undergraduate program in Education, Public Hewlth, Psychology, Nursing, Sociology, or a related field.2. Some experience and or training in peer education efforts. 3. Some experience and or training in working with alcohol or stress education. 4. Some experience and or training in Community Development or Outreach. 5. Ability to work with college students effectively. 6. Working knowledge of human relation skills.
Hours and Compensation:
1. First semsster (Sept. '80 to Dec. '80) of 15 weeks. Each weeks. Each week...3 hours of training and 8 hours of service delivery. Compensation for training will be in the form of three graded credits. Compensation for 8 hours a week of service delivery will be at a rate of $3.33 hour, or $400.00 for first semester.
2. Second semester (Feb. '81 to May '80(OF /1 WEEKS. Each week...3 hours of training and 12 hours of service delivery. Compensation for training will be in the form of three graded credits. Compensation for 12 hours a week of service delivery will be at a rate of $3.85 hour, or$600.00 for second semester.
What to do to find out more or to apply:
1. Applications and further information are available at the Alcohol Education Office, Room 366 of the Health Center, 549–2671, Ext. 186.
2. Deadline for applications, May 16, 1980.
The University of Massachusetts and the Alcohol Education Project are Equal Opportunity Employers.

A FREE AND INDEPENDENT ZIMBABWE–
A DEFEAT TO U.S. IMPERIALISM AND WHITE SUPREMACY
A forum to build solidarity with the Republic of Zimbabwe Ahmed Obafemi of the Provisional Government of the Republic of New Afrika and Sylvia Baraldini of the May 19th Communist Organization will give a slide show and presentation based upon their recent travels in Zimbabwe. They were part of a 4-member delegation of anti-imperialist and revolutionary nationalist organizations in the U.S. that were invited by ZANU to witness the elections.
PRESENTATION & DISCUSSION: "A FREE AND INDEPENDENT ZIMBABWE: A VICTORY FOR WOMEN'S LIBERATION WORLDWIDE"

Friday, May 9 / :00 pm UMass Thompson 104
Donation $1 (All proceeds to ZANU)

Exclusive Interview with Ambassador ANDREW YOUNG

By Jose Guillermo Trejo.

Photo by Bobby Davis

Former U.S. Ambassador Andrew Young

Jose G. Trejo, Eco Latino Editor for Nummo, held an exclusive interview with Ambassador Andrew Young, after his speech in the Fine Arts Auditorium last Monday, April 28. From that interview, we are printing two questions asked to Mr. Young on two issues not addressed in his speech.

Question–

Many Cubans are now leaving their country because of the political and economic situation there. They have been welcomed and granted refugee status by the U.S. government. On the other hand, Mexicans are leaving their country also because of the political and economic situation there and the U.S. government has been granting them status as "illegal aliens" and deporting them., Do you think thre is ambivalence in the U.S. immigration laws, and whatever happened to Carter's amnesty plan for undocumented workers°

Answer–

I think there was a new immigration bill which goes into effect May 15 which does give amnesty to certain categories of workers. But I think you are quite right that the immigration policy is discriminatory.

The same thing is true of Haitians who have fleeing the rightwing repression of the Duvalier government. And they are not receiving the same treatment the Cubans are given.

Unfortunately, now even the decent treatment Cubans are getting is going to stop. And we're finding that Castro is willing to let all Cubans come here who want to. And we're now saying that we can't accomodate them all.

So I don't know how that is going to be resolved but part of it is the inconsistency that is perceived and not feeling as though they can do the same thing for everybody coming.

Question–

Right before his assasination, Archbishop Oscar A. Romero of El Salvador warned Carter that the military aid to the civilian-military junta in that country would only bring more bloodshed to the conflict. In spite of that, money was granted to the junta. What are your views of the role the U.S. should play in El Salvador?

Answer–

I wrote to the President and the Congress, suggesting that the Archbishop's request to withhold funds be honored, and we didn't get a reply on that, but I thought that the least we could do was to honor the request of a man who was a symbol of reconciliation in El Salvador. I think right now the State Dept. feeling is that although they have problems with the present junta, they feel that it is the most moderate group that can possibly survive, so they would like to see them hold on.

Question–

Isn't that supporting the bourgeoise ?

Answer–

Yeah, I think it is, but that's the American Way.

THE CARTER DOCTRINE IN THE PERSIAN GULF

Argentina from p. 7

However, in spite of the military government's cruelty and irrational repression, the Argentine people continue to resist. Strikes and demonstrations, work slow-downs and sabotage, when possible are constant. In 1977, a group of mothers decided to meet in front of the presidential palace, at the Plaza de Mayo, they challenged the military forces every Thursday in Buenos Aires until the government arrested them and declared their actions illegal. These mothers still do not know if their children are alive or dead, and the military will not admit to either. Such actions aremore than "violations of human rights". When a nation destroys its children it destroys the very concept of human dignity and hope.

At the same time that persistent terror has caused widespread suffering, the junta's battle against inflation has taken a growing toll among Argentines. Wage earning groups are the hardest hit. Despite the promises of the junta the economic sacrifices and physical insecurity, which has become the lot of broad sectors of the citizenry, Argentina remains in poor economic health.

In this fourth year of military rule in Argentina, the most important issue that must be raised is how to obtain the release of prisoners or alleviate the situation of the many Argentine people suffering this horror.

The best way to accomplish this would be by pressuring the military junta to respect human rights and to call for democratic elections. This can be accomplished in many ways. We can get religious, human and civil rights organizations involved in the Argentine issue. We can write letters to our congressmen urging them to act. Several U.S. senators and representatives have been active on Argentina authorities asking them to release the names of prisoner, their place of detention and legal situation, and a guarantee of their physical safety. We can also organize demonstrations and sympathy actions to support the call for the restoration of civil liberties and human rights in Argentina.

On Saturday, May 10 there will be a rally on the Amherst Commonat noon, entitled Repression and Resistance in Latin America. The purpose of the program is to build support for the national liberation struggles in Latin America, as well as expose the role of the U.S. government in making the repression and genocide in Latin America possible. The speakers will address themselves in particular to the current situations in Argentina, El Salvador and Guatemala.

Nacionalistas Puertorriqueños ECO LATINO

Presentacion de los niños de la Escuela Che-Lumumba a los Nacionalistas Puertorriqueños, Oscar Collazo, Rafael Cancel Miranda y Irvin Flores

Photo by Ed Cohen

Michelle Coons, Oscar Collazo, Alicia Nieto, Rafael Cancel Miranda e Irvin Flores. Esta actividad fue parte de la Semana Latinoamericana, Abril21-27 en Hampshire College que estuvo dedicado a Lolita Lebron y los Nacionalistas.

Che Lumumba School

Well, as the saying goes. we have good news, some bad news. The bad new is that the jails in this country are still over–populated, particularly with Third World folks. The good news is that some of our political prisoners are now on the outside, due in no small part to the efforts of supporters all over the country. Because the Che–Lumumba School has consistently been committed to the freedom of political prisoners, we present this commentary as our analysis of the situation at the start of 1980.

In a very real sense, 1970 was a crucial year, both in people's awareness of the issues and in actual release of numbers of political prisoners. After years of international pressure, President Carter finally gave in and announced the release of the four nationalist prisoners; Rafael Cancel Miranda, Irvin Flores, Lolita Lebron, and Oscar Collazo. (Naturally, the fact that this is an election year and that Hispanics and Blacks helped put Carter in office four years ago cannot be overlooked as contributing to this decision). The tumultuous welcome that they re eived, in Puerto Rico as well as in New York, was ample evidence of the popular sentiment which led to their release. The four have subsequently traveled all over Puerto Rico, The Carribbean, and the United States in support of Puerto Rican independence.

While the four Nationalists are at the center of a movement and have made themselves very visible, other political prisoners have had to remain hidden in order to survive. Assata Shakur for so many years imprisoned under unduly harsh and cruel conditions, escaped last year. Needless to say, she is again on the FBI's "Ten Most Wanted" list. At the same time spontaneous posters and fliers have cropped up all over the country, proclaiming "Assata Shakur is Welcome Here."

Another spectacular escape was that of William Morales, a Puerto Rican activist accused of being a member of the FALN, a so called terrorist group. And another long–term political prisoner, Ben Chavis of the Wilmington Ten was released. The trial of the Wilmington Ten made a sham of the judicial system. It was embarassingly clear what the objective of the government had been in holding the trial...His release represents another victory for the people who were united in purpose and action for his freedom.

They have became tangible and heroic symbols of resistance to many people, including those who have not sondidered themselves "political" in the past.

On the minus side, 1979 was the death of more prisoners within their cells than ever. These supposed "suicides" have become more and more commonplace in the country's prisons, representing one more way the government has of dealing with unruly prisoners. A prime example was Angel Rodriquez, a Puerto Rican from Vieques who was arrested and shortly afterwards found dead in his cell in Florida. Although he had reportedly committed suicide, he was found with numerous contusions on his face and body.

In closing, we should be reminded of the words of Martin Sostre, another political prisoner who was released in 1975 after many years of imprisonment.; "We're all political prisoners. The only difference is that some of us are on the inside and some of us are on the outside." In that context, we end this commentary with the thought that the people of Vieques are our newest political prisoners; that is although not in a concrete jail, they are the powerless victims of the United States navy and a further reminder of the colonial stature of Puerto Rico. Thus, the year 1980 calls for a renewed committment on the partof us all to struggle against the oppression of all political prisoners. The Che–Lumumba School once again joins this effort.

Vieques

Vieques is the center of the struggle for Puerto Rican independence. It is the emerging front in the beginning stages of People's War.

Vieques, a small island off the coast of Puerto Rico, is of vital importance to the U.S. It is the largest U.S. naval base in the world. It would be used as the launching ground for U.S. interavention in Africa, the Middle East, the Carribbean, or Latin America, and gives teh U.S. naval and air control of the Gulf of Mexico, the Caribbean Sea and the south Atlantic. Vieques is used by the U.S. and its NATO allies as a bombing range, practice area, and testing ground for weapons. "There is no other place in the world whre all elements of the fleet..can train together as a team."according to the Navy. These manuevers have forced massive dislocation of the population, ecological damage, destruction of the economy, injury and death.

The fishermen of Vieques have militantly resisted the Navy, confronting huge naval destroyers in their small fishing boats and successfully blocking their manuevers. Clandestine groups have attacked Navy and Coast Guard installations, and liberated and distributed naval documents exposing U.S. intentions in Vieques. In May of 1979, 21 people were arrestd and beaten while resisting a navy practice landing, and 4 of them declared themselves POWs. One of the 4, Angel Rodriguez Cristobal, a member of the Central Committee of the Socialist League, was murdered by the U.S. government while serving a 6 moth sentence in U.S. federal prison in Florida.

Manifestacion

Manifestacion en apoyo a Vieques. Para mas informacion y para transporte a Washington, May 17 ponerse en contacto con Mauricio Hernandez 584-0460 o Commuter Collective 545-2145

Repression in Argentina

By Nanette Robicheau

24th of March marked the fourth year of military rule in Argentina, the systematic violation of human rights and the military dictatorship of General Jorge Rafael videl. According to Amnesty International, Since March 24, 1976, more than 9,000 persons have been murdered, thousands have disappeared and thousands more have been forced into exile. All labor actions have been declared illegal and all unions and universities have been intervened by the military. Political parties have been suspended or declared illegal. Inflation has reached a world leading 170% and real wages have declined 50 %.

Today repression reaches all sectors of Argentine society. Lawyers, doctors, students, clergy, housewives, businessmen, and union leaders have been taken prisoners. This violent campaign perpetrated by the military has included press censorship, kidnappings, suspension of Habeas Corpus, secret military "trials" and the widespread use of torture, including barbaric inhuman method [illegible] the Middle Ages. Between 15 and 30 thousand persons have disappeared in Argentina since the military takeover in 1976. These people have been kidnapped by the security forces of the junta for no apparent reason, in clear violation of the National constitution. No information about those taken prisoner is made available. Very few reappear. Most tragically even infants and young children have fallen victim to this cruelty.

Literally dozens of missions representing various public and private hemisphere agencies such as Amnesty International, the International League of Human Rights, the International Commission of Jurists, and the UN and OAS Human Rights Commissions have named the military regime of Argentina as a major human rights violator. Since the military coup of 1976, the number of political prisoners and disappeared persons in Argentina has exceeded those in all other South American countries combined. Senator Edward Kennedy has characterized Argentina the most repressive country in Latin America.

Turn to p. 6

CHINA ENTERS THE 1980s

asian affairs

continued from last week

By Ross Terrill

For the economy, the passing of Mao carries much less significance and the picture, hinging on many variables, looks uncertain. It will take much more than the absence of Mao to achieve the ambitious goals of China's four modernizations. For all the recent loosening up, the strengths and weaknesses of the Chinese economy are pretty much what they have long been. The country has vast natural resources, an able and increasingly educated work force, a substantial industrial base, and a populace whose consumer demands are kept within firm limits.

On the negative side, one notes a shortage of capital, a massive population which it is the main task of the economy simply to feed, an inability to raise the present proportion of cultivated land (11 percent) except at exorbitant cost, weak transportation and other infrastructures, and the bureaucratic rigidities of a planning system that is still basically Marxist.

Productivity went up in 1978 and 1979, due to incentives, technological improvements and a better spirit in the nation generally, and China's credit-worthiness abroad has risen high; these are recent positive developments. Expectations have also soared, however, and Beijing's new liberal economic planners may be sowing the seeds of a serious inflation problem.

Still, economic results have been good since the new policies have been given a chance. For 1978, grain output was up seven percent over 1977, industrial output 13 percent, and foreign trade 30 percent. Although these figures will not quite be matched for 1979, when the full results are assembled in April, China may well expect a six percent rate of growth of GNP over the coming years, which is high for such a populous agricultural country, and which would see the size of the Chinese economy double in about 12 years.

Broadly, China, already the world's sixth largest economy, is in absolute terms becoming a formidable economic force in Asia, but the life of the average Chinese is going to remain austere by the standards of Asia (not to speak of the West). One may wonder whether the undoubted stoicism and potential for discipline of the Chinese people will be sufficient, in changing times, for this contradiction to be borne without dissatisfaction that will eventually produce its own new phase of political radicalism.

It is hard, in the face of many variables, and with China's new policies still in their infancy, to make firm projections as to possible social dislocations ahead. But trends and factors can be weighed. As ideological tensions subside, sociological tensions are bound to intensify, some of them as a result of the very successes of modernization.

Dissatified youth: As many as 30 million high school graduates find themselves in the countryside, where they do not wish to be. Together with many others in the towns, they form a 'lost generation' which missed out on proper training during the political distractions of the 1960s, and feels resentful of the 'post-Mao generation' which sails past it as expertise wins out over redness. The general problem will not go away, for China has 210 million in tertiary schools, and will not for decades be able to much modify this acutely tapered educational pyramid. One also notes that half the 35 million members of the Communist Party joined during the Cultural Revolution; perhaps the values of that period have not really disappeared without a orace.

There is such a generation gap in China today that the leftist dissatisfied youth could well be found one day struggling alongside those, like Wei Jingsheng, who seem rightist, on the common ground of opposition to privilege and frustration at not being able to set foot on any upward path. The crime, the aping of the West, the romanticism in artistic circles-all making a significant appearance among urban young people-cannot be catalogued in terms of Left or Right. Nor is the feeling that some young people are indulgent, naive and impatient confined to hard-nosed bureaucrats and Maoist remnants; liberal officials and intellectuals, who suffered for their nonconformity during the 1960s, are often sharply critical of 'these arrogant youth with too high expectations,' TO QUOTE AN ACADEMICIAN WHO SPENT THE 1960'sIN PRISON. Some day a new burst of political radicalism may arise among disgruntled and or idealistic educated youth.

Regional assertiveness: The loosening up of the economic planning process, the growth of the 'frontier' areas of western China, the go-ahead given to Shanghai and other advanced industrial bastions to do their own thing and not fear that they may be blamed if they move out ahead of the rest of the nation, are all going to result in new conflicts of interest and outlook in the China of tomorrow. In particular, one watches for two developments: a growing gap between minority races and the Han peoples who have been set in their midst to lead the industrial and mineral development of the southwest, west and northwest; and possible aniety among the Mandarins of north China as south China, with its cultural links to the overseas Chinese, spearheads China's traits of a Southeast Asian city.

City-village tensions: No other major nation, unless it be India, suffers from a greater gulf between urban and rural life than does China, and the current modernization policies will widen it. That farmers were paid sharply higher prices for their grain and pigs in 1979 does not alter the fact that purchasing power (not to speak of access to knowledge and culture) is far greater in the 192 cities where 80 million Chinese live than it is in the villages where 800 million live. The specter of unemployment, moreover, hangs much more over rural China than it does over urban China. While the communes are ideal rag-bags for the underemployed, the mopping up of surplus labor can only be done at a cost to rural living standards. There are too many variables for one to predict some sporadic peasant revolt, 10 to 15 years from now, against the urban, modernizing, seaboard part of China, but of all the dangers facing China this may be the greatest.

Additional strains loom, from traffic problems to environmental threats, from the coming age imbalance of the Chinese population once the present policy of one-child families yields its fruits, to the social injustices and corruptions that will inevitable attend the unlocking of wages and prices after decades of stability. And yet there is some cause for optimism regarding China's social stability.

Because China's population is so vast, because the rate of economic growth must of necessity be well short of breakneck, and because the commitment to egalitarianism is still strong compared with most Third World countries, the way of life of most of the Chinese people is not going to be sharply transformed in the 1980s. This may prove frustrating to many Chinese but it also means a reduced chance of drastic social dislocations.

And recall that Chinese society enjoys great cohesion based on three powerful factors. There is a bone-deep nationalism that holds the Chinese together over and above agreement or disagreement as to the merits of communist rule. Cultural confidence-even the sobered Chinese of today have no real inferiority complex toward anyone-and cultural particularity are forces for stability in a modernization process. They should enable the Chinese to engage in post-Mao eclecticism without going too far and losing their moorings. Chinese civilization has long paid special attention to the very social modes which become of crucial importance during periods of economic change. China is still Confucian enough to encompass all economic mechanisms and formal state structures with informal social networks that express family and civic morality.

A final factor making for cohesion as the nation develops isthe strongly secular character of China, even rural China. For most of China's history its major religions have been functional and accommodating. And its lesser religions, such as Islam, have too few adherents to swing weight in the nation as a whole. One cannot expect to see in China what has appeared in Iran and to greater or lesser degree in many parts of the developing world: a religion-based backlash movement reasserting traditional values against modernity's intrusions.

Even though China's social future may not be very Maoist, then, it will be rooted in long-tested Chinese verities. The dislocations of modernization will be softened by the ingenious resources of Chinese civilization.

continued next week ●

myth

some would get up and leave the table. I hated going to school in those days. My only pleasure was going home and playing with my three brothers, between the four of us we developed a world that nobody could penetrate. The world at school became their world and the world at home our world.

Then we moved to Bridgewater. When I went to school I learnt a more subtle racism. When lunch time came I thought about finding an empty table but I didn't I sat with the other children instead. They didn't get up and move either, then I thought maybe I can play with them, but I soon learnt eating was okay but playing was a different story. I finally made friends with a Chicano girl who was also cut out from the games. The bus rides home sufficied with a few comments about the niggers each morning but this group hadn't caught on to invisible nigger shots yet.

Two months after we moved into our new house the body of a racoon was put on our front porch and the blood from the racoon was smeared everywhere. That summer my oldest brother was alsmost stapped while fishing by three white boys who wanted to see if black blood was the same color as white blood. Let me remind you that I lived in what was considered a respectable neighborhood.

I remember when ever a new Black family would move into town my parents would go and welcome them into the community, andwe would do the same at school.

What I experienced as a black child in a white community was not unique to me nor my family. It is the same experienced that many upper to middle class families experience. The existence of racism and oppression cross all social classes from the gates of Mount Holoyoke to the Halls of UMass. I know that their are a few sisters and brothers walking this campus who refuse to acknowledge their heritage, but they are the exception not the rule and you will find just as many if not more of these sisters and brothers come from the city in comparison to the country.

As a result of this article I hope that I have given you insight into the life of a typical Black Bourgeoisie family. The Black Bourgeoisie has not sold out to their people like so many seem to think, and we do know what its like to struggle. Grant it we may not know what it is like to actual live the street life, but when you you refer to racisim and oppression it is a universal language that all of us understand. And when ever I hear a comment like I did Thursday I think back to those bus rides home and all the times I ate lunch at that empty table. But most of all what families like mine and other minority family have gone through just to let whites know that they are not the only ones entitled to a house in the country and a white picket fence.

The most important thing to remember is this: Upon each of our graduation from college and into the white collar working world we become a member of the Black Bourgeoisie and the very comments that have been made towards me will also be made towards your daughter or son by people with the same thinking you now have

Comments to this article are welcomed and encourged, but please pertain to the issues addressed. ●

equal

the system and we our selves begin to do such things as stereotype situations and people. The ney result of such stereotyping has caused us to inflict the same oppression the system places on us, on each other.

racism

themselves; to deal with racism in the white community. Talking down to someone is not going to make them more sensitive and aware, or less racist. Talking with other white people and getting them committed to eliminating racism will be more effective.

It is interesting to Third World women that when some of these white women from the Russel's Liquor Store case were asked to do additional work in their own community they responded by saying they didn't know what to do or what to say. Fortunately there are white models by which whites who wish to can guide themselves. There are plenty of sources of information and guidance. The important thing is to act. Third World people have earned to look at the behavior of a person over a period of time, rather than to rely on their rhetoric. We can all talk. What is needed is people who know when and how to act.

Another illustration of racism in the women's movement is the case of Everywoman's Center, an agency which in its goals claims it has a commitment to challenging racism, sexism, and class discrimination. To date, most of the staff has been white and middle-class. Everyone on staff is or quickly becomes familiar with the rhetoric of human oppression. Yet, to date, the Center deals primarily with sexism as it relates to white women who are willing to come to the agency office. It has rarely challenged racism in a consistent or systematic way. Agencies like this one, which started out to offer an alternative, need to constantly examine their activities against their ideals. Because both Third World women and many white working-class women know that 'Everywoman's Center' has really been the province of a small, elite group for too long. The time to change is now and white people have to be willing to transform themselves. (see Suman Bohm's articles in the last two issues of Nummo and article on Everywoman's Center in today's issue.) ●

Here in the Valley of the five - college system, as community, our greatest need is to find out what are our unifying forces and build upon them. This valley is a college community and thus the student body organizations are capable of projecting a strong influence on the environment and affecting change. Unity among the Afrikan - Amerikan student population becomes essential to the goal of affecting change. The solidarity of (racial) monority student organization individually, as well as solidarity in a collective sense, must be present to create any lasting change in the five college system.

Afrikan-Amerikan student and minority students as a whole should offer services to the greater minority community such as a coop, day care, counceling (i.e. academic, career, personal), etc... Providing this service will provide them in return with a greater sense of purpose, self-respect, and direction in life ahead. These students should give to the entire valley the message that they are proud of themselves, hope for the future, that they strive on the unity they themselves build... and the greatest message of all, that they want "equal recognition and the respect that goes along with it". ●

announcements

Jugalkathak
The dance of North India featuring Shama Bhate and Pranati Pratap.
To be held Thursday, May 8, 8 PM Hampden Theater, Southwest University of Massachusetts, Amherst
Tickets: $2.00 Child—cere Provided
Benefit for Seta Rampersad Fund
Third World Women's Task Force.

cGRAN BAILE
Orquesta La Charanga Cache
Hampshire College Dining Commons
Viernes (Friday) Mayo 9
a las 9:00 pm
Disco latino con DJ Mike Diaz
$2 Beneficio para una delegacion cultural a Cuba

British free embassy, 6 die

LONDON (AP) — British commandos stormed the occupied Iranian Embassy early last night, rescuing 19 hostages and killing three of five Iranian Arab terrorists who had demanded freedom for political prisoners in Iran during a six-day siege.

British officials said the raid was ordered after the gunmen shot one hostage dead, shoved his body out the front of the five-story townhouse and threatened to kill a hostage every half hour if their demands were not met.

Two hostages were killed before the raid, Metropolitan Police Commissioner Sir David McNee said.

Two loud explosions followed by a fusillade of gunfire rocked the occupied embassy and the building was engulfed by fire after flak-jacketed commandos launched their assault. Police said the embassy was cleared 35 minutes later.

"We thought it was enough," said Foreign Secretary Lord Carrington, who was in Washington. "We went in and rescued all of the hostages and killed three of the gunmen."

One other gunman was arrested following the assault and a fifth was hospitalized with wounds, police said.

Negotiations had been reported stalled earlier in the day.

"At the request of the police and with the approval of the Home Office, units of the SAS (Special Air Services) were deployed in the final moments of the siege," said Deputy Assistant Police Commissioner Peter Nievens. 'We would have liked a peaceful solution."

MASSACHUSETTS DAILY
Collegian
VOLUME CIX, ISSUE 135 Student newspaper of the University of Massachusetts/Amherst Tuesday, May 6, 1980

Kent State remembered

By MARC FAGELSON
Collegian Staff

More than 250 students attended a rally yesterday at the Campus pond commemorating the tenth anniversary of the deaths of four Kent State students and two Jackson State students who were killed by National Guardsmen and State Police while demonstrating escalation of the Vietnam war into Cambodia.

The rally was sponsored by the May 5 Coalition; a group including members from Students Against the Draft, the Radical Student Union, the Office of Third Worlds Affairs, and the Student Government Assocation.

"We are united here today to make sure the peace those students died for isn't lost," said Adena Gilbert, 18, of Amherst, the afternoon's first speaker.

Jackson Katz, 19, of Swanscott, read a Declaration of Draft Resistance with which he dedicated a commemorative stone laid in front of a crab apple tree, planted next to the pond on the first anniversary of the students' deaths.

"Registration, we feel, must be viewed as a precursor to the draft, and the draft itself as a prelude to war. There is no escaping the fact that war in this era escalates the possibility of nuclear confrontation. We simply do not accept the necessity or inevitability of this course," Katz said.

Katz, a member of Students Against the Draft, said that the "white middle-age" legislators who make the laws are out of touch with young people, who don't vote. The law makers must be made more aware of activism in the nation's youth, he added.

A rally was held yesterday next to the campus center pond, in memory of the Kent State masacre which occured 10 years ago, May 4, 1970. (Staff photo by Cheryl Senter)

Brooke States, 22, of Boston, represented the Radical Student Union and gave a brief outline of the history of student activism in the country, which is on the upswing, he said.

"The 1980's are the people's decade," he said.

Denise Kendall, a senior from Woburn and a member of the Women's Issues Team, said women will "take their rightful place in the movement—in the front, at its heart," in this decade.

Tony Creighton, 30, of Boston, and a member of the Office of Third World Affairs, said "this society has never given the people who died on the campuses a reason why they died." He added that he was disappointed by the turnout and said, "I don't know what it's going to take to shock America."

"Instead of getting violent in Iran, we should get violent against the Ku Klux Klan," he said.

Joe Gannon, 23, of Franklin, and a member of Students Against the Draft, discussed the commemorative services held on the Kent State campus last weekend, which he attended.

"We must unite, because those we struggle against are united," he said.

The afternoon's final speaker was Chris Alberto, student Trustee from the UMass/Boston campus.

Students were urged to write their Senators in effort to prevent the U.S. Senate from passing the funding needed to reinstate registration. The Students Against the Draft table had prepared cards for students to mail which included all the information needed to reach the Senators in Washington, except postage.

Five-hundred college campuses went on strike as a result of the killings ten years ago. No court has ruled against the particulars involved despite much debate as to the intentions of the guardsmen and State Police when they opened fire. At Kent State, four students were fatally shot, and at Jackson State, two more were killed and 13 wounded when police chased the demonstrators into their dorms. Police fired at the students, killing and wounding them as they fired through the students' dorm's windows.

(Staff photo by J. Ferrarone)

One of the speakers at yesterday's Kent State Rally did a little more in making people aware of the ongoing fight for peace.

UM student saves refugees

By BRIAN O'CONNELL and MARC FAGELSON

A 20-year old UMass student returned home to Massachusetts last week after helping evacuate nearly 500 Cuban refugees from the Peruvian Embassy in Havana to freedom in America.

Pele Matos, a junior Business Administration major from Lawrence, returned to his native Cuba on a chartered fishing boat in hopes of bringing back relatives left behind when he fled the island eight years ago. His relatives however, could not be found among the refugees who left Cuba.

Matos visited Florida two weeks ago attending the funeral of another cousin when he heard of the "Freedom Sealift" and the thousands of Cubans at the Peruvian Embassy waiting for a chance to escape the country.

"We heard there were boats taking people from Cuba," said Matos. "I went down to Key West to see for myself and I found out it was true. I decided to join them," Matos said. "It was very unusual for the Castro government" to allow Cubans to flee the country unchecked.

But when Matos and the 12 others who had chartered the boat with him arrived at Marriel Port, where the refugees leave the island, they were forced by authorities to remain anchored in the harbor for one week.

Rules in the harbor included no sailing, no radio communication between boats, no fishing, swimming and not being allowed to dispose of garbage. After one week in the harbor with no food or water, Matos and his friends paid $19 for a five-gallon jug of water, and were charged $5 by authorities to dispose of garbage.

The government told Matos that for every member of his family that he brought back to America, he would have to take four more from the Peruvian Embassy, where 10,000 refugees

TURN TO PAGE 6

As hundreds of Cuban refugees pour into Eglin Airforce Base in Fort Walden Beach Fla., the monotony of camp life becomes routine and residents of "tent city" promenade back and forth on the main walks between rows of tents. (AP Laserphoto)

Carter embraces Cuban refugees

By MAUREEN SANTINI
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Carter declared yesterday that the United States will accept tens of thousands of Cuban refugees with "an open heart and open arms," and criticized Fidel Castro for his "inhumane approach" toward those who want to leave the island.

Carter, speaking to more than 2,000 members of the League of Women Voters at a Washington hotel, called the United States the "most generous nation on Earth in receiving refugees, and I feel very deeply that this commitment should be maintained."

The presidient pledged to continue to "provide an open heart and open arms to refugees seeking freedom from Communist domination and from economic deprivation brought about primarily by Fidel Castro and his government."

He said, "The entire subject or issue or problem with the Cuban refugees has been greatly aggravated by the inhumane approach by Fidel Castro."

Cuban refugees, estimated at nearly 14,000 so far, continued arriving by boat in Key West, Fla., where authorities made arrangements to transfer them to a hastily built tent city near Eglin Air Force Base for processing.

Officials said they hoped to begin resettling the refugees in Florida and neighboring states by Tuesday. Florida already has absorbed the bulk of the 800,000 Cubans who have fled to the United States in the more than 20 years since Castro came to power.

Meanwhile, the State Department announced that the United States will close its visa office in Cuba, citing an "intolerable and dangerous situation" caused by uncertainty over security.

The decision to close the U.S. visa office in Havana followed an attack Friday by a crowd of Cuban security agents on several hundred people awaiting visas outside the U.S. office. Fifteen persons were injured in the struggle, five seriously.

Drinan acquiesces; quits politics for Pope

By JOANNE D'ALCOMO
Associated Press

NEWTON, Mass. — Squeezed between his career as a Congressman and his vocation as a priest, Rep. Robert F. Drinan said yesterday he will obey a papal order requiring him to quit politics.

A Jesuit and an outspoken liberal Democrat, Drinan had planned to seek re-election to his sixth term from Massachusetts' 4th District.

But he received word from the Vatican last weekend that under the policy of Pope John Paul II, he no longer would be allowed to run for office.

He will leave office in Januarv.

"It is with regret and pain that I accept the decision of the Holy See," the 59-year-old priest solemnly told a news conference yesterday.

"I am proud and honored to be a priest and a Jesuit. As a person of faith I must believe there is work for me to do which somehow will be more important than the work I am required to leave,' he said.

Drinan was the first Congressman to seek the impeachment of former president Richard M. Nixon. Known for his opposition to the Vietnam War and the draft, and his advocacy of civil liberties and social services including federal financing of abortions, Drinan said he was "grateful for these opportunities to be a moral architect."

"I can think of no other activities more worthy of the involvement of a priest and a Jesuit," he said. "I undertake this new pilgrimage with pain and with prayers."

Asked if he considered leaving the priesthood to continue his political career, Drinan, ordained 27 years ago, responded firmly, "No. It's just unthinkable."

The order directing Drinan not to seek elective office again was made by the highest ranking Jesuit, Rev. Pedro Arrupe — based in Rome — and affirmed by Vatican officials close to the pope.

"I am grateful to Fr. Drinan for his ready and loyal compliance with my directive, a directive that reflects the expressed wish of His Holiness Pope John Paul II," Arrupe said in a statement released in Boston.

Although Arrupe's directive was issued in Drinan's case, it applies to all priests, according to Rev. Edward M. O'Flaherty, Drinan's regional superior.

"It has been stressed to me that Vatican and Jesuit authorities in Rome wish to underline the point that the principal reason for the order was the present pope's convictions about the proper role of priests," he said.

The pope's convictions "differ somewhat in emphasis from those of his predecessors."

Drinan's decision prompted a stampede of candidates rushing to beat the Tuesday filing deadline to seek his seat in the next election.

63-year-old Emilio Suarez Espinos proudly displays his passport while still aboard the shrimper 'Barbara McGinn' after he arrived along with several hundred other Cuban refugees in Key West yesterday afternoon. (AP Laserphoto) See related stories page 1.

Hearings give 'Toots' trouble

By DAVID HERN
Associated Press

BOSTON — M. Joseph Stacey of Worcester told the corruption commission yesterday he was replaced as state comptroller because he protested Albert (Toots) Manzi's fund-raising tactics.

The incident was related as the panel heard allegations that Stacey relatives and others were falsely listed as donors to a reception for former Gov. Francis W. Sargent. The fundraiser was held in May 1972 at the Pleasant Valley Country Club in Sutton.

The employment of the names, commission staffers alleged, was to cover $15,550 that arrived in cashier checks from two California banks close to the home office of Daniel, Mann, Johnson, & Mendenhall. An analysis of the checks was provided by James A. Siragusa, a financial analyst.

An earlier witness said that "DIMJIM," as the Los Angeles architectural firm was known, made illegal payments that were tied to the contract to design the Holyoke Community College.

Two of the straws, down for $1,000 each, were Stacey's daughter, Marlene Marcus of Elizabeth, N.J., and his brother-in-law, Robert Krupa of Meriden, Conn.

"They didn't give a penny," Stacey said. He said he did not authorize Manzi to use the names and, although there

TURN TO PAGE 4

Police crouch ready for action as colleagues and a unit of the Special Air Service storm the Iranian Embassy in London to end the six-day siege. (AP Laserphoto) See related story page 1.

Tito's death fuels fires of global conflict

By GEORGE GEDDA
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The death of Yugoslav President Josip Broz Tito brings into focus an issue which has generated enormous mutual suspicions in East-West relations for more than 30 years.

According to some experts, it is possible that no European country offers a greater potential for East-West confrontation than the nation of varying ethnic groups that Tito had guided with his legendary political skills since World War II.

The international sensitivities about Yugoslavia's future have been underscored ever since word began to spread to early January that the 87-year old leader was seriously ill. And they were put into sharper focus with his death Sunday.

Rumors — mostly unfounded — were rife for months in Europe about unusual Soviet troop movements in Hungary and elsewhere in the East European bloc.

TURN TO PAGE 4

DIGEST

The Associated Press

Primaries slated

By MIKE SHANAHAN
Associated Press Writer

Voters in North Carolina, Tennessee and Indiane are expected to give a big push to Ronald Reagan's unrelenting drive toward the Republican presidential nomination, and move President Carter closer toward renomination for a second term.

Only in the District of Columbia is Reagan's rival, George Bush, given a chance of making a close race in what are fast becoming the closing days of competition for the GOP nomination.

Similarly, Carter is the easy favorite in North Carolina, Tennessee and Indiana, and Sen. Edward M. Kennedy is rated likely to win in the district, the city where the president lives and works.

Seeking to limit the size of Reagan's expected victories in two Southern states, Bush campaigned hard in North Carolina over the weekend and began a four-stop tour across Tennessee yesterday.

President Jimmy Carter addresses the 1980 National Convention of the League of Women Voters yesterday. Carter used the occasion to announce that the United States would accept Cuban refugees. (AP Laserphoto)

Iran yields corpses

(AP) Iran turned over the bodies of eight U.S. servicemen yesterday to a Greek Roman Catholic archbishop in Tehran who said he would take them to Switzerland the next day for return to families in the United States, Tehran radio said.

In London, police stormed the Iranian Embassy, ending the six-day occupation by Iranian Arab gunmen. Police said three gunmen were killed, one was arrested and one was hospitalized.

Interested in a Career in Communications?
Boston University's Summer Public Communication Institute May be For You!
A Representative will be on Campus Thursday, May 8th, 10 am.
Sign up at Hampshire House, Rm 109 or call 545-2224

fly!

learn to fly this summer!
membership now available for information call 549-6854 or 549-3800
UMASS FLYING CLUB

Subscription rates
The Massachusetts Daily Collegian (USPS 333 220) is published daily Monday through Friday, excluding January, June, July, and August, fall #15 at 113 Campus Center, University of Massachusetts at Amherst, MA 01003. Second class postage paid at Amherst, Mass. Postmaster: Send address changes to Massachusetts Daily Collegian, 113 Campus Center, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, MA 01003

AMTRAK
CAMPUS TRAVEL CENTER
CENTER UNIV OF MASS
AMHERST MASS 01003 413 545 0500

Other NE schools hold spring concerts

By ED LEVINE
Collegian Staff

An informal Collegian survey conducted yesterday indicates the UMass Spring Concert is the largest student-run concert in the region.

At the University of Maine at Orono, the Pousette-Dart Band played a benefit concert on Sat., April 26. The concert was held as a benefit to raise money for the installation of elevators in the school's student union building.

Students attending the UMaine show were asked to donate $1, according to Ernie Clark of the Maine Campus Newspaper. About 3,000 people attended the show, which was held before final examinations, which are underway this week.

At the University of Connecticut in Storrs, Rick Darringer—who played UMass' Bluewall last semester—was scheduled to play at a free outdoor concert last week when rain forced the 1,000 students in attendance indoors. Like UMaine, UConn students are presently taking final exams, said a spokesperson for the student newspaper, the Connecticut Daily Campus.

Students at the University of New Hampshire in Durham will also be treated to the music of the Allman Brothers, who will perform along with Jonathan Edwards in the school's annual spring concert tonight. Kim Billings, Arts and features editor of The New Hampshire, the UNH student newspaper, said the show will be held in the University's 3500 seat hockey arena and will cost $10 for students and $12 for the general public.

The University of Vermont in Burlington will hold their annual "Sring Fling" this Saturday featuring Spyro Gyra. A spokesperson for the campus newspaper, the Vermont Cynic, said this is the first year the school is holding a spring concert and "7 or 8,000" people are expected to attend the free show.

At the University of Rhode Island the Pousette-Dart Band, John Hall and Papa John Creech performed yesterday at that school's annual show, said Ed Collins, sports editor of the school newspaper, "the Good Five-Cent Cigar." The concert was held at the URI football field where about 3,000 students attended the show for a $2 admission charge.

Over 30,000 people are expected to attend the UMass show this year, which is free to all UMass undergraduate students and costs $15 for the general public.

Tix available

Over 5,000 guest tickets remain on sale for this year's Spring Concert, to be held Saturday in Alumni Stadium.

Darlene Lorkiewicz, promotion director for the Union Program Council, said 5,227 tickets are still available. Nearly 9,000 tickets have been sold, in addition to about 15,000 student tickets which were distributed free to undergraduates.

Guest tickets can be purchased for $15 each at the Fine Arts Center Box Office. UMass students, employees, Continuing Education and Five-College area students can purchase the tickets by presenting a college identification, she said.

The concert will feature the Allman Brothers, Bonnie Raitt and Lonnie Liston Smith.

Allan Sheffield, 8, of Springfield, prepares to pounce on his 8 week old dog Ebony. Allan was playing with his pup while waiting for his mother who was attending a class in the Graduate Research Center. (Staff photo by J. Ferrarone)

Iran re-examined

Two journalists explain US media bias

By SARAH HAMMANN
Collegian Staff

The Western media has given Americans a prejudiced and inaccurate familiarity with the Iranian crisis, two American journalists said Saturday at the Threat of War's symposium "Iran: What do we do now?"

Journalist William Worthy of the Baltimore Afro-American and freelance photo journalist,Randy Goodman, of Boston, moderated the teach-in and slide show to a 100-person American and Iranian audience.

Both journalists were among a delegation of 49 American journalists who traveled to Iran last February to spend two weeks touring Teheran with militant students and government officials. Guided through such areas as North and South Teheran, the martyrs' cemetery, and several of the deposed Shah's palaces, Worthy and Goodman related the envoy' personal and group experiences.

Through the slide show, Worthy and Goodman described the psychological and physical separation of Northern and Southern Teheran residents. Although 80 percent of Teheran's population reside in the South, the American media concentrates unfairly on the lifestyle of Northerners, the most prosperous economic class, and most misrepresentative of the Iranian population.

Goodman showed one slide of the Northern snow-capped mountains back-dropping the city perimeters, then pinpointed where the aborted rescue mission helicopters would have landed. Upstaging these mountains rose the half-finished edifices of modern high-rise buildings whose construction was halted at the start of the Iranian revolution. Now abandoned, they remain as a symbol of the Americans' half-committed support to the Khomeini Government, Goodman explained.

The 80 percent who live in South Teheran inhabit "garbage homes that house 46 percent of the toal Iranian population, lack proper sanitation and frequently force two or three families into one dwelling," Goodman said.Both journalists quickly agreed, however, that they were warmly greeted by the native Iranians and often welcomed into their homes.

Khomeini's chant, "From the Blood of our martyrs, shall flow the red blood of our freedom," has become the ubiquitous rally cry, Goodman explained. And in the hands of militants, students and Iranian citizens alike lay red tulips, the unifying symbol of the martyrs' blood.

The panel members emphasized that the militant students had the undeniably strong support of the large majority of Iranians: "Thousands of Iranians would have immediately descended to protect the militants and hostages at the embassy, had they been militarily threatened," Worthy said. These "terrorists, many of whom were educated in America at some point, were very aware of the world situation - they had to be," Worthy added.

After the slide show, conference attendants participated in a discussion on Iran's domestic policy and American intervention in Iran.

"The Iranians are an anti-imperialist population through experience. They therefore support the militant students," one student commented.

Goodman and Worthy stressed that Americans receive a conservatively slanted view of last year's Iranian revolution and current crisis.

Tom Fitzgerald, Glenn Kernweis, both of John Adams along with Becky Smith of Coolidge prepare to empty the canoe that they were paddling in the Campus Pond. These jokers braved murky water and dead fish when they tipped their boat. Staff photo by J. Ferrarone)

Dostoevsky novel inspires production

By CHARLIE RUSSELL
Special to the Collegian

After seeing "Subject to Fits" I can't help thinking that Dostoevsky would be pleased. I've never read his classic novel, "The Idiot," which inspired this play, so of course I can't be sure. But I suspect Dostoevsky would prefer to have inspired a work which stands as solidly on its own two feet as this one does rather than something with higher fidelity and lower quality.

Robert Montgomery was only 23 when he wrote this brilliant script and the songs which accompany it. His choice of the play-with-songs-format is a shrewd one: the eerie modal tonalities and lunatic lyrics fit the subject, if you will. In fact, the play is set in a lunatic asylum whose inmates form the cast.

This production, directed by Susan M. Helsell, is an example of the excitement theater can generate. Helsell's pacing and polish demonstrate a crisp and steady hand without the usual smugness. In fact, the production is rather daring. The performers are given the freedom to be believable lunatics, and without exception they secceed on a nigh level. Vocally, the show is remarkable in terms of the progress the singers made. Musical director Cory Grolman has taken actors with no singing experience in many cases and taught them to sing strongly and even hauntingly with some of Montgomery's more bizarre songs.

Review

The central figure is Prince Myshkin. Myshkin is being treated for epilepsy, but his true affliction is an exotic and all too rare one; he is driven by total love. His only wish is to make his friends happy. Myshkin is beautifully played by John Barnes, who gives the character the rein it needs, with the innocence of a child and the wisdom of a prophet. It is on his soaring simplicity that the play is built.

The structure takes form through the supporting cast. As the play unfold these crazy people adopt Myshkin as Prince and Savior. They sense his power, his power even to read minds, his vast understanding. However, they also sense his vulnerability, and through this duality they give the play its motion.

As much as they crave his love, each seems obsessed with a perverse desire to destroy him. Paryfon Rogozhin in particular, played with fierce intensity by John Eisner, shows up the dichotomy. If Myshkin is a Christ figure then Rogozhin is his Judas, a man who will exchange a kiss of brotherhood with him one moment and try to murder him the next. He even wants to die next to the Prince so that, as their bodies decompose, their brain molecules will mingle over eternity.

The rest of the cast, by analogy Myshkin's disciples, highlight further the impossible task of responding to Myshkin's unattenuated love. The actors seem to relish the opportunity to play madness, and their excursions between the need for Myshkin's love and their own abject cruelty to him are a pleasure to watch. They typify what I liked best about this play; the quality of risk. People seemed willing to chance falling on their faces, to risk some lows in order to get some highs, and it paid off.

"Subject to Fits" will be showing this weekend, May 8, 9, 10 at Emily Dickinson Hall, Hampshire College. Tickets are$2/$2.50 and may be reserved by calling 549-4600 ext. 351 between 1-5 weekdays.

★ Ward

CONT. FROM PAGE 2

was some confusion on the point, he said he did not give Manzi the information.

Asked why he, as an officer of the commonwealth, did not take action when he discovered the false report involving his relatives, Stacey replied: "I figured it was water over the dam at that point."

However, he said he told his daughter and brother-in-law that if anybody called them about the donation, each should deny giving anything.

Several other witnesses recorded as donors of $500 or more to the Sargent reception denied making a contribution including Donald Smith Jr., Leicester; Robert Lotuff, North Brookfield; Aubrey Batstone, Shrewsbury, and district court clerk Anthony Tomasiello of Shrewsbury.

★ Tito

CONT. FROM PAGE 2

American officials publicly expressed concern that the Soviets may move to align Yugoslavia with the Warsaw Pact in the post-Tito era, with ominous consequences for the East-West power balance.

President Carter stressed in recent months that the United States would take whatever action is needed to secure Yugoslavia as a non-aligned nation and he repeated the message in a statement of condolence Sunday.

Calling Tito "a towering figure on the world stage," Carter warned that the United States "will not tolerate terrorist acts" against Yugoslavia.

"America will continue its long-standing policy of support for Yugoslavia and do what it must to provide that support," Carter said.

Marshall Shulman, the administration's chief Soviet affairs expert, said, "My guess is that they (the Soviets) would be inclined to move politically rather than militarily."

Also during Tito's illness, a series of articles appeared in the Western media about alleged Soviet designs on Yugoslavia. The stories drew an angry reaction in the official Soviet press.

Sub-let it, rent it, sell it, buy it, tell it. But most of all, DO IT in Collegian Classifieds

Great Prices
Spring Clothes
Jewelry
THE MERCANTILE
AMHERST CARRIAGE SHOPS
Daily 10 am - 6 pm

Why Worry? Get Summer Work Today

If travel and good profits interest you, call 253-2597 for an interview.

Those selected can make $249 a week

OMEGA BOOKS presents COMICS MOVIE POSTERS BUY and SELL (SOME TRADE) QUALITY USED BOOKS 10-12:30 2-5:00 MON-SAT 213 N. PLEASANT ST. AMHERST

The Umass Music Theatre Guild
is now accepting staff applications
for the Fall '80 Production of
ON THE TOWN
Needed are:
Director Producer Choreographer
Music Director Stage Manager
Tech Director Master Electrician Master Carpenter
Costume, Set, Lighting Designers
For more info call Chris at 549-3589

STADIUM
U. Mass. Amherst
KEGS— WINE—
BEER— LIQUORS
LIQUORS

Miller	7.99	case
Miller Lite	7.99	case
Budweiser	7.99	case
Molson	10.49	case
Natural Light	7.49	case
Schlitz cans.	7.49	case
Tuborg n/r.	6.90	case

We Have Coolers & Plastic Jugs
University Drive, Amherst, Mass
Just past UMass Stadium, from SW dorms

Save money—Save gas—Save time
10 a.m. — 253-5595 — til 11 p.m.

MOTHER'S DAY CARD'S
Sunday, May 11
American Greetings
Creative Excellence is an American Tradition...
campus center umass
the UNIVERSITY STORE

Editorial/Opinion

Can the Collegian stay a daily?

Two Collegian traditions are, one, that it publishes daily and, two, that it does not use valuable space, paid for partially by students of the University, to champion its own cause. However, the first tradition may have to be broken. The Collegian, in order to meet the student senate budget committee's proposed budget, may have to publish three or four days per week. The Collegian staff feels this threat is reason for breaking with the second tradition in order that the Collegian may rally to its own cause to remain a functional service of and to the University community. To this end we offer an explanation of what a reduction in publishing days will mean to the Collegian, to the University, and to people in the Five College area.

The committee's recommended budget, coupled with a drastic hike in printing costs and reduced advertising revenue, will force the Collegian to make the following changes:

STAFF: Working with the proposed budget, at least one half of our paid staff will be eliminated. These are student positions and include our nightly news production staff. To put it plainly, we will have to rely on volunteers to do essentially technical work five nights a week from about 2 p.m. to 1 a.m. The possibility of finding such volunteers is slim. These are positions absolutely crucial to the workings of the paper.

DUPLICATION: With the elimination of all duplication our business office will be crippled. The business department, which currently generates upwards of 80 percent of our total $370,000 operating budget, will be unable to carry out our most fundamental functions, which would almost guarantee our incurring a deficit.

PHONE: Our only direct dial long distance phone will be eliminated. We will be unable to contact the outside world for the most basic necessities such as ordering supplies, calling our printer and speaking with national advertisers. In addition, and perhaps more threatening to the campus community, will be our inability to gather information for our readers, increasing the dependence on AP wire copy. This would also mean elimination of the telecopier machine which we use to give the outside world information about UMass publicizing positive or activist actions such as sports events or rallies.

TRANSPORTATION: All transportation will have to be eliminated. This includes sending reporters to cover away games, news events affecting UMass and in which UMass students are involved. In other words, no coverage of state legislation affecting UMass, protests or marches outside of the area, or sports championships. This also includes transportation of the paper to our printer each night at about 1 a.m., 20 miles away. We could not even get the paper to the printer.

UNCOLLECTABLES: As every good business does, we had planned to budget for uncollectable accounts, setting aside money to cover those advertisers who don't pay and cannot be forced to pay through small claims court or collection agencies. Without this $10,000 category, we will be forced to run up a substantial deficit because we will not be able to cover debts normally incurred by any business our size.

We urge the reinstatement of part of our original budget request. We have reviewed the budget and after trimming wherever possible, propose that an added $14,770 would enable the Collegian to operate near our current level. Even with those funds, the staff will still take a 50 percent pay cut.

It is important to realize that even with this added $14,770, we are asking that each student pay $1.50 per semester, or 2 cents per issue, for the largest college daily in New England.

Aside from what disappointment Collegian readers may feel as a result of no longer having a paper to pick up every day to read between and during classes, while eating lunch or while perched upon the throne, there are reasons why it is important that the Collegian remain a daily newspaper.

These reasons correspond to the actual nature and function of the daily—both as it was originally conceived and as it has come to operate.

The Collegian turned from a weekly to a daily paper on May 8, 1967, 13 years ago this Thursday. An edition of the weekly Collegian that appeared earlier that May contained an article, reprinted from the Greenfield Recorder, announcing the changeover.

"This change to a daily publication reflects the growth of the University of Massachusetts and its increasing importance in the lives of Bay State youth. It also is an indication of the value of a campus newspaper that has been growing in size, scope and frequency of issuance," the Recorder wrote.

Assuming this is an accurate understanding of the Collegian's conversion to a daily—that it reflected the growth of the University—then a conversion in reverse would deny the economic decline of Massachusetts since the 1960s is being mirrored in the function and appearance of the University as a whole.

But decline is not a simple matter of funds no longer being available for uses to which people have been accustomed; decline is the way funds are cut when finances become restricted. It is in times of fiscal restraint that we learn what is important in the eyes of those who have the task of deciding who gets the money, and who doesn't.

In the case of the Collegian the issue is not clear, because the decisions of the group given the responsibility of doling out $276,830 in student money this year among 45 competing student organizations do not indicate any particular set of priorities. There was no consideration given during the budgeting process to the role the Collegian plays as a medium for informing the University community of the activities of all other organizations. But this crucial flaw in the budget committee members' reasoning was minor, as compared to the general irrationality of the budget proceedings themselves.

The Collegian at this time does not wish to question the budgetary process at length because we are unprepared to give an appreciable critique. Undoubtedly the nine committee members worked long upaid hours in preparing the budget act. However, some of the attitudes expressed through the process suggest faults in the system.

Some members of the committee expressed concern over the fact that they did not understand how a newspaper works and felt uncomfortable reviewing the budget request for this reason. Regardless, the committee cut the Collegian's budget to where it may no longer exist as a viable daily paper.

Admittingly it would be difficult to find nine people who are experts in newspapers, skiing, credit unions, photography and other student organization's operations, but this does put the process above reproach.

Whatever criticisms can reasonably be made of the Collegian, whether by readers or by budget decision makers, the paper remains one of the strongest unifying instruments among the 30,000 students, faculty, administration and community members in the paper's reach. The capacity of the Collegian to serve this audience responsibly will be drastically reduced by the proposed budget cuts.

THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY
Collegian
Vandals Hit UMass
Donahue Discusses Education; Stresses Role of Democrats
The Genius of Soul
Charles Concert Cages Crowd
A Plea for Help

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian
SDS Anti-War Rally Gathers Little Support
Details, page 3
Today's News
• United Nations 25th Anniversary
• Pres. Wood Speaks To Faculty Senate
• Who's Who Nominations

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian
UMass: Molding The Growth
DuBois Papers Treasured
Frank Blasty Appointed At Senate Meeting
Inside: Sports Spectacular
British free embassy, 6 die
Collegian
Kent State remembered
Carter embraces Cuban refugees

Canoe canoe? UMass students displayed their canoeing abilities yesterday on the campus pond. The Outing Club sponsored the free for all canoeing spree. (Staff photo by Cheryl Senter)

★ Refugees

CONT. FROM PAGE 1

have been sleeping there "shoulder to shoulder" while waiting to leave the island, Matos said.

But when Matos and his friends left the island, they had not taken any of their relatives. Their boat, the Viking Starship, carried 480 refugees out of the harbor. When they left, 3000 boats were going through exactly what Matos and his friends were subjected to before they were allowed to leave the harbor.

The University of Massachusetts presents a Series of Distinguished Lectures to Commemorate the opening of the JFK Library

"John F. Kennedy and His Legacy"

Wednesday
May 7
8 pm
University of Massachusetts
at Amherst
Thompson Hall
Room 106

William Manchester

"John F. Kennedy and His Generation"

Free and open to the public.

TUESDAYS

2 for 1 Night

(All Mixed Drinks)

9-11

Disco/Oldies

No Cover

THE PUB

15 East Pleasant St.
AMHERST

Peloton

A. Derailleur (Rear)
B. Freewheel
C. Chain
D. Crankset
E. Pedal
F. Toeclip
G. Derailleur (Front)

Bicycle Rejuvenation Series (Drive Trains)

April 28-May 10

	Reg.	Sale
1. Cranksets (Cotterless)
Shimano B.1	$31.50	$22.50
Shimano 600 EX	$69.95	$49.95
Stronglight 99 triple	$104.95	$89.95
Shimano Tourney	$49.95	$39.95
2. Freewheels
Maillard 5 spd Kit	$30.00	$22.95
Suntour Perfect	$14.95	$10.95
Maillard 6 spd Kit	$37.95	$28.95
Normandy (French)	$14.95	$10.95
Ultra 6 spd	$16.50	$12.95
3. Chain (Drive)
T.Y.C	$ 4.50	$2.99
Sedis Sport	$ 7.95	$3.99
4. Pedals
Union Probus	$ 5.50	$2.79
KKT Top run	$17.95	$13.95
KKT MX pedals	$18.00	$12.95
5. Derailleurs
Suntour Seven GT	$14.95	$11.95
Suntour Cyclone	$31.00	$24.95
Suntour Compe V (front)	$ 9.50	$8.95
Suntour Spirit (front)	$ 9.50	$8.95
Suntour Cyclone (front)	$19.00	$14.95
Suntour Rachet Shifters	$11.95	$7.95
Suntour D-T Power Shifters	$11.95	$7.95
6. Accessories
Toe clips & straps	$ 9.00	$6.99
grease	$ 1.25	.99
chain tools	$ 4.95	$3.99
oil	$ 1.49	.99
WD-40 2 oz	$ 1.29	.99
tools (freewheel)		30% off

Open Daily 10-6, Thurs. & Fri. 'til 9 Sat. 10-5

1 E. Pleasant St., Amherst 15 State St., Northampton

549-6904 584-1016

SPRING SALE

doggoni's

fashion sportswear

SHORTS · TOPS · DRESSES

all 20% OFF

OUR ALREADY DISCOUNTED PRICES

in the campus center at umass

the UNIVERSITY STORE

DORMITORY RESIDENTS

SPRING CONCERT
VISITORS POLICY

Only the following guest will be allowed into the residence halls for Spring Concert Weekend.

1. Persons with Spring Concert Guest Passes - must present picture I.D.

2. UMass students with valid student I.D. signed in by dorm resident.

THIS POLICY
WILL BE STRICTLY ENFORCED

UPC PRODUCTIONS presents Spring Concert '80

with

the Allman Bros and Bonnie Raitt

Security

Any UMass student who is interested in working security for Spring Concert '80 must attend the following MANDATORY Meetings

Tuesday, April 22	7:30	Bartlett Auditorium
Wednesday, April 30	7:30	Mahar Auditorium
Tuesday, May 6	8:00	Mahar Auditorium

for more info contact Andy at UPC 545-2892

WELCOME TO OUR NEW HADLEY STORE!

OVERSEAS AUTO PARTS

CARRYING THE MOST COMPLETE STOCK OF FOREIGN AUTO PARTS AND ACCESSORIES IN THE PIONEER VALLEY!

Route 9 Shopping Center on Hadley/Amherst line

HOURS
Mon.-Fri. 8-5:30
Sat. 8:30-2

PHONE
253-3403

SPRING INSPECTION EXHAUST SPECIALS!

COMPLETE VOLVO EXHAUST SYSTEM
Fits 1986-1972 140 series $89.95
TO FIT 1973-1975 VOLVO SERIES 140 SERIES
FRONT MUFFLER $31.95
REAR TAILPIPE/RESONATOR $16.95
COMPLETE VW BEETLE EXHAUST SYSTEM
fits all bugs 1966-1973 $24.95

20% DISCOUNT WITH THIS COUPON

GOOD ON ALL MERCHANDISE*
NAME _____
ADDRESS _____
YR., MAKE, _____
MODEL _____
GOOD TILL MAY 20, 1980
*EXCLUDING SPRING EXHAUST SPECIALS

C

MOVIE— Stanley Kubrick's
"A Clockwork Orange"
Wednesday, May 7 $1.00
6:00, 8:30, 11:00 PM
CCA Aud
Sponsored by: Volleyball Club

"YOU DID IT."

The Josten's college ring. The finest symbol of your achievements. Available in 10K gold, 14K gold and new Lustrium. See them all at your bookstore in this special showing arranged for your convenience. After all, you deserve it. You did it.

DATE May 8, 9 TIME 10 am-4 pm

PLACE Univ. Store

JOSTEN'S

campus center umass

the UNIVERSITY STORE

Knowles Flowers
172 N. Pleasant, 253-3805

MOTHER'S DAY IS SUNDAY, MAY 11.
SEND HER FLOWERS--EARLY!

Houseplants
Cut Flowers
& Floral Arrangements

Daily
Local Deliveries

We can send Mother's Day Flowers almost anywhere — the FTD way.

OPEN Mon.-Sat. 8:30-5 p.m.

Collegian Classifieds

To place a Collegian Classified
•Come to Collegian Office CC 113
•8:45 to 3:45 Mon-Fri
•Classified deadline is 3:45 two days prior to publication day

Collegian Classified Rates
•15c per word
•Student rate 10c per word
•Cash in advance
•5 consecutive days 5 % discount
•Phone number FREE

AUDIO

Stereo for sale Yamaha 600 receiver, Aup 103 speakers Hi Tachips-10 turntable great condition $500 or BO Kevin 549-4600 x 335

Bose 501 II's good cond. best offer 546-7026 Mark

AUTO FOR SALE

1974 Toyota Celica 500 665-7734

1968 Blue Torino great heat dependable inexpensive to repair 8 cyl asking $700 call 549-6018 after six

Ford Grand Torino 4 door sedan 50000 mi. automatic transmission power steering air conditioning radio snow tires excellent condition best offer 253-9649

1966 Jeep CJ5 V-6 4WD, new top, price negotiable 549-1098

1978 AMC Gremlin 4-cylinder, 4-speed, 16000 miles, $2900. Visit 1022 Lincoln Apts., Amherst, after 3 pm

71 Colt 4 spd runs good, no rot, 25 mpg, AM/FM, cassette, sticker MUST SELL $575 546-4268

Honda Civic 1975 very good condition recent tune up AM/FM stereo excellent mileage $1800 negotiable 253-2226

1968 Mustang Cheap call Bill at 546-6189

Toyota Corolla 71 good shape great gas mi runs well call 549-4909

Olds Cutlass 1968 runs well first $250 takes it call 549-6468

BEER

Beer, homemade, fun, simple, inexpensive, original German beer recipes, $2.00 Wine recipes $2.00, Kalua Recipe $2.00 #6 Williams Box 1685 Pompano Fla 33060

CAR INSPECTION

Get ready for Spring Inspection May 15 See S.A.W.

COLD BEERS; ICE

Large refridgerator $125 or BO call Paul evenings 546-9247

FOR RENT

2 bedroom Apt available June 1 with Fall option $240 includes all utilities Call 549-5935

Sunny 1-bedroom apartment for summer with Fall option. Puffer's Pond; rent includes all utils. Call 549-1372 evngs except Tues.

1 room for rent Amherst Center call mornings or evenings 256-6997

3 bedroom house Summer sublet w/Fall option on busroute pool tennis courts convenience & package store nearby South Amherst call after 5 253-9336

FOR SALE

80-205 zoom w/macro great for concert pictures will fit all screw-mount cameras need money $85 or BO Kris 665-3580 call nights

Couch, reclining chair, bed (box spring, mattress, & frame) cheap, good condition call 549-5125

Dead Tix 4-sale Hartford May 10 Kristi 549-5968

Dependable Car; 68 Catalina; PS, PB, runs smooth, int perfect! See it. 546-9244 Asking $650

Mens 10-speed bike Astra good condition $65 or BO call 6-8114 Nettie

Carpet Kelly green plush, 5x6, 7x6. 8 mos old. Price negotiable. Call 546-9577

Iran Sucks buttons 50c. Will deliver on campus. Rick 6-6226, Jeff 6-4638

10 speed Columbia bike excellent cond. $125 or best offer 546-5220

FOUND

Calculator in Physical Science Library 546-6798

Negatives found outside Collegian office call 253-5201 Chris

GAS

Does your car suck gas? See S.A.W.

HELP WANTED

Positions at the Collegian: Assistant Managing Editors, Copy Editors, Layout Technicians. One semester terms. Car helpful. Experience helpful but not necessary. Training available. Apply at Collegian Office, 113 Campus Center, or contact Fran at the Collegian.

Back-to-School Editor position available responsible for coordinating Collegian Back-to-School Issue must be available end of August through first week of Sept editing, lay-out and reporting skills a must. Contact Rob Stein or Fran Basche, Collegian Office, 545-3500

Summer work with the oldest, largest and best-paying student program in the country, Call 253-2597 for interviews.

Colorguard Rifle and/or Sabre instructors 549-6125

The Collegian needs you for the Fall '80 to sell advertising space. A minimum of 15 hours a week is needed and also a car. Apply in person to Katie, Advertising Dept., Room 113 CC. An excellent opportunity to gain marketing experience and commissions

Camp Hale Boys' Camp on Big Squam Lake in Center Sandwich N.H. is looking for responsible counselors 18 and over with interest and or training in hiking, camping, canoeing, boating, sailing, riflery, nature or swimming. salary is $800-$1000 for Summer plus complete room and board, medical and recreational benefits. Call Steve 549-6332 Mon-Fri after 6 pm

Collegian Photo Dept. needs asst. editors for next semester. See Paul Price at Collegian Office, 113 Campus Center or call 545-3500

$5.00 or more per hour to start Western MA and CT area. No experience necessary. See Mr. Lamont Wed May 7th Campus Center Room 802 from 9 am to 5 pm car necessary Many openings

Summer work-study person Personnel Office Assistants at Southwest. For info contact Jean Steiner, Business Mgr 5-1552

Summer Work Interviews: Wed May 7 CC 163 at 10, 12, 2; CC 168 at 5, 7. Full time work good pay

HOUSE TO SUBLET

Reasonably priced four bedroom fully furnished house, easy walk to campus. Must be seen available for Summer sublet 5/30-8/30 549-4187 early AM or late PM

House in S. Amherst 2 bedrooms living room with fireplace, huge yard, much more! June-July with option 253-5560 keep trying

INSTRUCTION

Basic Auto Mechanics Workshop Summer class forming 28 hours of instruction, classroom theory and shop. Limited enrollment 253-7967

LOST

Gold Tigereye Ring with two diamonds on Thursday in SU Bathroom Please call Cathy 546-6826

Lost Golden Labrador Retriever 2 year old male named Wally $50.00 reward Call Joe Frank 549-5397

From NOPE Olympus key ring & wallet-reward $20 Matt 6-5631

Lost Gold Chain semtimental value reward offered Tracy 6-6760

MOTORCYCLES

1978 Kawasaki KZ650 well maintained, sissy, crash bars, rack, helmets, book. 11500 careful miles $2000 or BO Doug 549-4547

Yamaha 400 Enduro 1978 950 mi excellent on or off road $1100 or BO Randy 253-2625

Suzuki 750 GT excellent $1500 546-7665

PERSONALS

Wade Geller cordially invited 23,000 of his closest friends to a birthday bash, May 10 at Alumni Stadium Bring ID

STICK IN YOUR EAR: Free ear piercing with purchase of studs. Silverscape Designs 253-3324

Charismatic Bible Study CC 803 Tuesday May 6 8-10 pm

70's revival party Fri May 2 Delta Chi 314 Lincoln Ave free refreshments $1 admission acid to rock to disco to punk where were you in 72?

Soccer Cheerleaders sponsoring a pre-Spring Concert Party at Poor Richards May 8 Tickets $1 and Happy Hour prices

Attention: All alumi of Nancy Lamb's French 132 and 148 classes. Claas reunion May 9 (Friday) 6-9 PM Herter 3rd Floor Lounge venez tous

Cyrus – Happy 25 love Pari-Joon

See the greatest car chase ever filmed Bullit tonite CCA 7, 9, 11 admission $1

Catch Bullit tonite CCA 7, 9, 11 $1

Maryann Erin and first floor Crampton: a special thanks to all my friends who helped me through my "surgery". I never would have made it without you. Thanks. -Love, Patti

Jim Really going to miss you after graduation. Hop to stay in touch. Lori

Concert Tickets for sale call 546-6426

Jim Breen Happy Birthday from your two mas gras dates. P.S. How's your mother

Sporting Goods Co-op: Clearance sale open Mon-Fri 10-3 (next to Post Office in Student Union)

Altenative Realities: Congratulations on a super season A.R. fan club president

Mothers Day – Buy Mom a handmade piece of scrimshaw jewelry. Ships, flowers, any color, made to order. Dennis 6-7874

Tom – Just a "short" personal, to say I'm sorry – even if I'n not, everyone should have a personal before they graduate – A freshman?

Jane F. 15th who says there's no such thing as love at first sight?

Get psyched!!

RIDE NEEDED

Ride needed to VA or NC at end of semester will pay $100 call Theresa 546-5133

ROOMATE WANTED

Downtown Amherst available June 1 $85 Sept option call 253-7986 evenings

Roomates wanted 3 females preferred (21 or older) spacious furn apt excellent location in Newport R.I. 600/season call Patti or Moira anytime 413-253-5755

Female roomate own room three bedrm apt Pleasant St Northampton June-Aug 80$ 256-8784 Nicky

Male roomate wanted Summer own room in 4 bdrm ranch S. Amherst 95+ 256-0343

Roomate wanted Deerisport Summer rental not a cottage Chuck 549-2785

Harwichport two bedroom cottage needs on female for Summer 550$ Robin 549-2859

3 quiet housemates seek 4th Pelham, yard, woods. Summer, Fall option; $106+ negotiable 253-3528 after 6 pm

Male or female for Summer 2 bedroom Brandywine rent negotiable call Wendy 546-6970 Dan 546-6971

Townehouse Apt need 2 or 3 roomates June-Aug $70/mo fully furnished call 549-1420

Roomate wanted for Fall semester Brittany Manor call Mike or Mitch 546-5097

Female for own bedroom in Lantern Court apt. On bus route. Summe with Fall option. Rent negotiable 665-2515, after 4

$$$$$ room needed on Cape Cod in/near Hyannis 549-1412

Summer roomate wanted Pool $100.00 546-9366

Roomate wanted June-August beautiful Hadley house, older student preferred 586-3529

Large bedroom three story house available June $77.50+ 584-1354 N.H.

2 rooms in quiet coop household for Summer w/Fall option 10 min walk to campus 5 min to town for info call 549-6520

Own room in spacious Townehouse Apt Jun, Jul, Aug $90/mo Murray 6-5735

Puffton Village 1 bdrm in 3 bdrm apt for Summer pool, A.C., 549-4196

Female seeks apartment with one or two others M/F Barb 546-6742

ROOM WANTED

Two males seeking living arrangements for Fall semester PLEASE help us out call 253-5989 any time

SABBATICAL HOUSE

Responsible woman seeking furnished home for next semester/year. Call 545-3500 ask for Kathy.

S.A.W.

FIX YOUR OWN CAR at the Student Auto Workshopp. Space, tools, friendly mechanics Tue., Wed., Thurs., 3-9 Fri., 12-5 Sat., 10-5 545-0673

SERVICES

UMass Legal Services Office offers free legal services to fee-paying graduate and undergraduate students in the areas of University administrative problems; landlord/tenant disputes; and uncontested divorces and guardianships. LSO also gives advice on Small Claims Court, and limited counselling in criminal matters. Call 545-1995; Room 922 Campus Center UMass.

Need help moving? Student with truck will help or consider renting truck. Tim 253-3366

SUMMER RENTAL

Summer rentals at prices you can afford PIKE fraternity is close to campus. For more info call 545-2150

SUMMER SUBLET

Inexpensive Summer sublet! Only $200. per month 2 bedroom fully furnished, A.C. pool, garden plots, etc. to see it is to love it! Call now! 665-7756

Female roomates for scenic South Deerfield. Furnished, on bus route $75/month 665-7796

TO SUBLET

2 bdr apt Colonial Vlg June-Aug $190/month bus rte 256-8454

2 bedroom Townehouse apartment June-August 549-1325

1 4 bedroom apt Swiss Village bus rte Fall option scenic view 256-6344

4 bdrm apt with Fall option on bus rte utils incl rent negotiable 253-7975

Summer Sublet Swiss Village 4 bdrm 2 baths has sliding glass door on to second floor balcony. Best offer 253-9407 after 5:00

3 bedroom Townhouse apt for June 30 to Sept please call 549-4049 for info

1 bedroom apt Amherst Fall option 253-7959

4 bdrm/2 bath 320/mo bus rt ut inc Fall opt 253-5570

2 bedroom Presidential Apt reduced rent for Summer option for Fall 549-6382

3 bedroom apt 2 baths 1.5 miles from campus ½ mile fromAms center close to bus stop $300/month available May 25th August 31 call 253-2657

Apt in Sunderland on bus route pets OK call 665-3463

4 bedroom Amherst House quiet, lots of land, pets OK avail June 1/Fall option 425/mo 586-4320

Brittany Manor 2 bedroom May20 - Sept 1 ypu pay June July we pay Aug call 253-7616

2 bedroom Colonial Village Summer sublet Fall option furnished pool cable TV bus rt 225/negotiable 256-0503

2 bedroom Southwood AC pool, for Summer furnished 275/mo 665-4921

3 bdrm apt to sublet June 1-Aug 31 Townehouse Apts fully furnished $250 mo 549-5995

1 bedroom Cliffside available June 1 200/month with Fall option call 665-4313 after 6

1 bedroom to sublet for Summer w/Fall option reasonable rent, nice area near waterful & nature trails call 549-3984 nights

Sublet house June-Aug in Northampton $341 per month plus utilities call 5-6 pm Skibiski Realtors 584-3428

2 bdrm Cliffside furn A/C pool all util Fall option 665-4644

2 bedroom apt available June 1 with Fall option South Amherst behind Riverglade call Rich 12 Hollister 253-9469

Own rm in 2 rm apt bus pool, AC, furnished, June-Aug (Aug optional) 253-2742 eves

2 bdrm sublet/Fall option Sunderland 665-4824

1 bedroom in three bedroom Puffton Summer sublet $70/month call Len 549-5480

One bedroom Southwood Apt Summer sublet Fall option $90/mo 253-2017

To sublet 2 bedroom Col Vill apt for Summer Fall option price negotiable August rent paid for 256-8809

June1 - August 31 2 bedroom Puffton Village rent negotiable 549-0455

3 bedroom Rolling Green June-August $265 a month or BO utilities inc 546-9637 546-9609 546-9748

3 mos for the price of 2! 3 bedroom Rolling Green Apt 6/1 - 8/29 546-9843 or 546-9853

1 bdrm effic S. Amherst bus rte, $160 utils incl, Fall opt. 253-3289 eves

1 bedroom in house in Sunderland bus, lawn, garage May rent paid $90/mo occ may 22. 665-4395

1 bedroom Colonial Vlg apt June-Aug price negotiable 253-2961

Townhouse Apt 2 bedroom, rent negot. w/Fall option 549-4373

Pufton Summer lease 1 bd. Fall opt. 549-6637 again eves

Rent negotiable 2 bdrm apt Squire Vill Apts 665-3660

Small studio Amherst Ctr $150 256-8095 ask for Barbara

Larger bdrm in 2 bdrm Southwood Apt great for 2 friends Fall option rent negotiable call 253-5201

Spacious two bedroom Townhouse June-August Rivergalde Aptd $235 253-2069

Presidential Apts one of 2 bedrooms air cond June-Aug negotiable Chris 545-0731 549-4167

Riverglade Apt 2 bdrm $255. Call 253-7478

Sunny 2 bdrm apt in Colonial Village bus rt swimming pool Fall option $225 253-7714

Nuke the Whale by Danny Guidera

4 by Frank Emery

Bean by Kevin X. McNamara

Wimpman by Evan Carlson

Doonesbury by Garry Trudeau

Crossword

UNITED Feature Syndicate
Monday's Puzzle Solved

ACROSS
1 — Hashanah
5 Tibetan city
10 Sale words
14 Theaters
15 Gelatine
16 Faction
17 Radio device
19 Dirk of old
20 Penetrates
21 Color
22 Opera prince
23 Whacks
25 Like: Suffix
26 Casa room
30 "Help!"
31 Whole
34 Attentive
36 Incensed
38 The Lion
39 Controlling interest: 2 words
42 Inner: Prefix
43 Hand tools
44 A sense
45 Clergyman
47 Painting
49 Jumble
50 Fish
51 — Welles
53 Isn't able
55 Rep.
56 Time of year
61 Singer
62 Funny remark
64 Mortgage
65 Fabric
66 Pitch
67 Militant god
68 Curves
69 Barracuda

DOWN
1 N.Y. city
2 Frigga's mate
3 Cult
4 Rodent
5 Slips
6 Tree
7 Pressbox crew: 2 words
8 Trigonometric functions
9 Sank a drive
10 Help
11 Of Ceylon
12 Thought: Prefix
13 Prophet
18 Sphere
24 Meat cuts
25 Inactive
26 More secure
27 Straighten
28 Political group
29 Cunning
31 Disciple
32 Coins
33 Carries
35 Alpine region
37 Orbit point
40 Paddle
41 Engine part
46 Wyoming range
48 Deprivations
51 Eyes
52 Tchrs. gp.
53 Appease
54 Other: Latin
55 Church area
57 Insects
58 Cease
59 French river
60 No: Russ.
63 Mature

DC Menu

Lunch
French Dip Sandwich
Cheese Strata

Basics Lunch
Swiss and Sprout Sandwich
Cheese Strata

Dinner
Roast Turkey/Dressing,
Gravy, Cranberry Sauce
Sweet and Sour Tofu
Seafood Salad Plate
with Chips

Basics Dinner
Roast Turkey/Dressing
Gravy, Cranberry Sauce
Sweet and Sour Tofu
Seafood Salad Plate
with Chips

Room in Belch house 6/1-8/31 Fall option bus route $125+ negotiable 323-5784

2 bdrm furnished on bus route 15 min walk to campus A/C washer/dryer dshwsr available 6/1/80 - 8/31/80 $240 call after 5 pm 549-5532

Brandywine 1 bdr apt Summer sublet 549-6786

4 bedroom apt sublet 1 free month with Sept option all utilities paid 253-9362

Rolling Green June-August 2 bedroom A/C pool al utilities $260/month 253-3231

Bdrm 6/1 to 8/31 nr UM & Am Center great for Summer rent neg 549-6467

Large sunny 3 bedroom apt in Amherst Center 253-7405

1 in 2 bdrm Squire AC pool 7500 opt 665-7564

A room in Brandywine Apt from June 1 with Fall option pool, air condition, call 549-5063

Sublet with Summer Fall option two bedroom townhouse bus route pool 260 month Riverglade 253-7661

Rolling Green 2 bdrm A/C, dshwsr, pool, partially furnished 6/1-8/31 call evenings 256-8091

Two bedrm Cliffside furnished, bus, pool, tennis, dishwshr, woods. negotiable 665-2713

Summer rooms for rent $70, $80, and $90 Price includes utilities, use of kitchen, color TV, much more. Single, doubles, and triples available 395 N. Pleasant St., call 253-9987

2 bdrm Townhouse at Cliffside pool rent neg. 665-2077 after 5

Luxurious 5 bedroom house Echo Hill, 3 bedrooms available washer/dryer tennis, pool, pond 253-2294

3 bdrm Twnhse Rolling Green 3 months for price of 2 util inc AC pool 253-5217

1 bedroom in 3 bedroom Puffton apt June-Aug furnished 2 baths air cond tennis, pool bus route rent negotiable 549-4914

4 bdrm 300/mon utilities incl on bus route for Summer w/Fall opt 256-8209

To sublet 3 bed rm apt in Puffton we need 1 roomate Summer only call Kerry 546-5482 or Cathy 253-2647

Rolling Green 2 bdrm June-Aug 546-6044 5546-6948 night rent negotiable

Summer Sublet 2 bedrooms in 4 bedroom apt $90 mo + utilities 675 Main St bus route call best between 5-6 pm 256-6032

1 bdrm Cliffside Apt Summer with Fall option rent negotiable 665-2487 eves

2 bedroom apt Cliffside completely furnished 180/mo Summerw/Fall option call 665-4258

2 bedrm apt furn, air cond, pool call 253-7478 Summer only

Beautiful 2 bedroom apartment furnished A/C on bus rte Fall option call evenings 665-2006

Furnished 2 bedroom Townehouse rent negotiable 549-4734

2 bedroom Cliffside Apt Sunderland Summer w Fall option 200 mo 665-7703

Northampton Summer Sublet 3 bedroom furnished apartment $225/mo call 586-1893 late evenings/early mornings

YA CAN'T GO WRONG!! 2 bedroom sublet with possible Fall option Pool, tennis, dishwasher, disposal, "furnished completely" spoons, forks!!! $200 negotiable!! 665-3024

Puffton Village 3 bedroom apt lease June 1 call 549-0165

One minute from campus one room in large house Fall option 549-4409

To lease – one bedroom apartment Puffton air conditioned pool call 549-4911

3 bdrm Towehouse Apt Summer sublet with Fall option 549-0711

3 bdrm Rolling Green for Summer Live for 3 months pay for 2 546-1199 546-9919

1 or 2 bedrooms in 3 bedroom Puffton apartment 75/mo Fall option 549-6482 George

2bed room Cliffside $177 month Summer sublet 665-3629 after 5:00

1 rm in beautiful farmhouse 1 mile to campus, ½ mile to bus $120/month Fall option call 253-5186

WANTED

Cash for Gold or Silver items Antiques too call 546-7369 Cheryl

Cash! Top dollars for school rings, gold, ect. At Wendy Fun Funk & Punk CC Concourse twice a week

Dining table, chairs 546-7701

Motorcycle 350-500 for $500 546-6798

Female for breeding purposes for AKC Reg yellow Lab call Eve Genny 268-7694

WANTED TO RENT

Wanted – Two bedroom in Puffton for Summer with Fall option willing to pay full rent call Joanne anytime 253-7503 keep trying!

Wanted for Fall centrally located house for 4 in Amherst or Northampton Carol 256-8833

Room needed on Cape Cod within 30 miles of Sagamore Mike 546-6033

ZOO MASS T-SHIRTS

The originals are back on the Concourse with some new designs too. Wednesday through Friday this week

CAMPUS TRAVEL CENTER

New York to London
Standby
Laker Airlines
$363 round trip

CAMPUS TRAVEL CENTER
CENTER UNIV OF MASS
AMHERST, MASS 01003 413-545-0500

presents
SPRING CONCERT 80

SATURDAY, MAY 10
ALUMNI STADIUM 9:30 - 5:00
TICKETS ARE STILL AVAILABLE!! at FAC BOX OFFICE

Needed at Once!
· Business Manager
· Circulation Manager
Apply by Wed. May 7 4 pm
Jim Ristuben , Collegian Office
Room 113, Campus Center

THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY Telephone (413) 545-3500
Collegian
(Campus Center, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, Mass. 01003)

The Collegian
is an Equal Opportunity Employer

GRADUATE TO BETTER SOUND

If you'd like to graduate to a better stereo, take a good look at this one. It's small enough for a dorm room, yet with the 25 watt-per-channel JVC R-S5 receiver it's powerful enough to fill a good-sized living room with clean, undistorted sound. This system also treats your records to a light-tracking Onkyo CP-1010A turntable with Stanton 680EE cartridge, and treats your ears to Advance V-II speakers that sound as good as many speakers twice their size and their price.

ONKYO / JVC / Advance $470 (optional JVC equipment rack $30 extra)

This system is so good you'll want to make a career of listening to it.

SOUND & MUSIC
"Good Advice - Honest Price"

90-92 King St
(Rte. 5)
Northampton

Thursday & Friday 'til 9
Mon.-Sat. 10-5
584-9547

EURAIL PASSES
CAMPUS TRAVEL CENTER
CENTER UNIV OF MASS
AMHERST, MASS 01003 413-545-0500

MIKE'S WESTVIEW CAFE
North Amherst

FREE BEER
TOMORROW NITE
SEE WED. ADV.

Senior Day 1980

Date: Thurs May 22
Rain or Shine
Place: Metawampe Lawn
& the Hatch
Time: 12 - 5 pm
Buy your tickets now on the
C.C. concourse
Seniors $2.50 Guests $3.50
Featuring: Robin Lane : Chartbusters
Beaver Brown, Lazarus

MOVE IT YOURSELF AND ARRIVE RICHER.

You save about one-half the cost of using a moving company by renting a Ryder truck and moving it yourself. Not bad pay for doing your own moving, is it? And, with Ryder, you know that you're renting a truck from the best-maintained, most dependable fleet in the world. That's nice to know when you're rolling across the highway with all of your family and possessions with you.

College St. Arco
260 College St.
Amherst, MA
(413) 253-5843

RYDER. THE BEST TRUCK MONEY CAN RENT.
RYDER

Notices

BRETT SOCIAL AWARENESS CORRIDOR—Openings are available to all interested people seeking a dorm alternative. The Social Awareness Corridor, a relatively clean, quiet and cooperative environment, seeks people involved in combatting human oppression and looking for a great place to live. All are welcome to sign up outside of 327 Brett.

CHEM CLUB—Chemistry students awards presentation will be held tonight at 7:30 in Grad Tower room 1634 Refreshments will be served.

THE UMASS OUTING CLUB equipment locker is open: Mon. 4-7, Tues. 4-6:30, Wed. 4-6, Thurs. 4-7, Fri. 9-11 which rents backpacking equipment, climbing equipment, and canoeing equipment to the UMass community.

WEDNESDAY THERE WILL BE a Senior Recognition Day for all Graduating Home Economics Majors. This event will begin at 2:30 in Mitchell Lounge and Skinner Piazza both located in Skinner. All are welcome to attend.

MARY RUTH WARNER, Women Studies Professor, will speak on "Third World Women in the 1980's." The lecture will be given on the 19th floor lounge of Coolidge Tower in Southwest. This event is sponsored by the Southwest Women's Center, everyone is welcome.

UMASS PHOTO CO-OP is having its final meeting of the semester on May 7th at 7:00 p.m. in room 175 CC. All members are urged to attend.

EVERYWOMAN'S CENTER is looking for interns and volunteers to work within the Working Women's Task Force during the summer.

The Task Force is designed to identify and meet the needs of working women through advocacy, organizing information-sharing, and educating. Interns and volunteers help to develop self-help resource files on issues relevent to working women, as well as to develop and participate in programs for working women.

For an application form, contact Karen Eichstaedt-West, Employment Counselor, Everywoman's Center or call 545-0883. Deadline for applications is May 23.

silverscope silverscope
The Yellow House 264 N. Pleasant St. Amherst 253-3447
Natural Vegetarian Food • Full Liquor •
Coffee Beans, Valley's Lowest Prices
8 mid Mon-Sat 12 mid Sun

WORK STUDY STUDENTS

Summer jobs as telephone interviewers on a study of urban parks.

Must be available in June and August, primarily evening hours; 20+ hours/week, $4/hour.

Call The Environmental Institute before May 16, 545-0648.

SAVE-ON-TIRES
ROUTE 9 HADLEY, MA
2 MILES FROM NORTHAMPTON OR AMHERST

MICHELIN - CONTINENTAL - ZENITH - B.F. GOODRICH - ARMSTRONG - GOODYEAR - PLUS OTHER MAJOR BRANDS.
SUPERSEDES ALL OTHER ADS.

Cash & Carry TIRE SALE Cash & Carry
All our tires are new and first line. No Blems or Seconds.
Wholesale to the Public.
We can arrange to have your tires mounted.

CONSUMER NOTE
WHEN COMPARING PRICES, MAKE SURE YOU ALSO COMPARE QUALITY GRADES, EFFECTIVE APRIL 1979 THE N.H.T.S.A. GRADED REGULAR BIAS-PLY TIRES (STANDARD =100) AS FOLLOWS:

NAME	QUALITY GRADE*
FIRESTONE (DLC)	80
ZENITH (PE)	80
GOODYEAR (POWERSTREAK)	70
WOOLCO (ALL AMERICAN)	70
SEARS (GUARDSMAN)	60
K-MART (KM-50)	50

*The higher the No.: the longer the tire will last.
DON'T FORGET IT'S YOUR MONEY

BIAS PLY POLYESTER SIZE	TYPE	PRICE	RADIAL PLY SIZE	TYPE	PRICE
A78x13	Arm. Wht.	23.95	P155/80x13	WT. GLASS Goodyr. Tire	37.95
B78x13	Zenith Bk.	25.95	BR78x13	Fire. 721 STEEL	49.95
C78x13	Fire. Dic. Bk.	25.95	P185/80x13	BFG Steel Wt.	49.00
C78x14	Fire Dic. Wt.	27.95	CR78x14	BFG Steel Wt.	52.00
D78x14	Zenith Bk.	27.95	DR 78x14	BFG steel wt	53.00
E78x14	Zenith Bk.	28.95	P195/75x14	BFG Steel Wt.	54.00
F78x14	Zenith Bk.	30.95	P205/75x14	BFG Steel Wt.	56.00
G78x14	Zenith Bk.	32.95	GR78x14	Zen. Glass Wt.	48.95
H78x14	Zenith Bk.	34.95	FR78x15	Fire. Glass Bk.	44.00
560x15	Zen Blk	25.95	P205/75x15	BFG Steel Wt.	57.00
G78x15	Zenith Bk.	33.95	P215/75x15	BFG Steel Wt.	61.00
H78x15	Zenith Bk.	35.95	P225/75x15	BFG Steel Wt.	64.00
L78x15	Zenith Wt.	39.95	P235/75x15	BFG Steel Wt.	69.00

WIDE SERIES
BFGoodrich
T/A PERFORMANCE TIRES
150 Rating

E70x14	48.00	G60x14	57.00
F70x14	50.00	L60x14	63.00
G70x14	51.00	G60x15	58.00
G70x15	53.00	L60x15	65.00

ALL PRICE PLUS F.E.TAX & SALES TAX
CASH AND CARRY VISA OR MASTER CHARGE
OPEN Mon.-Fri. 9:30-5:30 Sat., 9:30-3 p.m.
586-2544

PRECISION HAIRCUTS

Includes:
FIRST—a professional consultation
SECOND—a precision style cut selected individually just for you
THIRD—our stylists will show you how to take care of your hair
All for $6.50
with this coupon only

With personal style, cut, shampoo and blow dry $9.50, long hair slightly more. With this coupon only, limited to new customers only

Styles by Deborah I & II
65 University Dr. Amherst, MA 549-5610
Shirmack
62 Main St. Easthampton, MA 527-2411

Graduate Senate
Elections for President
& Vice President
VOTE
near Blue Wall in C.C.
9:30 to 5:30 Mon, Tues, May 5, 6
ID required
Nominations open for
Secretary and Tresurer

AMERICAN MULTI CINEMA
ADULTS $2.75 STUDENTS & SR. CITIZENS with AMC CARD $2.25 TWI-LITE SHOW $1.50 Special Engagements Excluded Twi-Lite Show - Limited to Seating
TIMES SHOWN FOR TODAY ONLY

HAMPSHIRE 4 584-7550 HAMP. MALL ON CAFE SQ., RT. 9, HADLEY, MASS.
SISSY SPACEK TOMMY LEE JONES Coal Miner's DAUGHTER (6:00 @ $1.50) 8:30 PG
Walt Disney's Lady and the Tramp (6:30 @ $1.50) 8:30 G
FOOLIN' AROUND (6:15 @ $1.50) 8:45 PG
WHERE THE BUFFALO ROAM (6:15 @ $1.50) 8:45 R

MOUNTAIN FARMS 4 584-9153 MOUNTAIN FARMS MALL ROUTE 9-HADLEY, MASS.
PETER SELLERS SHIRLEY MacLAINE BEING THERE (5:45 @ $1.50) 8:30 PG
ROY SCHEIDER ALL THAT JAZZ (6:00 @ $1.50) 8:30 R
FOXES (6:15 @ $1.50) 8:45 R
The Black Stallion (6:00 @ $1.50) 8:45 G

THE VELVET HAMMER INN

BACK-SIDE SALOON
GOOD FOOD & DRINK BEING SERVED
OPEN DAILY 11:30 A.M.
BEST PIZZA & HOT OVEN GRINDERS ON CAPE COD
TAKE OUT 771-0727
Our Kitchen Keeps Cookin' til 12:30 AM

CAFÉ RITZ hyannis
LUNCHEON
DAILY HAPPY HOUR
RAW BAR
DELI-COUNTER
Specialty desserts & coffees
Approx May 1-Oct 13

ANYBODY WHO'S ANYBODY
WILL BE DANCING AT THE VELVET HAMMER

209 MAIN STREET HYANNIS, MASS 775-5505

THE IN-SPOT TO RALLY ON CAPE COD THIS SUMMER
VELVET HAMMER FEATURING A SUMMER OF POPULAR ROCK WITH "THE STOMPERS", "ACES & 8", "JET", "BREAKERS", "ARROW", "OMEGA", "BRANCH BROS.", "SUNDANCE", ETC. HAPPY HOURS WITH "THE SHOES"
Applications for Summer Employment now being accepted.

Sports

Jeffs chase Thompson early, 5-3

UMass rightfielder Doug Aylward swings at a pitch in yesterday's game against Amherst College. (Staff photo by Ben Marsden)

By DAVE BRADLEY
Collegian Staff

There is really only one golden rule if you're a baseball pitcher, and UMass starter Chuck Thompson didn't follow it.

"The key is you gotta throw strikes," Thompson said after pitching two innings in yesterday's 5-3 loss to Amherst College. "I wasn't throwing strikes."

And so it was that the Minutemen dropped their second game in three outings, bringing their record to 15-11-1 and making their chances to gain an NCAA playoff berth all that more remote. Amherst increased its record to 21-8 in division 3.

Thompson's pitches were everywhere around the plate but in the right place ("My fastball was good, I was just not getting it over,"). He couldn't quite find his rhythm and the result was five Amherst runs on five hits, a walk and a hit batsman in two innings. UMass came back with two runs in the second but Thompson did not come out for the third inning.

Thompson was replaced in the third by LHP Dave Stoller. Stoller, a senior making his fifth appearance this season, mixed his pitches very well and stifled the Lord Jeffs for the rest of the game. Stoller threw two strikeouts and got a boatload of batters to ground out or hit into easy pop flys. His only trouble came in the third inning when he loaded the bases on two walks and a freak infield hit.

For Amherst it was John Cerutti, a left-handed sophomore wonder arm whom coach Dick Bergquist feels will be a definite pro prospect when he becomes eligible. "He struggled today," Bergquist said (Cerutti threw a lot of pitches while giving up nine hits), "but he hung in there." Cerutti is now 9-1.

Thompson found himself in trouble before he could even get a decent hole dug on the mound. He got the first batter he faced to ground out but he walked the second batter and with two outs (short stop Vin Bonanno made a nice stab on a line drive for the second out), he hit clean-up hitter Rich Lundgren on the hand to put runners on first and second. A ground ball single to left field loaded the bases for the Lord Jeffs, and Jeff Hughes brought everybody home with a long double to the left.

After the Minutemen went down in order in their half of the first inning, there was more trouble in the top of the second with Amherst scoring two more times on two line drive doubles and a single.

UMass scored two runs in the bottom of the second when Cerutti loaded the bases on a walk to Mike McEvilly (0 for 2), a seeing-eye single to Bonanno and a walk to Barry Bennett. Dean Bennett drove McEvilly in with an infield hit to short stop on which there was no play, and Doug Aylward walked to drive in the second tally. UMass had a chance to get back into the game with two outs and the bases loaded, but catcher Dave Oleksak popped one back to the catcher to end the inning.

UMass plays Springfield College at MacKenzie Field in Holyoke at 7:30 p.m. tonight.

Gorillas host Crimson in must-win game

The Gorillas, whose hopes for a berth in the NCAA's Division One lacrosse tournament were dimmed somewhat after Saturday's painful setback at the hands of Army, will try to rebound today when they play host to Harvard University at 3:00. A loss today would virtually eliminate the 7—3 Gorillas from play-off contention. A win would keep alive the Gorilla's post-season hopes. Still Syracuse and Dartmouth remain on UMass' schedule as obstacles. As Coach Dick Garber pointed out, "We have to play Syracuse there at night (this Friday) and that's going to be tough." Syracuse, at last reading was third in the nation sporting a 9—1 record. Ned Forbush, also an attackman, is the Crimson's second leading scorer.

UMass will try to avert the mistakes that led to their third period collapse against Army Saturday. Garber will use co-captain defenseman Paul Kinnane to counter Predun.

Chris Benedetto will once again start in the nets for the Gorillas. It was learned after the Army game Saturday that midfielder and co-captain Peter Schmitz separated his shoulder while checking an opponent. Schmitz is listed as "doubtful" for today's game.

Garber could not emphasize enough the importance of this game nationally but for the New England standings as well. The Gorillas have won the New England Championship trophy the last four years. If the Gorillas defeat Harvard it is likely then the trophy could be the Gorillas for the fifth time.

This is the final appearance for the Gorillas at home this year. A large crowd is expected as the N.E. championship is on the line.

UMass senior midfielder Mike Lewis will be making his final home appearance today along with Dave Martin, Brian Kaley and John Connors when the Gorillas play Harvard at 3 p.m. (Staff photo by Jim Mahoney)

Linksters fourth in season finale

By BOB MITCHELL
Collegian Staff

The UMass men's golf team chopped four strokes off its first round score to finish tied for fourth with Rhode Island Thursday and Friday in the 37-team NCAA Division I qualifying tournament at Manchester, N.H.

The Minutemen, who shot a team total of 325 in the first round, fired a 321 the second day to finish tied with URI at 646.

UConn blazed to a 627 to win the tourney and earn a berth in the Nationals in Columbus, Ohio next week. Dartmouth finished two strokes off the lead with 629 while Yale came in third with 630.

The Huskies, who played fine team golf, were paced by Gerald Scott who shot 81-72, John Collich 80-79, Jeff Davis 79-80 and John Levanchy 78-80. Mark Trauner, who earned a tie for the medalist honors with fine rounds of 78 and 73 on the tough par 71 Manchester C.C. course, sparked Dartmouth to its second place effort. Mate Mike McAullife also helped the Big Green cause with rounds of 78 and 76. Yale's Clay Larsen tied Trauner with identical scores of 78-73 to lead the Bulldog linksters.

UMass' Tony Kelley led the local entry with 81-74, while Jim Bjorge, who was tied for the lead after the first round, fired 76-83. Marty Hunt shot 83-79, Mark Duggan 85-85 and Bob Gladchuck 93-97 to round out the Minutemen scoring.

URI was led by Pat Horgan and Gary Sykes who fired rounds of 78-80, 85-75, respectively. Harvard finished fifth with a team total of 652 while Providence, which usually finishes ahead of UMass, dropped to a 655 for a sixth place ending.

"Connecticut was just too strong," UMass coach Ed Vlach said. "They played good team golf.

"I felt we (UMass) had a good shot a it, but it was the same story here as it was all season," said Vlach. "We had two or three guys leading with low scores and two or three guys following. They're better golfers than they showed."

Men's and women's crew capture NE championship

By STEVEN WESTRA
Collegian Staff

The UMass men's and women's crews earned the recognition that has narrowly eluded them all year by winning the New England Championships held on Lake Quinsigamond in Worcester last weekend.

In its first heat, the UMass men's eight-man crew finished second to the crew of Worcester Polytechnic Institute to qualify for the final. In the final, which included Amherst College, UMass left no question who was champion, beating second place University of New Hampshire by six seconds.

For the women's crew it was a day decided by inches. The women's varsity four, after winning its qualifying heat, raced WPI to a dead tie in the final. To break the tie the two teams had to row the entire 2000-meter race over again. In the second running of the final the UMass women won by open water over the WPI crew.

The UMass novice women's eight continued its winning ways by winning both their qualifying heat and an exciting final. In the final, UMass won by a mere six-tenths of a second over MIT.

This weekend, the women's crew will be competing with the best women's crews of the East in the Eastern Sprints Championships held on Lake Warmaug in Connecticut.

The men's crew will be competing in the Dad Vail Championships held on the Schuylkill River in Philadelphia where UMass varsity oarsman Pat Bronder says, "We'll shoot for the whole deal."

Pittsburgh Pirates third baseman Bill Madlock was suspended for 15 days starting yesterday for hitting umpire Gerry Crawford in action shown here from last Thursday. The suspension is one of the longest ever imposed in major league baseball. (AP Photo)

MASSACHUSETTS DAILY
Collegian
VOLUME CIX, ISSUE 136 Student newspaper of the University of Massachusetts/Amherst Wednesday, May 7, 1980

UM seeks budget hike

Knapp, Koffler, SCERA join to lobby for personnel funds

By MARC FAGELSON
Collegian Staff

UMass President David C. Knapp and Chancellor Henry M. Koffler will deliver statements to the Senate Ways and Means Committee today in an effort to raise the House's recommendations on the UMass portion of the budget.

Knapp and Koffler, as well as student lobbyists, will stress the need for greater allotments in the personnel line items of the University budget, Ken Moore, chair of the Student Senate's Public Policy Committee, said yesterday.

"Historically, the Senate votes a higher figure for the budget than the House," Moore said. "Our job, through pressure, is to get the final figure as close to the Senate figure, if it's higher."

Six line items of the state's budget will be concentrated on by Moore and the Student Center for Educational Research and Advocacy's Public Policy Team when they lobby the State Senators today, Moore said.

Three items of concern, Moore said, could result in layoffs of custodial help and faculty members. University police and graduate students would also be affected by the proposed budget cuts if they are unchanged, Moore said.

The allotment for "repairs, alterations and additions" is unchanged from this year's amount in the proposed budget. "If the Senate doesn't raise the proposed amount soon, they will get hit with larger bills later," Moore said.

The equipment allocation, which is "desperately needed," Moore said, because equipment such as computers must be constantly updated to remain abreast of advancing technology.

The goal of the lobbyists, Moore added, is to "come up with a figure the University can function properly with."

The Senate Ways and Means Committee is the first step in the state's budgeting process on the Senate side. From the committee, the budget will move to the floor of the Senate for open debate some time in the next two weeks, Moore said.

The state's $5.9 billion budget moves to the Senate Ways and Means Committee this week after last month's debate in the House.

Presentations by several state agencies, including the Departments of Education, Public Safety and Energy will be heard by the committee, Moore said.

Directory of Massachusetts Senators on page 6

Ellie, Mari Beth, and Carrie Downes brave the storm to watch their brother Pat play in yesterday's varsity lacrosse game against Harvard. For details of the game see page 20. (Staff photo by Rich Newman)

Senators to debate SGA funds

By ED LEVINE
Collegian Staff

The Undergraduate Student Senate will begin debate on the 1980-81 Student Government Association budget at its weekly meeting today in the Student Union Ballroom.

The Senate will hear the recommendations of the Budgets Committee, which finished hearings last week. It is expected that many changes will be proposed to the budget, as many groups are expected to seek more money from the Senate.

"A lot of groups are lobbying for more money," Linda Geary, Senate speaker, said yesterday. "It's going to be a tight year. The expansion the SGA has seen in the last five years is not going to continue next year."

Geary said she expects the meeting to last until "about one or two in the morning." She said the budget may not be resolved until next week.

The Senate allocates about $1.5 million per year to the Recognized Student Organizations. Because of a deficit incurred over the last few years, however, the Senate must set aside over $100,000 for deficit liquidation this year, meaning less money is available for distribution.

Graduate Student Senate announces election winners

By SUZY CHAN
Collegian Staff

The Graduate Student Senate announced election winners last night at its meeting. The newly elected officers are Jack Delmond, President; Richard Fantasia, Vice-President; and Michael Pazyra, Treasurer.

A total of 193 ballots were cast at the election, held Monday and Tuesday at the Campus Center. Jack Delmond received 83 votes, and the other two presidential candidates, Jerri Husch and Jose Trejo, received 57 and 52 ballots, respectively.

In the race for Vice-President, Richard Fantasia received 90 ballots and David Ayotte, 58. Michael Pazyra, the only candidate for Treasurer, was elected by the Senators.

Nominations for Secretary will be open until next Tuesday.

Jack Delmond, the newly elected President, is an anthropology major. He is currently serving on several campus organizations, including the Graduate Student Finance Committee, the Campus Center Space Allocation Committee and the Campus Center Board of Governors.

Delmond pointed out that the best way to gain influence on the question of graduate funding is to continue lobbying for a bill that is before the state legislature now. This bill would place a graduate representative on the Board of Trustees.

"I want to continue the fiscal penny-pinching that was initiated this past year in terms of keeping administrative costs low," Delmond said.

He also said that there is a need to continue funding for diverse student organizations in order to give graduate students a variety of non-academic outlets.

Michael Pazyra, the new Treasurer, is a first year SBA student with a concentration on Finance. "With my experience in city government and my business background, I look forward to adding a new dimension to the office," Pazyra said.

Pazyra has strong accounting and finance experience. He has worked with the city auditor and tax collector in Northampton last year.

Richard Fantasia, the new Vice-President, is a sociology major. He was not available for comment last night.

The terms of all offices begins June 1.

In addition to the announcement of election winners, the GSS passed a motion on the University Fellowship stipend. The motion is to reccommend to the graduate Council that they maintain the current fellowship stipend unless the total number of fellowships remains the same.

Newly elected Graduate Student Senate President Jack Delmond. (Staff photo by Amira Rahman)

DIGEST

The Associated Press

This picture was taken Monday by a London banker from the rear of the Iranian Embassy in London. It shows soldiers of the Special Air Services dropping by rope onto the balcony where they launched their attack on the terrorists holding hostages. (AP Wire Photo)

Thatcher: hostage rescue source of British pride

LONDON (AP) - Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher said yesterday the daring commando assault that ended the Iranian Embassy siege "made us all...proud to be British," and expressed hope it will encourage Iran to free the 53 Americans held hostage there.

She went before an exultant House of Commons the day after the spectacular rescue of 19 hostages - three Britons, the rest believed to be Iranians. Mrs. Thatcher referred to the "brilliant operation" carried out with "courage and confidence."

"I believe the way the operation was carried out in this country will have an effect on the future position with regard to the American hostages in Iran," she said.

The raid on the embassy by eight members of the elite Special Air Service regiment was undertaken after the Iranian Arab separatist gunmen holding the building murdered one of their hostages Monday, and possibly two.

Occupiers in Muskie office start hunger strike

WATERVILLE, Maine (AP) — Nine Colby College students opposed to the draft said yesterday they have launched a hunger strike as their occupation of Sen. Edmund S. Muskie's downtown office entered its second day.

While the peaceful sit-in continued, more than 200 persons gathered on the lawn outside the Colby library for an antidraft rally. In a scene reminiscent of the late 1960s, students and faculty members spoke in opposition to the Carter administration's plan to reinstitute registration for the draft.

Students passed out leaflets, solicited donations and invited sympathizers to join the nine students who began the sit-in Monday at Muskie's secondfloor suite of offices in a bank building on Main Street.

The campus rally took place amid sunny spring weather. Nearby, a small group of counterdemonstrators held up signs reading "Spoiled Brats — Give the Army Back to the People" and "Support an Equitable Draft."

Carter declares emergency as Cubans flood Florida

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter declared a state of emergency in portions of Florida yesterday and made an immediate $10 million available to help the state cope with the unrelenting influx of Cuban emigrants.

Carter's action came a day after he promised to welcome tens of thousands of Cubans fleeing from the regime of President Fidel Castro and followed a meeting with Florida officials pleading for federal help in handling the boatloads of Cubans arriving each hour.

A White House statement announcing the president's decisionn said that by yesterday morning a total of 17,636 Cubans were known to have arrived in Florida and that as many as 3,600 were arriving each day.

House, Senate spurn plans to trim '81 budget, taxes

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House and Senate yesterday soundly defeated two Republican budget plans that would have slashed more deeply into 1981 spending and made room for about a $30 billion tax cut.

On a 242-175 vote, the House rejected a GOP proposal calling for $14 billion in additional spending reductions. Minutes later, a similar Republican plan, seeking $16.2 billion in cuts, lost in the Senate, 59-35.

The House vote was the sixth straight time the House has refused to alter the priorities in a $611.8 billion balanced budget proposed by the House Budget Committee for fiscal 1981, which starts Oct. 1.

Delegate-rich get richer as Carter, Reagan take three

By WALTER R. MEARS
AP Special Correspondent

President Carter and Ronald Reagan, the delegate-rich candidates for the White House, got richer last night with landslide victories in the Indiana, North Carolina and Tennessee presidential primary elections.

Sen. Edward Kennedy and GOP challenger George Bush countered by winning in the District of Columbia. Kennedy beat Carter while Bush was uncontested by Reagan.

The delegate arithmetic provided a boost for Carter in his bid for Democratic renomination, and for Reagan in his campaign to wrap up top spot on the Republican ticket.

Among them, the four primaries awarded 223 Democratic nominating votes, 140 Republican delegates.

It was the heaviest primary schedule thus far this season, keynoting a month of Tuesday primaries winding up on June 3.

These were Tuesday night's partial returns:
Indiana
Democrats, with 38 percent reporting:
Carter 128,672 or 66 percent. He led for 54 delegates.
Kennedy 66,231, or 34 percent and 26 delegates.
Republicans:
Reagan 155,079 or 72 percent and 54 delegates.
Bush 36,886 or 17 percent and no delegates.
North Carolina
Democrats, with 38 percent reporting:
Carter 202,172, or 70 percent and 58 delegates.
Kennedy 49,808 or 17 percent and 10 delegates.
Republicans:
Reagan 40,534, or 66 percent and 30 delegates.
Bush 13,781, or 22 percent and 10 delegates.
Tennessee
Democrats, with 29 percent reporting:
Carter 79,348 or 72 percent and 46 delegates.
Kennedy 22,432 or 20 percent and 9 delegates.
Republicans:
Reagan 39,870 or 72 percent and 23 delegates.
Bush 10,656 or 19 percent and 9 delegate.
District of Columbia
Democrats, with about half the expected vote in:
Kennedy 14,233 or 60 percent for 11 delegates.
Carter 9,639 or 40 percent for 8 delegates.
Republicans:
Bush 2,275 or 72 percent and all 14 delegates.
Rep. John Anderson 893 or 28 percent.

Colorado's Monday night caucuses began the process of awarding 40 Democratic and 31 Republican delegates. Campaigners for both Carter and Kennedy claimed victory, but the outcome won't be clear for weeks.

Reagan and Carter both claim even more nominating strength than the delegate commitment lists show. Their managers count delegates lined up but not yet selected, and on that basis say they are near nominating majorities.

Robert Strauss, Carter's national campaign chairman, predicted that by Wednesday, "we will be looking at a delegate vote total approaching 1,500 delegates, or almost 90 percent of the delegates needed to nominate."

Reagan's delegate hunters make a similar case, and also say that the former governor of California has a lock on that state's giant delegation — 168 Republican votes to be awarded in a bloc to the winner of the June 3 presidential primary election.

Bush insists that he will contest the nomination all the way to the Republican National Convention in Detroit, two months hence. He said the voters want a choice and he means to provide it. He bristled at what he called "the bandwagon psychology" of the Reagan camp.

Some 700 Cuban refugees are packed into Eglin Main Base aircraft hanger number 68, where they await processing and housing at the "tent city" set up outside Miami yesterday. (AP Laserphoto)

Iran returns commando's bodies after hostage rescue disaster

By GWEN FLORIO
Associated Press Writer

DOVER AIR FORCE BASE, Del. (AP) — The bodies of the U.S. commandos killed in an Iranian desert 12 days ago in the aborted attempt to free U.S. hostages returned to home soil at last yesterday aboard a U.S. Air Force C-141.

Preparations to receive and identify the charred remains had been made at Dover Air Force Base, which 18 months ago identified and embalmed more than 900 bodies of another tragedy — the Peoples Temple mass murder-suicide in the Guyanese jungle.

The servicemen's bodies arrived at 6:37 p.m. EDT. A 20- man color guard was on hand to salute the arrival of the bodies, and chaplains were present for a brief ceremony, said Lt. Basil Gray, base spokesman.

Reporters were not allowed on the base at the time of arrival, but Gray said plans called for two six-man teams of pallbearers, one Marine and one Air Force, to load the bodies onto four hearses for transport to the mortuary. "Mortuary officers will make identifications and final funeral arrangements," said Maj. Robert Groom.

The Department of Defense had contacted the families of the dead servicemen, but did not know whether the relatives would attend the ceremony, according to Maj. Sam Floca of the Pentagon.

Capt. Robert Bowen, a defense spokesman, said reporters would be permitted to cover "appropriate military and religious ceremonies" after indentification was complete. Bowen said the restictions on arrival coverage and photographs were imposed out of respect for the victims' families.

A base serviceman, who asked not to be identified, said of the commandos who were killed in the April 25 mission to rescue the U.S. hostages in Tehran, "These people have been given real shoddy treatment. Let them go the rest of their way in peace. Have a little respect."

Subscription rates

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian (USPS 333 220) is published daily Monday through Friday, excluding January, June, July, and August, fall $15 at 113 Campus Center, University of Massachusetts at Amherst, MA 01003. Second class postage paid at Amherst, Mass. Postmaster: Send address changes to Massachusetts Daily Collegian, 113 Campus Center, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, MA 01003.

Commencement speaker named

By JACK GALLAGHER
Collegian Staff

A 1956 graduate of UMass who is a former speaker in the state House of Representatives will be the keynote speaker at the May 24 Commencement Day ceremonies, it was announced yesterday.

David M. Bartley, president of Holyoke Community College, said yesterday he will speak about the Umass experience and public higher education in the state and its future. Of his engagement, for which he will receive an honorary degree in jurisprudence, Bartley said he is "pleased, delighted and honored."

After graduating from UMass with a degree in government, Bartley stayed on at UMass, where he earned a master's degree in 1960.

Bartley was nominated as commencement speaker by the UMass Alumni Association and then chosen by the Board of Trustees. In 1978, Bartley was nominated for commencement as well.

Bartley has lived in Holyoke for all of his 45 years, is the son of that city's former chief of police and began his political career in 1962 as a state representative from Holyoke. From those beginnings, he became state House majority leader and the, in 1969, speaker of the House.

Influential in statewide politics for the past decade and one-half, Bartley serves on the governing boards of many in-state corporations.

Thomas "Rapier" Wiedman (left) scores a point on Charles Lynch during their fencing class which was held outside NOPE. (Staff photo by Amira Rahman)

Knowlton work underway; dorm to reopen

By BARBARA KRONISH
Special to the Collegian

Knowlton Dorm, the all female residence hall located in Northeast Residential Area which was closed in January of 1979 for renovations, is scheduled to reopen this fall semester.

"The delays in renovating Knowlton were caused by problems in the planning stages, but the work is now proceeding as scheduled and the dorm should be ready for occupancy this September," said Bob Campbell, director of Housing Administration.

One of two all-female dorms in Northeast, Knowlton was closed for renovations in January, 1979, but work on the building wasn't started until this past January. Several factors contributed to the delay:

—Knowlton is the first dorm to be renovated by a private contractor with state tax dollars; all of the prior renovations have been done by the Physical Plant.

—The state agency overseeing this project is the Bureau of Building Construction which handles all major construction work for state institutions. The agency is located in Boston, and this caused delays and problems in communications each time plans were revised.

—The last major problem was the University's insistence on a complete sprinkler system as a fire-safety measure. Negotiations on the extensiveness and cost of the system delayed the construction work.

Past renovations have been funded through rent money, which has been set aside for the intended purpose. The construction work done on Knowlton is being paid for by state tax dollars obtained through a capital outlay request to the state legislature.

In accordance with state regulations, the University must make 5 percent of its rooms accessible to disabled students. Knowlton is being renovated to accommodate the physically disabled; which means elevators must be installed and all rooms and facilities must be made accessible to all students.

Architects worked with a group of Knowlton women to develop specifications and drawings which incorporated ideas suggested by the residents. After these plans were completed in May, 1978, the University turned the project over to the BBC. This agency was in charge of qualifying bidders, modifying the plans, and monitoring construction. The delays occurred in qualifying the subcontractors and modifying the plans in terms of feasibility and requirements.

A general contractor (who accepts the low bids of the subcontractors and acts as their boss) should have been chosen during the fall of 1978, but wasn't selected until November 1979. Because of this delay, work wasn't begun until January of this year.

John Findley, assistant director of housing administration in charge of maintenance and operations, has been meeting weekly with BBC representatives to ensure that the construction is proceeding as quickly and smoothly as possible.

Carl Plumber patiently waits for the next bus home on the steps of the Unitarian Church in Amherst Center. (Staff photo by Pete Berry)

Drinan dropout draws scramble

BOSTON (AP) — Politicians eyeing Rep. Robert F. Drinan's seat scrambled for voter signatures yesterday, with only two days to crank up their organizations and steam into position for a shot at the pending vacancy.

More than a dozen prospective candidates for the congressional seat being vacated by Drinan, D-Mass., worked until the 5 p.m. deadline to submit their nomination petitions, with at least 2,000 signatures, to city and town clerks in the 4th District.

The clerks are responsible for verifying the signatures before the papers go to the state secretary by June 3.

Meanwhile, the Anderson for President Committee announced it had gathered 80,000 signatures, twice the number required, to get John Anderson's independent candidacy on the Massachusetts election ballot in November.

The Anderson petitions were filed with city and town clerks across the state for certification of the signatures, his state coordinator said yesterday.

Another chance at concert tix

Students who have not picked up their Spring Concert tickets will have one last opportunity to do so, a Union Program Council official announced yesterday.

Peter Keenan, UPC ticket coordinator, said the tickets will be distributed this Friday from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. at the "Pillbox" outside the third floor of the Campus Center facing Metawampe Lawn. Students who are unsure whether they have paid their Student Activites Tax Fee should get a clearance card from the Bursar's office in Whitmore and present the card when picking up their tickets, he said.

The only tickets available the day of the show will be for students on internships who have previously made arrangements with UPC, he said.

Guest tickets for the concert, scheduled for this Saturday in Alumni Stadium, will be available until the day of the show for $15 at the Fine Arts Center Box Office.

Warren on women

Women Studies professor Mary Ruth Warren addressed the issue of "Third World Women in the 1980's" last night in Coolidge Tower as part of the Southwest Women's Center lecture series.

Warren said the major issue for Third World Women is "still the fight for control over their lives," that includes reproductive rights and freedom from involuntary sterilization, literacy and education, adequate child care, as well as basic necessities of food, clothing, and shelter. These will be achieved, she said, "only with a total transformation of the society we live in now." (Staff photo by Jane DeVirgilio)

Black Affairs

Chico Freeman

Final Concert—Duke Ellington Music Series

Chico Freeman appears with Cecil McBee for the first time in this area to culminate this Spring's Duke Ellington Music Memorial Solos & Duos Series.

Chico Freeman (Tenor saxophonist, composer and band leader) has received glowing reviews from The Phoenix, Coda, Downbeat, NYC Jazz, Unicorn Times, Jazz Magazine, and numerous others, nationally and internationally. He is as at home with swing as he is with avant gard or quartet ballad music. He possesses "a commanding clarity and fullness of tone." Each succeeding album has been more exciting than the last. Cecil McBee's (bassist) plucking has been called "awesome." Their duets are airy, forlorn, cynical—a range of emotions.

Experience these rising artists, Friday, May 9, at 8:00 p.m. in the Student Union Ballroom, University of Massachusetts. Admission is $2.00. Tickets are available in advance at the Student Activities Office, in the Student Union. Call 545-3604 for information.

Cecil McBee

Carter Economics and Black Apathy

An Apri News Release

Ronald Reagan, who just a few weeks ago was being written off as a sure loser to President Jimmy Carter, has become a real threat. Already talk of a Reagan Administration is circulating in Washington, and several recent polls have shown that Carter's once huge lead over Reagan has dwindled to nothing. Some polls even show Reagan beating the President.

For black people and workers, this unexpected surge in Reagan's political strength poses serious dangers. If elected, Reagan would seek to transform his archaic and simplistic conservatism into policy. Among other things, Reagan has already promised to abolish the minimum wage, to slash the federal budget, and to support measures that will further weaken the bargaining power of workers. With Reagan and his friends comfortably entrenched in the White House, black people can expect nothing more than four years of economic setbacks and political disappointments.

In an ironic way, the political behavior of black voters in November may be the single most important factor leading to a Reagan victory. Reagan, an outspoken and consistent opponent of the economic and social policies supported by the civil rights and labor movements, can hardly expect anything more than a sprinkling of black votes. But the level of his black support is not the crucial factor. Instead, the Reagan forces are far more interested in the blacks who won't vote on election day. To put it another way, Reagan has a vested interest in black apathy and disenchantment.

Looking at the arithmetic of the 1976 presidential race, Reagan's dependence on black apathy becomes all too apparent: If just a few thousand blacks had remained at home in 1976, Gerald Ford, not Jimmy Carter, would be sitting in the Rose Garden. Without strong black support, Carter would have certainly lost the closely fought contests in Ohio, Pennsylvania, and New York, states that were indispensable for his electoral vote majoritv.

In 1976, Carter did exceptionally well within the black community because black people understood that he was offering the country a set of economic policies that differed dramatically from the conservative policies espoused by Gerald Ford. Whereas Ford argued for a stark version of the jobs vs. inflation trade-off, Carter strongly backed the Humphrey-Hawkins bill and committed himself to full employment, meaningful tax reform, and greater economic security for the poor and elderly. In short, Carter ran as an economic liberal, an heir to the tradition of Roosevelt, Kennedy, and Humphrey. Black people responded to Carter's campaign program; they responded overwhelmingly.

Although the vast majority of blacks saw a clear choice between Ford and Carter, I now fear that many blacks believe that the differences between Reagan and Carter are so slight and so uncertain as to make a choice meaningless. This is not to say that real differences don't exist (they most certainly do). But Carter, who is playing to the conservative mood of the country has set out purposely to obscure his differences with Reagan, apparently with the hope of neutralizing Reagan's attack from the right. Indeed, with Carter's deep cuts in the Federal budget, and with his growing devotion to conservative economic doctrines, one might think that Reagan's advisers have already arrived in Washington.

UNITED NATIONS, April 30—McHENRY CASTS VETO—United States Ambassador to the United Nations Donald F. McHenry casts veto killing a resolution in the security council calling for a Palestinian state. The resolution was sponsored by Tunisia. (AP Laserphoto)

The Third World and World Peace

The US ambassador to the United Nations says the economic and social problems facing the Third World are of greater importance to world peace than any confrontation between the superpowers.

In his commencement address at the University of Michigan during the weekend, Donald F. McHenry called for "a massive and sustained attack" on the economic, political and social ills plaguing the developing nations.

While not referring to any specific Third World nation, McHenry said the problems represent "a greater immediate and long-term danger to world peace than does the specter of a confrontation between the superpowers."

Poll Predicts Black Vote

Democrats prefer President Carter over Sen. Edward M. Kennedy for the presidential nomination, a complete turn-around since last December, according to a Data Black national poll released last Thursday, May 1.

The poll gave Carter 48 percent to 37 for Kennedy, 1 for California Gov. Edmund G. Brown, Jr., and 14 percent undecided.

A Data Black poll last December showed Kennedy with 48 percent, Carter 32, Brown 1, and 18 undecided.

At the same time, blacks continued to give Carter low marks in overall job performance and on specific issues, the poll showed.

On how good a job he was doing for blacks, 23 percent rated Carter positively, 43 percent negatively, 28 percent were neutral and 6 percnet were not sure.

"It wasn't Carter gaining, but Kennedy losing. We don't know why," said Dr. Kenneth Clark, co-founder of Data Black, a national black-opinion survey organization formed last year.

Kennedy's decline was particularly sharp among young black adults, where the Massachusetts senator lost 21 points and the president gained 21, he said.

Clark said, however, that neither Carter nor any Democrat could count on the overwhelming 87 percent support blacks gave the president in 1976.

Carter and Kennedy won head-to-head polls against leading Republicans, but neigher got more than 71 percent in any matchup.

Clark added that blacks remain liberal on social and civil rights issues, but he said poll results still to be released show that "Contrary to popular opinion, blacks are more conservative on sex and family stability than stereotypes would lead you to believe."

The poll was taken between March 13 and April 9, before the unsuccessful commando mission to rescue American hostages in Iran. Pollsters interviewed 1,177 blacks by telephone, and the sampling error was calculated at about plus-or-minus 3½ percent.

Seventy-two percent of those polled identified themselves as Democrats, 8 percent as Republicans and the remaining 20 percent as independent or not sure.

Among black Republicans, former California Gov. Ronald Reagan was preferred by 37 percent, a gain of 12 points since December. Former President Gerald Ford was favored by 20 percent, down 13; Rep. John Anderson by 12 percent, up 11, and George Bush by 6 percent, up 4. One quarter of the black Republicans had no preference.

In head-to-head matchups, Carter beat Reagan 70 percent to 13, Anderson 70 to 12, Ford 68 to 16, and Bush 71 to16, with the rest of those polled undecided. Kennedy bested Reagan 71 to 13, Ford 70 to 15, and Bush 68 to 12.

In each case, the vote for the Republican was greater than the 8 percent of the blacks who called themselves Republicans, Clark noted.

LUTHER

By Brumsic Brandon, Jr.

Duke Ellington Committee Recruitment Meeting

There will be a brief orientation and a recruitment meeting of the Duke Ellington Committee on Thursday May 8, 1980, at 4:30 p.m., in Yvonne's Restaurant, in New Africa House.

The Ellington Committee is seeking to initiate planning and consolidate it's structure for the upcoming fall 1980 semester. We are urging any Third World Student interested in the music business or on programming music to attend the meeting.

We are also seeking a student who is in C.A.B.B.S. or is majoring in either business administration or marketing.

Art major, Patti Evans, took advantage of the brief sunshine yesterday before the rain arrived to do an ink sketch of the old Chapel. (Staff photo by Jim Mahoney)

There will be a mandatory Collegian staff meeting tonight at 6:30 in the Collegian office

For more info see Steve Klein

SELL IT SELL IT

Information Data Bank IDB — Taped Information Phone Service TIPS

TIPS presents Wally Dorf in... Up in the Air

©1980 Rob Rainey

If you don't know what's up, call TIPS at 545-1540 and ask for one of these tapes by number...

1509- Concert Information
1515- Daily Events
1532- The Weather Report
1530- Commencement Information
2423- On Campus Job Interviews
1034- Professional and Graduate School Exams
2427- The University Placement Services

Needed at Once!
· Business Manager
· Circulation Manager
Apply by Wed. May 7 4 pm
Jim Ristuben , Collegian Office
Room 113, Campus Center

THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY Collegian Telephone (413) 545-3500

The Collegian is an Equal Opportunity Employer

Senior Day 1980

Date: Thurs May 22
Rain or Shine
Place: Metawampe Lawn
& the Hatch
Time: 12 - 5 pm
Buy your tickets now on the
C.C. concourse
Seniors $2.50 Guests $3.50
Featuring: Robin Lane : Chartbusters
Beaver Brown, Lazarus

AMERICAN MULTI CINEMA
ADULTS $2.75 STUDENTS & SR. CITIZENS with AMC CARD $2.25 TWI-LITE SHOW $1.50 - Special Engagements Excluded Twi-Lite Show - Limited to Seating
TIMES SHOWN FOR TODAY ONLY

HAMPSHIRE 4 — 584-7556 HAMP MALL ON CAFE SQ.—RT. 9, HADLEY, MASS.
SISSY SPACEK TOMMY LEE JONES Coal Miner's DAUGHTER (6:00 @ $1.50) 8:30 PG
Walt Disney's Lady and the Tramp (6:30 @ $1.50) 8:30 G
FOOLIN' AROUND (6:15 @ $1.50) 8:45 PG
WHERE THE BUFFALO ROAM (6:15 @ $1.50) 8:45 R

MOUNTAIN FARMS 4 — 584-9153 MOUNTAIN FARMS MALL ROUTE 9—HADLEY, MASS.
PETER SELLERS SHIRLEY MacLAINE BEING THERE (5:45 @ $1.50) 8:30 PG
ROY SCHEIDER ALL THAT JAZZ (6:00 @ $1.50) 8:30 R
FOX (6:15 @ $1.50) 8:45 R
The Black Stallion (6:00 @ $1.50) 8:45 G

THE VELVET HAMMER INN

BACK-SIDE SALOON
GOOD FOOD & DRINK BEING SERVED
OPEN DAILY 11:30 A.M.
BEST PIZZA & HOT OVEN GRINDERS ON CAPE COD
TAKE OUT 771-0727
Our Kitchen Keeps Cookin' til 12:30 AM

CAFÉ RITZ hyannis
LUNCHEON DAILY HAPPY HOUR
RAW BAR DELI-COUNTER
Specialty desserts & coffees
Approx May 1-Oct 13

ANYBODY WHO'S ANYBODY
WILL BE DANCING AT THE VELVET HAMMER

209 MAIN STREET HYANNIS, MASS 775-5505

THE IN-SPOT TO RALLY ON CAPE COD THIS SUMMER
VELVET HAMMER FEATURING A SUMMER OF POPULAR ROCK WITH "THE STOMPERS", "ACES & 8", "JET", "BREAKERS", "ARROW", "OMEGA", "BRANCH BROS.", "SUNDANCE", ETC. HAPPY HOURS WITH "THE SHOES"
Applications for Summer Employment now being accepted.

The above photo shows the front-end result of a collision between a Wilburham Trucking Company vehicle driven by Louis P. Suzor of Chicopee and a 1978 Dodge driven by Michell St. Jean of Lowell. At right, St. Jean is lifted onto a stretcher before being taken to Cooley-Dickinson Hospital, where she was treated for head, leg, and facial injuries. (Staff photo by Barbara Callanan)

Members of the Mass.Senate 1980

NAME	CITY/TOWN	ROOM NO.	TEL. NO.
Amick, Carol C.	Bedford	416L	727-2572
Atkins, Chester G.	Concord	312	2481
Aylmer, John F.	Centerville	315	2570
Backman, Jack H.	Brookline	213B	7295
Bertonazzi, Louis P.	Milford	416B	0120
Boverini, Walter J.	Lynn	504	8762
Brennan, John A. Jr.	Malden	407	8853
Buckley, Anna P.	Brockton	319	8100
Buell, Robert C.	Boxford	516	2600
Bulger, William M.	Boston	330	2525
Burke, Edward L.	Framingham	413C	7332
Burke, John P.	Holyoke	413F	0115
D'Amico, Gerard	Worcester	413E	2558
Doris, Francis D.	Revere	313	4318
Fitzpatrick, John H.	Stockbridge	520	7616
Foley, Daniel J.	Worcester	333	2485
Fonesca, Mary L.	Fall River	309	5095
Hall, Robert A.	Fitchburg	413G	8830
Harold, Paul D.	Quincy	518	0194
Hunt, Robert M.	New Bedford	507	1280
King, John G.	Danvers	513	0110
Lewis, Arthur Joseph Jr.,	Boston	506	8760
Locke, David H.	Wellesley	306	2510
LoPresti, Michael, Jr.	Boston	213C	7188
McCann, Francis X.	Cambridge	416C	7410
McCarthy, Robert E.	East Bridgewater	413A	7234
McKenna, Denis L.	Somerville	413B	2578
McKinnon, Allan R.	Weymouth	321	8820
Olver, John W.	Amherst	217	8832
Owens, Bill	Boston	405	8934
Parker, John F.	Taunton	306	2490
Pollard, Sharon M.	Methuen	413H	8770
Rotondi, Samuel	Winchester	218	8822
Shea, Philip L.	Lowell	512	7335
Sisitsky, Alan D.	Springfield	216	8850
Timilty, Joseph F.	Boston	413D	8212
Wall, William X.	Lawrence	314	3995
Walsh, Joseph B.	Boston	421	7337
Wetmore, Robert D.	Barre	409	1540
Zarod, Stanley J.	Indian Orchard	423	4121

Why Worry? Get Summer Work Today

If travel and good profits interest you, call 253-2597 for an interview.

Those selected can make $249 a week

Moms are very, very special.

Be sure to remember yours with a beautiful Mother's Day Card.

Sunday May 11

American Greetings

Creative excellence is an American tradition.

campus center, umass

the UNIVERSITY STORE

The University of Massachusetts Department of Music and Dance and Department of Theatre present

The University Dancers and Dance Majors in Concert

Rand Theatre 8:00 P.M. May 8,9,10

Tickets: Rand Theatre Box Office weekdays 1:00-4:00 and at the door Tel. 545-3511

4.00 General Public
3.00 Students
1.00 Children

Photo by Doug Paulding

Editorial/Opinion

Trying it yet again

One sun-drenched Wednesday not too long ago I snapped myself out of self-imposed spaciness long enough to notice a semi-civilized throng of strangers being led around campus by some all-knowing charismatic figure. You could label them solely from their bewildered stares, their mindless questions, and their 35 mm cameras. No mere tourists were they, but potential UMies and their bill payers. "This," the tour guide pointed to as they passed by South College, "is the first and oldest Japanese Elm tree in the U.S." Let me tell you know important it is for high school seniors to know that.

DEBORAH WAYNE

Some tour guide tried to impress my parents and I four years ago with the tallest library in the world. How was I to know that I should ask what the chances were of the building teetering over? Instead I thought, "Place seems nice enough. Perhaps I'll stay two years and transfer."

Well, here it is Spring 1980, and not only have I not transfered, but I've become so attached to that Japanese Elm that I can't handle the thought of leaving it. On second thought, can my parents handle the thought? Best to do these things through an arbitrator — Ma Bell...

"Hi Ma, hi Pa. Que pasa?"

"Debbie, you haven't called us in three weeks. You must want something."

"Well, the phone company is threatening to cut off our service again, but what I really wanted to know is if you wouldn't mind taking up a small added expense?"

"Such as?"

"I have to stay up here one more semester."

"WHY?"

Now this I hadn't thought about, but I was going to have to tell them something.

"Well, there are a lot of courses that I'd still like to take."

"But didn't you say last semester that you couldn't find a single course that interested you?"

"That was last semester. Fall semester is different. Besides, there are so many things that I haven't accomplished yet and if I just stayed one extra semester..."

"Such as?"

"Uh... I've never, honestly, been to Poor Richard's."

"I imagine that's quite the social disgrace. Now will you please tell me the real reason you can't graduate on time?"

"You see, there's this statue of Metawampe overlooking the Campus Center, and tradition has it that if a virgin ever graduates from UMass, Metawampe will drop his spear."

Long pause. "What do you plan to do after you graduate, whenever that is?"

"I suppose CBS will ask me to replace Dan Rather when he leaves "60 Minutes." Or maybe I'll be a TV critic for the Valley Advocate and ponder such profound questions as "Why is it that when Bill Bixby expands into the Encredible Hulk, he never splits his pants?"

I'm staying, and for the same reasons anyone else stays. I have incomplete grades, and I'm completely scared out of my mind. Don't think "Third Semester Senioritis" can't happen to you just because your tour guide didn't warn you about the cruel world beyond UMass. True, those of us who are putting off the inevitable can't keep postponing forever, but I'll worry about that later.

Not only are we psychologically ill-prepared to graduate, but nightmares—the classes we hate, the teachers we despise, the roomies we'd love to toss out a window—are suddenly held in tearful fondness as the end of May draws nearer. How can we leave all this? We cherish the football games that in reality we never attended, the countless Happy Hours that we can't remember a thing about afterwards, and UMass traditions long forgotten. Such as Metawampe.

To those of you who have the chutzpah to abandon these brick chip covered buildings, I wish you only the best of luck, success, and happiness. To the rest of you, as the song exclaims, see you in September!

Deborah Wayne is a Collegian columnist.

Letters

Regarding 'Social Harmanism'

To the Editor?

Recently Everett Harman has been adding a touch of eloquence and thoughtfullness to the editorial pages of the Collegian. However, he is off the mark in his most recent essay, "Anti-social Darwinism." In it Mr. Harman assails sociobiology as "puerile...rubbish" and suggest that it is nothing more than a philosophy of biological determinsm which is racist, sexist, and classist in nature. As evidentce Mr. Harman quotes from the National Front, a right wing political group in Britian, and he invokes the names of racist psychologist [not sociobiologists] Shockley and Jensen.

As is usually the case with popularized attacks on sociobiology, this one is aimed at the wrong target. Sociobiology is not a political philosophy at all — it is a scientific theory and should be criticized on those grounds. Because they seem to concentrate on Nazi propaganda and New Right French philosophies, one wonders if the outspoken critics of sociobiology have read Wilson [Sociobiology: The New Synthesis] at all. If they had, it would be clear that Sociobiology is not political in nature. Rather, it is a scholarly work which presents principles unifying the fields of genetics, ecology, and animal behavior.

The evidence for this syntheses comes from data collected by scores of independent scientists and encompasses the diversity of the animal kingdom from slime molds, to bees, to birds, to mammals, to non-human primates. In its essence, sociobiology maintains that social traits, like physical traits, are adaptive and as such are subject to the forces of natural selection. What are some of the traits with which sociobiology deals? Altruism, sexual differences, mating strategies, parental care, dominance systems, aggression, and territorial behavior are among the most important. In the first five-hundred-and-fifty pages of his book, Wilson lays out the sociobiological explanation for these traits as they apply to animals. The treatment is convincing for anyone with the stamina to stay with it. Puerile rubbish it is not.

If Wilson had stopped with the animals there would be no controversy. But in the last 50 pages, Wilson [like Darwin in his classic The Origin of Species] extends his theory to Man. This is what his critics find unacceptable. Though humans diverged from ape-like ancestors not more than twenty million years ago [a mere drop in the bucket of evolutionary time], they contend that humans are unsullied by our biological heritage and untouched by the shaping forces of evolution. [I wonder if these same people would disagree with biologists who say that tests on rats are a good indication of whether or not a compound is carcinogenic in humans.]

Just what does sociobiology have to say about humans? Is the evidence for sociobiological principles, as applied to humans, virtually nil? It is not. In his book, On Human Natue, Wilson outlines the application of the theory. Because humans are closely related to the great apes and monkeys of Africa and Asia, we should share these basic social traits with them: "Our intimate social groupings contain on the order of ten to one hundred adults, never just two as in most birds and marmosets, or up to thousands as in many kinds of fishes and insects. The young are molded by a long period of social training, first by closest associations with the mother, then to an increasing degree with other children of the same age and sex. Social play is a strongly developed activity featuring role practice, mock aggression, sex practice, and exploration" [p20]. Wilson never suggests that human social organization is fixed and rigid, indeed it is extremely flexible. However, he does stress that this flexibility is not limitless: "It is inconceivable that human beings could be socialized into the radically different repertories of other groups such as fishes, birds, antelopes, or rodents. Human beings might consciously imitate such arrangement, but it would be a fiction played out on a stage, would run counter to deep emotional responses and have no chance of persisting through as much as a single generation"[21].

All this is not to suggest that sociobiology in general and human sociobiology in particular do not have their problems — they do. But sociobiology is still a growing science. Clearly, it is not to be immediately disregarded as having no basis in fact.

No, the problem is not with sociobiological theory but with those who would misappropriate its name and misapply its principles. In the late 1800's, Herbert Spencer, misunderstanding Darwin's natural selection, used it to justify class differences in human societies. Should we dismiss the theory of evoulution in response? Today racists and sexists would do the same with sociobiology. But one thing should be made clear: These muddleheads do not promote racism because they're convinced sociobiologists — they promote a distorted sociobiology because they're convinced racists. Racism, not sociobiology, should be the focus of concern. I agree with Mr. Harman: Let us have the insight to see through such specious lines of thought.

John R. Storella
Department of Zoology

Didn't intend to offend

To the Editor?

On the morning after the United States' excursion into Iran, I sent a telegram on behalf of the students at UMass to President Carter. The reason for my having sent the telegram to the White House was one of concern for World Peace. Just two days previous, countries in the European Common Market began following our initiative in using the method of economic sanctions for putting pressure on the government of Iran. This was a very positive step for the world to be moving toward, in my opinion. I was wary of the diplomatic efforts we and our allies were making would be for naught.

The dismay which I felt when the United States had attempted to use military force was great. However, an even more immediate fear was that of sending additional forces into Iran immediately, thus forcing war onto the world. This I didn't wish to see happen, and so I sent a telegram asking President Carter to please refrain from further intervention.

Just 10 years ago four students were killed at Kent and Jackson State. Those events have been implanted in many people's minds and hopefully will never have to be relived. It was actions by students like those at Kent State and others that ended the Vietnam War. Students no longer remain passive seeing the society that they are being prepared for be destroyed for purposes which are not their own. And I believe that students will be the ones to prevent the next war.

This was the underlying reason why I sent the telegram, and for those who were offended, I am sincerely sorry.

Rich LaVoice
SGA Co-President

MASSACHUSETTS DAILY
Collegian

STEPHEN B. KLEIN, Editor-in-Chief; JULIE EAGLE, Managing Editor; FREDERIC M. KEILLOR, Business Manager; KEN GRANDPRE, Advertising manager; JACK GALLAGHER, News Editor; ROB BURBANK, Executive Editor; LISA CAPONE, Women's Editor; RENEE MOBLEY, Black Affairs Editor; JIM MAHONEY, Photo Editor; SUZETTE COURTMANCHE, Graphics Manager; JIM DEGNIM, Sports Editor; JIM MORAN, Fine Arts Editor.

Associate Editors

Jeff Baker, Fran Basche, Ellen Davis, Carolyn Mooney, Rob Stein, Associate Managing Editors; Ed Levine, Brian O'Connell, Associate News Editors; Eric Janssen, Associate Executive Editor; Joan Daly, Katie Kress, Assistant advertising managers; Debbie Wallace, Associate Women's Editor; Marcia Hospedales, Associate Black Affairs Editor; Peter Berry, Associate Photo Editor; Abbe Borklund, Associate Fine Arts Editor; Jane Wolfson, Associate Sports Editor; Jeffrey Bianchi, Associate Graphics Manager.

The Collegian is the student newspaper of the University of Massachusetts. The staff is responsible for its content and no faculty member or administrators read it for accuracy or approval prior to publication.

Unsigned editorials represent the view of this paper. They do not necessarily refect the views of the faculty, administration, or student body as a whole. Signed editorials, columns, reviews, cartoons and letters represent the personal views of the authors.

The Collegian is a member of the Associated Press. Publication of their material does not constitute endorsement.

The Collegian strives to print only advertising which is truthful and complete, but final responsibility for all advertisers lies with the individual advertisers.

USPS 333 220

Arts in Review

A puff piece by pom-pom girls

By DEBORA LICHTENBERG
Special to the Collegian

Jack Heifner's "Vanities" is a severely overrated play. The longest running off-Broadway comedy, "Vanities" traces the coming of age of three cheerleaders in the early sixties. We see Joanne, Mary and Cathy undergo their respective passages from cheerleader to sorority girl to jaded young woman. Probably the most annoying aspect of the play is how pretentiously it purports to be a play about women. Heifner's dialogue is too trite, too predictable, and his relationships too shallow to lend this portrayal of stupid women with cheap values any poignancy. If, however, we take the play on the level of situation comedy, which may indeed be where it belongs, I suppose it's bearable, almost funny. Unfortunately, Northampton's Spectrum Stage produciton apparently tried to be so frightfully poignant that it fell right on its pom-poms.

I sat through the first act knowing I was hearing things which were supposed to be funny but no one was laughing. This was primarily due to the actresses' constant commenting on their characters rather than playing them for what they are--airheads who take things like the theme of the football dance and prom queen to heart. Granted the characterizations became more believable as our three cheerleaders advance to college and eventually enter the big bad world, but that only proves that Shelley Crandall,

TURN TO PAGE 10

Kathy Rugo gracefully executes a split—one small example of the dancing to be performed this weekend in Frank Prentice Rand Theatre, when the UMass Department of Music and Dance presents its Spring Concerts May 8, 9, and 10.

Spacek, squealing pigs bring realism to 'Miner's Daughter'

By DORION SAGAN
Special to the Collegian

Coal Miner's Daughter, a film starring Sissy Spacek as Loretta Lynn, is now appearing at the Calvin in Northampton. The film shows surprising sensitivity to the down-to-earth lives of Kentucky coalminers and their families. In the mountains, you can do three things: you can mine coal, you can make moonshine, or you can get on down the line. Doolittle, Loretta's future husband and a soldier who returns to his hometown with a worldy mixture of confidence and arrogance, gets on down the line. And if you are a woman in the mountains, there is a lot you can do, too: you can cook, you can sew, and you can make babies. Loretta, who cannot cook or sew, begins by making babies. It is only after singing them to sleep each night that her husband recognizes her talent and buys her a guitar.

So Loretta makes it from the dirt roads of her hillbilly hometown to the neon signs of Memphis, Tennessee. The soundtrack starts off with wild, hopping bluegrass and ends up in slow, swooning country. The crowded little mountain shack becomes a huge mansion on the Loretta Lynn Ranch. But in taking the classical route from rags to riches, Daddy and Patsy (Patsy Cline, the former Queen of Country) have died — one of inhaling coal dust and the other in a tragic (aren't they all) plane crash. Loretta inherits from her deceased father only his incurable splitting headache. I still can't help thinking of Spacek as a traumatized adolescent about to burst not into a splitting headache, but into a full-fledged several- thousand dollar telekinetic fit. And her position in the role of a mother is slightly undermined by the fact that, as the kids come and go and the years roll by, she still looks alarmingly like a nubile fellow undergraduate. But that Spacek does not really get any older is effectively covered by her growingly, tawdry dress on the one hand, and by her increasing use of make-up and hair spray on the other hand, if not by her voice which is, however, surprisingly good.

The film does not, I think, slip into the melodramatic excess of (Joplin?)/Midler in The Rose, and as there is not an unreasonable amount of concert footage in Coal Miner's Daugher, it does not in this respect become tedious and unbelievable, if anything that ever goes on at a concert can ever be considered unbelievable, let alone concerted.

The best thing about this film, in my mind, is not the high road that ends in glamor and stardom, but the beginnings of this road, surrounded by the grimy faces of clean-cut little kids, real squeaking pigs and genuine piles of dirt (as opposed to the abc of asphalt, brick, and cement). This movie showed me where country music is coming from — something hard for the metropolitan to appreciate because this is a genre of music which does not practically assault the ear and thereby clue the listener in to the tune of something different than the honk and hustle of the city. Before I always felt removed from country music, but this film brought me inside. In the last analysis, then, this flick is good both for the country bumpkin and the city slicker alike.

THE ARK
(Episcopal Church at UMass)

Sundays at The Ark	6:00 PM	supper (potluck)
	7:00 PM	Bible Study, Prayer, Eucharist
Wednesdays	1:15 PM	At Newman

Rev.Ian Montgomery 758 N.Pleasant 549-5929

MOVIE— Stanley Kubrick's
"A Clockwork Orange"
Wednesday, May 7 $1.00
6:00, 8:30, 11:00 PM
CCA Aud
Sponsored by: Volleyball Club

FOREIGN BOOK SALE
French*Spanish*German
Portuguese*Russian*Danish
Swedish*Italian and many more
50 to 70% OFF
Foreign Publications Only Sale only at the University Store's
TEXTBOOK ANNEX
in the physical plant bldg.
MON-FRIDAY 9 a.m.-4 p.m.
Sale runs to the end of Finals hurry for the best selection all sales final
the UNIVERSITY STORE'S
TEXTBOOK ANNEX
@ physical plant bldg

END OF SEMESTER CLEARANCE SALE
Union Records Unlimited
Till May 14

All 7.98 albums	our price 4.79
8.98	5.49
9.98	6.09
10.98	6.69
11.98	7.29
12.98	7.89
13.98	8.49
14.98	9.09

Come in and help yourself to low, low prices.
Your Student-run Record Store

Fonda, Eastwood UM favorites

Students' attitudes toward movies and the people in them was the topic of a research project recently completed by a UMass student.

Steven Whitney, a sophomore from Concord, did the project for a Journalistic Studies course he is enrolled in this semester. The information for the project was gathered through a survey Whitney handed out to about 125 students on campus.

The survey turned up a number of interesting facts. Movie attendance for many students increased significantly when they came here for school. The low, on-campus prices were the cause for this.

Among those surveyed, comedies were the most popular type of film. Whitney said this could be attributed to the theory that most college students, when looking for entertainment, are trying to get away from the more serious aspects of life.

When it came to choosing a favorite movie, there was a wide variety of answers, but the name that came up most often was Kramer vs. Kramer.

On the question of favorite actor, the Kramer vs. Kramer lovers lost out to the cult-like followers of Clint Eastwood. Although his new movie is so popular, Hoffman still had three votes less than Eastwood.

As for favorite actresses, Bette Midler, Barbara Streisand, and Meryl Streep were all mentioned several times, but the winner here was Jane Fonda. Her appearance here last Fall, along with her ever-controversial style, continue to make her a favorite among the college crowd.

4 women recently sub-let their Swiss Village Apartment just 2 days after placing a classified
Further proof that Collegian classifieds SELL

Carlo of Naples
foods of Italy
Now serving wine and beer.
45 State Street, Northampton, Mass. 01060, 584-9722

Mother's Day Cards
For Mother's Day
Sunday, May 11th
A.J. Hastings Inc.
newsdealer & stationer
45 S. Pleasant St., Amherst

WORK STUDY STUDENTS
Summer jobs as telephone interviewers on a study of urban parks.
Must be available in June and August, primarily evening hours; 20+ hours/week, $4/hour.
Call The Environmental Institute before May 16, 545-0648.

OMEGA BOOKS
COMICS
MOVIE POSTERS
BUY-SELL
(SOME TRADE)
GRADED
USED BOOKS
10-12:30 2-5:00 MON-SAT
213 N. PLEASANT ST.

Ease your FINAL tensions with the crowd at Friendly Prices! Friendly People!
Time Out
TWO TV's
Free popcorn at Amherst's biggest little bar
37 N. Pleasant St.

TOC LOUNGE
presents
SWING 'N BLUES
with
Dan Margolis & Dan Goitein
Wednesday, May 7th
9:30-12:30
TOC sticker and valid ID required to purchase alcohol

ROOSTER'S
Serves you best!
"Look for Rooster's Exam Week Special May 15-21"
138 Old Sunderland Road
N. Amherst

Adult Entertainment
84 Cottage St.
Majestic Theater
Easthampton
Tel. 527-2346
Playing May 7-13
People
Maraschino
Cherries

A SPECIAL GIRL IN YOUR LIFE?
Give HER something special from The Pavilion and we'll give YOU a 10% Discount off your total purchase if you present this ad!!!
This offer includes all sales items, but hurry, sale ends this Saturday, May 10th!
THE PAVILION
Hampshire Mall
Hadley, Mass.
Monday-Saturday 10-9:30
Don't forget...
Storewide CLEARANCE SALE
...now through May 10th!

Around Campus

Meeting to give info about human relations education

The education committee of the Chancellor's Commission on Civility in Human Relations invites the public to a meeting at 7:30 p.m. today in Campus Center room 174/176 to gather information about the kind of education that already exists on this campus on human rights and civility in human relations. Ideas about the best ways such education may be provided will also be discussed.

UMass Board of Trustees to meet this evening

The UMass Board of Trustees will meet in regular session today at 2 p.m. in Memorial Hall. Present at the meeting will be UMass President David C. Knapp, UMass Chancellor Henry Koffler, UMass/Boston Chancellor Robert Corrigan and UMass/Worcester Chancellor Robert Tranquada. The meeting is open to the public.

Spring Festival: live bands in Metawampe's shadow

The fifth annual Spring Festival, sponsored by Campus Center Food Service, will be held today from 11:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. on Metawampe Lawn. Two bands will provide live entertainment.

UM and NE organization plan forum on labor

A forum featuring David Montgomery of Yale University, Carmen Deere of UMass and Barry Bluestone of Boston College as speakers will be held May 6 through 8 from 7 to 10 p.m. It is sponsored by the New England Labor and Community Network and the Labor Relations and Research Center at UMass.

CORRECTION

The May 5 article "UMass Women Organize for E.R.A. Push," by Debbie Roberti mentioned only that there women working on the campaign. It should be noted that there are men working on this campus organization who put forth a great deal of time and effort, and should not go unrecognized.

★ Vanities

CONT. FROM PAGE 8

Katherine Carlson and Diane Heles can better identify with characters whose age, cynicism and New York chic is comparable to their own. The proof of the pudding in these roles lies in making that 16-year-old idiot, with all her idealistic dreams and clouded visions of the real world, credible. Only then can the emptiness and disillusionment of Act III have any point.

Shelley Crandall as Kathy, the all-American Pep Rally Queen, and Katherine Carlson as Joanne, the forever-blushing virgin, fell into the fatal trap of playing Act III in Act I. They didn't believe those girls for a minute. The mugging face front, hand-to-cheek gesturing in virginal amazement, and general overplaying, made even Heifner's stereotypical characters ring particularly false. Most everyone who can remember high school can remember these girls who tried so desperately to fit into the stereotype their teenage culture had prescribed for them. As you watch these caricatures of girls you knew (and hated) so well, particularly if they were yourself, the artificiality is painfully apparent. At times I felt I was watching the epic theatre production of "Vanities".

Diane Heles as the hard-hitting, tough-as-nails Mary, managed to find the clearest throughline in her character. It helps that this character is also the best written. Mary, the erotic art dealer of Act III, was a logical development from the Lolita of Act I, but not a comment on her.

Perhaps director Geoffrey Hitch was trying too hard to make of the play something which it is not. His melodramatic direction of Kathy, and his inability to set up almost all the humor in the play brings out the worst, rather than the best elements in "Vanities".

DORMITORY RESIDENTS

SPRING CONCERT
VISITORS POLICY

Only the following guest will be allowed into the residence halls for Spring Concert Weekend.

1. Persons with Spring Concert Guest Passes - must present picture I.D.
2. UMass students with valid student I.D. signed in by dorm resident.

THIS POLICY WILL BE STRICTLY ENFORCED

5
MORE publishing days left in the semester! Place those classifieds NOW!

PUT A STOP TO BAD BRBRBRAKES

Precision Bendix brake parts are built to stop you on a dime. We feature a complete line of Bendix parts including shoes, pads, drums, rotors, master cylinders, for nearly every car. Bendix, it's a brand worth stopping for.

Inspection Special
$1. savings on any purchase over $10 with this coupon
(Expires May 15, 1980)

Specialists in Parts For:
*Foreign brake systems
*American passenger car & truck systems
*Drum & Rotor machining

Buy Bendix brake products at:
Campus Auto Parts
"Turn to us to keep your wheels turning"
Tel. 549-3945
107 Sunderland Road
No. Amherst, MA 01059
Bendix

FREE
Summer storage if you have your typewriter cleaned and adjusted.

Storage machines are insured.
(Storage without cleaning available too!)
for further info call
The Typewriter Shop
21 State Street, Northampton
586-0680

Typewriters bought, sold, traded, rented and serviced!

BLUE WALL campus center at u mass

Wed. May 7
MARTIAN HIGHWAY
Free Admission

Thurs. May 8
WILLOWCREEK
Hot Country Rock
$1 Cover Charge

Fri. May 9
Spring Concert Warmup
Michael Gregory Jackson
with his new band
$2 per person, $3 per couple

Sat. may 10
HYPERTENSION
Powerful Funk
$1.50 Cover Charge

ALL AGES WELCOME TOC sticker and valid ID required to purchase alcohol in association with UPC
Productions info: call 545-2892

"YOU DID IT."

The Josten's college ring. The finest symbol of your achievements. Available in 10K gold, 14K gold and new Lustrium. See them all at your bookstore in this special showing arranged for your convenience. After all, you deserve it. You did it.

DATE May 8, 9 TIME 10 am-4 pm

PLACE Univ. Store

JOSTEN'S

campus center umass
the UNIVERSITY STORE

PACIFIC COLLEGE of NATUROPATHIC MEDICINE

The Pacific College of Naturopathic Medicine, a four year Naturopathic medical college granting the degree of Doctor of Naturopathic Medicine is accepting applications for its Fall, 1980 class. Our professional program includes the traditional basic medical sciences as well as comprehensive training in botanicals, chinese medicine, homeopathy, nutrition, physiotherapy, manipulation, and psychology.

Write for a free brochure or send $2.00 for a complete catalogue.

Admissions Department
Pacific College of Naturopathic Medicine
P.O. Box 189, Monte Rio,
California 95462

Gallery offers sculptures

An exhibition of sculpture by Peggy Diggs and Stephen Zaima, two young artists presently working in New England, will be featured from May 13 through June 8 at the University Gallery. New works will be created specifically for this exhibit.

"Art of the State: Photography 1978-79" is an exhibition which brings together the work of fifteen outstanding photographers working today in Massachusetts. It opens at the University Gallery on May 13 and will be on view until June 8.

Also at the University Gallery May 13 through June 8 will be an exhibition of "Works on Paper by Sculptors." A Museum Studies class at the University organized and mounted the show under the guidance of the Gallery's curator. Selected form the permanent collection, the prints, drawings and photographs are executed in a variety of media, including ink, pencil, watercolor, lithography and etching.

The University Gallery, located in the Fine Arts Building, is free of charge and open to the public Tuesday 1:00 am to 8 pm; Wednesday through Friday 11:30 am to 4:30 pm; and Saturday and Sunday 2 pm to 5 pm.

TONIGHT
Jim Plunkett
with 25¢ Beers
with a Pub Mug
9 'til 1
THE PUB
15 East Pleasant St.
AMHERST

The University of Massachusetts presents a Series of Distinguished Lectures to Commemorate the opening of the JFK Library

"John F. Kennedy and His Legacy"

Wednesday
May 7
8 pm
University of Massachusetts at Amherst
Thompson Hall
Room 106

William Manchester
"John F. Kennedy and His Generation"

A MASTERPIECE OF MODERN HORROR

A STANLEY KUBRICK FILM
STARRING JACK NICHOLSON SHELLEY DUVALL "THE SHINING" WITH SCATMAN CROTHERS, DANNY LLOYD
BASED ON THE NOVEL BY STEPHEN KING
SCREENPLAY BY STANLEY KUBRICK & DIANE JOHNSON
PRODUCED AND DIRECTED BY STANLEY KUBRICK
EXECUTIVE PRODUCER JAN HARLAN
PRODUCED IN ASSOCIATION WITH THE PRODUCER CIRCLE CO.
R RESTRICTED UNDER 17 REQUIRES ACCOMPANYING PARENT OR ADULT GUARDIAN
From Warner Bros. A Warner Communications Company © MCMLXXX Warner Bros. Inc. All Rights Reserved

WORLD PREMIERE MAY 23
NEW YORK and LOS ANGELES
AND FROM JUNE 13
AT A THEATRE NEAR YOU

Collegian Classifieds

To place a Collegian Classified
•Come to Collegian Office CC 113
•8:45 to 3:45 Mon-Fri
•Classified deadline is 3:45 two days prior to publication day

Collegian Classified Rates
•15c per word
•Student rate 10c per word
•Cash in advance
•5 consecutive days 5 % discount
•Phone number FREE

AUDIO

Stereo for sale Yamaha 600 receiver, Aup 103 speakers Hi Tachips-10 turntable great condition $500 or BO Kevin 549-4600 x 335

Bose 501 II's good cond. best offer 546-7026 Mark

Kenwood Amplifier Marantz Cassette Deck, Phillips Turntable, Rally Sport Camero, BO Jon 253-3791

AUTO FOR SALE

1968 Blue Torino great heat dependable inexpensive to repair 8 cyl asking $700 call 549-6018 after six

1966 Jeep CJ5 V-6 4WD, new top, price negotiable 549-1098

1978 AMC Gremlin 4-cylinder, 4-speed, 16000 miles, $2900. Visit 1022 Lincoln Apts., Amherst, after 3 pm

71 Colt 4 spd runs good, no rot, 25 mpg, AM/FM, cassette, sticker MUST SELL $575 546-4268

Honda Civic 1975 very good condition recent tune up AM/FM stereo excellent mileage $1800 negotiable 253-2226

1968 Mustang Cheap call Bill at 546-6189

Toyota Corolla 71 good shape great gas mi runs well call 549-4909

Olds Cutlass 1968 runs well first $250 takes it call 549-6468

MG Midget Michelin radials $900

1970 VW Squareback excellent mechanical condition, body rusted $400 665-2802

Four Michelin X Radials 1500 miles $140 Grant 367-2762 eves

1973 Chevy Laguna 2 dr vinyl top, AM-FM cassette, Jensen co-axial speakers, must see, $1400 or BO Paul 6-5998

1977 Triumph TR-7 coupe Excellent condition, sunroof, green with tan interior, 37,000, handles superbly $4400.00 545-3540 days; 1-498-2466 eves

1967 Dodge Dart body fair good condition $400 GRC1028 or Ph 549-4457

BEER

Beer, homemade, fun, simple, inexpensive, original German beer recipes, $2.00 Wine recipes $2.00, Kalua Recipe $2.00 #6 Williams Box 1685 Pompano, Fla 33060

BRANDYWINE

Summer sublet with Fall option one bedroom in two bedroom apt 549-5831

CAR INSPECTION

Get ready for Spring Inspection May 15 See S.A.W.

EXAM WEEK SPECIAL

Hungry? See Rooster's Exam Week Special, May 15-21

FOR RENT

2 bedroom Apt available June 1 with Fall option $240 includes all utilities Call 549-5935

1 room for rent Amherst Center call mornings or evenings 256-6997

3 bedroom house Summer sublet w/Fall option on busroute pool tennis courts convenience & package store nearby South Amherst call after 5 253-9336

Large 2 bedroom apt in Nhampton $275 per mo. & utilities 584-2430 keep trying

Economy Apt 3 bedrooms, extra storage rooms. June and Sept terms $235 plus partial utilities Call 5-6 pm Skibiski Realtors Northampton 584-3428

4 bedroom house in Northampton available June and Sept $425 plus utilities Call 5-6 pm Skibiski Realtors 584-3428

Cliffside 1 bedroom sub lease Avail May 19. $200 Fall option 665-2802

Southwood 2 bdrm townhouse Dirt Cheap call 256-6089

FREE, one months rent. 4 bdr apt Summer sublet w Fall opt 256-0778

6 bedroom Belchertown farmhouse Summer sublet/Fall option on bus line $500/month 323-7682

FOR SALE

Dead Tix 4-sale Hartford May 10 Kristi 549-5968

Mens 10-speed bike Astra good condition $65 or BO call 6-8114 Nettie

10 speed Columbia bike excellent cond. $125 or best offer 546-5220

Frigerator 2½ cu ft $75 or BO 6-8452

Sanyo Cube Refridgerator best offer 253-5083

For sale two Spring Concert tickets best offer 549-6574

Dacor tank 72 Cl & reg $150 Steve 256-6388

Couch, two easy chairs, footstool $100 or best offer 665-7526

Spring Concert Ticket $10 6-6740

5 cu ft refrigerator excellent condition $75 call 549-4083 after 6 pm

Spring Concert Ticket $10 549-5480

Hanglider Sky Sports Bobcat 19' standard $450 David 253-2779

Rosignols (180) & Binding & Ski Boots for sale call 546-5480

FOUND

Negatives found outside Collegian office call 253-5201 Chris

Found: a set of keys outside Hampshire DC call Dave 6-7834 to ID key chain

Keys found at Southwest Spring Concert six keys on a key ring. Please call 545-0960 or come to the Southwest Asssembly Office in Hamden Center!!!

GAS

Does your car suck gas? See S.A.W.

GUITAR FOR SALE

Gibson Les Paul Deluxe excellent condition $400 Ampeg 60 watt amplifier $225 call George before 2 AM 542-2539 or 253-9284

HELP WANTED

Paid Positions at the Collegian: Assistant Managing Editors, Copy Editors, Layout Technicians. One semester terms. Car helpful. Experience helpful but not necessary. Training available. Apply at Collegian Office, 113 Campus Center, or contact Fran at the Collegian.

Back-to-School Editor position available responsible for coordinating Collegian Back-to-School Issue must be available end of August through first week of Sept editing, lay-out and reporting skills a must. Contact, Rob Stein or Fran Basche, Collegian Office, 545-3500

Summer work with the oldest, largest and best-paying student program in the country, Call 253-2597 for interviews.

Camp Hale Boys' Camp on Big Squam Lake in Center Sandwich N.H. is looking for responsible counselors 18 and over with interest and or training in hiking, camping, canoeing, boating, sailing, riflery, nature or swimming. salary is $800-$1000 for Summer plus complete room and board, medical and recreational benefits. Call Steve 549-6332 Mon-Fri after 6 pm

Collegian Photo Dept. needs asst. editors for next semester. See Paul Price at Collegian Office, 113 Campus Center or call 545-3500

$5.00 or more per hour to start Western MA and CT area. No experience necessary. See Mr. Lamont Wed May 7th Campus Center Room 802 from 9 am to 5 pm car necessary Many openings

Summer work-study person Personnel Office Assistants at Southwest. For info contact Jean Steiner, Business Mgr 5-1552

Summer Work Interviews: Wed May 7 CC 163 at 10, 12, 2; CC 168 at 5, 7. Full time work good pay

Camp Counselors

Attractive Summer positions, boys' camp (52nd year), Lenox, Mass. in swimming, sailing, (22 boat fleet) sculling, skiing, tennis (18 courts) baseball, basketball, street hockey. Also, camp paper, weight training, photography, ham radio, video taping, archery, radio station. Send details to: Joe Kruger, Camp Mah-Kee-Nac, 20 Allen Court, South Orange, N.J. 07079

Delivery person for pick up and delivery of food for Spring Concert food concession Saturday May 10 must have car Contact Diane 584-1354

HOUSE TO SUBLET

Reasonably priced four bedroom fully furnished house, easy walk to campus. Must be seen available for Summer sublet 5/30-8/30 549-4187 early AM or late PM

House in S. Amherst 2 bedrooms living room with fireplace, huge yard, much more! June-July with option 253-5560 keep trying

INSTRUCTION

Basic Auto Mechanics Workshop Summer class forming 28 hours of instruction, classroom theory and shop. Limited enrollment 253-7967

LOST

Gold Tigereye Ring with two diamonds on Thursday in SU Bathroom Please call Cathy 546-6826

Lost Golden Labrador Retriever 2 year old male named Wally $50.00 reward Call Joe Frank 549-5397

From NOPE Olympus key ring & wallet--reward $20 Matt 6-5631

Lost Gold Chain semtimental value reward offered Tracy 6-6760

MOTORCYCLES

1978 Kawasaki KZ650 well maintained, sissy, crash bars, rack, helmets, book. 11500 careful miles $2000 or BO Doug 549-4547

Yamaha 400 Enduro 1978 950 mi excellent on or off road $1100 or BO Randy 253-2625

Honda CL175 ex. cond. luggage rack $500 or BO 665-7744

Yamaha 750 excellent condition $1000.00 253-7324

MOVING HASSLES?

Co-operative moving of goods to Washington DC area. If interested call Susan 772-6259 after 8:00 PM

OH FUDGE!

Homemade butter and cream fudge CC Tues and Wed

PERSONALS

Wade Geller cordially invited 23,000 of his closest friends to a birthday bash, May 10 at Alumni Stadium Bring ID

STICK IN YOUR EAR: Free ear piercing with purchase of studs. Silverscape Designs 253-3324

70's revival party Fri May 2 Delta Chi 314 Lincoln Ave free refreshments $1 admission acid to rock to disco to punk where were you in 72?

Soccer Cheerleaders sponsoring a pre-Spring Concert Party at Poor Richards May 8 Tickets $1 and Happy Hour prices

Attention: All alumi of Nancy Lamb's French 132 and 148 classes. Claas reunion May 9 (Friday) 6-9 PM Herter 3rd Floor Lounge venez tous

Concert Tickets for sale call 546-6426

Sporting Goods Co-op: Clearance sale open Mon-Fri 10-3 (next to Post Office in Student Union)

Mothers Day—Buy Mom a handmade piece of scrimshaw jewelry. Ships, flowers, any color, made to order. Dennis 6-7872

Attention: John Casper fan club, He's back. Come see him on display, Spring Concert, in "Harry's Ice Cream Truck"

Spring Concert Don't eat a peach, eat Ice cream from "Harry's Ice Cream Trucks"

Curtiss— Congratulations to my favorite chair. You still better have time for me! Or else. . .love you Debs

Craig, 2113 JQA: We already know you're an asshole. So why do you have to keep proving it to the world? Hope you choke on your shark tooth—everyone who has ever met you, minus one.

Donna Happy Belated Birthday best wishes always love Deb

Attention all athletes! We need your support! Come to the Senate meeting at CC 101 and help us fight the Collegian's budget cuts! Sports Staff

Susan-Does neag have any student affairs? Did the bus break down? Fiona lives. Don't forget to knock. Guess who just called? You've done it again! Look at you-you're graduating on us. Tears and smiles love, Nancy, Lori, Lisa and Arf

JH I will continue to wait because to be able to love is well worth waiting for under a tree in SW

Gloria, Only happy people make good time happen and failure occurs only on no longer trying! go' special was it I or oui? Let's get together soon! Howzat? Me

Jim Budreau and Ruth Mazzola Southwest Week Coordinators congratulations on a super job!!! Southwest also thanks: Scott Shuster,Bruce Levy, Kevin Mangan and Beth Schnitzer

Diane Boudreau Southwest Craft Shop Coordinator thanks from SWA and Southwest for the excellent craftshow during Southwest Week!!!

Bob Tyszkowski Congratulations on a successful Southwest Spring Concert! You did an excellent job!!! SW thanks you

Jim,Larry & Stan: If you have an infection you were with the wrong girls! Let's play doctor anyways. Meat you at the Mazola pad Thursday midnight. Love the girls from the 5th

Julie, Happy Birthday. We love you! TBL & CJM

Move over Rodgers, Shorter. Here comes Diana and Judy Congrats

Get psyched for!!

RIDE NEEDED

Yellowstone or thereabouts call 546-4949

ROOMATE WANTED

Roomate wanted Dennisport Summer rental not a cottage Chuck 549-2785

Harwichport two bedroom cottage needs on female for Summer 550$ Robin 549-2859

3 quiet housemates seek 4th Pelham, yard, woods. Summer, Fall option; $106+ negotiable 253-3528 after 6 pm

Male or female for Summer 2 bedroom Brandywine rent negotiable call Wendy 546-6970 Dan 546-6971

Townehouse Apt need 2 or 3 roomates June-Aug $70/mo fully furnished call 549-1420

Roomate wanted for Fall semester Brittany Manor call Mike or Mitch 546-5097

Roomate wanted June-August beautiful Hadley house, older student preferred 586-3529

2 rooms in quiet coop household for Summer w/Fall option 10 min walk to campus 5 min to town for info call 549-6520

Own room in spacious Townehouse Apt Jun, Jul, Aug $90/mo Murray 6-5735

Puffton Village 1 bdrm in 3 bdrm apt for Summer pool, A.C., 549-4196

Housemate needed for 3 bdr apt in Amherst Ctr w sunny porch available immediately $110 plus call 256-0742

Roomate wanted for new house in Belchertown Summer, Fall option own room, on bus route $80 mo + 323-5572

West Yarmouth Cottage female roomate wanted very resonable Missy 586-1752

Puffton Room for two $75 each

Roomates wanted to share Hampton Beach waterfront cottage with 2 working girls $180/month call Laurie (617) 534-9034 or Ann Marie (617) 537-2720

Two female non-smokers to sublet two bedroom Brandywine apartment call 546-7968 Rose or Laura

ROOM WANTED

Two males seeking living arrangements for Fall semester PLEASE help us out call 253-5989 any time

S.A.W.

FIX YOUR OWN CAR at the Student Auto Workshopp. Space, tools, friendly mechanics Tue., Wed., Thurs., 3-9 Fri., 12-5 Sat., 10-5 545-0673

SERVICES

UMass Legal Services Office offers free legal services to fee-paying graduate and undergraduate students in the areas of University administrative problems; landlord/tenant disputes; and uncontested divorces and guardianships. LSO also gives advice on Small Claims Court, and limited counselling in criminal matters. Call 545-1995; Room 922 Campus Center UMass.

Need help moving? Student with truck will help or consider renting truck. Tim 253-3366

STORAGE SPACE

Storage space available for Summer 256-6177

Going home for the Summer? Store your small furniture and personal propertyy in a totally secure and fully insured warehouse. Pick-up and delivery available. Call 594-0548 between 2:00-5:00 PM for reasonable rates

SUMMER RENTAL

Summer rentals at prices you can afford PIKE fraternity is close to campus. For more info call 545-2150

SUMMER SUBLET

Inexpensive Summer sublet! Only $200.-per month 2 bedroom fully furnished, A/C, pool, garden plots, etc. to see it is to love it! Call now! 665-7756

Female roomates for scenic South Deerfield. Furnished, on bus route $75/month 665-7796

One bedroom Summer sublet Townhouse apts N. Amherst rent negotiable call 549-6282

Five bedroom house in Northampton Center Summer sublet Fall option 450.00 + 584-6385

TO SUBLET

2 bdr apt Colonial Vlg June-Aug $190/month bus rte 256-8454

2 bedroom Townehouse apartment June-August 549-1325

Nuke the Whale by Danny Guidera

4 by Frank Emery

Bean by Kevin X. McNamara

Crossword

ACROSS
1 Man's name
5 Lean
9 Vamoose
14 Hence
15 Unsealed
16 Moment
17 Chair
18 Spouse
19 Rants
20 Cereal grass
21 Equine fanciers: 2 words
23 Give
25 Ended
26 Mil. supplies
27 Garment
29 Perch
32 Love goddess
35 Affection
36 Mouthful
37 Mistake
38 Fin
39 Asian gulf
40 Drags
41 Ogle
42 Litters
43 Before
44 Fellow
45 Auto
46 Unusual
48 Typographer
52 Famed horse
56 State: Abbr
57 Sioux
58 Royal or Blanc
59 Preposition
60 — Dvorak
61 Speck
62 After Aug.
63 Reclines
64 Aroma
65 Zeus's son

DOWN
1 Fabulist
2 Gloomy
3 Quartz
4 Witticism
5 Scottish loch
6 Aside
7 Seines
8 Leg part
9 Tried hard: Dial.
10 Want much
11 Bank
12 Maple genus
13 Hodgepodge
21 Mister: Ger.
22 Jogger
24 Detergents
27 Envy
28 Declare
30 Roman road
31 Decades
32 Key
33 Disparage
34 Ocelots: 2 words
35 Mortgage
36 Scottish child
38 Swift
42 Enticement
44 Salad mak-ings
45 Oregon lake
47 Idiom
48 Calico pony
49 Decrease
50 Run away
51 Blisters
52 Fly
53 Serf of old
54 Ordnance item: Inf.
55 Crucifix
59 Amer

UNITED Feature Syndicate
Tuesday's Puzzle Solved

Presidential Apts one of 2 bedrooms air cond June-Aug negotiable Chris 545-0731 549-4167

Riverglade Apt 2 bdrm $255. Call 253-7478

Sunny 2 bdrm apt in Colonial Village bus rt swimming pool Fall option $225 253-7714

Room in Belch house 6/1-8/31 Fall option bus route $125+ negotiable 323-5784

2 bdrm furnished on bus route 15 min walk to campus A/C washer/dryer dshwsr available 6/1/80 - 8/31/80 $240 call after 5 pm 549-5532

Brandywine 1 bdr apt Summer sublet 549-6786

Bdrm 6/1 to 8/31 nr UM & Am Center great for Summer rent neg 549-6467

Large sunny 3 bedroom apt in Amherst Center 253-7405

1 in 2 bdrm Squire AC pool 7500 opt 665-7564

A room in Brandywine Apt from June 1 with Fall option pool, air condition, call 549-5063

Sublet with Summer Fall option two bedroom townhouse bus route pool 260 month Riverglade 253-7661

Rolling Green 2 bdrm A/C, dshwsr, pool, partially furnished 6/1-8/31 call evenings 256-8091

Two bedrm Cliffside furnished, bus, pool, tennis, dishwshr, woods. negotiable 665-2713

2 bdrm Townhouse at Cliffside pool rent neg. 665-2077 after 5

Luxurious 5 bedroom house Echo Hill, 3 bedrooms available washer/dryer tennis, pool, pond 253-2294

3 bdrm Twnhse Rolling Green 3 months for price of 2 util inc AC pool 253-5217

1 bedroom in 3 bedroom Puffton apt June-Aug furnished 2 baths air cond tennis, pool bus route rent negotiable 549-4914

4 bdrm 300/mon utilities incl on bus route for Summer w/Fall opt 256-8209

To sublet 3 bed rm apt in Puffton we need 1 roomate Summer only call Kerry 546-5482 or Cathy 253-2647

Rolling Green 2 bdrm June-Aug 546-6044 5546 6948 night rent negotiable

Summer Sublet 2 bedrooms in 4 bedroom apt $90 mo + utilities 675 Main St bus route call best between 5-6 pm 256-6032

1 bdrm Cliffside Apt Summer with Fall option rent negotiable 665-2487 eves

2 bedroom apt Cliffside completely furnished 190/mo Summerw/Fall option call 665-4258

2 bedrm apt furn, air cond, pool call 253-7478 Summer only

Beautiful 2 bedroom apartment furnished A/C on bus rte Fall option call evenings 665-2006

Furnished 2 bedroom Townehouse rent negotiable 549-4734

2 bedroom Cliffside Apt Sunderland Summer w Fall option 200 mo 665-7703

Northampton Summer Sublet 3 bedroom furnished apartment $225/mo call 586-1893 late evehings/early mornings

YA CAN'T GO WRONG!! 2 bedroom sublet with possible Fall option Pool, tennis, dishwasher, disposal, "furnished completely" spoons, forks!!! $200 negotiable!! 665-3024

Puffton Village 3 bedroom apt lease June 1 call 549-0165

One minute from campus one room in large house Fall option 549-4409

To lease—one bedroom apartment Puffton air conditioned pool call 549-4911

3 bdrm Rolling Green for Summer Live for 3 months pay for 2 546-1199 546-9919

1 or 2 bedrooms in 3 bedroom Puffton apartment 75/mo Fall option 549-6482 George

2bed room Cliffside $177 month Summer sublet 665-3629 after 5:00

1 rm in beautiful farmhouse i mile to campus, ½ mile to bus $120/monthj Fall option call 253-5186

1 or 2 bedrooms in Puffton furnished rent negotiable Bill 546-6005 6/1-8/31

1 bdrm in 5 bdrm house 1 block from campus w/Fall option 549-4620

1 bdrm Cliffside apt on bus route pool tennis AC cable TV June-Aug w/Fall opt $200/month 665-4891 after 5 PM

Spacious 3 bedroom apt with porch over looking Holyoke Mtn range swimming pool tennis ct. lot of open space $315+ w Fall option 253-5978

1 bedroom/efficiency Fall option furnished Amherst 549-5038

Townhouse Apts 2 bdrms furnished rent negot June-August 549-4915

3 bedroom Puffton Apt. furnished rent negotiable 549-4874

Space for three people available in large house on bus route, two milesfrom Campus, yard, garden area 83/month + util option for Fall call Bob or Mark 256-0768

1 4 bedroom apt Swiss Village bus rte Fall option scenic view 256-6344

Summer Sublet Swiss Village 4 bdrm 2 baths has sliding glass door on to second floor balcony. Best offer 253-9407 after 5:00

4 bdrm/2 bath 320/mo bus rt ut inc Fall opt 253-5570

3 bedroom apt 2 baths 1.5 miles from campus ½ mile from Ams center close to bus stop $300/month available May 25th August 31 call 253-2657

Apt in Sunderland on bus route pets OK call 665-3463

4 bedroom Amherst House quiet, lots of land, pets OK avail June 1/Fall option 425/mo 586-4320

Brittany Manor 2 bedroom May20 - Sept 1 you pay June July we pay Aug call 253-7616

2 bedroom Southwood AC pool, for Summer furnished 200/mo 665-4921

3 bdrm apt to sublet June 1-Aug 31 Townehouse Apts fully furnished $250 mo 549-5995

1 bedroom Cliffside available June 1 200/month with Fall option call 665-4313 after 6

1 bedroom to sublet for Summer w/Fall option reasonable rent, nice area near waterful & nature trails call 549-3984 nights

Sublet house June-Aug in Northampton $341 per month plus utilities call 5-6 pm Skibiski Realtors 584-3428

2 bdrm Cliffside furn A/C pool all util Fall option 665-4644

Own rm in 2 rm apt bus pool, AC, furnished, June-Aug (Aug optional) 253-2742 eves

2 bdrm sublet/Fall option Sunderland 665-4824

1 bedroom in three bedroom Puffton Summer sublet $70/month call Len 549-5480

To sublet 2 bedroom Col Vill apt for Summer Fall option price negotiable August rent paid for 256-8809

June1 - August 31 2 bedroom Puffton Village rent negotiable 549-0455

3 bedroom Rolling Green June-August $265 a month or BO utilities inc 546-9637 546-9609 546-9748

3 mos for the price of 2! 3 bedroom Rolling Green Apt 6/1 - 8/29 546-9843 or 546-9853

1 bdrm effic S. Amherst bus rte, $160 utils incl, Fall opt. 253-3289 eves

1 bedroom in house in Sunderland bus, lawn, garage May rent paid $90/mo occ may 22. 665-4395

1 bedroom Colonial Vlg apt June-Aug price negotiable 253-2961

Townhouse Apt 2 bedroom, rent negot. w/Fall option 549-4373

Pufton Summer lease 1 bd. Fall opt. 549-6637 again eves

Rent negotiable 2 bdrm apt Squire Vill Apts 665-3660

Small studio Amherst Ctr $150 256-8095 ask for Barbara Summer only

Larger bdrm in 2 bdrm Southwood Apt great for 2 friends Fall option rent negotiable call 253-5201

Spacious two bedroom Townhouse June-August Rivergalde Aptd $235 253-2069

Two bedrooms Puffton furnished, rent negotiable eves 546-6236, 546-6247

Sublet with option to rent two bedroom apartment on the sunny side dishwasher air conditioner garbage disposal Where Southwood Apartments best rent in town call 253-2154

Summer sublet two bedrooms in four bedroom apt. One with Fall option. On bus route. Call 253-7220 evenings or 545-3500 price negotiable

3 bedroom Townehouse Apts fully furnished $225 or best offer 549-5897

1 bedroom in 3 bedroom Puffton Apt Summer sublet rent negotiable 549-6803

2 bedrooms available in Swiss Village cheap rent everything included for June to August call 253-3534 or 546-8079

Room available 5/24-6/31 in big beautiful house in Amherst 546-6599

Southwood 2 bd apt June-Aug w/Fall opt rent negotiable call Fred 549-2614

Two bedroomRolling Green A/C, pool, bus rt, all utilities, furnished 6/1-8/30 253-5210 $250. or Bo

WANTED

Cash for Gold or Silver items Antiques too call 546-7369 Cheryl

Cash! Top dollars for school rings, gold, ect. At Wendy Fun Funk & Punk CC Concourse twice a week

Dining table, chairs 546-7701

Female for breeding purposes for AKC Reg yellow Lab call Eve Genny 268-7594

Artists Student Union Gallery now accepting proposals for Fall semester stop by S.U. Rm. 115a

WANTED TO RENT

Wanted—Two bedroom in Puffton for Summer with Fall option willing to pay full rent call Joanne anytime 253-7503 keep trying!

Room needed on Cape Cod within 30 miles of Sagamore Mike 546-6033

Wanted Summer and Fall one or two bedroom apt in RollingGreen garden style preferred will pay full rent call Isaac anytime 253-7790

One bedroom or efficiency wanted beginningJuly 1 call after days 545-2013

ZOO MASS T-SHIRTS

The originals are back on the Concourse with some new designs too. Wednesday through Friday this week

BALLOONS MARK THE LOCATION OF SPECIALS!

SOUND ECONOMY RECORD SALE!

ANNUAL SPRING SALE

LAST WEEK! Sale Ends May 10

Slazenger

TENNIS RACKETS

SFS-100 STEEL RACKET reg. $17.95 only $12.95

1754 ALUMINUM RACKET reg. $17.95 only $12.95

doggoni's fashion sportswear

SHORTS · TOPS · DRESSES

all 20% OFF

OUR ALREADY DISCOUNTED PRICES

Daypacks

$1.00 OFF WITH COUPON

ANY PACK IN STOCK

PACKS FROM $9.95

coupons available in sportswear dept.

CASIO CALCULATORS

$5.00 OFF OUR DISC. PRICE FX-80 FX-120 SCIENTIFIC CALCULATORS

$20.00 OFF FX-502P PROGRAMMABLE

Scotch cassette tape 3-IN-A-BAG

	reg.	special
45 MIN.	3.69	2.69
60 MIN.	4.19	2.99
90 MIN.	5.99	3.99

WE SELL Kodak PRODUCTS

CAMERA SPECIALS

	reg.	special
COLORBURST 50	35.95	29.95
COLORBURST 100	34.95	29.95
EKTRALITE 10 OUTFIT	32.95	29.95
TELEEKTRALITE 20	46.95	39.95
TELEEKTRALITE 40 OUTFIT	68.95	49.95

quantities limited to stock on hand

SO HURRY!

Sci-Tech Book Sale

65 to 95% OFF ORIGINAL PUBLISHED PRICES

HIGH-LEVEL SCIENTIFIC AND TECHNICAL BOOKS FROM LEADING PUBLISHERS IN NUMEROUS DISCIPLINES

The BKliban Cats

$1.00 OFF T-Shirts

Have some fun this weekend!

KITES

20% OFF ALL OUR KITES

health AND beauty aid SPECIALS

SONY cassette recorders

10% OFF OUR REGULAR LOW PRICES

FRISBEE

WORLD CLASS FRISBEE 97 GRAM reg. $2.69 only $1.99 while they last...

CHROME Sectional Frames

20% OFF OUR ALREADY DISCOUNTED PRICES IN THE ART DEPT.

oracle moon graphics

LAST WEEK
Sale Ends May 10

in the campus center at umass

the UNIVERSITY STORE

Trials in name only

By LARRY LAUGHLIN
Associated Press Writer

NEWPORT, R.I. — The yacht races expected to attract 400 of the country's top sailors to Newport this month will be Olympic trials in name only.

The team selected to represent the United States in six sailing classes won't get within several hundred miles of the Olympic competition off Tallinn, USSR, a yachting official said Tuesday.

Instead, the team chosen in trials May 25-31 will be sent under the sponsorship of the U.S. Olympic Committee to Kiel Week, an international regatta held in the Baltic off West Germany.

The yachtsmen, like the other U.S. athletes, will be part of the U.S. protest of the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan.

"We'll be selecting an Olympic team, but it won't be going to the Olympics," said Thomas Ehman, executive-director of the Newport-based U.S. Yacht Racing Union.

EQUAL OPPORTUNITY T-SHIRTS

Be the first on your block! All shirts are made in U.S.A., 50% cotton, 50% polyester, quality.

Ladies' Light Blue T-Shirt, V-Neck, French Cut, cap sleeves with navy blue printing.

Size ☐ Small ☐ Medium ☐ Large

Men's Light Blue T-Shirt, Crew Neck with short sleeves

Size ☐ Small ☐ Medium ☐ Large

Name .....

Address/Zip Code .....

I am ordering ..... shirts at $7.50 ..... $ .....

Make check payable to (Add 50¢ per shirt packaging & postage)

AIM MARKETING SERVICES
806 SUMMER STREET, LAKE WORTH, FL 33461

BARSELOTTI'S

BOX SEATS for all the Red Sox Games

2 T.V.'s

$1 off on any name Pitcher of beer with this coupon
only valid on Thursdays

Barselotti's Downtown Amherst

Don't forget our special Happy Hour on Fridays 3 - 6!

FREE Whole Wheat Pizza

$2 pitchers of Old Milwaukee & Good Times

MIKE'S WESTVIEW CAFE

North Amherst

FREE BEER NITE

50c Cover TONITE 50c Cover

When the horn sounds its free beer till the horn sounds again. 15 minute segments for a total of 1 hour.

8:30 - close

Positive ID Required to drink in premises

Don't Miss Thursday's Penny Nite

9 - Close

1980 Commencement Information

University of Massachusetts at Amherst

Date: Saturday, May 24, 1980
Time: 10:00 am
Place: Alumni Stadium

Any undergraduate degree candidate who anticipates completing degree requirements by the end of the calendar year 1980 is eligible to participate in the 1980 ceremony. Questions concerning undergraduate academic status should be directed to the Records Office, Whitmore Building, 545-0555. Graduate students should direct questions to the Office of Degree Requirements, GRC, 545-0025.

COMMENCEMENT DAY SCHEDULE

9:00 am Robing for Commencement:
-Masters/Doctoral candidates assemble at the northwest end of the stadium (on the gravel area);
-Arts and Sciences graduates assemble at the southwest end of the stadium (on the gravel area between the facilities building and the stadium wall);
Physical Education, Health Sciences, Engineering, Education and Non-traditional Program candidates assemble at the southeast end of the stadium (on the gravel area between the facilities building and the stadium wall);
-Food & Natural Resources and Business candidates assemble at the northeast end of the stadium (on the gravel area).
-Signs will be displayed along the outside of the stadium walls. Appropriately colored signs, coordinated with tassel colors, will be displayed inside the stadium. All candidates should sit with their School or College.

9:30 am Seating of Graduates
10:00 am Commencement Procession begins
12 noon Commencement Ceremony ends

Distribution of Caps and Gowns
Where: University Store
Times: 10 am - 4 pm, Monday-Friday
When: April 28 - May 23, 1980
Also: 8 am - 10 am, Saturday, May 24th (at the stadium)
Doctoral Hoods are available at a cost of $26.00 each.
PLEASE BRING YOUR I.D.!

Accommodations: a limited number of rooms are available for relatives and other guests the nights of May 23 & 24 in University Housing. Please contact the University Conference Office at 545-2591.

In the event of rain: there is no alternative rain site. Commmencement will be held outside in the Alumni Stadium regardless of the weather. A delay of two (2) hours will be announced in the event of heavy rains and cancellation in the event of torrential rains. Please listen to local radio stations th morning of may 24 for announcements of delay or cancellation.

Invitations are not required for admittance. Seating for guests will be on a first come, first served basis.

If additional information is needed, contact the Office of Public Affairs at 545-2560.

Harvard sinks lax playoff hopes

Jim Weller carries the ball past a Harvard defender in yesterday's 11-8 lacrosse defeat. (Staff photo by Rich Newman)

By JONATHAN HAMILTON
Collegian Staff

The New England lacrosse trophy has been gathering dust for years in coach Dick Garber's office. But nearly half a decade later, the coveted trophy, awarded annually to the finest lacrosse team in New England, will be dusted off and sent to Cambridge where it will belong to the Crimson for a year.

The unexpected departure of the trophy was a direct result of yesterday's loss to the Crimson. Harvard displayed a tough, hard-nosed defense, gathered in some crucial ground balls and intercepted some errant UMass passes late in the game to preserve an 11-8 victory. The Gorillas made two charges at the Crimson late in the game getting within two twice, (8-6 and 10-8). But both times, after a thwarted scoring attempt by UMass, Harvard came right back down the field and scored the cushion goals to put the game beyond reach. The loss virtually eliminates the Gorillas from playoff contention in the NCAA.

The affair started well for UMass as it connected early for a 2-0 lead. So many times this season the Gorillas have gone to their fast break for goal production. The first goal was just that as Jim Weller took a pass from a speeding Dave Martin to fire it past Harvard netminder John Lechner at 4:11. At 5:48 Martin picked up a loose ball off a rebound and scored for a 2-0 lead. It had become a defensive struggle in the period as Lechner and UMass' Chris Benedetto were making good saves as the tempo of the game slowed. Each team tried to work the ball inside but was unsuccessful. Finally though, Harvard struck for three straight goals. The first came from attackman Norm Forbush who beat Benedetto with a high shot from fifteen feet to the goalie's left at 11:32. After one period, it was 2-1 UMass.

The Crimson held the Gorillas scoreless in the second period with their tenacious defense. The Gorillas too displayed tight defense reluctantly giving up two late period goals. Dave Wigglesworth accounted for the first one at 12:10. Perhaps most demoralizing was the goal that put Harvard ahead for good with just seven seconds left in the half. Brendon Meagher scored the first of his five goals at 14:53 to give Harvard a 3-2 advantage at the half. UMass had collected 26 ground balls to Harvard's 23 while Lechner stopped 10 shots to Benedetto's seven.

As the third period began the heavens poured forth pelting rain. Wigglesworth gave Harvard a 4-2 lead. Martin found Weller who from the side of the net scored and cut it to one, 4-3. Harvard began to take the play away in the third adding Wigglesworth's and Meagher's tallies. The Gorillas got one back before the end of the period as Chris Corin got the first of three goals at 13:31. It was 6-4 Crimson after three periods.

UMass scored four times in the final period but Harvard countered with five of its own. Corin at 3:54, the injured Peter Schmitz with a bullet at 4:10 and then a fast break goal by Martin made things exciting momentarily. But not this day as the Gorillas could not overtake the Crimson's solid defense.

A dejected Garber mused about the game: "They were a strong team defensively against us. They were a little quicker on the ball. We were nipping away but it wasn't enough." UMass travels to Syracuse to battle the Orangemen Friday night.

Mittmen edge by SC, 4-3

By MIKE ESTRADA
Collegian Staff

HOLYOKE – Dave Oleksak's suicide squeeze bunt scoring pinch runner Tom Grimes in the eighth inning capped a late-inning comback for the Minutemen on Mackenzie Field here last night, as UMass slipped past Springfield College 4-3.

UMass caught up with Chief righthander Brian Holt (3-1) scoring two runs in the seventh to tie the game at three. Holt had been winging through the early going, facing only 17 batters through the first five innings.

UMass hurler Jim Lewis (1-2) stimied the Springfield bats after the third inning. The seniov stranded four hits from the fourth inning on with the help of UMass' defense which had committed two earlier errors.

The game was highlighted by a Mark Litano catch that was one of the best anyone in attendance had ever seen. With one out in the sixth, Litano pulled down a Scott Smith blast on a full dive toward the left field wall. At the time Springfield was leading 3-1.

"I can't remember when I've seen a better catch," UMass coach Dick Bergquist said. "I wish I had film of it."

Center fielder Mike McEvilly continued his struggle at the plate here last night, but he made a diving catch of his own in the fifth on a line drive by Donato. The captain had eight put outs on the night.

Lewis' early problems began in the second when he walked Springfield's Tony Lachowetz. Dave Chenail followed with a grounder to Bonanno at short, but second baseman Dean Bennett dropped the throw that would have forced Lachowetz at second. After two ground outs that moved the runners to second and third, Donato hit a bloop base hit into short left field to score Lachowetz and Chenail to make the score 2-0.

In the third, a double by Sprinfield's Rob Steitz and singles by Joe Fairbanks and Tom Brown plated another run for the Chiefs (16-9-1).

Pitcher Chuck Thompson during yesterday's loss to Amherst College. (Staff photo by Ben Marsden)

In the UMass third, Doug Alyward's opposite field triple scored Dean Bennett (2 for 3) who had singled to left field with one out. Alyward was thrown out at home after an attempted sacrifice fly by Litano. Chief right fielder Donato showed his rocket arm with a strike to Springfield catcher Smith from short right field.

In the seventh, Oleksak led off with a bloop single to left. He moved to third on a base hit by Bonanno to right field. Donato's throw just barely missed nabbing Oleksak, and Springfield coach Charles Roys was vehement when an apparent tag was overlooked.

The next batter, Barry Bennett, promptly slapped the first delivery to him into center field to score Oleksak. His brother Dean hit an apparent double play grounder that eluded Chief shortshop Jeff Messer. Bonanno scored on the miscue and the Minutemen had tied the game at three.

Mittwomen sweep Lady Chiefs, 3-2, 9-5

By RANDI MARCUS
Collegian Staff

SPRINGFIELD - A three run homer by Sue Peters led the mittwomen to a 3-2 win over the Indians fo Springfield College in UMass' last reguair season game yesterday. UMass also took the second game of the doubleheader 9-5. The Minutewomen and their whopping 20-1 record are heading to the Eastern Regionals this weekend.

During the first game, Peters had the only hit in the first inning for Mass but was tagged out when attempting to steal second base. The Indians snagged a run to get an early lead after one inning. UMass' Kathy O'Connell, co-captain fran Cornacchioli and Karen LaVerdiere all had base hits in the second inning though no one scored.

The UMies pulled ahead to stay when senior Debbie Stoleckti began the third inning with a walk, followed by Jackie Gaw's single and the big stick of Peters who parked the ball into deep left for a three run homer. Peters (10-0) pitched the first game.

The Indians scored one more in the sixth inning, but the UMass defensive playing held them for the win.

Coach Elaine Marasco was far from pleased with her team's performance stating, "We only did what we had to do to win the game. I could tell right from the warm-ups that the team was not going to play head-up ball." Marasco also said that this win felt worse than last week's loss to the University of Rhode Island.

The second game was a much better effort, it started off strongly for UMass. Stoleckti had a base hit, Gaw bunted and Peters slammed one into center field for 2 RBI's. Brenda Simmons came up to send home Peters making it 3-0. Kathy O'Connell was on the mound, she is now 9-1 this season.

The fourth was the highlight inning when the Minutewomen picked up six runs. It all started with Cornacchioli slamming a base hit to left field, reaching second on a sacrifice bunt by LaVerdiere, then home on a Fran Troy error. Troy made it to third on two passed balls and home on a Stoleckti RBI. The UMies continued to roll as Gaw ripped one to right and Peters parked the ball in left field for her second three run homer of the day.

The Indians attempted to retaliate in the bottom of the fourth but thanks to tight defense from Peters, LaVerdiere and Gaw, they only picked up one run.

Marasco went with her substitutes in the last two innings. Springfield started a rally and managed to get two runs in the sixth. The Indians made another attempt to catch up in the last inning but tough defense by shortstop Debbie Picket and pitcher K.O. (O'Connell) ended the game 9-5.

Marasco was more pleased with the second game and commented, "The only reason that Springfield got their last four runs was because K.O. was experimenting with her pitching."

MASSACHUSETTS DAILY
Collegian
VOLUME CIX, ISSUE 137 Student newspaper of the University of Massachusetts/Amherst Thursday, May 8, 1980

UMass students count their tickets used to purchase food at yesterday's outdoor barbecue sponsored by Campus Center food services on Metawampe Lawn. (Staff photo by Paul Price)

Senate hears students

UMass students testify before legislature to discuss effects of budget cuts

By JANE DeVIRGILIO
and JEFF BAKER
Collegian Staff

BOSTON – In the wake of a recommended UMass budget cut of $212,854 for fiscal 1981, two student representatives from the Student Center for Educational Research and Advocacy testified yesterday before the State Senate Ways and Means Committee concerning the severe effects of the slashed budget.

After a lengthy delay, Ken Moore, chairmen of SCERA's Public Policy committee, delivered a prepared statement detailing how the Amherst campus will feel the effects of the states' higher education budget cuts. Those areas directly affected are permanent and secondary personnel, repairs and maintainence, consulting, special supplies, and equipment, Moore said.

Moore's testimony paralleled that of Chancellor Henry Koffler, who addressed the committee at 9 a.m. in order to return to Amherst for a Board of Trustees meeting scheduled for yesterday afternoon.

The UMass presentation was enlivened by an exchange between SCERA representative Ron Keefe and Senator John Olver (D-Amherst). Keefe said that "there are only four students here testifying today, since it is difficult to find more students who understand the budgetary process and how it affects them, and until the Senate begins to adequately fund the University, only then will students feel worthy and important."

Olver then questioned Keefe as to why such lobbying did not occur in the House when the budget came up for voting, likening this absence to "locking the door after the horse has been stolen." He encouraged parents, alumni, media, and business people to lobby the legislative committee hearings.

Later, Keefe commented that the Public Policy Committee had lobbied for three days previous to the House vote. He also agreed with Olver's suggestion that "we need greater support" in our lobbying effort.

According to Moore's testimony repairs and maintainence constitute the most pressing problem. Deferred maintainence, or

TURN TO PAGE 7

UMass budget on floor of Senate

By JANE DEVIRGILIO
and JEFF BAKER
Collegian Staff

BOSTON - The road to fiscal equilibrium in the UMass budget is fraught with delays, condesension, and strange bedfellows.

After waiting four hours outside room 222, where the Senate Ways and Means Committee was hearing testimony on the UMass budget, Public Policy Com mittee Chairman Ken Moore of the Student Center for Educational Research and Advocacy was given his chance to testify.

Almost as soon as Moore launched into his spiel, a roll call vote was called on the Senate floor. Room 222 emptied, and Moore was left to read his statement to state Sen. John Olver, D-Amherst, and a few other sleepy state senators.

When Moore finished his testimony, a verbal bout developed between SCERA member Ron Keefe and Olver. Keefe charged that only four students were present testifying because most students did not take the time to get involved and understand the budget process. Olver responded with a tirade about the quality of education at UMass and how SCERA should involve parents, students and alumni in the State House of Representatives' lobbying effort before the budget even reaches the senate.

"Ed King – NO; Education – YES!"

TURN TO PAGE 14

Trustees discuss SATF funds

Transfer of SATF funds approved

By BRIAN O'CONNELL
Collegian Staff

The UMass Board of Trustees yesterday approved a modified transferal of Student Activity Trust Funds from the UMass Student Government Association into the University's accounting system, ending a bitter eight-month struggle between the SGA and university administrators over control of the SATF funds.

Budget and Finance Committee Chairman Jim Craine, in endorsing the accounting system, said the University had "come to the end of a long road" in negotiating the accounting system. He said he was "impressed by the way students and administrators worked together to finalize the budget."

Under the modified system, the University will take control of the SATF funds July 1, according to SGA Co-President Rich Moran. "We will be going under the University accounting system," Moran said, "However, modifications will be made (of the transferal), and we will insure we hold student control and flexibility needs of various student organizations (RSO). Groups will be able to deficit spend and make expenditures, one privilege threatened by the original administrators.

UMass administrators and the SGA began feuding last October when the administration wanted student activity business records transferred to the University accounting system. SGA Co-President Rich LaVoice and then-Senate Speaker David Barenberg, at a UMass Trustee sub-committee meeting in Boston last October, demanded that student funded activities be controlled by students. UMass President David C. Knapp intervened and ordered a committee composed of both students and administrators "to work out a reasonable solution" to the accounting problem.

UMass President David C. Knapp relaxes during yesterday's press conference at Memorial Hall. (Staff photo by Kris Craig)

In other trustee business, Knapp told trustees that he had appeared before the state Senate Ways and Means Committee yesterday lobbying for the 1981 UMass budget. "I placed stress on several points: equipment purchases, campus maintenance, and supply and expense funding" are being restricted in the proposed budget, Knapp said.

Knapp called the overall Massachusett's 1981 state budget "grim," adding that the state is "highly dependent" upon its public higher

TURN TO PAGE 14

Board considers 'Super board'

By MARC FAGELSON
AND BRIAN O'CONNELL

The proposed reorganization of the state's higher education system is "the most important facet of public higher education in Massachusetts today," UMass President David C. Knapp said at a press conference following yesterday's Board of Trustees meeting on the Amherst campus.

According to Knapp, UMass faces the elimination of its present governing body, the Board of Trustees, which may be replaced by a possible "super board" which would govern all higher education in the state.

The proposed 15-member Board of Regents would represent Massachusetts' 25 state colleges and regional community colleges. The three state univeristies – UMass, The University of Lowell and Southeastern Massachusetts University – would inevitably be affected by the reorganization plan, Knapp said.

The plan, by its nature, guarantees the state colleges and universities less than one vote apiece in any decisions made by the proposed board, Ken Moore, chair of the Student Senate Public Policy Committee said when the legislation was passed in the state House of Representatives last month.

The reorganization plan was incorporated into the budget when it reached the House Ways and Means Committee early last month. It passed in the House despite an amendment by Rep. James Collins, D-Amherst, to strike the sections of the budget containing the plan. Collins' ammendment was defeated 82 to 65.

TURN TO PAGE 14

Senate passes SGA budget

By ED LEVINE
Collegian Staff

The Undergraduate Student Senate last night approved the 1980-81 Student Government Association budget without the debate anticipated by many senators and observers.

The Senate voted 53 to 17 to approve the budget act as recommended by the 13-member Senate Budgets Committee, which concluded its hearings last week. The Senate allocated $1.5 million to 52 Recognized Student Organizations, including $100,000 which was set aside to liquidate the SGA deficit.

The meeting ended shortly after 9 p.m. to the surprise of many Senate members and observers who had expected debate on the budget to last late into the night. The Senate, however, voted to approve the budget act without revisions.

Following about an hour of debate, Senator Adam Peck moved to call the question to a vote, which was approved by a voice vote. Immediately following the vote Senate Speaker Linda Geary began to call the motion to the floor when one member asked for a roll call vote. Geary proceeded with the roll call, asking people to vote on whether to approve the budget. This was the motion that passed by the 53-17 vote.

Following the vote, several Senators questioned whether the roll call was for the motion itself or for the question of calling the motion to a vote. After several moments of apparent confusion, Geary asked the Senate for a hand count to determine what they were voting for. After 54 senators voted they had felt the roll call was on the budget itself, as opposed to 21 who felt the call was on the question of voting, Geary announced that the budget had been approved.

"I've never seen anything as disgraceful as that. I'm so upset. I can't believe they would pass it without reviewing it," Senator Diane Mueller said following the meeting. "They passed it blindly on the faith of their leaders. I think it's a failure on their part to represent their constituencies."

SGA co-President Rich Moran disagreed, however.

"I'm very pleased that the Senate has acted so responsibly in assuring that the SGA, for the first time in many years, has passed a budget that is balanced," Moran said. "The budget is an austere budget, but I feel all groups will be able to maintain themselves through proper management

TURN TO PAGE 14

House OKs national budget

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House yesterday approved a $611.8 billion 1981 spending plan that projects the first balanced federal budget in 12 years.

The budget, approved on a 225-193 vote, drew most of its support from Democrats. It comes at a time of increasing concern that a severe recession could make balancing the 1981 budget impossible.

The House spending plan, which covers the 12-month period starting Oct. 1, must still be reconciled with a Senate budget package currently being drafted.

Last March, President Carter called for a balanced 1981 budget as part of his anti-inflation strategy. However, most economists believe eliminating the deficit will have only a negligible impact on inflation.

Rep. Delbert Latta of Ohio, ranking Republican on the Budget Committee, urged his GOP colleagues to "swallow their pride and vote for the principle of a balanced budget" even though domestic spending was higher than they would like.

However, Rep. Robert E. Bauman, R-Md., a leading House conservative, said a deepening economic recession had made the proposed balanced budget a "sham" and asked Republicans to oppose it.

Earlier, House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. said he still believes the recession will be mild, but conceded that a recession "of a serious nature" could throw the budget out of balance by cutting revenues and raising government costs.

Rep. Richard L. Ottinger, DN.Y., claimed that last month's sharp increase in unemployment — from 6.2 percent in March to 7 percent in April — was proof that in projecting a balanced budget, "we're just kidding ourselves."

Former Miss America and consumer advocate Bess Myerson announces her candidacy yesterday for the Democratic nomination of the U.S. Senate. She pledged "to fight for the people of New York and to reverse the clear injustice and indifference of Federal policies which are punishing our state."

McGee resists building probe

BOSTON (AP) — House Speaker Thomas W. McGee said yesterday he is "for motherhood and against sin just like everyone else" — but the Legislature will not be "bludgeoned" into passing the bills filed by the state corruption commission.

In particular, McGee indicated chances are slim for the bill creating a permanent office of inspector general to ferret out waste and corruption.

There is "nothing like it in this country," McGee said of the measure as originally filed by the commission headed by former Amherst College President John William Ward which investigates corruption in state and county building projects. "It would set up, in essence, a new branch of government headed by one person."

Until yesterday, McGee had been silent, publicly, on the work of the commission which has been making headlines daily with allegations of bribery, payoffs and favoritism in the award of design contracts for public buildings.

Besides the inspector general bill, another measure proposes sweeping changes in the manner in which contracts are awarded.

A kite-filed bill extending the panel's life from June 30 to Dec. 31 was admitted for consideration by the House Wednesday after McGee took the occasion to defend the Legislature's approach to the corruption issue.

Contrary to the crime commission's wishes, the Legislature has given its State Administration Committee additional time, to May 21, to consider the "reform" bills.

McGee said on the House floor that he has been responsive to the special commission's requests from the outset.

TOC LOUNGE

The UMass Music Theater Guild presents

KATHY BAIRD

Thursday, May 8th

9:30 - 12:30

TOC sticker and valid ID required to purchase alcohol

DIGEST

The Associated Press

Senate vote confirms Muskie as Secretary of State

WASHINGTON — The Senate voted overwhelmingly yesterday to confirm Sen. Edmund S. Muskie as President Carter's secretary of state.

The vote was 94 to 2 to approve Carter's nomination of the Maine Democrat to head the State Department.

Only Sen. Jesse Helms, RN.C., and Sen. Gordon Humphrey, R-N.H., voted against the nomination.

"This is the moment I have dreaded for 10 days," Muskie said as the time for voting neared. "Not because of the vote but for the fact that it means saying goodbye to the Senate."

Senate approval came only hours after the Foreign Relations Committee gave its approval to Muskie and sent the nomination on to the floor.

U.S. Marines called in to assist at Cuban refugee camps

KEY WEST, Fla. — U.S. Marines were called in yesterday as thousands more Cubans jammed shelters short on space and food in a quickening tide that has brought over 22,000 "Freedom Flotilla" refugees to the United States.

Immigration officials processed 4,005 refugees Tuesday, the third straight record day, plus another 2,000 by yesterday afternoon.

Under a state of emergency declared by President Carter, 500 Marines were sent by the Pentagon to assist 700 Florida National Guardsmen trying to keep order in the refugee camps.

Gen. K.C. Bullard, guard commander, said the state troops would remain on duty temporarily to "insure an orderly transition."

SUMMER WITH US.

AND SAVE ENERGY TOO!

Summer Session 1980

THIS SUMMER YOU CAN CHOOSE TO TAKE COURSES THAT MEET TWO AND/OR FOUR TIMES A WEEK

Day and Evening Classes

Business Administration
Accounting
Law
Management
Marketing
Communications
Internships

Special Interest
GED Preparation
Academic Skills
How To Study
Conservational Spanish
Consumer Law
Behavior Modification and Weight Control
C.P.R.
Introduction to Chess

Humanities
Art
Drawing
Painting
Photography
Music
English
History
Philosophy
Speech
Theatre

Early Childhood Education
Early Childhood

Secretarial Science
Shorthand
Typing

Criminal Justice
Law Enforcement
Corrections

Social Science
Government
Sociology
Psychology
Economics

Math and Science
Biology
Chemistry
Mathematics
Physics
Computer Science
Statistics
Life Science
Conservation

Classes begin on June 16. Advance registration is April 21 — June 6. Registration is June 10, 11 & 12 from 9a.m. to 4:30p.m. and 6p.m. to 8p.m.

For further information contact the Division of Continuing Education at Holyoke Community College, 303 Homestead Avenue, Holyoke, MA 01040. Telephone (413) 538-7000.

Send for our new energy and time saving summer schedule.

Tuition only $25 per credit • Air Conditioned Classrooms • Free Well Lighted Parking

Holyoke Community College

Save Gas and Money! Amalie Imperial 2 saves gas—

up to 5% better gas mileage. And that saves you money!

NEW!

Pays for itself. And then some.

HAPCO AUTO PARTS

534 Main St. 256-6414

Amherst, MA 256-6415

A model holds a pose for freshman Tamar Sobel during a life drawing session sponsored by the Art Club Tuesday evenings in the Fine Arts Center. (Staff photo by Chris Grewe)

Remembering JFK

William Manchester speaks of legacy

By SARAH HAMMANN
Collegian Staff

Honored alumnus and prolific writer William Manchester last night used former President John F. Kennedy's 1960 inaugural speech to question the Kennedy generation's relevance to today's politics.

Delivering a speech peppered with witticisms and points of timely political humor, Manchester keynoted the development of the "generation gap," a term that first entered the everyday American language in Dallas in November 1963, beginning a period Manchester calls the "new frontier."

"Kennedy asserted that each generation has been summoned to give testimony to its national loyalty. Of some generations much is given; of others, much is expected," said Manchester. He added that for the generation of the 80s, many will be tested.

Using the generation gap for a base of analysis, Manchester commented that the media caters to the generation gap, through the separation of adult and children's movies, and the radio stations that cater to distinct age groups, which promote the split and separation of the family.

"In the America of today elitism is a trendy epithet," Manchester said. "It is awkward to acknowledge achievement. Levelling has become a secular institution, as puritan as seventeenth century Massachusetts.

"But after Dallas," Manchester continued, "America lost the machismo and national self-esteem intact in the Kennedy years. Technocrats went berserk, and there is something chilling about human inventory." Distinction is shunned in both political and personal spheres, Manchester said.

Staff photo by Paul Price

William Manchester

Manchester threaded literary and philosophical writers' examples throughout his argument. Citing Erich Fromm's "a specter is stalking in our midst," Manchester called the computer today's "specter."

"Our completely mechanized society will be run by computers. It is no longer personal skills that get a man elected.

"Kennedy's use of the televised press conference worked well in his presidency, but I doubt that he would be sanguine about what television has done to politics," Manchester said. Television can mask or present an inaccurate "image" of a political candidate, and Manchester claims it is no accident that the front runner in one of our two major parties today should be a retired actor, and "somehow I feel uncomfortable with the prospect of Hollywood taking over Washington."

Manchester is concerned for the celebration of mediocrity within today's society. Although he finds the immediate future unattractive, Manchester has a faith based on such previously successful movements as collective bargaining in the '30s and black civil rights in the '60s, he said.

Rep. Collins appointed to Education Board

by JIM MORAN
Collegian Staff

State Rep. James G. Collins, D-Amherst, was appointed last week to the New England Board of Higher Education for a five-year term and will be sworn in by Gov. Edward King tomorrow at the State House.

Collins, a former UMass student and president of the Student Government Association from 1967-68, is House Vice-Chairman of the legislature's Joint Committee on Education. He has served in the Massachusetts House of Representatives since 1973.

The Education Board, established in 1955, is responsible for development and implementation of programs that improve efficiency among New England's academic institutions.

Speaking on his goals regarding the new appointment, Collins said he will work to ensure the continuation of all six New England states in the program, stressing his role will be one of "helping to secure financial resources" for students who need it most.

Among the programs overseen by the board are the exchange program, which provides students from one state the opportunity to attend an institution in a neighboring New England state at in-state cost, majoring in fields unavailable to them in their home state; a library information network; and an academic science information center.

Collins, regarded as a liberal among his colleagues, was responsible for salvaging $1.5 million in the University's budget for fiscal 1981, by making an amendment to shift that portion of the utility's allotment to the University's permanent personnel account.

Of the increased costs of public education, Collins said, "As resources in the six individual states become more scarce, it will be important to provide regional access at low cost to specialized programs.

With the advent of Spring Concert only four days away the stage crew works feverously to complete the 30 foot high staging that the bands will be appearing on. (Staff photo by Jim Mahoney)

Concert stage nears completion

By ED LEVINE
Collegian Staff

With Spring Concert only three days away, construction is nearly completed on the stage upon which the Allman Brothers, Bonnie Raitt and Lonnie Liston Smith will perform.

Construction began at Alumni Stadium on Monday morning when members of the Union Program Council stage crew erected a rear deck and loading dock. The rear deck, 6 feet high, will be used as a staging area the day of the concert where the bands' equipment will be unpacked and readied.

Construction of the dock and rear deck began with the installation of scaffolding which was rented for the concert. The surface of the staging, which is owned by UPC and was actually used as the main stage in last year's concert, is made of 4 foot by 8 foot studs. The loading dock and rear deckwill be connected together by ramps, which will be installed today.

Work on the stage itself began yesterday, when three 45-foot flatbed trailers arrived carrying the materials. The stage was rented at a cost of $15,000 from United Productions Systems, a Texas firm.

"It's a great stage," said UPC Administrative Coordinator Bob Humphreys, who also said the same stage was used most recently for a series of Bob Seger concerts in Florida.

The stage measures 40 feet by 64 feet, about the same size as last year's stage. But, Humphreys said, this year's stage is much more secure and will stand 9 feet above the ground, 2 feet higher than the one used last year.

Adjacent to the stage are four towers which will support the speaker systems and the roof. Each tower, made of steel pipes and plywood decking, reaches 20 feet above the stage, nearly 30 feet above the ground.

The roof of the stage is the major improvement of this year's show, Humphreys said. The roof will be supported by the four towers and will be connected to winches which can raise the roof between 6 and 20 feet above the stage. The roof, which will be installed today, can also be angled to shield the stage from rain from any direction, he said.

UPC Stage Manager Frank Gironda said the stage went up easily yesterday, and the entire construction was completed in just one day, "right on schedule." Stage crew personnel worked about 12 hours under the direction of three supervisors from United Production Systems.

Tomorrow the sound company, Clair Brothers from Pennsylvania, will arrive and will install the speaker systems and mixing platform. About 40 "S-4" cabinet speakers will be installed, nearly half the number of speakers used last year.

"There's no need to be heard in South Deerfield," Humphreys said, citing reports that the Grateful Dead could be heard clearly in that town last year. The difference will hardly be noticeable inside the stadium, he said.

Each cabinet speaker contains two 18-inch speakers, four 10-inch speakers and three horns, a total of 360 individual speakers. The sound system, including speakers, amplifiers and mixers was rented from Clair Brothers for about $15,000, Humphreys said.

Sub-let it, rent it, sell it, buy it, tell it. But most of all, DO IT in Collegian Classifieds

WHAT'S THE ULTIMATE 4 LETTER WORD FOR THE MOVIE THAT COULD GIVE ANYONE OVER 21 A STROKE?

COMING SOON TO A THEATRE NEAR YOU!

AMHERST DELI

Sandwiches - Cold Cuts - Bagels - Salads

! SPECIAL SPRING CONCERT HOURS !

Fri. Nite Open Til 2 AM

Sat. Morning Opens at 9 AM

Thursday
Two Way Street

"an Amherst tradition & now with a great new look"

Serving food 11:30 am-9:30 pm Seven Days a Week

THE PUB
15 East Pleasant St.
AMHERST

This Mother's Day,* express a beautiful thought to Mom and others dear to you.

☐ Mom ☐ Aunt
☐ Wife ☐ Godmother
☐ Grandmother ☐ Daughter
☐ Sister ☐ Someone Special

American Greetings
Creative excellence is an American tradition.

* May 11

campus center, umass
the UNIVERSITY STORE

record village sale

ENTIRE INVENTORY OF
LP'S • 8-TRACKS • CASSETTES

40% OFF MFG. LIST

EXAMPLE OF THE SAVINGS:

LIST	REGULAR	SALE
798	699	4.79
999	799	5.39
998	897	5.99

6 HOUR
4 p.m. to 10 p.m. ONLY
FRIDAY, MAY 9
(OUR STORE WILL BE CLOSED FROM 3 PM. to 4 P.M. IN ORDER TO PREPARE FOR THIS SALE)
EVERY FAMOUS LABEL & ALL YOUR FAVORITE ARTISTS ON SALE!!!

EVERY MUSICAL CATEGORY:
•POP
•ROCK
•JAZZ
•CLASSICAL
•EASY LISTENING
•SHOW
•DISCO
•MALE & FEMALE VOCAL
•COUNTRY
•NEW WAVE
•SOUNDTRACKS
... PLUS MANY MORE

BOZ SCAGGS "MIDDLEMAN"

CBS RECORDS

JOE PERRY PROJECT "LET THE MUSIC DO THE TALKING"

maxell
UDC 90 MINUTE BLANK CASSETTES
$2.49 each $4.98 PACKAGE OF TWO

HAMPSHIRE MALL
ROUTE 9
HADLEY, MASS.
PHONE 586-6351

STORE HOURS: 10-9:30 MON. THRU SAT.

Give the gift of music.

PLUS MANY UNADVERTISED SPECIALS!

record village

Search continues for Resources dean

By SUSAN McCOUCH
Special to the Collegian

The College of Food and Natural Resources has had four deans in the past five years and is currently pressuring the adminstration to take serious action on finding a permanent dean.

A search committee has been appointed by Acting Provost Jeremiah M. Allen, and will hold an open forum meeting next Monday at 2 p.m. in Campus Center 101 to explain what has been done so far. Anyone wishing to offer suggestions as to what the committee should be looking for in a dean will have an opportunity to do so.

The CFNR enrolls approximately 4,000 students at the present time, and data from the Office of Budgeting and Institutional Studies indicate that it is by far the fastest growing college on the campus. Enrollment has doubled since 1970 and in 1979, 21.7 percent of the degrees granted by UMass/Amherst were granted by this college.

The CFNR includes the two-year Stockbridge program and 12 different four-year academic departments covering a gamut of disciplines: Entomology; Environmental Sciences; Food Engineering; Food and Resource Economics; Food Science and Nutrition; Forestry and Wildlife Management; Home Economics; Hotel, Restaurant, and Travel Administration; Landscape Architecture and Regional Planning; Plant Pathology; Plant and Soil Science; and Veterinary and Animal Science.

In a recent interview, acting dean James B. Kring said no acting dean can be expected to make some of the difficult, long-term decisions all administrators face in a time of University cutbacks and tight money. The deanship is a complex job and a necessary part of running an effective and responsive college, he said.

In meetings between Allen and the department heads of the CFNR, and Allen and the CFNR Personnel Committee, the immediate need for a permanent dean was emphasized. It was concluded that someone was needed to represent the interests of the college in the battle for resources within the University administration.

The dean of the CFNR has a particularly difficult job because in addition to performing tasks similar to those of other deans on campus, the dean of the CFNR also serves as director of the Massachusetts Experiment Station and director of the Mass. Cooperative Extension Service. In these roles, the dean is responsible for the administration of an $8 million state budget plus a $3 million federal budget. The dean has responsibility for state-mandated control programs, regional research projects, farm operations, and the two experiment stations located in Waltham and East Wareham, besides coordinating the teaching, research, and extension programs operating on this campus.

Kring said that without a strong coordinator, each of these programs goes its own way and the college loses much of its integrity and loses touch with the public.

SW elections validated

By RICHARD NANGLE
Collegian Staff

Ruth Mazzola and Kevin Mangan were sworn in as the 1980-81 co-presidents of the Southwest Assembly Tuesday night, after an election committee set up to investigate charges about the validity of the election confirmed it as valid.

The Assembly voted to accept their decision at Tuesday night's meeting. Runner-up candidates Bob Ross and Bob Jacobson had questioned the procedure and security of the election, the fact there were no locks or ballot counters on the boxes, and the reasoning behind a Mazzola and Mangan poster situated on the ballot box, located in Berkshire Dining Commons. It was determined that the poster was left unintentionally by a student while voting.

Scott Shuster, in his final appearance as co-president of the SWA, told the Assembly that the Student Government Association had recommended an unbalanced budget for the upcoming school year. The Assembly was urged by Mazzola to attend last night's SGA meeting to voice disapproval of the cutting of area government allocations.

It was pointed out at the meeting that the beginning delay of Saturday's area concert was due to the sound system arriving an hour late and differences between the sound company and Union Program Council members over set-up procedures.

Subscription rates

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian (USPS 333-220) is published daily Monday through Friday, excluding January, June, July, and August, for $15 at 113 Campus Center, University of Massachusetts at Amherst, MA 01003. Second class postage paid at Amherst, Mass. Postmaster: Send address changes to Massachusetts Daily Collegian, 113 Campus Center, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, MA 01003.

UNION NEWS
dozens of tasty snacks & SWEET SHOP in the Student Union

Peloton

A. Derailleur (Rear)
B. Freewheel
C. Chain
D. Crankset
E. Pedal
F. Toeclip
G. Derailleur (Front)

Bicycle Rejuvenation Series (Drive Trains)
April 28-May 10

	Reg.	Sale
1. Cranksets (Cotterless)
Shimano B-1	$31.50	$22.50
Shimano 600 EX	$69.95	$49.95
Stronglight 99 triple	$104.95	$89.95
Shimano Tourney	$49.95	$39.95
2. Freewheels
Maillard 5 spd Kit	$30.00	$22.95
Suntour Perfect	$14.95	$10.95
Maillard 6 spd Kit	$37.95	$28.95
Normandy (French)	$14.95	$10.95
Ultra 6 spd	$16.50	$12.95
3. Chain (Drive)
T.Y.C.	$ 4.50	$2.99
Sedis Sport	$ 7.95	$3.99
4. Pedals
Union Pedals	$ 5.50	$2.79
KKT Top run	$17.95	$13.95
KKT MX pedals	$18.00	$12.95
5. Derailleurs
Suntour Seven GT	$14.95	$11.95
Suntour Cyclone	$31.00	$24.95
Suntour Compe V (front)	$ 9.50	$6.95
Suntour Spirit (front)	$ 9.50	$6.95
Suntour Cyclone (front)	$19.00	$14.95
Suntour Ratchet Shifters	$11.95	$7.95
Suntour DT Power Shifters	$11.95	$7.95
6. Accessories
Toe clips & straps	$ 9.00	$6.99
grease	$ 1.25	99
chain tools	$ 4.95	$3.99
oil	$ 1.49	99
WD-40 2 oz	$ 1.29	99
tools (freewheel)		30% off

Open Daily 10-6, Thurs. & Fri. 'til 9 Sat. 10-5
1 E. Pleasant St., Amherst 15 State St., Northampton
549-6904 584-1016

Sidewalk Sale

starts FRIDAY, MAY 9

SHIRTS
If Perfect... $12-$18
Almost Perfect...
$2.50 each
3 for $6.50

A SPECIAL SELECTION OF:
Lead Crystal

reg. 6.95 3.95

CHAIRS
DIRECTOR'S CHAIRS
FOLDING CHAIRS
SLING CHAIRS
ORIG. TO 25
NOW... 14.95-17.95

MIDDY TOPS
reg. ~~13.95~~ 9.95

DANSKIN
20% OFF

SPECIAL ASSORTMENT OF:
Bedspreads
IN TWIN & FULL
ORIG. TO $12

4.95-7.95

FACES
A Store-full of Ideas

Downtown Amherst /Open 10-6, Mon.-Sat.

Carter, Games chair to meet

MOSCOW (AP)—Lord Killanin, president of the International Oympic Committee, plans to meet with President Carter next week in a last-ditch effort to reverse U.S. plans to boycott the Moscow Games this summer, sources said yesterday.

Killanin met with President Leonid I. Brezhnev yesterday and urged the Soviet leader to do all he could to improve the international political climate so that the Games could go forward without large-scale participation in the U.S.-led boycott, according to the sources.

Carter called for the boycott in protest of the Soviet intervention in Afghanistan.

Killanin, after his talks with Brezhnev, would say nothing about the discussions other than to characterize them as "frank. You can interpret that any way you like."

Such a description of high-level international meetings normally indicates the two sides have outlined their positions without compromise.

It was learned, meanwhile, that Killanin explained to Soviet officials Tuesday a European plan designed to drastically scale down the opening ceremony for the Games and that the Soviets indicated they would not object to such a move. The sources said Killanin had not raised this issue yesterday with Brezhnev.

The proposal by 18 European national Olympic Committees, adopted during a Rome meeting last week, calls for depoliticizing the Games by removing national flags and anthems and the withdrawal of all athletes from the opening parade.

It was expected that the Soviets might object to such a move since it suggests that no athletes take part in the march past Brezhnev at the opening ceremony.

Killanin planned to leave Moscow this morning for Lausanne, Switzerland, where he will attend a Friday IOC executive board meeting that will consider the 18-nation plan.

Come on Down
to the
IMPROPER BOSTONIAN/GROGGERY
Enjoy Cape Cod's Finest "Happy Hour" Entertainment

IMPROPER BOSTONIAN	GROGGERY
Mon. Michael Jackson	Talk of the Town
Tues. Gordie Milne	closed Tues. Eves.
Wed. Two Way Street	Closed til July 4
Thurs. Two Way Street	Golden Joe Baker
Fri. Two Way Street	Talk of the Town
Sat. Jim Plunkett (Happy Hour)	J.D., Billy & Ken
Billy Whyte/Mike Sullivan (Eve)
Sun. Jim Plunkett (Happy Hour)	Closed Sun. Eves.
Moxie (Eve)

Featuring evening cocktail specials
Mon. thru Thurs.
Rt. 28 Dennisport, Mass.

MOVE IT YOURSELF AND ARRIVE RICHER.

You save about one-half the cost of using a moving company by renting a Ryder truck and moving it yourself. Not bad pay for doing your own moving, is it? And, with Ryder, you know that you're renting a truck from the best-maintained, most dependable fleet in the world. That's nice to know when you're rolling across the highway with all of your family and possessions with you.

College St. Arco
260 College St.
Amherst, MA
(413) 253-5843

RYDER. THE BEST TRUCK MONEY CAN RENT.

KING OF BEERS® • ANHEUSER-BUSCH, INC. • ST. LOUIS

Group supports Jewish women

By SUE BOISSEVAIN
Collegian Staff

Jewish women interested in exploring their own feminism and Jewish identity can join a new campus group, the Jewish Feminist Organization, which encompasses ideas and goals of both Judaism and feminism.

JFO was formed last fall after a handful of women got together during Jewish Women's Week in November, according to JFO's leader, UMass student Emily Loeb. Since then the group has collaborated with other campus groups in addition to organizing Jewish women's acitvities.

According to JFO's statement of purpose, there is a need for its existence because "Jewish women face a double bind: the bind of sexism within Jewish culture, and the bind of anti-semetism in the society at large. As Jews and as feminists we see our Jewishness distinctly linked to our feminism and don't believe that we need to compromise either."

Loeb mentioned three Jewish traditions, Ashkenazic, Sephardic, and Oriental, and she wants "to meet needs of all those women...by having a diverse program."

This semester JFO prepared Jewish workshops and events for International Women's Week in March. The group channelled much energy into those events, according to Loeb. However, members still found time to support groups such as the Spanish Program "Que Tal Amigos?" and the task force for Jewish Liberation.

JFO's work supports its philosophy, making changes in society to make it less oppressive, in addition to seeking changes for its members as women and Jews.

The group is now planning Jewish Women's Week for November. According to Loeb, the week is open to anyone, and will highlight the culture and history of Jewish women and the effects of anti-semitism.

During Jewish Women's Week Loeb hopes to have options open to Jewish women, a Yiddish movie, a speaker on Jewish history, a workshop on Middle Eastern Jewish women, and a theater program.

The week will end with Rosh Chodesh, an ancient holiday for Jewish women that celebrates the new moon. This ritual is regaining popularity on campus and locally, and is celebrated every month by JFO and others through prayers, songs and foods traditionally linked with the moon.

Rabbi Saul Perlmutter and UMass Hillel (where the group is located) are both very supportative of JFO, and according to Loeb, at Hillel there is a "mutual respect for all people: it is really sacred."

This RSO group is seeking more members, and Loeb encourages new women to join. "We are open to new ideas and new women," she said.

Women's work subject of talk

By MARCIA MURPHY
Collegian Staff

Manufacturing work done at home was the major undocumented occupation of women between 1900 and 1914, UMass graduate student Susan Neurenberg told a Campus Center audience yesterday in a presentation entitled, "Between Home and Factory: Working Mothers of the Tenements."

"Our project attempts to account for the lives and livlihoods of the 490,000 American women residing in New York City in the early 1900's who, according to censuses, were not 'gainfully employed' but were involved in 'home work,' Neurenberg said.

Neurenberg, a UMass graduate student in English and a Rhetoric teacher, and Cindy Daniels, a UMass graduate student in Political Science, spent two years working on their project. It began as a term paper, under the guidance of Prof. Joyce Berkman of the UMass History department.

The approximately 40 people attending the presentation were shown slides depicting home work, which included sorting and cleaning coffee beans, cracking and shelling nuts, sewing, making human hair wigs, and lace, and stringing tags.

Neurenberg said that home work, which was a significant sector of the labor force during the early 1900's, was not reported in labor statistics.

"Work was handed out by the manufacturers on a daily basis, and brought by the women and children to their tenement homes," Neurenberg said.

But workers only averaged $3.60 weekly or 5 cents an hour, Neurenberg said.

★ State House

lack of attention to already existing deficiencies in grounds and buildings will only become more devastating with inflation and accelerated deterioration.

President David C. Knapp said at yesterday's Trustee' meeting that maintainence is the main complaint from students, faculty and parents" and that the legistlature's financial view of maintainance is "shortsighted."

SCERA estimates that 22 persons in permanent positions and approximately 12 in temporary positions will be laid off, in addition to those not rehired after retirement.

The House recommended that no funds whatsoever be allocated to the equipment account, which SCERA believes "creates an absurd situation," since the legislature has expressed much interest in well-trained graduates in high technology. It is in the technological areas of study that the latest equipment is needed most desperately, according to SCERA.

Financial aid was given only a 10 percent increase by the House over the fiscal year 1980 allocation while, according to SCERA, tuition for in-state students will double and Basic Educational Opportunity Grants are being cut drastically at the federal level.

SEBASTIANI
Burgandy & Chablis 1.5 liters
$3.75

Schaefer Beer	12 oz. cans $7.45 case
Gilbey's Gin	1.75 liter $11.25
Pearl Lite	12 oz NR's $7.29/cs
Utica Club	16 oz. ret $6.25 case & deposit
Shaefer Cream Ale	12 oz. NR's $1.90/6

C & C LIQUORS
Behind the Police Station
For Off Campus Delivery
253-3091

THE VELVET HAMMER INN

BACK-SIDE SALOON
GOOD FOOD & DRINK BEING SERVED
OPEN DAILY 11:30 A.M.
BEST PIZZA & HOT OVEN GRINDERS ON CAPE COD
TAKE OUT 771-0727
Our Kitchen Keeps Cookin' til 12:30 AM

CAFÉ RITZ hyannis
LUNCHEON
DAILY HAPPY HOUR
RAW BAR
DELI-COUNTER
Specialty desserts & coffees
Approx May 1-Oct 13

ANYBODY WHO'S ANYBODY
WILL BE DANCING AT THE VELVET HAMMER

209 MAIN STREET HYANNIS, MASS 775-5505

THE IN-SPOT TO RALLY ON CAPE COD THIS SUMMER
VELVET HAMMER FEATURING A SUMMER OF POPULAR ROCK WITH "THE STOMPERS", "ACES & 8", "JET", "BREAKERS", "ARROW", "OMEGA", "BRANCH BROS.", "SUNDANCE", ETC. HAPPY HOURS WITH "THE SHOES"
Applications for Summer Employment now being accepted.

TACO VILLA
THE NEW ALTERNATIVE ANNOUNCING...
TACO DAY
EVERY SUNDAY
Taste 3 Tacos for the price of 2
BEER & WINE
Available at AMHERST Taco Villa
Mon-Thurs, 11-9, Fri & Sat 11-11 Sun 3-9
Center of Downtown N-ton & Amherst

The precision haircut styled for you alone!

NO APPOINTMENT NECESSARY
GREAT EXPECTATIONS®
PRECISION HAIRCUTTERS

Get the Perfect Haircut for Graduation!

Shampoo, precision haircut, and blow-dry styling
. . . complete for $12
(Children, secondary students, & college students with ID.....
SPECIAL $10.00

Calendar

Five College Arts

Friday, May 9
Chico Freeman and Cecil McBee, Solos and Duos Series, sponsored by Duke Ellington Music Series, 8 p.m., Student Union Ballroom.

Sunday, May 11
Madrigal Singer, presented by the Department of Music and Dance, 8 p.m., Bezanson Recital Hall.

Monday, May 12
Argentinian pianist Sylvia Kirsenbaum will present free recital at 8 p.m., Bezanson Recital Hall.

Tuesday, May 13
Mary Schmidt Campbell, Director of the Studio Museum in Harlem, will speak on "Ritual in Black American Art," 7 p.m., Museum of Fine Arts, 49 Chestnut Street, Springfield.

Wednesday, May 14
Free Film: "The Time Machine" (1960). Based on a story by H.G. Wells at Forbes Library, 20 West Street, Northampton. 103 minutes.

Club Listings

Bluewall, Campus Center – May 8-Willow Creek, $1, May 9-Michael Gregory Jackson, $2 per person, $3 per couple, May 10-Hypertension, $1.50. Happy Hour Mon.-Fri. 3-6 p.m. "Pogo-a-Go-Go" every Tues. night, new wave and reggae music, with Pete of WMUA.

Creedo's Coffeehouse, 111 Pleasant St., Northampton. May 8-Just One More String Band, May 9-Tom & Shane.

Flat St. Club, Flat St., Brattleboro, Vt. – May 11-Black Oak Arkansas, Southern Rock, $5.

Hot-L Warren, South Deerfield – May 8-Forbes & Hanson, May 9-Billings Gap, May 10-Raz 'n Jaz, May 12-Western Mass. Dart Association Tournament, May 13-Al Fuller on the open mike hosts new folksingers and acoustic musicians. Lunch 12-2 p.m., $1.95 specials.

The Quonset, Rte. 9, Hadley – May 8-FX, with special guests, May 9 & 10-The Neighborhoods, Foreign Objects, cover charge.

Rahar's, 70 Old South St., Northampton – May 8-First Rate, May 9 & 10-Fat, May 11-Valley Big Band. Happy Hours Mon.-Fri. 4-8 p.m.; Sat.-Mon. free pool and 35 cent Miller draft, half-price drinks.

Rusty Nail, Hadley Rd., Sunderland – May 8-A.T. Doe & the Dividends, $1, May 9-Widespread Depression, $4 with special guests, May 10-NRBQ, $5 with special guests, May 11-Paradise Rhythm Shoes, $12 for 1 night on drinks 8-11 p.m.

Art Galleries

University Gallery, May 13 through June 8

Sculpture by Peggy Diggs and Stephen Zaima, two yound New England artists.

"Art of the State: Photography 1978-79." Works by fifteen outstanding photographers working in Massachusetts.

"Works on Paper by Sculptors." By UMass Museum Studies class. Prints, drawings and photographs from the permanent collection.

Herter Gallery, May 11 through 16

Pam Posey, MFA Thesis exhibit, entitled "Notations," consisting of paintings and drawings.

Barry Breisch, MFA Thesis show, entitled "Form Allusions," made up of ceramic pieces.

Openings for both shows will be Sunday, May 11, from 2-5 p.m.

A major exhibition of 200 works by ten great American photographers entitled: "Recollections: Ten Women of Photography," will be at Smith College through May 25.

4 MORE publishing days LEFT IN THE SEMESTER! PLACE those classifieds NOW!

Rooms at Prices You Can Afford

Pay once for the whole summer!
Single $200
Double $150
Full use of kitchen
washer, dryer, TV
Pi Kappa Alpha Fraternity
418 North Pleasant Street
For Info call 545-2150

REMIND YOUR PROFESSORS to hand out evaluations
DON'T END THE SEMESTER
without putting your 2¢ in Course & Teacher Evaluation Project
422 SU 545-0341

WHY HITCH?

Take a warm, comfortable TRAILWAYS or PETER PAN bus to Boston, New York and many other places. Play it safe!

TRAILWAYS & PETER PAN BUS LINES

MAKE LIFE SIMPLER FOR YOU.

For Information, Schedules and Prices, contact: Springfield Bus
Campus Center Bus Office - 545-2006, or 549-6000

SPRING SALE
April 28 - May 10

CASIO CALCULATORS

FX-80 Scientific - only $21.95
our reg. - $26.95 list - $29.95

FX-120 Scientic - only $26.50
our reg. - $31.50 list - $34.95

FX-502P Programmable - only $96.50
our reg. - $116.50

in the campus center at umass
the UNIVERSITY STORE

Editorial/Opinion

'My dad loved his work'

JIM HESSON

My father worked for years climbing tall steel girders as a boilermaker. At 300 feet, a constant swift wind makes it dangerous to walk the narrow girders. Most workers nervously shimmied across the girders. But my dad, a talented man, walked across the girders.

He had six children and plenty of bills so he rarely turned down dangerous high work. My dad was often called to do the worst jobs. For instance, the foreman tied ropes around him, and he dangled all day at 200 feet while working. He came home that night with rope burns all over his chest and back. Still, my dad loved his work.

But in 1975, at age 45, he had a disabling heart attack. He woke up in a hospital to a priest reading his last rites. He recovered somewhat but could not return to his job and had several more heart attacks.

Also, doctors discovered asbestosis in 60 percent of his lungs. They believed asbestos caused his heart attacks. On top of this he is losing his hearing and eyesight due to noisy machinery and years of welding.

My dad now has to avoid stairs, and conversations are often interrupted by long violent coughing spells and gasps for breath. When he exerts himself, he sais, "It feels like someone is squeezing my heart like a wet rag."

He loved working and losing his job was as bad as losing his health. Work gave him some independence, but now he depends on social security checks. He just sits around feeling depressed about being useless. He sometimes talks excitedly, "I'm going to rest up and go back to work this summer." But my family knows he won't work again; he will just continue to live his slow painful death.

He contracted asbestosis while working in the Philadelphia Navy Yard. Since the 1920s the industry has known about the hazards of asbestos use, but they have consistently supressed the facts. My father and co-workers were never warned. There were clouds of asbestos dust yet no worker was ever given a protective respirator.

Because of my dad's condition, our family and friends are deeply interested in occupational health issues. By introducing the "Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OSHA) Improvement Act of 1980," bill S2153, Pennsylvania Senator Richard Schweiker has outraged us.

This bill will destroy OSHA – it will exempt 90 percent of US workplaces from safety inspections. Any employer who reports no injuries resulting in a day or more lost work-time would be exempt from inspections. For proof of "good safety records" OSHA would have to rely on state workers compensation statistics – notorious for understating accident rates. Employers regularly lie in reporting accidents. Many injured workers are brought back from a hospital, sometimes on crutches, just so the employer avoids reporting a lost-time injury. The bill would also take away the worker's right to an automatic safety inspection.

This problem is not limited to the Philadelphia Navy Yard. The Labor Department recorded 5.6 million injured workers in 1971. The National Institute for Occupational Safety and Health estimated "100,000 deaths per year from occupation caused diseases."

I am not the only UMass student whose dad is a victim of unsafe working conditions nor the only student whose future health is threatened by this bill. I urge you to join me in writing our representatives to defeat this so-called "improvement."

Jim Hesson is a Collegian guest columnist.

Letter

The trickling down of the new militarism

To the Editor

Although I was pleased to see that the Collegian covered our forum on "Race, Class, Sex, and the Draft," I was disturbed by several aspects of your story. First was the reference to Carroll Dunne as "she" throughout the story. Carroll is male - he is a veteran of the Vietnam War who spent a year in the hospital recovering from wounds which he received in Indochina. And thus when Carroll speaks of ending the insane barbarity of wars such as the one in Vietnam, he speaks from deep personal experience as well as from political and moral concerns.

More importantly, your story totally omitted discussion of one of the major topics of our panel; namely, the overt racism which is contributing to the current resurgence of militarism in this country, and the implications which this military build-up will have for Third World people, working people and women.

Speaking for the Third World Women's Task Force, Sheila Johnson pointed out that approximately 30 percent of the combat troops in the current "volunteer" army [meaning that economic need, and not the Selective Service System, drafts people] are Third World people. Well over a year ago, Congressional leaders were discussing the "inadequate qualifacations" of such soldiers, and the possibility of mutiny of these Third World troops were they ever ordered to repress a liberation movement in a Third World country, a likely possibility. And they began to discuss then – before the Russian invasion of Afganistan, before one hostage was taken in Iran – the possibility of reviving the draft, to replace these Third World troops with more "suitable" [i.e. "white"] soldiers.

The economic implications of such a resurgence of militarism and defense spending for Third World people, for working people, and for women were also discussed by Sheila Johnson, Peter Boehmer [an anti-war activist of the 60's] and Mary Wentworth of the Poor Women's Task Force. For if taxes are not to be increased [a likely possibility], the money for increased defense spending must come from cuts in social services such as child support, food stamps, education, and other programs which tend to benefit historically oppressed groups. Such groups also tend to be those with the least political power and, hence, the least ability to resist cuts in standards of living.

We are already witnessing the beginnings of such cutbacks – in the food stamp program, in welfare benefits, and right here at UMass – as the sizes of our classes grow and we have to "make do" with increasingly inadequate facilities. Further cutbacks will inevitably follow if the Cold War is to be successfully revived. It is for this reason that we advocate active resistance to the draft and increased militarism by ALL of those groups who will be hurt – Third World people, women, students, and working people. For although we may have different perspectives on the problem, it is clear that we all have nothing to gain – and much to lose – from the current revival of the Cold War.

Kim Christensen
Socialist-Feminist Collective

Letters

Fraternity activities—for good or ill

Dear Editor::

I have read Prof. Irons understandably irate letter complaining about the night long noises emanating from a spring kegger at Lamda Chi Alpha, and other fraternities which kept him awake all night.

Rather than going to court I would like to suggest a more immediate remedy which I tried as a neighbor to a fraternity on Lincoln Avenue.

After a long seige which went to 3 a.m. last year I bided my time, and at 6 a.m. the next morning I went over to make a visit, carrying a large police whistle. I went from room to room, emitting continual loud blasts in each room, shouting: "I'm your neighbor, the one you kept awake all night. Let's all rise and shine and have a discussion of noise in the neighborhood."

The effects of a police whistle in a closed space when you are in a bombed condition and one synapse isn't hitting on another can be quite educational. It rolled them onto the floors, had them running the walls, and screaming for mercy. I gave them not a shred of mercy.

We have enjoyed an amicable relationship, and I haven't had to invoke the law, unless it is a law of retribution since. I recommend the whistle Prof. Irons. Beats the hell out of call ing cruisers with strobes flashing all night, which merely adds to their jollity. Fight noise with noise, Professor.

George S. Odiorne
Professor of Management and
Adjunct lecturer in sadism

To the Editor:

We are also in a foul mood this morning, and we'll tell you why. After reading Peter Iron's letter we are appalled by his gross misrepresentation of facts. Granted, we were noisy for part of the night, and for that we apologize. However, when we were told of the complaint we went inside to celebrate an event that is important to our brothers.

We resent being referred to as "drinking louts" and "sorry examples of the student body." For your information, Lambda Chi Alpha at UMass has consistently maintained the highest cumulative average of any group on campus and has gained the respect of the University, the Greek Area, and the Amherst community. We have been involved in various activities that have benefitted a wide range of organizations. Our contributions to the American Cancer Society and our current raffle to assist the Amherst Fire Department in obtaining a much-needed "Jaws of Life" are just a few examples.

Mr. Irons' letter made it sound as if this evening was characteristic of the Greek Area and its members. Nothing could be further from the truth. The Greek community works together on projects that are helpful to the community and to UMass in general.

We are proud to be Greeks and members of this community. We are not "bozos" in an "Honor Engineering Fraternity". Lambda Chi Alpha is an international fraternity and contains diversified individuals who share a common goal of bettering themselves and the community in which they live.

The Brothers and Associate
Members of Lambda Chi Alpha

Concert goers sobered

Dear Editor:

For those there at the Orchard Hill Concert Sunday, we all took part in a day of good music, good weather, fine friends. There was one sobering flaw to the day however: the consistently poor taste of the jokes told by the M.C. The majority of jokes were of ethnic and sexist content. In particular, he made reference to a ficticious sexual event in the basement of Herter Hall which was slanderous towards the gay community. Comments of a prejudicial context were also made in reference to Iran and Afghanistan. Humor of this nature only perpetuates ignorant attitudes which hinder the existence of a cooperative would community. A celebration of spring for everybody to enjoy is not enhanced by derogatory humor.

Scott Broadhurst
Angela McCormick
Amherst

Letters Policy

Letters to the editor should be kept as short as possible, preferably no longer than two pages. They should be typed at 67 characters per line, triple-spaced.

All letters should contain the author's name, address, and telephone number for verification. Telephone numbers will not be printed.

ARTS

ALBUM REVIEWS

Elvis is King

By TOM ANDERSON
Collegian Staff

Elvis Costello and the Attractions
Get Happy (Columbia)

Elvis Costello may not be the Ultimate Rock Star, but he's damn close. In only two and a half years, he's turned out four albums chock full of intelligent catch tunes, plus (at last count) a dozen or so additional songs on flip sides of singles and import albums. Last year's Armed Forces won over many of those who weren't yet believers, and his latest Get Happy! should get the rest.

As has been the case with each of his albums, Get Happy!! strikes a fine balance between continuing the sound established on previous releases and exploring new territory. The overall pace and sound of this album doesn't differ too much from Costello's earlier work, but there are some very noticeable differences in the instrumental mix. Nick Lowe is still producing Elvis, but he's changed his tactics a bit here. In particular, the slashing Costello guitar is almost absent, buried beneath layers of drums, organ crescendos and —most of all— bass guitar.

This gives the album a very solid feel, reminiscent in many ways of Lowe's production on his own albums. On the other hand, Elvis is a rather good guitarist and the loss of his instrumental talents are felt at several points. This production style is not at all unexpected, and in fact follows naturally from the pattern established by Lowe on Costello's three previous albums.

The most noticeable aspect of Get Happy!! (and one which is being vigorously promoted in a late-night Columbia TV ad) is the quantity of songs —20 in all. Most are under 2:30 with the result that many are closer to musical ideas than true songs. However, Elvis' talent for cramming more into two minutes than most people can into five prevents this from being a serious limitation.

Elvis may write catchy pop melodies, but it is for his lyrics that he has been most noted. On Armed Forces, there were times when his attempts to be clever seemed to go a bit too far, but the lyrics on Get Happy!! reverse this trend and tend more toward those on This Year's Model. As in the past, most of the songs feature Elvis' bittersweet views on male/female relationships. Those who think that he spends too much time on femme fatale stories should be pleased by his inclusion of the old standard "I Stand Accused." Yet, there are still lots of lines like "You find a girl/You'll promise her anything/Even a wedding ring..." and "If I say I love you, then I must be deterious."

Of course, no writer is perfect, and there are a few weak spots in the lyrical flow of the album. For example, Elvis spits out the killer line, "You lack lust/You're so lacklustre/Is that all the strength/You can muster?" and follows it with a chorus consisting simply of the title "possession" repeated three times. Such minor complaints really don't mean very much in the context of an album packed with top-flight lyrics.

It may take a few listens to sink in, but Get Happy!! is in nearly all respects a superb album. The first single, "I Can't Stand Up for Falling Down," is one of his best, and is getting a good deal of airplay. Elvis Costello may not look like a strong candidate for rock star of the decade, but then again neither did Buddy Holly or Bob Dylan. It may be trite, but it's still true: Elvis is King.

The Clash: Punk rock survivors

By JIM MORAN
Collegian Staff

The Clash
London Calling (Epic)

After listening to the third album released by these punk rock survivors, I'm convinced our generation has a successor to the heritage set forth by the Beatles and the Rolling Stones—superstardom.

London Calling is the Clash's statement on America, from the Hollywood romaticization laid down in the track "Right Profile" to the anti-fascist, anti-nuke philsophy of "Clampdown," these guys know how to make thoughtful, political and social lyrics go well together with melodic, driving rock—and without taking the fun out of it either.

When Mick Jones and Joe Strummer sing "We will teach our twisted speech to the young believers/We will teach our blue-eyed men to be young believers," in "Clampdown," you find yourself anticipating the next holocaust. But when they sing about the people in the near proximity of Three Mile Island "waiting up in Harrisburg...waiting to be melted down," one realizes that the holocaust is already here with us, just being conducted more subtly through the lies of the multi-national giants.

"Right Profile," one of this writer's favorites, is about the life of Montgomery Clift, a Hollywood silverscreen great, complete with lines about his bout with alcoholism and mentions of the films in which he appeared: "The Misfits,"."A Place in the Sun," etc. and, sadly, the car crash which ruined his face and his career. A sample: "Everybody say 'What's he like?'/Everybody say 'Is he alright?'/Everybody say 'He sure looks funny'/That's Montgomery Clift, sonny.'"

"Lost in the Supermarket" is Mick Jones disco-infused lamentation about post-adolescence, not quite as gripping as was the earlier, comparable "Stay Free" from Give 'Em Enough Rope. Joe Strummer is quite fine on "Spanish Bombs," and his studio chatter makes a definite contribution on "Jimmy Jazz," a nice tune even nicer when done to a faster pace on their last tour in March. And not only do the Clash love America's one, true music form, they have added a great brass section—The Irish Horns—on this and another song about American symbolism, "Brand New Cadillac."

Reggae, and its impact on the group is made well known through two efforts employed here—"The Guns of Brixton" and "Wrong 'Em Boyo." The former features bassist Paul Simonon in his first solo vocal performance, asking the question "When they knock at your front door, how ya gonna know?" and answering it within his chorus: "You can crush us/You can bruise us/But you'll have to answer to/Oh-oh, the guns of Brixton" in one, militant, felt swoop.

One tune not on the liner credits is their big hit single "Stand by Me," which comes right after "Revolution Rock." Why the Clash chose to exclude the title from the record label is a mystery to me, but...

This is their most developed album, improvisationally, technically, and conceptually. In case you didn't notice, the jacket cover has the same shades of pink and green lettering which were a fixture of Elvis Presley's first LP. But this time the guitar player has his back arched forward, and the new Presley figure is bassist Simonon.

Also noteworthy is the addition of a keyboardist—Mike Gallagher, for a fuller sound.

Just why is this group worthy of all the publicity and rave reviews? Well, to begin with, this album is a two-record set which sells for little more than the price of one. If that doesn't show devotion to craft over dollars,then perhaps their understanding of posing, immitationist music sets them apart from the rest. Take this line from the title track: "London Calling but don't look to us/Phoney Beatlemania has bitten the dust."

Public Image Ltd: Reactionary imagery

By NORMA J. COATES
Collegian Staff

Public Image Ltd.
Second Edition (Virgin)

"Wouldn't waste the effort on entertainment" - John Lydon

I don't know what to think of Second Edition (nee Metal Box), the latest offering from John "Johnny Rotten" Lydon and the rest of Public Image Ltd. My basest instincts urge me to turn the two albums of this set into a few dozen shards of broken vinyl. However, a perverse intellectual fascination with the presentation of the material subjugates my hostile impulses and keeps me listening.

Listening to what? The album is not musical in the conventional sense. Only Jah Wobble's enigmatic, hypnotic bass lines bear the least resemblance to a standart musical form (reggae). Keith Levene's guitar and keyboards create an anarchic cacophony of sonic ruminations - no blistering electric leads here. Lydon/Rotten has given up singing (not that he was ever ali that talented - the Sex Pistols stood on more than his vocals). On Second Edition, he chants, screams and raves a gamut of emotions running from extreme anguish to dark paranoia.

So, why do I listen to this album? For one thing, Lydon's lyrics contain some of the most haunting, visceral imagery currently recorded on vinyl. Lines like "A face is raining across the border/the pride of history/the same as murder," from the piece "Careering," drown me in their stark depiction of the terror of war and the mentality of those who make a career of it. I am also intrigued by Lydon's nihilistic attitude toward everything. His words come from a soul devoid of faith in anything and anyone.

In "Bad Baby," the tragedy of an abandoned infant is reduced to just "one more sob story," Although his writing evokes emotion, Lydon seeks to reject it in all its forms, from "useless memories" to fame (depicted as an albatross - hence Lydon's return to his given surname) to death. "Swan Lake" depicts the death of a woman in a hospital bed. All that Lydon can say at the end is "words cannot express." Cannot express what? Emotion, or perhaps a harrowing lack of emotion on his behalf. Even rock and roll, the medium which spawned Lydon, is reduced to a "voice moaning in a speaker." For Lydon, this is truth - his vocals are incessant moans, whiny and poignant.

Public Image Ltd. are being touted as great minimalists, but does such posturing work as more than a "gimmick pointing fingers?" I'm not sure that it does. Minimalism doesn't reduce rock to its logical, bare fundamentals, as presented on Second Edition. It seems to negate rock and all that it stands for. What's the purpose of destroying an art form? To do so is to destroy creativity. Aren't we up against forces trying to take that from us every day? Lydon and Levene are known for their affinities for proclaiming that "Rock is dead." But, they still make their money through the standard rock establishment. How else would they sell their records? A bit of a cop-out, I think, and not a very good gimmick, either.

Back to my question - why do I bother to listen to this minimalistic mess which I find morally objectionable? Because of its imagery. Because the album spawns thought.

Buddy Holly

Pres.of Buddy Holly Memorial Society recalls song-writer

By BOB ROBINSON
Collegian Staff

It has been said that timelessness is the mark of a good song. A truly great songwriter should be able to write songs which can be done over again and again in many different styles.

When held up to this standard, Buddy Holly checks out to be one of the foremost song-writers in the history of popular music. Buddy's memory is being kept alive by people like Linda Ronstadt (with It's So Easy and That'll Be The Day), The Grateful Dead (with Not Fade Away), and Leo Saver (with Raining in My Heart). The Beatles (with Words of Love) and the Rolling Stones (with Not Fade Away) add to the list of bands who've been influenced by Buddy Holly.

One of the biggest authorities on Buddy Holly has to be Bill Griggs of Weathersfield Conn. Upon walking into his living room, one is immediately struck by the portrait of Buddy Holly on the living room wall. After awhile you suddenly notice that the glasses Bill is wearing look remarkably like the pair Buddy Holly used to wear. He tells you that the glasses are actually an old spare pair of Buddy's that he found looking up Buddy Holly's old optometrist. It's then that you realize you're in the presence of a true Buddy Holly fanatic.

Bill Griggs, who is president and founder of the Buddy Holly Memorial Society, recently talked to me about Buddy Holly's life and music. This is how it went;

BOB - Bill, can you tell us about the Memorial Society?

BILL- I first got started because I was disgusted that there was nothing to join to promote Buddy Holly's music and memory. I decided to start a "small" club of 30 or 40 people to exchange photos and tapes. By word of mouth it mushroomed (the society now has members in every state in the U.S., not to mention 18 foreign countries).

At this point I was curious to know what made people want to join this organization. I found that the society supplies its members with Buddy Holly records, photos and other assorted memorabilia.

BOB- Bill, here's a point I really don't want to dwell on, but I'm sure some people might be thinking "This guy's just trying to make a buck." How would you respond to this?

BILL - I haven't really quoted the figure before...but I can tell you right now, I'm $7,400.00 in the hole. I think that answers your question if you think I'm in it for the money. I'm really not in it for the money and I don't want to make money on Buddy Holly.

BOB - Why Buddy Holly; How did you come to spend so much of your time on this guy?

BILL - It's hard to sav...but to put it simply, I never get tired of his music. I've bragged that I've heard the song "That'll Be The Day" every day of my life since July of '57 and I'm still not tired of that song. That's the secret with Buddy...none of his songs sound the same.

BOB - When Buddy was learning to play, who were his big influences and Idols?

BILL - There were several...Hank Williams was a big one in the country vain. He loved Little Richard, and of course when Elvis Presley came out Buddy became one of his biggest fans. Although a lot of people at the time were copying Elvis, Buddy Holly stuck to his own unique style.

BOB - Buddy Holly was only big for about a year before he died. I'm really curios to know if fans knew they had a great talent in their midst. Was Buddy Holly appreciated in his time?

BILL - Not really. I think the first people to realize the genious of Buddy Holly was the Beatles. Back in '62, before they became famous, the Beatles' line-up was the same as the crickets' line-up...two guitars, bass and drums. The early sound of the Beatles was basically a Buddy Holly, Chuck Berry type sound.

Bill Griggs, President of the Buddy Holly Memorial Society, makes a point while Buddy Holly appears to look on in the background. (Photo by Bob Robinson)

BOB - Buddy Holly was part of the Tex-Mex sound. What is this sound and what made it so good?

BILL - Tex-Mex is actually short for Texas-New Mexico. Basically it's a West-Texas sound. People like Bobby Fuller (of "I Fought The Law and The Law Won" fame), Ritchie Valens and others, were all part of the Tex-Mex sound.

Bob-Could you get more specific about the "Sound"?

BILL - Norman Petty (Crickets ex-manager producer) couldn't hear Joe D. playing the bass, so he placed a tiny microphone under the strings. He was probably one of the first people to amplify a stand-up bass. He thought that Jerry Allisons drums on "Peggy Sue" were to loud, so he moved them out into the hallway and miked them there. He then ran a mike from the drums through an echo chamber and back into the mixing board. if you listen to that record, it sounds like there's three or four drummers...there's only one. This is from Norman Petty turning the echo chamber on and off.

Right now I'd like to interupt the interview to say that Norman Petty was probably a big factor in the success and popularity of the Crickets, but he was also a major source of dissention among the band. As the group's manager-producer, he alegedly added his name to the writing credits of songs for which he gave no creative input. Norman Petty consequently received (and is receiving) substantial royalties for his efforts. Jerry Allison (Cricket's drummer) sums it up; "Some of the songs we all wrote and the names got on straight, but some of them, like "That'll Be the Day" got switched to include Norman Petty's name. I don't know how that happened, but Buddy and I wrote the song and it stayed written just like it was written" (after Petty put his name on it).

Nick Sullivan did do a lot of writing for the Crickets, but quit the band after a few months. Mr. Sullivan has received almost nothing in the form of royalties for his part inthe band.

BOB - Let's change the subject a little and talk about the movie "The Buddy Holly Story." How true to life was it?

BILL - I think that the movie is roughly 70 percent accurate, although a lot of the facts are in the wrong chronological order.

BOB - Was the movie a reflecton of what Buddy Holly was like in real life?

BILL - If you go back to the roller rink scene, and the Apollo theatre scene, I honestly believe you were watching Buddy Holly on Stage. Gary Busey was that good.

BOB- What was Buddy like as a musician and performer?

BILL - He was very dedicated. His music meant everything to him...even more than his live tours. Buddy Holly didn't like going on tour and only did it to promote his records. He was a perfectionist. If he blew a note during a performance he would stomp off stage when he was through for the night. He would then go into his dressing room...lock the door...and play that part over and over.

BOB - There's some controversy over what caused the

TURN TO PAGE 12

"Kohlrabi" of Olivia Parker. Part of the "Art of The State: Photography 1978-79" exhibition at the University Gallery from May 13 through June 8.

Live Wire

By JIM MORAN
Collegian Staff

Just in case you didn't know—Lou Reed will be at the Pradise in Boston May 23 to promote the release of his latest LP, Growing Up in Public (Arista), and it should be good if preliminary reports are any indication...Patti Smith was married last month to ex-MC5 member Fred "Sonic" Smith, who worked with Patti's first beau, Tom Verlaine (ex-Television leader) and who was the subject of her song "Frederick" on Wave. A publicist at Arista informs me Patti will have a live album out in time for the Christmas buying season, but will not return to the studio until after her domestic situation is wrecktified. There will be no Patti Smith Group tour in 1980 as Patti is pregnant and living in Detroit...Meanwhile, Patti's lead guitarist, Lenny Kaye, has formed a group called The Nuggets (an allusion to an early punk record anthology he produced) and they are doing gigs in the Big Apple...Another PSG member, Ivan Kral, has just finished an album and tour with Iggy Pop. but despite persisting rumors, the PSG is not breaking up. They are only waiting for Patti to come back...Watch for the Undertones new album to come out this summer. The British import from this Irish punk group is already out—Hypnotised (Sire). One of the songs featured on the LP is a cover of the Drifters' "Under the Boardwalk." Who do they think they are? This isn't 12 x 5...Speaking of THEM, the latest effort from the Glimmer Twins, Bill, Charlie and Ron is due out on the racks June 4. Its finally-decided-upon title is Emotional Rescue. Other semi-finalists in the contest for the album's nomenclature were: Certain Women (a follow-up to Some Girls?) and More Fast Numbers. This next one may be a make-or-break situation for them as far as continued prestige is concerned. As of yet, not tour has been planned, though if precedence is any indication the Stones should tour in 1981...Speaking of concerts, Rev. Bob Zimmerman has been touring, having just finished gigs in Worcester last week, and concluding in Hartford tonight. Columbia Records reports that this tour is "just a gospel tour" and that its purpose is not to promote a new album though Dylan has just finished recording in Nashville and the new LP will be out this summer...There's a great 2-record set available at Faces of Earth in downtown Amherst—Diana Ross & the Supremes' Greatest Hits for only $3.99. It's put out by K-Tel, but how can you go wrong with a "best of" album by such an important Motown influence?...The Neighborhoods will play the Quonset tomorrow night in Hadley...The Ramones will be at Hartford's Stage West May 30. That's all, folks.

Ducks at a nearby pond watch with envy as their more fortunate feathered friends return from the South. (Staff photo by Susanna Peters) plane wreck which killed Buddy Holly. Could you talk about that for awhile?

★ Holly

CONT. FROM PAGE 11

BILL - I've gone through and thoroughly read the complete CAB report. They boil it down and say pilot error which is usually the case when a pilot is killed and can't answer for himself. The plane crashed at full cruising speed (165-170 mph) so it did not stall from an iced up carburator like some people have said. The plane came out of a warm hanger and took off in 18 degree weather. This combined with the fact that it crashed within five minutes of take-off leads me to believe that the wings iced up.

BOB - So you don't think that pilot error had much to do with the crash?

BILL - The pilot may have been confused because the Sperry Gyroscope (indicator of up or down motion) read exactly opposite from gyroscopes in other planes. However, even if there was some pilot error...and I'm still not sure there was...I still think the major cause of the crash was due to icy wings.

BOB - If Buddy Holly were alive today, what type of music would he be making?

BILL - It's very hard to say...if you had to pick a performer today and say this is what Buddy would be doing, you'd have to say Waylon Jennings. I really think Buddy Holly would have gone back to his country and rockabilly roots. I don't know if you knew this, but Buddy and Paul Anka had made a deal to write songs for each other. Paul Anka wrote "It Doesn't Matter Any More" for Buddy, but the plane crash put an end to further trades. I honestly believe today that if those two had gotten together they would have rivalled the Lennon-McCartney team as far as total output.

BOB - What is there to look forward to for Buddy Holly fans?

BILL - Well, last year in Lubbock, Texas, they started "Buddy Holly Week" which featured Waylon Jennings and TheCrickets, who performed free of charge to raise money for an 8½ foot statue of Buddy, which I thought was badly needed in Lubbock. This September 7th, which is Buddy's Birthday, we'll be having another concert to dedicate the statue. What we're trying to do...and we're 80 percent sure we can do it...is to have Paul McCartney of Wings fly over to Texas and dedicate the statue. If this happens, it'll be bedlam in Lubbock, Texas.

BOB - Will the Crickets be there again?

BILL - It'll be two original Crickets (Jerry Allison-drums Joe B. Mauldin-bass) with Sonny Curtis (who played at early Buddy Holly recording sessions) doing lead guitar and vocals. These three guys on stage playing 50's songs make more music than a lot of the bands you hear today.

It's an awesome accomplishment to write a song which is still a hit twenty years after its conception. Aside from his songwriting ability, Buddy Holly wasn't afraid to experiment with vocal and songwriting technique. Buddy broke new ground which started trends that are still followed today. So the next time you hear Linda, or Mick, or John, Paul, George and Ringo...think of Buddy.

WELCOME TO OUR NEW HADLEY STORE!

OVERSEAS AUTO PARTS

CARRYING THE MOST COMPLETE STOCK OF FOREIGN AUTO PARTS AND ACCESSORIES IN THE PIONEER VALLEY!

Route 9 Shopping Center on Hadley/Amherst line

HOURS
Mon.-Fri. 8-5:30
Sat. 8:30-2

PHONE
253-3403

SPRING INSPECTION EXHAUST SPECIALS!

COMPLETE VOLVO EXHAUST SYSTEM
Fits 1986-1972 140 series $89.95
TO FIT 1973-1975 VOLVO SERIES 140 SERIES
FRONT MUFFLER $31.95
REAR TAILPIPE/RESONATOR $16.95
COMPLETE VW BEETLE EXHAUST SYSTEM
fits all bugs 1966-1973 $24.95

20% DISCOUNT WITH THIS COUPON
GOOD ON ALL MERCHANDISE*
NAME _____
ADDRESS _____
YR.,MAKE, MODEL _____
GOOD TILL MAY 20, 1980
*EXCLUDING SPRING EXHAUST SPECIALS
C

MASSACHUSETTS BAY COMMUNITY COLLEGE
Division of Continuing Education
MAKE UP THAT COURSE THIS SUMMER
First Day Session and Evening Session Begin June 2
50 Oakland St., Wellesley Hills, MA 02181
Tel. (617) 237-1100 ext. 132

Taylor Enterprise presents
FASHION SHOW & DANCE clothes designed by Mary Taylor
Featuring:
International Models
Spring Fashions
May 8th
Tickets $2.00
Door Prizes
Show Starts 10:00 PM

Campus Travel presents...
A FREE MOVIE
Camping Tours of EUROPE
Thursday May 8th 7:30
908 Campus Center

Back Room Records

MID-NITE MADNESS
PRICE MADNESS

ENTIRE INVENTORY REDUCED!

What happens when the lowest priced record store in the valley has a store-wide clearance sale?

SUPER SALE

All records reduced except used albums

THURSDAY May 8th 10 A.M. til Midnight
FRIDAY May 9th 10 A.M. til Midnight

ALL 7.98 Albums $4.99 each
ALL 8.98 Albums $5.99 each

2-RECORD SET
PINK FLOYD THE WALL including:
Run Like Hell/Comfortably Numb
Another Brick In The Wall (Part II)
Young Lust/Nobody Home

MANY In Store Specials at all times

Back Room Records - lowest everyday prices in Western Mass.
Unadvertised Specials at all times.
* We buy, sell, and trade new & used albums - tapes.
Cut-Outs - Imports - Collector's Items - Oldies - Blank Tapes - Posters - & more!
In the Carriage Shops Downtown Amherst Tel. 253-9884 Open Mon - Sat 10 am to 9 pm

★ Trustees

CONT. FROM PAGE 1

education system. "I do not expect dollars to flow as easily as they did in the 1960's or 70's," said Knapp, "but we have to maintain quality education."

Also, UMass-Boston Chancellor Robert Corrigan, commenting on the recent occupation of his offices by UMB students last month, said "Although I do not approve of the method of some individuals in making their voices heard, we are committed to address these issues the students want discussed." Corrigan charged that "the media was not always accurate" when covering events such as the situation at UMass/Boston.

★ Side

CONT. FROM PAGE 1

The Senate Ways and Means Committee must accept the reorganization plan before consideration by the Senate. Once approved by the Senate, the proposal must then be approved by the joint Conference Committee, the final hurdle in the state's budgetting process, before it is enacted.

★ Reorg

CONT. FROM PAGE 1

chanted the student marchers outside the State House yesterday. "It's ironic, but Gov. King is turning out to be our guardian angel," Moor said. "Historically, the governor's budget recommendation has been the lowest, with the final figure settling somewhere between the House and Senate versions. Last year, and again this year, we've seen the House figure way lower than the governor's, with the Senate still the highest," Moore explained. "It's our job to get the final budget as close to the Senate recommendation as possible."

★ SGA

CONT. FROM PAGE 1

of funds"

Over 200 people attended the Senate meeting, many of them to show support for their groups and to lobby for more funds. Many groups received less money than last year, including the Student Center for Educational Research and Advocacy which was cut by more than $11,000, the Collegian which was cut by $17,000; and WMUA which was cut by $8,000. Almost every RSO group received budget cuts, despite the claims of many that rising costs, due to inflation, would cripple the organizatons.

Many senators, however, felt the need for a balanced budget outweighed the needs of the individual organizations and many Senators said they did not want to see another deficit, such as the $200,000 deficit incurred over the past few years.

Following the approval of the budget, the Senate approved a motion by Moran to allocate $250 to the Budgets Committee for its annual dinner. Moran said the committee worked hard on the budget and deserved a celebration. The motion passed overwhelmingly by a voice vote.

East Indian dancers sponsored By Women's Task Force

The Third World Women's Task Force is sponsoring Shama Bhate and Pranati Pratap, two East Indian dancers who will perform the dance of North India, in Hampden Theater in Southwest on May 8 at 8. Tickets will be sold for $2 at the door to benefit the Seta Rampersad fund. Child-care will be provided.

For further information contact Suman Bohm at 545-0883.

Correction

Yesterday's Collegian printed an article stating that Women's Studies Prof. Mary Ruth Warren addressed the issue of Third World Women in a lecture Tuesday night. The professor's last name is Warner, not Warren.

Think Summer—

$249 a week

Available for Person Willing to Work Hard. No Experience Necessary. Need to have the Entire Summer Free Call 253-2597 for Interview

—Think Money Summer

DORMITORY RESIDENTS

SPRING CONCERT VISITORS POLICY

Only the following guest will be allowed into the residence halls for Spring Concert Weekend.

1. Persons with Spring Concert Guest Passes - must present picture I.D.

2. UMass students with valid student I.D. signed in by dorm resident.

THIS POLICY WILL BE STRICTLY ENFORCED

1980 Commencement Information

University of Massachusetts at Amherst

Date: Saturday, May 24, 1980
Time: 10:00 am
Place: Alumni Stadium

Any undergraduate degree candidate who anticipates completing degree requirements by the end of the calendar year 1980 is eligible to participate in the 1980 ceremony. Questions concerning undergraduate academic status should be directed to the Records Office, Whitmore Building, 545-0555. Graduate students should direct questions to the Office of Degree Requirements, GRC, 545-0025.

COMMENCEMENT DAY SCHEDULE

9:00 am Robing for Commencement:
-Masters/Doctoral candidates assemble at the northwest end of the stadium (on the gravel area);
-Arts and Sciences graduates assemble at the southwest end of the stadium (on the gravel area between the facilities building and the stadium wall);
Physical Education, Health Sciences, Engineering, Education and Non-traditional Program candidates assemble at the southeast end of the stadium (on the gravel area between the facilities building and the stadium wall);
-Food & Natural Resources and Business candidates assemble at the northeast end of the stadium (on the gravel area).
-Signs will be displayed along the outside of the stadium walls. Appropriately colored signs, coordinated with tassel colors, will be displayed inside the stadium. All candidates should sit with their School or College.

9:30 am Seating of Graduates

10:00 am Commencement Procession begins

12 noon Commencement Ceremony ends

Distribution of Caps and Gowns
Where: University Store
Times: 10 am - 4 pm, Monday-Friday
When: April 28 - May 23, 1980
Also: 8 am - 10 am, Saturday, May 24th (at the stadium)
Doctoral Hoods are available at a cost of $26.00 each.
PLEASE BRING YOUR I.D.!

Accommodations: a limited number of rooms are available for relatives and other guests the nights of May 23 & 24 in University Housing. Please contact the University Conference Office at 545-2591.

In the event of rain: there is no alternative rain site. Commmencement will be held outside in the Alumni Stadium regardless of the weather. A delay of two (2) hours will be announced in the event of heavy rains and cancellation in the event of torrential rains. Please listen to local radio stations th morning of may 24 for announcements of delay or cancellation.

Invitations are not required for admittance. Seating for guests will be on a first come, first served basis.

If additional information is needed, contact the Office of Public Affairs at 545-2560.

Nuke the Whale by Danny Guidera

4 by Frank Emery

Bean by Kevin X. McNamara

Wimpman by Evan Carlson

Crossword

ACROSS
1 Gorged
6 Bridge term
10 Cougar
14 Illegality
15 Occasion
16 Biblical land
17 Concur
18 Copy
20 Afrikaans
21 Sprout
22 Claw
23 Pace
25 Danish peninsula
27 Chaste
30 Most recent 31 Concerning
32 Gambol
33 Adherent
36 Shed
37 Wanders
38 Sport
39 Lamb's parent
40 Monks
41 Residence
42 Indian city
44 Diminish
45 Shoots
47 Solidifies
48 Diplomat U
49 Josh
50 Redolence
54 Trying again
57 Of sheep
58 Mr. Slaughter
59 War god
60 Enclosure
61 Haven
62 Strokes
63 Liberated

DOWN
1 Mange
2 Constellation
3 Akron item
4 Kind of plant
5 Scottish river
6 Swagger
7 Falsified
8 Elec. unit
9 Sea: Fr.
10 Foot levers
11 Howls
12 Southern city
13 Change
19 Fur source
21 Piece
24 Emmet
25 Tricks
26 Indians
27 Title
28 Sufficient: Arch.
29 Festive one
30 Quebec college
32 Stupors
34 Plum
35 Ripped
37 Engrossed
38 Jewish festival
40 Oafs
41 Encountered
43 Truthful
44 Conducted
45 — throat
46 To show: prefix
47 Symptoms
49 Do needlework
51 Feast
52 Formerly
53 Instrument
55 Summit
56 Girl's name
57 Away

UNITED Feature Syndicate
Wednesday's Puzzle Solved

A	D	A	M		L	A	N	E		S	C	R	A	M
S	E	G	O		O	P	E	D		T	A	G	E	S
S	E	A	T		M	A	T	E		R	A	V	E	S
O	A	T		M	O	R	S	E	L	O	V	E	R	S
P	E	E	S	E	N	T			O	V	E	R
				D	E	F		C	O	P	E		D	U	E
I	S	L	A	M		L	O	V	E		B	I	T	E
S	L	I	P		F	I	V	E	R		A	D	E	N
L	U	G	E		L	E	E	R		S	I	E	S
I	N	K		C	E	N	T		C	A	R
			R	A	K	E		P	R	I	D	E
S	E	C	R	E	T	A	R	I	A	T		A	L	A
O	S	A	G	E		M	O	N	T		U	P	O	N
A	N	T	O	N		M	O	T	E		S	E	P	T
R	E	S	T	S		O	D	O	R		A	R	E	S

DC Menu

Lunch
D.C. BURGER DAY
Double Burger on Sesame Roll
Fishburger on Roll
Boiled Franks with Roll

Basics Lunch
D.C. BURGER DAY
Tofu Burger with Roll
Fishburger on Roll

Dinner
Baked Chicken/Cranberry Sauce
Beef Burgundy

Basics Dinner
Spinach Noodle Casserole
Baked Chicken/Cranberry Sauce

4 women recently sub-let their Swiss Village Apartment just 2 days after placing a classified Further proof that Collegian classifieds SELL

WHAT'S THE ULTIMATE 4 LETTER WORD FOR THE MOVIE THAT'S REBELIOUS, OUTSPOKEN AND COMPLETELY UNSANITARY?

COMING SOON TO A THEATRE NEAR YOU!

©1980 BRIGHTON PRODUCTIONS, INC.

JOBS JOBS JOBS

The Student Center for Educational Research and Advocacy (SCERA) and the Student Senate announce the following job vacancies:

SUMMER
Communications Director (possibly Fall part time)
40 hours a week @ $3.25 hr.

Rents & Fees Team Advocate
35 hours a week @ $3.10 hr.

Presidents Assistant
Work study, 40 hours a week @ $3.10 hr.

Course and Teacher Evaluation Writer/Researcher
Workstudy: 40 hours a week @ $3.10 hr.
Non workstudy: 37.5 hours a week @ $3.10 hr.

FALL:
Student Affairs $25.00 a week stipend (more for work-study students)

CONTACT:
SCERA 545-0341 Rm. 422 Student Union Building
DEADLINE 5:00 (Thursday May 13, 1980)
THIRD WORLD STUDENTS AND WOMEN URGED TO APPLY

Collegian Classifieds

To place a Collegian Classified
•Come to Collegian Office CC 113
•8:45 to 3:45 Mon-Fri
•Classified deadline is 3:45 two days prior to publication day

Collegian Classified Rates
•15c per word
•Student rate 10c per word
•Cash in advance
•5 consecutive days 5 % discount
•Phone number FREE

AUDIO

Stereo for sale Yamaha 600 receiver, Aup 103 speakers Hi Tachips-10 turntable great condition $500 or BO Kevin 549-4600 x 335

Kenwood Amplifier Marantz Cassette Deck, Phillips Turntable, Rally Sport Camero, BO Jon 253-3791

AUTO FOR SALE

1968 Blue Torino great heat dependable inexpensive to repair 8 cyl asking $700 call 549-6018 after six

1966 Jeep CJ5 V-6 4WD, new top, price negotiable 549-1098

1978 AMC Gremlin 4-cylinder, 4-speed, 16000 miles, $2900. Visit 1022 Lincoln Apts., Amherst, after 3 pm

Honda Civic 1975 very good condition recent tune up AM/FM stereo excellent mileage $1800 negotiable 253-2226

Olds Cutlass 1968 runs well first $250 takes it call 549-6468

MG Midget Michelin radials $900

1970 VW Squareback excellent mechanical condition, body rusted $400 665-2802

Four Michelin X Radials 1500 miles $140 Grant 367-2762 eves

1973 Chevy Laguna 2 dr vinyl top, AM-FM cassette, Jensen co-axial speakers, must see, $1400 or BO Paul 6-5998

1977 Triumph TR-7 coupe Excellent condition, sunroof, green with tan interior, 37,000, handles superbly $4400.00 545-3540 days; 1-498-2466 eves

1967 Dodge Dart body fair good condition $400 GRC1028 or Ph 549-4457

1969 Olds Wagon: $150 549-0713 nites

(Must Sell) 67 Impala Convertible BO Peter 549-0618

BEER

Beer, homemade, fun, simple, inexpensive, original German beer recipes, $2.00 Wine recipes $2.00, Kalua Recipe $2.00 #6 Williams Box 1685 Pompano, Fla 33060

BRANDYWINE

Summer sublet with Fall option one bedroom in two bedroom apt 549-5831

BUSINESS OPPORTUNITIES

Address and stuff envelopes at home. Any area. $800 per month, possible. Offer, send $1 (refundable) to: Triple "S" 869 Mt Juniper, Pinon Hills, CA 92372

CAR INSPECTION

Get ready for Spring Inspection May 15 See S.A.W.

EXAM WEEK SPECIAL

Hungry? See Rooster's Exam Week Special, May 15-21

FOUND

Found: a set of keys outside Hampshire DC call Dave 6-7834 to ID key chain

Keys found at Southwest Spring Concert six keys on a key ring. Please call 545-0960 or come to the Southwest Asssembly Office in Hamden Center!!!

A Kwikset key found behind Curry Hicks Cage 5/6/80 call Mark 546-5362

Sweater at Orchard Hill concert 546-1294

Pair of glasses in Tobin 665-3976 ask for Larry

GAS

Does your car suck gas? See S.A.W.

GUITAR FOR SALE

Gibson Les Paul Deluxe excellent condition $400 Ampeg 60 watt amplifier $225 call George before 2 AM 542-2539 or 253-9284

HELP WANTED

Paid Positions at the Collegian: Assistant Managing Editors, Copy Editors, Layout Technicians. One semester terms. Car helpful. Experience helpful but not necessary. Training available. Apply at Collegian Office, 113 Campus Center, or contact Fran at the Collegian.

Back-to-School Editor position available responsible for coordinating Collegian Back-to-School Issue must be available end of August through first week of Sept editing, lay-out and reporting skills a must. Contact Rob Stein or Fran Basche, Collegian Office, 545-3500

Summer work with the oldest, largest and best-paying student program in the country, Call 253-2597 for interviews.

Camp Hale Boys' Camp on Big Squam Lake in Center Sandwich N.H. is looking for responsible counselors 18 and over with interest and or training in hiking, camping, canoeing, boating, sailing, riflery, nature or swimming. salary is $800-$1000 for Summer plus complete room and board, medical and recreational benefits. Call Steve 549-6332 Mon-Fri after 6 pm

Collegian Photo Dept. needs asst. editors for next semester. See Paul Price at Collegian Office, 113 Campus Center or call 545-3500

Summer work-study person Personnel Office Assistants at Southwest. For info contact Jean Steiner, Business Mgr 5-1552

Delivery person for pick up and delivery of food for Spring Concert food concession Saturday May 10 must have car Contact Diane 584-1354

Summer work interviews: Thu May 8 CC 905 at 11, 1, 3, 5; CC 168 at 7 Full-time work, good pay

HOUSE FOR RENT

Beautifully restored 200 year old Cape in Pelham. 5 rooms, 2 fireplaces & woodstove. Available January, 1981 $430 + utilities 253-7233

HOUSE TO SUBLET

Reasonably priced four bedroom fully furnished house, easy walk to campus. Must be seen available for Summer sublet 5/30-8/30 549-4187 early AM or late PM

House in S. Amherst 2 bedrooms living room with fireplace, huge yard, much more! June-July with option 253-5560 keep trying

FOR RENT

2 bedroom Apt available June 1 with Fall option $240 includes all utilities Call 549-5935

1 room for rent Amherst Center call mornings or evenings 256-6997

3 bedroom house Summer sublet w/Fall option on busroute pool tennis courts convenience & package store nearby South Amherst call after 5 253-9336

Large 2 bedroom apt in Nhampton $275 per mo. & utilities 584-2430 keep trying

Economy Apt 3 bedrooms, extra storage rooms. June and Sept terms $235 plus partial utilities Call 5-6 pm Skibiski Realtors Northampton 584-3428

4 bedroom house in Northampton available June and Sept $425 plus utilities Call 5-6 pm Skibiski Realtors 584-3428

Cliffside 1 bedroom sub lease Avail May 19. $200 Fall option 665-2802

Southwood 2 bdrm townhouse Dirt Cheap call 256-6089

FREE, one months rent. 4 bdr apt Summer sublet w Fall opt 256-0778

6 bedroom Belchertown farmhouse Summer sublet/Fall option on bus line $500/month 323-7682

1 or 2 bedrooms in 3 bedroom apt in Puffton for Summer rent negotiable call 549-6321

Room in house for rent end of May-Aug $90 per month 10 min from Campus and Amherst Center call Laurie eve 256-0637

Rooms for Summer rental Amherst price negotiable call 6-5081 or 546-5100

2 bedroom apt Squire Village bus route Summer with Fall option air, pool, hot water 665-4919

Summer rooms for rent $70, $80 and $90 price includes utilities use of kitchen color TV much more singles, doubles, and triples at 395 No Pleasant St. 253-9987

Three big bedrooms 10 minute walk from campus $330/month call after 6 549-0699

FOR SALE

Frigerator 2½ cu ft $75 or BO 6-8452

Sanyo Cube Refridgerator best offer 253-5083

For sale two Spring Concert tickets best offer 549-6574

Dacor tank 72 Cl & reg $150 Steve 256-6388

Couch, two easy chairs, footstool $100 or best offer 665-7526

5 cu ft refrigerator excellent condition $75 call 549-4083 after 6 pm

Spring Concert Ticket $10 549-5480

Hanglider Sky Sports Bobcat 19' standard $450 David 253-2779

200 New England Patriots Cheerleaders Posters $75.00 549-4058

5 cubic foot refrigerator must sell moving off campus excellent condition $40 or BO call 546-7940 call after 4:00

Spaulding Executive Irons 2 PW, 2 yrs old $125 serious golfers only

Epiphone studio amplifier stylized electric, hollow body, guitar, $75 each or $140 package; Extra's! 549-2832

Ohaus 311 cent-a-gram accurate 311 g to X.. $100 new $60 or BO 546-6498

For sale 3 piece lvg rm set price $140 or best offer excellent cond. call Deb or Joan 253-2107

LOST

From NOPE Olympus key ring & wallet--reward $20 Matt 6-5631

Lost Gold Chain semtimental value reward offered Tracy 6-6760

Red folder notebook w/imp research papers 549-6744

Book "Floyd Gibsons Your Headline Hunter" reward for return 665-3976 Larry Man's gold 18" chain at OH Concert or Van Meter Formal if found please call Larry 6-1171

MOTORCYCLES

Honda CL175 ex. cond. luggage rack $500 or BO 665-7744

Yamaha 750 excellent condition $1000.00 253-7324

1978 Kawasaki KZ650 excellent condition extras best offer 549-4547

MOVING HASSLES?

Co-operative moving of goods to Washington DC area. If interested call Susan 772-6259 after 8:00 PM

NEED A SUMMER JOB?

Staff members wanted for Summer co-ed camp in Maine If interested, please call (413) 567-6356 after 4 PM

PERSONALS

Wade Geller cordially invited 23,000 of his closest friends to a birthday bash, May 10 at Alumni Stadium Bring ID

STICK IN YOUR EAR: Free ear piercing with purchase of studs. Silverscape Designs 253-3324

Soccer Cheerleaders sponsoring a pre-Spring Concert Party at Poor Richards May 8 Tickets $1 and Happy Hour prices

Attention: All alumi of Nancy Lamb's French 132 and 148 classes. Claas reunion May 9 (Friday) 6-9 PM Herter 3rd Floor Lounge venez tous

Concert Tickets for sale call 546-6426

Sporting Goods Co-op: Clearance sale open Mon-Fri 10-3 (next to Post Office in Student Union)

Mothers Day—Buy Mom a handmade piece of scrimshaw jewelry. Ships, flowers, any color, made to order. Dennis 6-7872

JH I will continue to wait because to be able to love is well worth waiting for under a tree in SW

Get psyched for!!

Paula Condon 59c/$1:49c, 2 plates a spatula and we're even good luck in med school Me

"Harry's Ice-Cream Trucks" we cater to wasted people. P.S. straight people welcome

Slim Whitman look alike contest Free Prizes to all winners. In the stadium 12:00 Saturday at "Harry's Ice-Cream Truck"

Get psyched for band!!

Little Jay Hope you're back on both feet soon—Love, the Moosewrecker

All I really really want our love to do is to bring out the best in me and you Happy Birthday love

To the sisters of IGU---Thanks for one hell of a night! Your spring pledge class of '80

Slim Whitman T-Shirts!! Hallelujah! CC Concourse Thu-Fri

Chalet 8 Grab a brush and HEAD for the mountains!

Lori Why dont we do it in the road?

Cheri and KKG Thanks for all your help. Pi Kappa Alpha

Teresa-Here it is good luck tonight

Steve Thanks for super time Sat night. You're a sweetheart! Bernie

Wally—We love you, it'll all work out you've made going fun! Want to play firetruck?

Grads from 14 were gona miss ya Love Gib and JZ

Useless and Lowsky you both are great! When are we going parking again?

RIDE NEEDED

Yellowstone or thereabouts call 546-4949

From S. Hadley to Umass daily during Summer session call Nina 532-0218

N'hamp to UMass for 9:30 am class, 5 days all Summer share gas & conversation Rachael 586-0233

ROOMATE WANTED

3 quiet housemates seek 4th Pelham yard, woods. Summer, Fall option; $106 + negotiable 253-3528 after 6 pm

Male or female for Summer 2 bedroom Brandywine rent negotiable call Wendy 546-6970 Dan 546-6971

Townehouse Apt need 2 or 3 roomates June-Aug $70/mo fully furnished call 549-1420

Roomate wanted for Fall semester Brittany Manor call Mike or Mitch 546-5097

Own room in spacious Townehouse Apt Jun, Jul, Aug $90/mo Murray 6-5735

Puffton Village 1 bdrm in 3 bdrm apt for Summer pool, A.C., 549-4196

Housemate needed for 3 bdr apt in Amherst Ctr w sunny porch available immediately $110 plus call 256-0742

Roomate wanted for new house in Belchertown Summer, Fall option own room, on bus route $80 mo + 323-5572

West Yarmouth Cottage female roomate wanted very resonable Missy 586-1752

Puffton Room for two $75 each

Roomates wanted to share Hampton Beach waterfront cottage with 2 working girls $180/month call Laurie (617) 534-9034 or Ann Marie (617) 537-2720

Two female non-smokers to share two bedroom Brandywine apartment call 546-7968 Rose or Laura

Summer roomate wanted Cliffside own large bedroom furnished pool, tennis courts 135.00/mo negotiable 665-2020 late evenings best

2 vacancies female preferred house mile from campus call 549-6882

Roomate wanted for two bedroom Puffton Summer with Fall option 546-8928

Martha's Vineyard person needed to share ideal Summer home Walt 549-3981

Looking for responsible M/F to share Southwood Apt cheap rent 60 + util May 25 - Aug 31 546-4162

Roomate wanted to share large house in N Amherst from June 1 - Sept 1 rent $108.00 549-6547

Brandywine one or two roomates wanted Fall option Summer sublet call Kath or Lisa 549-4033 nice spacious place

Space for one Amherst house starting Fall sem call for details! 323-5262

Two rooms available (individually) for Summer sublet in three bedroom Townehouse apartment semi-furnished Fall opt for sublettors, on two bus routes Bay State phone, HBO--prefer non-smoker, student, very reasonable 549-5192

ROOM WANTED

Two males seeking living arrangements for Fall semester PLEASE help us out call 253-5989 any time

Female needs housing for Fall call Pat 665-4197

S.A.W.

FIX YOUR OWN CAR at the Student Auto Workshopp. Space, tools, friendly mechanics Tue., Wed., Thurs., 3-9 Fri., 12-5 Sat., 10-5 545-0673

SERVICES

UMass Legal Services Office offers free legal services to fee-paying graduate and undergraduate students in the areas of University administrative problems; landlord/tenant disputes; and uncontested divorces and guardianships. LSO also gives advice on Small Claims Court, and limited counselling in criminal matters. Call 545-1995; Room 922 Campus Center UMass.

Need help moving? Student with truck will help or consider renting truck. Tim 253-3366

Canadian Immigration Loyan Consultants Ltd. (Established 1973), offices in Hong Kong and Vancouver. Experienced advice offered in connection with immigration to Canada. All enquiries will be treated in confidence. Please send all enquiries to: Suite 1205 IBM Tower P.O. Box 10153 Vancouver, B.C. Canada V7Y 1C6

STORAGE SPACE

Storage space available for Summer 256-6177

Going home for the Summer? Store your small furniture and personal propertyy in a totally secure and fully insured warehouse. Pick-up and delivery available. Call 594-0548 between 2:00-5:00 PM for reasonable rates

Nation/World

U.S.hostages moved again

The Associated Press

Militants were reported yesterday to have moved a 12th group of American hostages from the occupied U.S. Embassy in Tehran to another city. Two Iranian leaders rejected a suggestion by British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher that the freedom of the U. S. prisoners could come faster because of the commando raid freeing Iranian hostages in London.

In Milan, Italy, Iranian Foreign Minister Sadegh Ghotbzadeh was quoted as saying the lengthy standoff could be settled "in an honorable and acceptable way" once the Iranian parliament convenes. The second round of parliamentary voting is Friday.

There were these other developments:

—Ayatollah Mohammad Beheshti, secretary of the Revolutionary Council, told reporters he expected the hostage debate to begin "perhaps in six weeks." Both rejected the Thatcher suggestion.

—A gunman ambushed the 24-year-old son of Iran's Anglican bishop and shot him dead, reports reaching London said. The victim, Bahram Deghani Tafti, an Oxford graduate, had worked as an interpreter for foreign reporters in Tehran. His father, Bishop Deghani Tafti, left Iran for Cyprus after escaping an assassination attempt last October.

These women, allegedly from the New Dawn prison in Cuba, were segregated at the Truman Annex at the Key West processing facility for further investigation. They were put aboard the Cuban refugee boats by the Castro government, along with refugees. (AP Laserphoto)

Kennedy urged to resist draft

BOSTON (AP)—Five persons demanding that Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., quit campaigning for president and return to Washington to vote against a draft registration bill are staging a sit-in in his office at the federal building, a spokesman for the Boston Alliance Against Registration and the Draft said yesterday.

However Mary Frackleton, a Kennedy staffer, said, "There is a group in the reception area discussing draft legislation with a staff member."

She said she did not know if a sit-in was planned, and added, "I don't know what's going on.

"Sen. Kennedy is aware of the group and he supports their position," she said.

Alliance spokesman Lewis claimed the five persons also were demanding Kennedy join a filibuster against the registration legislation and promise, if elected president, that he will dismantle the Selective Service organization. Lewis said the group entered Kennedy's office about noon in the John K. Kennedy Federal Building in Boston's downtown Government Center.

Another protest spokesperson, Ann Kotell, said the group plans to continue the sit-in until its demands are met.

SUMMER BORDERS WANTED

Convenient on-campus location single and double rooms available first come-first serve please call 253-3919 after 6:00 PM

SUMMER RENTAL

Summer rentals at prices you can afford PIKE fraternity is close to campus. For more info call 545-2150

SUMMER SUBLET

Inexpensive Summer sublet! Only $200.-per month 2 bedroom fully furnished, A/C, pool, garden plots, etc. to see it is to love it! Call now! 665-7756

Female roomates for scenic South Deerfield. Furnished, on bus route $75/month 665-7796

One bedroom Summer sublet Townhouse apts N. Amherst rent negotiable call 549-6282

Five bedroom house in Northampton Center Summer sublet Fall option 450.00 + 584-6385

3 furn bedrooms 70 + Amherst 253-7082

2 bdrm Amherst ctr 1 block from common $225 253-0204

TO SUBLET

2 bdr apt Colonial Vlg June-Aug $190/month bus rte 256-8454

2 bedroom Townehouse apartment June-August 549-1325

1 4 bedroom apt Swiss Village bus rte Fall option scenic view 256-6344

Summer Sublet Swiss Village 4 bdrm 2 baths has sliding glass door on to second floor balcony. Best offer 253-9407 after 5:00

4 bdrm/2 bath 320/mo bus rt ut inc Fall opt 253-5570

2 bedroom Southwood AC pool, for Summer furnished 200/mo 665-4921

3 bdrm apt to sublet June 1-Aug 31 Townehouse Apts fully furnished $250 mo 549-5995

1 bedroom to sublet for Summer w/Fall option reasonable rent, nice area near waterful & nature trails call 549-3984 nights

Sublet house June-Aug in Northampton $341 per month plus utilities call 5-6 pm Skibiski Realtors 584-3428

2 bdrm Cliffside furn A/C pool all ut'l Fall option 665-4644

Own rm in 2 rm apt Lus pool, AC, furnished, June-Aug (Aug optional) 253-2742 eves

2 bdrm sublet/Fall option Sunderland 665-4824

To sublet 2 bedroom Col Vill apt for Summer Fall option price negotiable August rent paid for 256-8809

June1 - August 31 2 bedroom Puffton Village rent negotiable 549-0455

3 bedroom Rolling Green June-August $265 a month or BO utilities inc 546-9637 546-9609 546-9748

3 mos for the price of 2! 3 bedroom Rolling Green Apt 6/1 - 8/29 546-9843 or 546-9853

1 bedroom in house in Sunderland bus, lawn, garage May rent paid $90/mo occ may 22. 665-4395

1 bedroom Colonial Vlg apt June-Aug price negotiable 253-2961

Townhouse Apt 2 bedroom, rent negot. w/Fall option 549-4373

Pufton Summer lease 1 bd. Fall opt. 549-6637 again eves

Rent negotiable 2 bdrm apt Squire Vill Apts 665-3660

Small studio Amherst Ctr $150 256-8095 ask for Barbara Summer only

Larger bdrm in 2 bdrm Southwood Apt great for 2 friends Fall option rent negotiable call 253-5201

Spacious two bedroom Townhouse June-August Rivergalde Aptd $235 253-2069

Two bedrooms Puffton furnished, rent negotiable eves 546-6236, 546-6247

Sublet with option to rent two bedroom apartment on the sunny side dishwasher air conditioner garbage disposal Where Southwood Apartments best rent in town call 253-2154

Summer sublet two bedrooms in four bedroom apt. One with Fall option. On bus route. Call 253-7220 evenings or 545-3500 price negotiable

3 bedroom Townehouse Apts fully furnished $225 or best offer 549-5897

1 bedroom in 3 bedroom Puffton Apt Summer sublet rent negotiable 549-6803

2 bedrooms available in Swiss Village cheap rent everything included for June to August call 253-3534 or 546-8079

Southwood 2 bd twnhs June-Aug w/Fall opt rent negotiable call Fred 549-2614

Two bedroomRolling Green A/C, pool, bus rt, all utilities, furnished 6/1-8/30 253-5210 $250. or Bo

3 bedroom Apt 215/month Amherst Center 256-0365

Townhouse Apt Summer sublet Fall option 2 bedrooms furnished diswhr, A/C, rent negotiable 549-4920

$75 own room in quiet 2 bdrm house Cushman, bus route, sublet June-Aug Sandy 549-0258 5-7 PM

2 bedroom apart Brandywine partly furnished A/C, pool,call Beaver, "D", WoJo 545-0210

1 br Cliffside apt. 2nd fl, dish washer, on bus rt, pool & tennis cts, $207/mo util inc. avail July 1 with option to renew for Fall call 665-2814 after 6 or wkends rent negotiable

BEST BUY 2 BDRM PRESIDENTIAL APT CALL 549-2652

Summer sublet 3 bedroom apt furnished, exc. view, rent negotiable call 253-5214

2 bedrooms in Swiss Village apartment $75 each/month negotiable 6-1 9-1 call 253-7857

1 bedroom in house in N Amherst Fall option $90/month + utilities 549-1639

CHEAP—250/mo 2 bdrm a-t in Southwood on bus route June-Aug w/Fall option Call 256-0316 or 549-0699 evenings

Riverglade Apt 2 bdrm $255. Call 253-7478

Sunny 2 bdrm apt in Colonial Village bus rt swimming pool Fall option $225 253-7714

Room in Belch house 6/1-8/31 Fall option bus route $125 + negotiable 323-5784

2 bdrm furnished on bus route 15 min walk to campus A/C washer/dryer dshwsr available 6/1/80 - 8/31/80 $240 call after 5 pm 549-5532

Brandywine 1 bdr apt Summer sublet 549-6786

Bdrm 6/1 to 8/31 nr UM & Am Center great for Summer rent neg 549-6467

1 in 2 bdrm Squire AC pool 7500 opt 665-7564

Sublet with Summer Fall option two bedroom townhouse bus route pool 260 month Riverglade 253-7661

Luxurious 5 bedroom house Echo Hill, 3 bedrooms available washer/dryer tennis, pool, pond 253-2294

1 bedroom in 3 bedroom Puffton apt June-Aug furnished 2 baths air cond tennis, pool bus route rent negotiable 549-4914

4 bdrm 300/mon utilities incl on bus route for Summer w/Fall opt 256-8209

To sublet 3 bed rm apt in Puffton we need 1 roomate Summer only call Kerry 546-5482 or Cathy 253-2647

Rolling Green 2 bdrm June-Aug 546-6044 5546 6948 night rent negotiable

1 bdrm Cliffside Apt Summer with Fall option rent negotiable 665-2487 eves

2 bedroom apt Cliffside completely furnished 180/mo Summerw/Fall option call 665-4258

2 bedrm apt furn, air cond, pool call 253-7478 Summer only

Beautiful 2 bedroom apartment furnished A/C on bus rte Fall option call evenings 665-2006

Furnished 2 bedroom Townehouse rent negotiable 549-4734

2 bedroom Cliffside Apt Sunderland Summer w Fall option 200 mo 665-7703

YA CAN'T GO WRONG!! 2 bedroom sublet with possible Fall option Pool, tennis, dishwasher, disposal, "furnished completely" spoons, forks!!! $200 negotiable!! 665-3024

Puffton Village 3 bedroom apt lease June 1 call 549-0165

One minute from campus one room in large house Fall option 549-4409

To lease—one bedroom apartment Puffton air conditioned pool call 549-4911

3 bdrm Rolling Green for Summer Live for 3 months pay for 2 546-1199 546-9919

1 or 2 bedrooms in 3 bedroom Puffton apartment 75/mo Fall option 549-6482 George

2bed room Cliffside $177 month Summer sublet 665-3629 after 5:00

1 rm in beautiful farmhouse i mile to campus, ½ mile to bus $120/monthj Fall option call 253-5186

1 or 2 bedrooms in Puffton furnished rent negotiable Bill 546-6005 6/1-8/31

1 bdrm in 5 bdrm housé 1 block from campus w/Fall option 549-4620

1 bdrm Cliffside apt on bus route pool tennis AC cable TV June-Aug w/Fall opt $200/month 665-4891 after 5 PM

Spacious 3 bedroom apt with porch over looking Holyoke Mtn range swimming pool tennis ct. lot of open space $315 + w Fall option 253-5978

1 bedroom/efficiency Fall option furnished Amherst 549-5038

Townhouse Apts 2 bdrms furnished rent negot June-August 549-4915

3 bedroom Puffton Apt. furnished rent negotiable 549-4874

Space for three people available in large house on bus route, two milesfrom Campus, yard, garden area 83/month + util option for Fall call Bob or Mark 256-0768

2 bedroom Colonial Village Summer sublet, pool, bus route, 225/mo 256-6281

Amherst Center Summer sublet negotiable 256-0304

Two bedroom Summer sublet at Rolling-Green at low $200 a month What a deal! Air cinditioning, pool, on bus route. June - August Call now! 546-7084

1, 2, or 3 bedrooms in Puffton apartment for Summer call Lisa or Janet 546-7190

2 bedroom apt 1½ mi from Campus near Puffers Pond AC utilities ' fed available June 1 with Fall option 0098

Rooms in house Summer Fall option N Amherst acre of land bus rte 549-4001 eves

2 bedroom Colonial Village late May w/Fall option, bus, pool, reduced rent, 253-2457 3-7 PM

Swiss Village 4 bedroom apt on bus route/2nd floor--nice view subletting for Summer with option for Fall $110/mo call 253-5348

Puffton Village 2 bedroom furnished or unfurnished June 1 - August 31 $230 (negotiable) 549-6420

Sunderland two bedroom Summer sublet Fall option bus route 665-7954

WANTED

Cash for Gold or Silver items Antiques too call 546-7369 Cheryl

Cash! Top dollars for school rings, gold, ect. At Wendy Fun Funk & Punk CC Concourse twice a week

Dining table, chairs 546-7701

Female for breeding purposes for AKC Reg yellow Lab call Eve Genny 268-7594

Artists Student Union Gallery now accepting proposals for Fall semester stop by S.U. Rm. 115a

WANTED TO RENT

Wanted—Two bedroom in Puffton for Summer with Fall option willing to pay full rent call Joanne anytime 253-7503 keep trying!

Room needed on Cape Cod within 30 miles of Sagamore Mike 546-6033

Wanted Summer and Fall one or two bedroom apt in RollingGreen garden style preferred will pay full rent call Isaac anytime 253-7790

One bedroom or efficiency wanted beginningJuly 1 call Janet days 545-2013

Wanted studio in or near Amherst Ctr for Summer and/or Fall Dave 253-5577

WASH D.C.

Sublet available June 1 - Aug 1 1 br in a 2 br apt walk to Metro, pool, tennis, view of D.C. central A/C, dishwasher rent $240/month call 703-920-9226

ZOO MASS T-SHIRTS

The originals are back on the Concourse with some new designs too. Wednesday through Friday this week

Scuba diving courses are being offered in the Caribbean this summer. See Steve Cooperman's story on page 19.

Sports notices

GYM EQUIPMENT – Undergraduate and Graduate students are required to return gym equipment, clothes and locks signed out this semester to the Boyden or NOPE equipment rooms no later than 5:00 PM, Wednesday, May 21, 1980. Equipment, clothes and locks not turned in will be billed to the student through the Bursar's Office.

WORK STUDY STUDENTS

Summer jobs as telephone interviewers on a study of urban parks.

Must be available in June and August, primarily evening hours; 20+ hours/week, $4/hour.

Call The Environmental Institute before May 16, 545-0648.

DEERFIELD DRIVE-IN ROUTE 5 & 10
SOUTH DEERFIELD, MA
665-8746
Playing May 9 - 11

Richard Gere
Lauren Hutton
American Gigolo
A Paramount Picture R
SATURDAY NIGHT FEVER
JOHN TRAVOLTA
PG
A PARAMOUNT PICTURE

Showtime: 8 PM

The rusty nail Inn

welcomes

Saturday, May 10

N R B Q

Special Guests:

Paradise Rhythm Shoes & Storm Warning

Friday, May 9

WIDESPREAD DEPRESSION

Special Guest

Paradise Rhythm Shoes

Open till 2 A.M.
Rt. 47
Sunderland

18 and 19 year olds are welcome! You must be 20 years old and have a valid Mass. license or liquor ID to purchase alcohol.

"Live Music Information" call 665-4937

SAVE-ON-TIRES
ROUTE 9 HADLEY, MA.
2 MILES FROM NORTHAMPTON OR AMHERST

MICHELIN - CONTINENTAL - ZENITH - B.F. GOODRICH - ARMSTRONG - GOODYEAR - PLUS OTHER MAJOR BRANDS.
SUPERSEDES ALL OTHER ADS.

Cash & Carry — TIRE SALE — Cash & Carry
All our tires are new and first line. No Blems or Seconds.
Wholesale to the Public.
We can arrange to have your tires mounted.

CONSUMER NOTE

WHEN COMPARING PRICES, MAKE SURE YOU ALSO COMPARE QUALITY GRADES, EFFECTIVE APRIL 1979 THE N.H.T.S.A. GRADED REGULAR BIAS-PLY TIRES (STANDARD =100) AS FOLLOWS:

NAME	QUALITY GRADE*
FIRESTONE (DLC)	80
ZENITH (PE)	80
GOODYEAR (POWERSTREAK)	70
WOOLCO (ALL AMERICAN)	70
SEARS (GUARDSMAN)	60
K-MART (KM-50)	50

*The higher the No.: the longer the tire will last.

DON'T FORGET IT'S YOUR MONEY

BIAS PLY POLYESTER

SIZE	TYPE	PRICE
A78x13	Arm. Wht.	23.95
B78x13	Zenith Bk.	25.95
C78x13	Fire. Dlc. Bk.	25.95
C78x14	Fire Dlc. Wt.	27.95
D78x14	Zenith Bk.	27.95
E78x14	Zenith Bk.	28.95
F78x14	Zenith Bk.	30.95
G78x14	Zenith Bk.	32.95
H78x14	Zenith Bk.	34.95
560x15	Zen Bk	25.95
G78x15	Zenith Bk.	33.95
H78x15	Zenith Bk.	35.95
L78x15	Zenith Wt.	39.95

RADIAL PLY

SIZE	TYPE	PRICE
P155/80x13	WT. GLASS Goodyr. Viva	37.95
BR78x13	WT. Fire. 721 STEEL	49.95
P185/80x13	BFG Steel Wt.	49.00
CR78x14	BFG Steel Wt.	52.00
DR 78x14	B+G steel wt	53.00
P195/75x14	BFG Steel Wt.	54.00
P205/75x14	BFG Steel Wt.	56.00
GR78x14	Zen. Glass Wt.	48.95
FR78x15	Fire. Glass Bk.	44.00
P205/75x15	BFG Steel Wt.	57.00
P215/75x15	BFG Steel Wt.	61.00
P225/75x15	BFG Steel Wt.	64.00
P235/75x15	BFG Steel Wt.	69.00

WIDE SERIES
BFGoodrich T/A PERFORMANCE TIRES
150 Rating

E70x14	48.00	G60x14	57.00
F70x14	50.00	L60x14	63.00
G70x14	51.00	G60x15	58.00
G70x15	53.00	L60x15	65.00

ALL PRICE PLUS F.E.TAX & SALES TAX

CASH AND CARRY VISA OR MASTER CHARGE
OPEN Mon.-Fri. 9:30-5:30 Sat., 9:30-3 p.m.
586-2544

Project DEEP: The sea's the classroom

By STEVE COOPERMAN
Collegian Staff

How would you like to spend a week in Florida, or even in Mexico, scuba diving in a warm, sunny climate and warm waters with colorful coral reefs and barracuda, sting rays, eels, and other creatures, and getting credits at the same time? Well, Project DEEP is offering three scuba related courses this summer in which you can attain all these benefits and more.

One program of Project DEEP, Inc., an independent educational agency working in conjunction with United States colleges and universities offering accredited courses in diving, diving science, and marine science, involves a "Diving Education Extension Program." Extension courses offered this summer include a sport diving course in Key Largo, Florida (June 14-21), a sport diving course in Cozumel, Mexico (June 21-28), and an underwater photography course (July 7-11). The two sport scuba courses, for which two credits in General Physical Education will be given, will emphasize warm water diving techniques and are open to anyone.

"If a person is certified, he or she can go directly to the site of the course," program director Bob Sparks explained," and if not, they must first go through a pre-course training session."

The course is run at costs from $280 for the Florida session to $375 for the Mexico class. The cost includes room and board, instruction, dives, and some equipment but does not include travel and the personal equipment that people are expected to have, according to Sparks.

Credits in independent study are received for the underwater photography course taught by Stephen Frink, a well-known commercial underwater photographer who has had many pictures and articles in Sport Diver and Skin Diver magazines. Students will be required to have an underwater camera and a strobe, Sparks said.

A typical day for any of the courses will usually include two dives in addition to an equal amount of time spent in the classroom, Sparks said. And there will be time allotted for sightseeing: on the Mexico trip, for example, a whole day will be spent exploring Mayan ruins.

Students from several schools will participate in the courses. "We get people from all over the country," Sparks said. "At this point, though, most of our students come from UMass." Additional information can be obtained by writing to Project DEEP at UMass, P.O. Box 415, Northampton, 01061, or by calling 586-3448.

All you really need to know, though, is that the courses offer you a chance to explore coral reefs, and opportunities to sight a twelve-foot eagle ray or a barracuda.

"Sometimes we luck out and see a shark," Sparks added.

Who says college classes have to be boring...

AMC AMERICAN MULTI CINEMA
ADULTS $2.75 STUDENTS & SR. CITIZENS with AMC CARD $2.25 TWI-LITE SHOW $1.50 Special Engagements Excluded Twi-Lite Show - Limited to Seating
TIMES SHOWN FOR TODAY ONLY

HAMPSHIRE 4 — 584-7550 HAMP. MALL ON CAFE SQ. – RT. 9, HADLEY, MASS.
SISSY SPACEK TOMMY LEE JONES Coal Miner's DAUGHTER (6:00 @ $1.50) 8:30 PG
Walt Disney's Lady and the Tramp (6:30 @ $1.50) 8:30 G
FOOLIN' AROUND (6:15 @ $1.50) 8:45 PG
WHERE THE BUFFALO ROAM (6:15 @ $1.50) 8:45 R

MOUNTAIN FARMS 4 — 584-9153 MOUNTAIN FARMS MALL ROUTE 9-HADLEY, MASS.
PETER SELLERS SHIRLEY MacLAINE BEING THERE (5:45 @ $1.50) 8:30 PG
ROY SCHEIDER ALL THAT JAZZ (6:00 @ $1.50) 8:30 R
FOXES (6:15 @ $1.50) 8:45 R
The Black Stallion (6:00 @ $1.50) 8:45 G

Adult Entertainment
84 Cottage St.
Majestic Theater
Easthampton
Tel. 527-2346

Playing May 7-13
People
Maraschino Cherries

OMEGA BOOKS
COMICS MOVIE POSTERS BUY SELL SOME TRADE QUALITY USED BOOKS
10-1230 2-500 MON-SAT

RUSSELL'S LIQUORS
18 Main St. Downtown Amherst 253-5441

Taylor Champagne New York State .750 ml. $4.99
Giumara California Wine 1.5 L Mt. Vin Rose, Mt. Chablis, Mt. Burgundy $3.99
Vodka 80° special.... $5.25 qt.
Harvey's Bristol Cream 750 ml..... $7.49
Chateau Laurent Champagne nat. fermented in bottle.... $3.25 fifth
Liebfraumilch 23 oz.. 1.99 fifth & up

Check our other in-store specials
CHECK THESE PRICES!
Schlitz 12 oz. NR's..... 6.99 cs 1.99/6
Falstaff..... 12 oz. cans 1.60/6 6.25/case
BUD 12 oz. cans..... 8.25 cs.
OVER 2,000 COLD CASES OF BEER FOR CONCERT WEEKEND

BLUE WALL campus center at u mass

Thurs. May 8
WILLOWCREEK
Hot Country Rock
Free Admision

Fri. May 9
Spring Concert Warmup
Michael Gregory Jackson
with his new band
$2 per person, $3 per couple

Sat. May 10
HYPERTENSION
Powerful Funk
$1.50 Cover Charge

ALL AGES WELCOME
TOP sticker and valid ID required to purchase alcohol
in association with UPC Productions info: call 545-2892

"YOU DID IT!"

The Josten's college ring. The finest symbol of your achievements. Available in 10K gold, 14K gold and new Lustrium. See them all at your bookstore in this special showing arranged for your convenience. After all, you deserve it. You did it.

DATE Thurs & Fri May 8 & 9
TIME 10 am 4 pm
PLACE The University Store

campus center, umass
the UNIVERSITY STORE
JOSTEN'S

SPRING CONCERT 1980

The Student Government Supports the Spring Concert as an event for UMass students and their friends, and wants to see everyone have a good time. Please, enjoy yourselves--alot of hard work and planning has gone into making this event a successful one. In having a good time, remember UMass is a community. Take care of each other. Remember to take care of yourself. Take care of the campus. This is our home, our campus and our university. And this is our concert--Let's have a GOOD ONE!!

UMass' Cari Nickerson takes a shot in action earlier this season. Nickerson and the rest of the Gazelles will make their second straight appearance in the Nationals when they travel to Princeton, New Jersey tomorrow. (Staff photo by Ben Marsden)

Unbeaten Gazelles seek national title

By MAUREEN SULLIVAN
Collegian Staff

The silver cup rested on the motor casing of the UMass van Sunday night. It was testimony to what the women's lacrosse team had done that weekend, winning the Regionals.

Talk of Nationals flew around the NOPE parking lot. A possible higher berth than last year's fifth seed seemed almost inevitable.

And so it was. The Gazelles will travel to Princeton University this weekend seeded third behind the University of Maryland and Penn. State University, and will meet the winner of the University of Virginia-Temple University game Friday afternoon at 2:00 p.m.

How will the team do? The Gazelles finished third two years ago and lost to Penn. State in the final last year.

Could this be the Gazelles' year?

"I think we're all set to take it all," UMass captain Jean Hackett said.

"I'm ready," senior defensive leader Laura O'Neil said, "but I get nervous for every tourney. Not that it hurts me. I think it helps me get ready for tourney play, which is so unlike season play. All the teams are really good, and giving it all they got. I think the really hard part for us will be beating the lower seeds."

An example of such a thing happening occurred last year, when fourth-seed Maryland fell in the opening round.

If the Gazelles past the opening round, they face the possibility of meeting defending champion Penn State in the semi-finals.

"Penn State's in our league," UMass coach Pam Hixon said, "I think we can beat them, but the thing will be to play the best we can. Maryland's undefeated, and they beat Penn State. But I'm not looking to that right now. We plan to play one game at a time, just like we always have, and to play the best we possibly can."

That philosophy has been responsible for the Gazelles' second straight perfect season. A combination of team concepts in offense and man-to-man defense earned the Gazelles victories over New England rivals Harvard University, Yale University, the University of Rhode Island and the University of New Hampshire. Harvard, Yale and UNH will join UMass at Princeton this weekend.

In these wins, no one was the standout, though there may be a leading scorer, a catalyst for the defense, a save that proved to be crucial to the outcome. From attack to defense to goal, the UMass team concept exists and performs all its tasks—passing, marking, checking, shooting, running—more than adequately enough to win.

"There's going to be pressure on us. Everyone's going to be after us because we're the third seed," Hixon said.

UMass second baseman Karen LaVerdiere rips a hit in a recent game. The Mittwomen begin regional tourney play tomorrow. (Staff photo by Ben Marsden)

Mittwomen to URI for Regionals

By RANDY MARCUS
Collegian Staff

Coach Elaine Marasco and the UMass softball team are Rhode Island bound this morning where they will participate in the Eastern Association of Intercollegiate Athletics for Women Division One Regional playoffs. Action starts at ten on Friday morning when UMass will face Rutgers University. The Minutewomen have been selected fourth behind Rutgers (who they beat in a pre-season scrimmage), the University of Connecticut (defeated twice this season by UMass), and the University of Rhode Island (which split a doubleheader with UMass last week).

Why UMass is seeded fourth is really mysterious, Marasco says, but it hardly matters who is seeded where, because, in playoff game situations anything can happen. The Minutewomen have finished the season with an impressive 20-1 record, and their lone loss to U.R.I. was not taken as traumatically as one might think. Coach and team consensus is that the loss will serve to break the tension about going into the regionals without experiencing a defeat.

This is Marasco's first year coaching the UMass team, though she is far from inexperienced. The Oneonta N.Y. State College graduate started out as head softball coach at Staples High School in Connecticut where she took her team to the states. For the past two seasons Marasco was head coach for Yale University softball and volleyball teams. She is also head volleyball and assistant basketball coach here at UMass.

Elaine Marasco has been well accepted by her UMass mittwomen as an outstanding and knowledgeable leader. A couple of team members commented, "I've never had a coach that knows so much about the game," and "she could take a mediocre team and make it into an outstanding one." Marasco's team is far from mediocre; in fact it's loaded with talent. With this combination of coaching and playing anything could happen this weekend.

Namely, Sue Peters (10-0) and Kathy O'Connell (9-1) who are batting .569 and .315, respectively. A freshman with a penchant for hitting home runs, catcher Jackie Gaw has a season batting average of .500.

Rhonda McManus received the OK to return to action yesterday after re-injuring her kneee against Southern Connecticut State College. "It will be nice to have her stick back," Marasco commented. McManus is batting .750 as a designated hitter.

Baseball notebook
By Mike Estrada

By MIKE ESTRADA
Collegian Staff

With his team's playoff hopes still cloudy, UMass outfielder Doug Aylward has earned more than the respect of opposing pitchers lately. This week he was named the recipient of two periodic awards; the Eastern Eight player of the month of April and Yankee Conference batter of the week.

Boosted by his 15-hit performance on the Eastern Eight tournament weekend, Aylward has since upped his batting average to .391. That is good enough for second place in the Yankee Conference batting race (Mike Salinaro of UNH is first at .393) and batter of the week honors from the Yan-Con. He batted .529 through the week including a homerun against Maine last Saturday that scored the game winning tallies.

With that Maine victory, UMass has won the Yankee Conference outright for the first time in three years. The Minutemen tied with Maine in 1979 and with the University of New Hampshire in 1978. UMass finished conference games with a 7-3 record. UMaine was second with a 5-3 record with Conference doubleheader against UNH that was rained out and could not be rescheduled.

Minuteman leftfielder Mark Litano is the only UMass player on the current national Division I NCAA statistics. The junior has 4 triples to place number ten in the country. UMass pitchers saw that their early season well-being did not go for nought. They combined for the ninth best earned run average in the NCAA at 2.64 through April 28. South Alabama was the first at 1.82. Righthanded Chris Collins has had much to do with the ranking. Of the top three starters, he is the most surprising. The senior, who likes to work as fast as possible, is 5-1 with a 2.20 earned run average. He was named the Yan Con pitcher of the week with two complete game victories over Providence College (5-0) and Maine (6-2).

The Minutemen dropped to third place in the coaches' poll with a 3-2 week. Holy Cross further established itself in first with a 19-9-1 record. Maine is second at 19-9-1. UMass is third at 16-11-1.

As the smoke cleared on Mark Litano's diving grab in Tuesday night's game, there is the question of whether the attempt was advisable when his team was two-runs behind. If the Scott Smith drive had gotten by Litano the catcher would have had an easy triple with one out in the sixth.

"There was no one on base," Litano said. "If I hadn't made the catch Mike McEvilly (centerfielder) would have backed me up, he's usually there." Litano had the wind knocked out of him when he landed on his stomach.

The Minutemen travel to American International College today for a single game with the Yellow Jackets. The only thing that the Minutemen know about the playoffs to this point is that they must keep on winning to hope for an at-large NCAA bid.

NOTES: In the top of the ninth inning against Springfield, UMass catcher Oleksak suggested to coach Dick Bergquist that Rob Steitz be intentionally walked with the tying run on first base. The move paid off as Jim Lewis struck out the next batter and got Tony Lachowetz to pop up to Dean Bennett after loading the bases with a rather unintentional walk to top hitter Tom Brown.

MASSACHUSETTS DAILY
Collegian
VOLUME CIX, ISSUE 138 Student newspaper of the University of Massachusetts/Amherst Friday, May 9, 1980

Student govt. budget vote violates Constitution

By MARC FAGELSON
and ED LEVINE
Collegian Staff

The Student Government violated its Constitution at Wednesday's Undergraduate Student Senate meeting when they approved next year's budget without amendments to the Budget Committee's recommendations.

According to the SGA Constitution, copies of the Budget Committee's preliminary report must be made available to senators and campus media services at least one week before public hearings of the report.

However, senators did not receive a preliminary report and many voiced concern that the first look they got at the budget was on Wednesday night.

"I got that budget two hours before the meeting, and that's because I helped put it together. Besides the officers, and Bari Njiiri (Budget Committee Chairperson) none of the people, unless they were with an organizaiton, had seen it," Senator Diane Mueller said Wednesday.

"I would agree that the senators' constitutional rights were impeded. However, the reason it occurred was because we only had a limited amount of time to work with," SGA co-President Rich Moran said yesterday. He added that allocations were available to senators upon request as the budgetting process progressed.

The Constitution also states that the Senate "shall not act on next year's budget until the Budgets Committee gives its report."

But according to Senator Jay Flynn, the committee never had a meeting to vote on their report. Certain binding clauses, which should appear on the committee's report were not in the report, he added. "The report was not correct," Flynn said.

Senator Michael Cohen, a member of the Budgets Committee, said the discrepency of the RSO budget request, which was originally $276,000 and was changed to $312,000, caused the procedural problems.

"We followed the procedures to the best of our ability. We had preliminary totals ready but there was a big problem where we didn't know what the RSO office was doing. If they got $312,000, that would have meant a two percent cut across the board. We either do the best we can and allow the Senate to hold open hearings, or there is no budget and student services don't function,"

TURN TO PAGE 10

CONCERT '80
UMass anticipates 'Big Event'

By ED LEVINE
Collegian Staff

After months of anticipation, speculation and intense planning, Spring Concert 1980 will become a reality tomorrow.

The highly anticipated event, considered by many to be the highlight of the school year at UMass, is expected to draw an estimated 30,000 people to Alumni Stadium to hear the music of the Allman Brothers Band, Bonnie Raitt and Lonnie Liston Smith.

"Because things are going so well at the moment, I'm almost afraid to say that things will be great," Bob Humphreys, Union Program council administrative coordinator and the show's producer said last night. "I think people should come down and have a good time because they have earned it. And I hope they earn a good show next year."

Humphreys said the stadium gates will be opened at 9:30 a.m. and the concert will begin at 11:30 with Smith. Raitt will appear about 1 p.m. and the Allman Brothers will go on about 3:00. The show will end at 5:30 p.m., he said.

About 3,700 tickets remain to be sold for the event, UPC Talent Coordinator Art Edelstein said last night. Tickets will be sold today at the Fine Arts Center Box Office and Saturday at the stadium to UMass students, employees, and Five College area students for $15 each, he said.

Edelstein said student tickets will also be distributed free of charge from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. today at the "pillbox" outside the third floor of the Campus Center facing Metawampe Lawn.

"Things are going to go great if the weather holds," Edelstein said. "Security is looking good, the stage is magnificent, and if people keep the lid on things should go real smooth."

The National Weather Service in Hartford reported last night there should be "fair" weather tomorrow with high temperatures in

TURN TO PAGE 13

The Allman Brothers Band will be the final act at the stadium in this weekend's Spring Concert. (File photo)

Allman Brothers main feature this year

By ED LEVINE
Collegian Staff

Taking a break from recording an album in Nashville, the Allman Brothers Band will appear at UMass tomorrow on the last stop of a five school Northeast tour.

LONNIE LISTON SMITH

When completed, the new album will be the band's tenth, since the group first formed in 1969. That year the band released their first album, "The Allman Brothers Band," followed by "Idlewild South" in September, 1970, and "At Fillmore East," in July, 1971.

In October of 1971, tragedy struck the band when the elder Allman brother, Duane, was killed in a motorcycle accident at the age of 24. Following his death the band stopped performing for a short time but rebounded in February, 1972, with the release of "Eat a Peach."

Five more albums followed in the next seven years, including "Brothers and Sisters" in 1973; "Win, Lose, Or Draw" September in 1975; "The Road Goes On Forever" in November, 1975; "Wipe The Windows, Check The Oil, Dollar Gas" in 1976; and "Enlightened Rogues" in February, 1979.

The current Allman Brothers Band includes Gregg Allman on keyboards and lead vocals; Dickey Betts on lead and slide guitars and vocals; "Jaimoe" Johanny Johanson on drums; Butch Trucks on drums; David "Rock" Goldflies on bass; and "Dangerous" Dan Toler on lead guitar.

The Allman Brothers will be preceeded by popular female vocalist Bonnie Raitt.

A California native, Raitt attended school in the Boston area and began performing in Clubs in Cambridge, and later, in Philadelphia.

Her first album, "Bonnie Raitt," was released in 1971 followed by "Give It Up" in 1972; "Takin' My Time" in 1973; "Streetlights" in 1974; "Home Plate" in 1975; "Sweet Forgiveness" in 1977; and "The Glow" in 1979.

Opening the show will be keyboardist Lonnie Liston Smith, whose music has been described by many as a combination of jazz, soul and popular music.

BONNIE RAITT

Smith's first album, "Expansions" was released in 1975, followed by "Visions Of A New World" the same year and "Renaissance" in 1976. His latest album, "Loveland," was released earlier this year.

Future Spring Concerts? It's all up to us, now

A lot will be on the line tomorrow.

This year's Spring Concert will be a make or break event. If all goes well, we can be assured of many more exciting concerts in the future. If things go wrong, if there are problems, this may be the last major outdoor concert on this campus.

There are many people who are nervous about the show. Campus administrators, security and dormitory officials are all very apprehensive. Their concerns have been voiced over the past few months and many hours of meetings were needed to resolve many issues.

Everything is now set and the entire University community is looking forward to tomorrow's show with high expectations. Now it's up to us, the students, to insure the success of the concert.

Everyone will be watching the students tomorrow. The town, University administrators, the press and fellow students. If things go wrong the students will be blamed and the students will bear the consequences.

Concert officials are urging everyone attending the concert to follow a few simple regulations which are designed to protect the safety of everyone:

If you plan to bring beverages into the stadium, bring no cans or bottles; only visitors who have guest passes should go into the dorms and students should encourage their guests who do not have passes to leave the campus following the concert; and all students should listen to and respect the security personnel working at the concert. They are students too, and they are there fo help us.

The concert is intended for people to have a good time. It is possible to have a good time without infringing on the rights of others. It is also possible to have a good time while respecting yourself. Take it easy, don't over-indulge and don't put yourself in a dangerous situation.

So, it's all up to us now...

All unsigned editorials represent the majority opinion of the Collegian Board of Editors.

DIGEST
The Associated Press

Iran will reshuffle hostages

(AP) — The Iranian militants holding the American hostages intend to rotate them among a number of cities, sending those with the most suspicious backgrounds to the least pleasant locations, a Tehran newspaper said yesterday.

The conservative newspaper Donya Iran said the militants, who earlier this week reported keeping the 53 hostages in Tehran and 12 other cities, planned to rotate them so that "American intelligence will be confused." The militants began dispersing the hostages after an aborted U.S. rescue mission April 25 that killed eight American servicemen in the desert 200 miles east of Tehran.

One of the American hostages has tried to commit suicide three times and may be dead, Italian journalist Oriana Fallaci has reported, quoting an unidentified source. She did not name the hostage.

The coffin of Yugoslavia's President Tito is lowered into its grave at the end of funeral ceremonies in Belgrade yesterday. President Carter did not attend the funeral of the former leader, drawing complaints from some of his political opponents. See p. 10. (AP Laserphoto)

Brown withholds rescue details

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Defense Harold Brown refused yesterday to tell a Senate committee how U.S. commandos planned to rescue American hostages from Tehran if their mission had not been scrubbed.

U.S. officials have consistently refused to give details of the rescue plan beyond the point where it was aborted in the Iranian desert because of the failure of three of the mission's eight helicopters.

Brown, who testified at a closed-door hearing of the Senate Armed Services Committee, told reporters later that "it is clear that some details of what was planned would, if revealed, compromise our ability to carry out anti-terrorist activites."

Sen Henry M. Jackson, who said he asked the defense secretary for details of the rescue plan so the committee could determine if the operation was prudent, declared after the meeting: "We are at an impasse."

King supports reorg, but won't be rushed

BOSTON (AP) — Gov. Edward J. King said yesterday he favors in principle the House-passed reorganization of public higher education in Massachusetts, but he won't be stampeded into approving the shakeup.

The reorganization, incorporated in the pending state budget for the fiscal year that begins July 1, is aimed at saving millions of dollars in administrative costs.

"I strongly support the general thrust of what the House did," King told a special commission which was created to come up with a plan for reorganizing higher education. But "we are not going to be rushed into anything just for the sake of doing something."

Nonetheless, according to an aide, King apparently wants something done before the 1980 legislative session ends.

As passed by the House several weeks ago, the $6 billion budget includes a plan for phasing out most boards involved in public higher education in favor of a single board of regents.

This would eliminate the board of higher education, the state secretary of education and boards running the state college and community college systems.

Exempt, for the time being, would be the boards of trustees of the University of Massachusetts, the University of Lowell and Southeastern Massachusetts University.

House Ways and Means Chairman John J. Finnegan included the reorganization plan in the bill, saying he was tired of waiting for others to advance proposals. The rider was tought unsuccessfully by House members who said they preferred to wait for the commission studying reorganization to report.

The Senate Ways and Means Committee has recently completed its hearings on the appropriations bill, and floor action is expected in a week or two. Senate Ways and Means Chairman Chester G. Atkins has not said what his plans are for the reorganization rider.

King told the special commission, which was originally to have made its report by March 30, that he was surprised by the House action. But he wanted to "make it very ultra clear that eliminating dollars not going to those seeking an education are elements that I very strongly support." He called the House action "a pretty decent stimulus."

Finnegan has said his reorganization plan could save some $5 million in administrative costs.

The special commission has set up two subcommittees, one dealing with public higher education in Boston and the other involved with management of the entire system.

A commission aide said yesterday that the Boston subcommittee will issue its report by late next week, but no deadline had been set for the other group.

Pam McMurray, a press aide to King, said the governor is "anxious for something to be done before the Legislature leaves.

"He was letting them (the special commission) know he still supports them but also supports work the House did in the budget."

Mesh Oxford

• Beige
• Black • Red

the SHOE BIN 187 n. pleasant st., amherst

AMHERST DELI
Sandwiches - Cold Cuts - Bagels - Salads
! SPECIAL SPRING CONCERT HOURS !
Fri. Nite Open Til 2 AM
Sat. Morning Opens at 9 AM

3 MORE publishing days left in the semester! Place those classifieds NOW!

WHAT'S THE ULTIMATE 4 LETTER WORD FOR THE MOVIE WITH SOMETHING TO OFFEND EVERYONE?

COMING SOON TO A THEATRE NEAR YOU!

MOTHER'S DAY 1980
Sunday, May 11th
11 am to 7 pm

APPETIZERS
Chilled Clamato Juice 75
Fruit Cup with Sherbert 1.50
Marinated Herring 1.95
Crabmeat Cocktail 2.95
Soup du jour 1.25

ENTREES
Chicken Rice on Rice Pilaf 5.95
Broiled Fresh New England Scrod 5.95
Stuffed Shells Marinara 4.95
Coquilles St Jacques 5.95
Beef Bourguignonne 5.95
Broiled Beef Kabob Flambe 5.95
Prime Ribs of Beef 7.50
New York Sirloin (16 oz) 7.95

Top of the Campus Restaurant
Reservations Recommended 549-6000
Every Mother will receive a Spring Flower

Subscription rates

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian (USPS 333 220) is published daily Monday through Friday, excluding January, June, July, and August, fall 915 at 113 Campus Center, University of Massachusetts at Amherst, MA 01003. Second class postage paid at Amherst, Mass. Postmaster: Send address changes to Massachusetts Daily Collegian, 113 Campus Center, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, MA 01003

A swan contemplates the fate of the library tower as it looks for some supper in the campus pond. (Staff photo by Wayne Rosenberg)

T.A.'s worried over job cuts, won't be informed until fall

By SEAN HARVEY
Collegian Staff

UMass graduate students who depend on jobs as Teaching Assistants to stay in school are not being told by their department heads whether they will be retained in the fall, according to members of the Graduate Student Employee's Union.

The state budget will be approved some time in July or August, according to Evelyne Woestelandt, a T.A. in the French and Italian department, but T.A.'s will not be told until the fall whether they will have a job.

"This year's budget cut many T.A. positions and there is a good chance that next year, more positions will be cut," said Betsy Oakes, a T.A. in the Anthropology deparment.

"A large number of graduate students will have to leave school because they have no money."
in some deparments because T.A.s have been forced to assume exorbitant workloads.

One T.A., who wishes to remain anonymous, says she is teaching four sections of an introductory course this semester in addition to taking three courses. "I don't have time for the courses I'm enrolled in," she said. "My teaching load takes up 32-35 hours and T.A.s are paid on a 20 hour basis."

The top salary for a T.A. is $4,000 a year.

One big problem the G.S.E.U. has, Oakes, said, is that it is not recognized by the law as a union. A 1979 ruling by the Massachusetts Labor Relations Board said T.A.s are not employees but rather students on financial aid and therefore have no bargaining rights.

One reason T.A.s are over worked, Oakes said, is because T.A. money is allocated to departments on the basis of the number of students in a course. If the enrollment decreases T.A. positions are cut so the T.A. will assume a double workload in order to keep the job.

The next meeting of The G.S.E.U. is May 15 in Campus Center 802.

Koffler expects state Senate to increase University budget

By BRIAN J. O'CONNELL
Collegian Staff

UMass Chancellor Henry Koffler, speaking at yesterday's UMass Faculty Senate meeting, said he was "almost certain" that the Massachusetts State Senate would recommend more funding for the University than the Massachusett's House of Representatives had last month. The voted to appropriate over $84 million toward the 1981 UMass budget.

Koffler said he had asked the Senate Ways and Means Committe for an increase of $2.6 million over the House's recommendation, at a budget hearing yesterday in Boston.

"I believe that our presentation yesterday probably got us some good points," Koffler said, adding he thought the presentations made by UMass administrators and students at the hearings "were very constructive."

Koffler also told the Senate he had approved the Women's Studies Major last week, but said the Woman's Studies program cannot expect to expand their curriculum or receive extra resources.

The Women's Study major will have to compete for resources like everyone else," he said.

In otfler senate business, UMass Vice-Chancellor for Student Affairs Dennis Madson announced that over 4,400 graduating high school seniors are expected to enroll at UMass in 1981, an increase of 500 students over the administration's expectations. Madson said the enrollment indicated "the advantage of academic values at UMass."

UMass Student Government Association Co-president Rich Moran, speaking at the meeting, told the Senate he was "surprised" the undergraduate senate's $1.5 million budget, which was approved by the senate last night, passed without "too much debate." "Although we had to cut $200,000 (from the budget) we are trying to become financially responsible. It's livable, and we're going to have to work with it," he said.

Student Govt. Presidents ready to appoint new Attorney General

By ED LEVINE
Collegian Staff

The Student Government Association should have an Attorney General for the 1980-81 school year bv next week.

SGA co-President Rich Moran said the Attorney General search committee concluded its hearings last week and has submitted its recommendations to the co-presidents for their approval. Moran siad he and co-President Rich LaVoice will appoint the Attorney General at next Wednesday's Undergraduate Student Senate meeting. The Senate must then approve the co-presidents' choice.

One member of the search committee siad current Attorney General Ann Bolger, and two others, Dana Collier and Tim O'Leary, were reccomended to LaVoice and Moran. Although Moran would not state definitely who he would appoint, he gave the indication that Bolger would probably be re-appointed.

Bolger was appointed the position last fall after the SGA had been without a permanent Attorney General since last spring when Robin Adams left the office. Will Pierce served as acting attorney General between Adams and Bolger. Bolger was appointed last fall after LaVoice and then co-President Brian Burke nominated former Attorney General and SGA co-President Jon Hensleigh to the position, who was rejected by the Senate.

Indian dancers perform for Hampden Audience

By LINDA PLAUT
Collegian Staff

Kathak, a North Indian form of classical dancing which uses expressive gesture-language and choreographic pantomime to convey stories of the Indian heritage, was performed last night in Hampden Theater before an enthusiastic audience.

Shama Bhate and Pranati Pratap, both from Pune, India, have trained for over 15 years and are considered the most promising among Kathak dancers today. They danced with grace and in harmony, as each gesture subtly counterpointed the other. The women radiated charm and established an immediate rapport with the audience. They alternated story-telling with the dancing, but their Indian accent was difficult to understand.

Kathak is an intricate art form and involves fine motor control and no waist movement. Emphasis is on footwork, facial expression and hand movement. Each hand gesture has its own meaning.

The women danced barefoot and wore bright gold dresses (khamis) and purple tights (salivar). A purple sash (chunny) was worn to further conceal the breast. Ornate gold jewelry hung from their ears, neck, and wrists. On each ankle were nearly one-hundred linked bells which the dancers jingled in time to the music of the Indian drums and Indian harmonica, a piano-like instrument with three high, three medium and three low-pitched chords.

The dancers seemed to compete with the drummer to see who was the more skilled, and appeared to tease each other as the music and dance jumped from a slow to a vigorous pace. The challenge is well worth seeing as the rhythm and movement blend together in an exciting display of skill and stamina.

Last night's performance, sponsored by the Third World Women's Task Force, was to benefit the Seta Rampersad fund.

Dancers Shama Bhate and Pranati Pratap from India perform in Hampden Theater last night. (Staff photo by Bobby Davis)

Black Affairs

Photographic Highlights of the 1979-1980 1980 School Year

April 20, AP Laserphoto of Hatian Protest in Miami

This past year has been one of fun and of frustrations. We as a community have experienced both accomplishments and set backs. We have often rallied to the call when needed but other times we have been slow to respond.

This has been a year of internal criticism some of it constructive and positive some of it destructive and detrimental.

All in all most of us have survived the year and will be back next year or will be moving on to other phases in our lives.

The staff of Black Affairs would like to wish our readers the best of summers and new strength and vitality for the year ahead.

LUTHER By Brumsic Brandon, Jr.

What's Happening In the Valley

Afro American Music at Hampshire College

On Monday evening, May 12, at 8 p.m. the AFRO-AMERICAN MUSIC SERIES at HAMPSHIRE COLLEGE will present a CONCERT by VISHNU WOOD AND THE SAFARI EAST ENSEMBLE. This performance is also part of the World Music Festival at the college. Vishnu Wood is a well-known jazz musician, composer, and former Hampshire faculty member. Joining Wood on double bass will be his wife, ELISE WOOD, on flute with RAHN BURTON on piano and HORACE ARNOLD on percussion. This event is sponsored in part by a grant from the National Endowment for the Arts. THE PUBLIC IS CORDIALLY INVITED WITHOUT CHARGE.

The concert program will feature pieces in the world music idiom as well as Afro-American classics. Vishnu Wood's own "Inauguration Composition," prepared for Adele Simmons' installation as President of Hampshire in 1977, draws widely on musical traditions around the world. (A dance version choreographed by the Rod Rogers Dance Company recently had its premier in New York City.) Additional selections co-composed by Vishnu Wood express African, Arabic, and Japanese idioms. Interspersed will be familiar Afro-American classics such as "After Hours" and "Sweet Georgia Brown." In his introductory remarks to each composition Wood will explain the technique and musical theory associated with each distinct idiom.

VISHNU WOOD has performed in over 20 countries in Europe, North and West Africa, the Caribbean, India, and Japan. From 1967 to 1970 he lived in Morocco at the Government's invitation to perform and do research on native musical traditions. Wood has just returned from a State Department-sponsored tour of Algeria and Morocco with the Charles Mingus Dynasty playing in Mingus' bass chair.

Latin Music Latin Disco

On Friday, May 16, from 9 p.m. until 5 a.m. at the Hampshire College Dining Commons, Rte. 116 Amherst, LA CHARANGA CACHE ORCHESTRA will be appearing in a benefit dance, alternating with Latin Disco music will be Disc Jockey Mickey Diaz. Admission is $2.00.

The public is invited to attend.

LA ORQUESTA LA CHARANGA CACHE aparecera en un baile beneficio el viernes 16 de Mayo de 9:00 p.m. a 5:00 de la madrugada en el Hampshire College Dining Common en la ruta 116 de Amherst. Alternando con La Charanga Cache estara el Disc-Jockey Latino Micky Diaz. Admission $2.00.

Queen Mother Moore

SCERA Student Affairs Team publishes report on UM library

By SARAH HAMMANN
Collegian Staff

The Student Affairs Team of the Student Center for Research and Advocacy recently published "When the Chips Are Down..." an investigative research publication on the UMass library and problems which have developed since its closure last August 31, 1979.

In an effort to provide UMass community members a clearer understanding of the imminent library investigation, Joe Cohen, head of the Student Affairs Team, spent six months researching the library problem.

Organized chronologically, the booklet details the "cast of characters" involved in the library saga, and closely recounts their exact connection with the original contract problems.

Written in story fashion, the booklet claims to expose "everything you've always wanted to know about the library but they were afraid to tell you...," replete with such details as the building's initially faulty construction under General Contractors O'Connell and Sons, Inc., of Holyoke, diagrams from the Loomis and Loomis investigative report in September, 1979, and comments from conversations and correspondence between UMass Chancellor Henry Koffler, President David L. Knapp, and officials from the Boston Attorney General's office.

In April 1969, the library had been originally designed as an office building for graduate students. By 1973, however, the 28-story structure opened with a total estimated cost of $16.8 million. And according to the Guiness Book of Records, it is now the "World's Tallest Library."

Cohen cites the absence of UMass representatives at the Bureau of Building Construction's meetings as one of the major cogs in the wheel of progress to solve the library problem.

The trade publication "Engineering News Record" says, "There are four basic causes of building facade failures: ignorance, carelessness, negligence, and greed. Ignorance is the only one we can hope to improve."

FOUR SEASONS

Moosehead Beer 12 oz btl ---------- case $11.99
Schlitz 12 oz cans ---------- case $7.49
Schaefer 12 oz can ---------- case $6.99
Schmidts 12 oz btl ---------- case $6.49
Falstaff Beer 12 ozcan ---------- case $5.99
Cossack Vodka ---------- 1.75 litre $8.99
Le Domaine Wines ---------- 4 litre $6.99

Chablis, Rose, Rhine, Burgundy (plastic containers)

Allini Lambrusco ---------- 1.5 litre $2.99

Also Available Ice, Coolers & Kegs

Wines/Liquors
rte.9, hadley, ma./584-8174
in front of the malls

MASSACHUSETTS BAY COMMUNITY COLLEGE
Division of Continuing Education
MAKE UP THAT COURSE THIS SUMMER
First Day Session and Evening Session Begin June 2
50 Oakland St., Wellesley Hills, MA 02181
Tel. (617) 237-1100 ext. 132

TOC LOUNGE
presents
NOMAD ENSEMBLE
featuring
Hasaan Dawkins * Dave Wertman
Tom McClung * Claire Arenius
In the Restaurant
Saturday, May 10th 9:30-12:30
TOC sticker and valid ID required to purchase alcohol

Adult Entertainment
84 Cottage St.
Majestic Theater
Easthampton
Tel. 527-2346

Playing May 7-13
People
Maraschino Cherries

ROOSTER'S
Serves you best!

"Look for Rooster's Exam Week Special May 15-21"

138 Old Sunderland Road
N. Amherst

DEERFIELD DRIVE-IN ROUTE 5 & 10
SOUTH DEERFIELD, MA
665-8746
Playing May 9 - 11

SATURDAY NIGHT FEVER
JOHN TRAVOLTA
PG
A PARAMOUNT PICTURE
Showtime: 8 PM

ACADEMY of MUSIC
Northampton, Mass.
Sat. Sun. Mon. Tue.
At 7:00 and 9:00
(no showing Friday)
"An exceptional work. With her stubbornness and sincerity she reminded me of a young Katharine Hepburn." -Rex Reed
★★★½

AT THE GATES OF SMITH COLLEGE

CELEBRATE MOM'S DAY
with the ultimate in southern rock-boogie.....
The One and Only
BLACK OAK ARKANSAS
Sunday May11
Tickets $5.00
at Capp'n Bullfrog's
FLAT STREET
BRATTLEBORO, VT 802-254-8257
18 yrs - photo ID required

Sidewalk Sale
starts FRIDAY, MAY 9

SHIRTS
If Perfect... $12-$18
Almost Perfect...
$2.50 each
3 for $6.50

A SPECIAL SELECTION OF:
Lead Crystal

reg. 6.95
3.95

CHAIRS
DIRECTOR'S CHAIRS
FOLDING CHAIRS
SLING CHAIRS
ORIG. TO 25
NOW... 14.95-17.95

MIDDY TOPS
reg. ~~13.95~~ 9.95

SPECIAL ASSORTMENT OF:
Bedspreads
IN TWIN & FULL
ORIG. TO $12

4.95-7.95

DANSKIN
20% OFF

FACES
A Store-full of Ideas

Downtown Amherst /Open 10-6, Mon.-Sat.

R.I. considers new drinking age

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — Saying the flow of teenage drinkers from Massachusetts had to be stopped, the Rhode Island Senate approved a bill yesterday that would raise the state's drinking age from 18 to 19, and then to 20 next year.

The bill, approved on a 29-15 vote, now goes to the House, which has approved a separate bill that would immediately raise the age to 20.

The bill was strongly supported by lawmakers from nothern districts who complained about the number of rowdy Bay State teens who came to Rhode Island bars to drink.

Sen. John. C. Revens, D-Warwick, said the bill was being considered only because Massachusetts had raised its minimum drinking age last year.

WORK STUDY STUDENTS

Summer jobs as telephone interviewers on a study of urban parks.

Must be available in June and August, primarily evening hours; 20+ hours/week, $4/hour.

Call The Environmental Institute before May 16, 545-0648.

USED BOOK SALE
20% OFF
Our Reg. Prices
Fri & Sat
May 9 & 10
VALLEY BOOK SHOP
Downtown
Amherst

Rooms at Prices You Can Afford

Pay once for the whole summer!
Single $200
Double $150
Full use of kitchen
washer, dryer, TV
Pi Kappa Alpha Fraternity
418 North Pleasant Street
For Info call 545-2150

WHAT'S THE ULTIMATE 4 LETTER WORD FOR THE MOVIE THAT'S GROSS, OFFENSIVE, RAUNCHY AND PERMISSIVE?

COMING SOON TO A THEATRE NEAR YOU!

DORMITORY RESIDENTS

SPRING CONCERT
VISITORS POLICY

Only the following guest will be allowed into the residence halls for Spring Concert Weekend.

1. Persons with Spring Concert Guest Passes - must present picture I.D.

2. UMass students with valid student I.D. signed in by dorm resident.

THIS POLICY
WILL BE STRICTLY ENFORCED

Tired of Being Left Out in the Cold?

The Collegian advertising department is looking to warm up your life! If you have a car, 15 hours a week and a lot of motivation, then we would like you to be an advertising representative next semester. Sound interesting? Stop by the Collegian Office — 113 CC and talk it over with Katie Kress, Ken GrandPre, or Joan Daly. Or call 545-3500.

The Collegian is an affirmative action, equal opportunity employer.

PUT A STOP TO BAD BRRRBRAKES

Precision Bendix brake parts are built to stop you on a dime. We feature a complete line of Bendix parts including shoes, pads, drums, rotors, master cylinders, for nearly every car. Bendix, it's a brand worth stopping for.

Inspection Special
$1. savings on any purchase over $10 with this coupon
(Expires May 15, 1980)

Specialists in Parts For:
*Foreign brake systems
*American passenger car & truck systems
*Drum & Rotor machining

Buy Bendix brake products at:
Campus Auto Parts
"Turn to us to keep your wheels turning"
Tel. 549-3945
107 Sunderland Road
No. Amherst, MA 01059
Bendix

SPRING CONCERT 1980

The Student Government Supports the Spring Concert as an event for UMass students and their friends, and wants to see everyone have a good time. Please, enjoy yourselves--alot of hard work and planning has gone into making this event a successful one. In having a good time, remember UMass is a community. Take care of each other. Remember to take care of yourself. Take care of the campus. This is our home, our campus and our university. And this is our concert--Let's have a GOOD ONE!!

Editorial/Opinion

Independent alternatives

NANCY MAFFUCCI

As Republican Congressman John B. Anderson launched his independent candidacy for President last week, he also unleashed some unanswered questions which face the American public about its current political electoral policies. Namely, is the two party system de d? And are candidates forced to change their policies because of media politics? Anderson's Republican party bid ended as it became increasingly apparent that former California Governor Ronald Reagan had all but secured the Republican nomination. God forbid! Claiming that Americans were dissatisfied with the almost inevitable Carter/Reagan choice, Anderson sought to provide what he viewed as a reasonable alternative for the nation as well as the voters. But whether Anderson maintains the same honest image he evoked in the early part of the campaign during this new independent campaign is a vital question in understanding the adequacy of our current political system.

Having captured endorsements from the New York Times and prominent author Norman Mailer as early as January of this year, Anderson's campaign efforts led Americans to believe in him—the intellectual. Indeed, Anderson's early campaign rhetoric reinforces this scholarly notion about him. He said, and quite eloquently too, that he would address the issues which major party candidates would avoid. And he is particularly proud of many of his pointed stances. Labeling himself as a fiscal conservative and social liberal, he also admits that he is not the kind of candidate to take a popular stand to appease the crowd. But will he maintain these unpopular views so proudly, now having entered the Presidential race as an independent candidate? His language thus far has been literary, formal, and clear. It is a bit trite but most assuredly, it emphasizes the man's command of the issues as well as his command of the English language.

An early Anderson speech poses a logical argument to the American people. Quite simply, he outlines what he believes is the fundamental problem facing us all. His explanation includes a clear argument as well as coherent reasoning—a positive attribute for any Presidential candidate to possess. Mr. Anderson's argument is broadly based on American dependency upon foreign oil. He depicts the problems this dependency poses by using a military metaphor. It is, he says, "an enemy that threatens the vital interests of the United States, Western Europe, and Japan." And to reinforce this slightly overused literary trick, he pictures the casualties of this war as declining purchasing power and available jobs, not human lives. They are captured via political extortions, he says, and not through the use of military weapons. He also suggests that this battle is equally as grave, if not more so, than one fought with guns on foreign soil because it is taking place in the homeland.

This sample of Anderson language shows how he incorporates his message within the military metaphor. This context works well for an opening statement, since it captures the attention of the audience by initially speaking of war. He pacifies the audience at the same time by changing the usual disturbing context of war to eliminate the human body count. He argues, as most people might agree, that a war fought with personal sacrifice rather than with human sacrifice is more sensible. These principles are the roots of his platform.

It doesn't seem likely that this style will change, but is does appear altogether possible that the taste of success, the demands of a full scale campaign, and the strategies necessary to secure success, may change the message which Anderson sends. If the clarity and honesty, which captured so much attention for Anderson in the first place, is lost within the mumble of political rhetoric just like that of his competitors; and if his pointed stances falter, then we can assume that he is just like all the rest. Furthermore, this suggests that the political system as we know it cannot tolerate a reasonable alternative, and therefore, is wholly inadequate. If the quest for the Presidency changes the message which Anderson sends as the election date nears; and if he succumbs to media ploys as the others have, then, unfortunately, there is little hope for a thoughtful, intelligent, candidate to be elected.

I do not mean to suggest that John B. Anderson has already changed his political policies or his manner of campaigning. Thus far, he seems to be consistent in these areas. But even the speculation of asking Uncle Walt to be a possible running mate—the most popular media man among the older crowd—leads me to question his reasoning. It also leads me to question the possibility of any candidate ever being elected soley on intellectual competence.

When Anderson was considered a minor candidate, he was able to make pointed statements and take unpopular stands, but now having the potential to disrupt the electoral process, he seeks to capture the largest voter percentage possible. How far will he go in trying to do this?

Nancy Maffucci is a Collegian columnist.

Wednesday, May 14 is the last day to submit applications for the position of Editorial Assistant. See Eric Janszen in the Collegian office for details.

'ROME ON THE LINE FOR YOU, FATHER FOGARTY.'

"Now the rumors behind the news"

JOHN C. PARKER

Good morning folks: welcome to the Festival of Life Radio Show. We're on the air from now 'til seven when Jody Powell and Tom Brokaw host the Creeping Meatball Hour.

In the next little while we've got some old favorites for ya; we'll thrill y'all with Mr. Peanut himself singing Happiness is a Warm Gun. We've got the entire flip side of Charlie Manson's folkie album; and on deck is a fan-tastic in-depth interview with Hyman Rickover we know you'll get a charge out of. Hey, we've even got some great (just great!) reel to realpolitik fromthe Boy Scout-NeoNazi Youth Brigade Double Jamboree and Klan Bake. So stick with us, troopers; first The News.

"Former union organizer and liberal Democrat Ronald Reagan addressed the Daughters of Bilitis in a surprise move to garner votes in the Lesbian community, traditionally Goldwater territory. Several members of the D.A.R. were arrested outside as they sprayed police with Lace and pulled the hands off of the clock in the square. One of the non-spokespeople for the group, identifying herself as Zip-Beep, said 'Missiles in every pot. Pot in every missile. Stone the bastards out of the Bomb Age! Liberate your own head!' Pope Copy-Cat the First could not be reached for comment.

The weather for Wednesday will be fair in the tri-state area, with 60 percent chance of fallout and 20 percent chance of tomorrow. Thursday has been postponed on account of rain. In sports, the Kabul Olympics got underway with a bang today with Tag-team Rock-Climbing and the first round of the Nerve-gas Eliminations. The Alternative games, called the Rebel Underground Rodeo, begin tomorrow. The first sheduled event is Tank Roping, followed by the Cross-Country Strafing Avoidance Marathon. The Fire Bomb Hurl and the Surface to Air Missile Championships, scheduled for Thursday, have been cancelled due to an expected Hard Rain. Now back to the Festival of Life. But first, a paid political advertisement.

"GEORGE BUSH—HEAD FOR THE MOUNTAINS!! America needs to get back to what made her great: Economic, political and intellectual Imperialism. Our hard-working ancestors oppressed the Indians from Boston to L.A. and decimated the Red Nations, to build the greatest country in the free world. It's time to make America strong again! Decisive leadership will be needed to put this country back on the royal road to world domination. GEORGE BUSH IS THE ONE CANDIDATE WE WON'T HAVE TO PREEN."

Well hello kiddies, and in case you forgot, you're tuned in to FM 99, Radio Free Newark. This is the Festival of Life Show and have we got music for you—after some public service announcements. Your Highway safety Commissioner wants to remind you that today (yes, today) the new Straight Through On Red law goes into effect. The meeting of Citizens for a Flat Earth will be held tonight in the Taft-Hartley Civic Auditorium at 7:00. Guest speaker will be ace physicist Dr. Edward Teller. The topic of Dr. Teller's address will be "A Flat Earth—How we can achieve it."

And now, finally, we've received a new release from the Coalition of Thirteen. It's a single called Julius Cesium (137): I've given it a preview spin, and I know you'll just love it. Here goes:

"If you don't go to the power-plant, you'll miss the sight of your life/If you don't go to the power-plant, you're just a fascist sycophant/'cause today's the day the Clamshell has its pic-nic./The FBI will infiltrate, with protest-suits and shouting no-nukes camp/The RCP will agitate, spouting their New Left rhetorical brand/So if you don't go to the power-plant, you're just afraid to take a stand/'cause today's the day the Clamshell has its pic-nic."

John C. Parker pleads temporary sanity.

Letters

SGA action called 'farce'

To the Editor?

As members of the allegedly uprighteous Student Government Association, we feel the need to express our disappointment with the behavoir of the SGA concerning the FY 81 Budget Act. We feel the responsibility of this body was not excersised in passing this act without the true informed and knowledgeable consent of all Senators. This is a violation of the justice and democratic representation that this body allegedly represents and upholds.

The Budget Act itself was not available to all Senators for consideration until less than one-half hour before it was to be voted on. Therefore, we reason that the Senate, concerning the budget consideration, could not have acted as an informed and responsible body for lack of necessary prior knowledge and comprehension of the entire budget.

The Senate has repeatedly stressed the importance of fully discussing a motion before taking action on it. We have been led to believe that every Senator had the right to acquire all the facts before voting. Because of the frenzied rush to pass the Budget Act, without amendments, the budget was railroaded through without this imperative discussion and questioning ever taking place.

We respect the hard work done by the Budget Committee and support their submitted budget proposal. We are not disputing the integrity of their decision. We are protesting a violation of our right to understand these issues fully before actually voting on the budget act. The point here is not that we contest the Budget itself, but rather the manner in which it was rammed through the Senate. Senators, who did vote for this railroading, were in effect denying information to Senators who wanted it.

From the start of this year, we have had it impressed upon us that following parliamentary procedure was of high importance and that we must be informed Senators. In light of the described behavoir of the Senate, this has been a farce.

Diane Mueller
Lisa Breslow

Senate by-laws 'violated'

To the Editor?

This letter is to inform the student body of the very serious violation of Student Senate By-Laws and parlimentary procedure at Wednesday night's student Senate meeting. Questions of ethics aside, three sections of the by-laws were broken.

This is just another example of how the Senate ignores its own procedure and the basic rules of fair-play (laid down in parliamentary procedure) whenever they feel like it. Additionally, the individual senators and the campus media were not given adequate time to scrutinize the budget. The way in which the budget was passed was not only illegal, but also a disservice to the students of UMass.

Jay Flynn
Member and Former Chair
Senate Governmental Affairs Committee

Goin' down tobacco road

photos by Wayne Rosenberg

SIDEWALK SALE
SAVE 20-50%
on selected items
Thurs.-Sat., May 15-17
EARTHWARES
FABRIC & YARN
103 N. PLEASANT ST. AMHERST (413) 256-8810

Muskie, Gromyko to meet in Vienna

WASHINGTON (AP) — Edmund Muskie, incoming secretary of state, will meet next Friday in Vienna with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko, the State Department formally announced yesterday.

Department spokesman Hodding Carter said it is "highly unlikely" that the meeting will involve detailed negotiations.

He said the meeting did not signal any change in the American opposition to the Soviet presence in Afghanistan. "It can hardly be taken as anything but a desire to keep communications open," Carter said.

There has been no ministerial-level meeting between the two countries since last September. In the interim, relations have deteriorated, due to the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan, the NATO missile modernization decision, and their consequences.

President Carter congratulates Secretary of State Edmund Muskie after he was sworn in at the White House yesterday evening. Muskie was confirmed by the Senate Wednesday to replace Cyrus Vance. Maine Governor William Brennan yesterday announced the appointment of U.S. Attorney for Maine, George Mitchell, to replace Muskie in the Senate. (AP Laserphoto)

You are invited to a free lecture by
John M. Tyler, C.S.D.
Member of the Christian Science Board of Leadership on
"Spiritual Man Discovered"
First Church of Christ, Scientist
Corner of Center & Masonic St.
Northampton
Tuesday, May 13 - 8 PM
Ample Parking Free Child Care

湖南園酒家
Hunan Garden Restaurant
MANDARIN SZECHUEN CUISINE
"The Best Chinese Food"
Luncheon Specials Dinner Specials
Take-Out Service Full Cocktail Menu
Sun.-Thurs. 11:30 a.m.-10:00 p.m.
Fri. & Sat. 11:30 a.m.-11:00 p.m.
10 Belchertown Rd., at Route 9, Amherst
256-0251 next to: Poor Richard's 256-0252

Save Gas and Money! Amalie Imperial 2 saves gas—up to 5% better gas mileage. And that saves you money!
NEW!
Pays for itself. And then some.
HAPCO
AUTO PARTS
534 Main St. 256-6414
Amherst, MA 256-6415

SAVE Money & Time While You Enjoy the Summer!
Have you Payroll Check deposited directly to a FREE CHECKING Account at Old Colony Bank and enjoy the Summer without having to wait for the mailman to deliver your pay check. At Old Colony our checking accounts are free! No per check charge - no minimum balance - no monthly fee -Just Simply Free! And, if you sign up for direct deposit of your pay check during May, Old Colony will provide you with fully personalized checks at no cost to you. So stop in today and get started with your free checking account at Old Colony Bank.
Old Colony Bank
OF HAMPDEN COUNTY N.A.
AN AFFILIATE OF THE FIRST NATIONAL BANK OF BOSTON
Office Hours
Mon-Wed 10am - 5 pm
Thurs-Fri 10 am - 8 pm
Sat 10 am - 5 pm
HAMPSHIRE MALL
other offices in Chicopee, Holyoke, Springfield, Westfield

Election '80

Carter should have gone to Yugoslavia – opponents

(AP) — The day before President Carter travels to Philadelphia on his first out-of-town trip in six months, Democrat Edward M. Kennedy and Republican George Bush suggested Thursday that Carter should have gone to Yugoslavia instead.

Bush, campaigning in Maryland for Saturday's presidential primary, said "the president made a big mistake" in not attending Marshal Tito's funeral in Belgrade. "What happens in Yugoslavia is going to be very critical" after the Yugoslav president's death, he said.

Kennedy, who is challenging Carter for the Democratic presidential nomination, did not directly criticize the president for declining to attend the Tito funeral, which drew a host of high foreign officials including Soviet President Leonid I. Brezhnev.

"It was his decision to make," said Kennedy. "I just say that (going to Yugoslavia) is what I would have done."

But the Massachusetts senator, also campaigning in Maryland, said the presence of the president of the United States at the funeral would have served "the long-range interests of the U.S. people and the Yugoslavian people."

A White House official, who asked not to be named, said the United States was "ably represented" at the funeral by Vice President Walter F. Mondale and the president's mother, Lillian Carter.

Referring to the Iranian crisis, this official said Carter "felt a foreign trip under these circumstances would not be appropriate."

Carter to visit Cleveland

The president, however, is going to Philadelphia for a "town meeting" Friday, ending his six-month-old "Rose Garden" strategy of refusing to join the campaign as long as Americans are held hostage in Iran.

The Carter-Mondale Presidential Committee announced Thursday that the president will visit Cleveland on May 29, five days before the Ohio primary election.

Anderson begins drive in N.C.

Rep. John B. Anderson, the Republican who is now running as an independent candidate for president, began a drive in Charlotte, N.C., to get his name on the North Carolina ballot in the November general election. To do this, he must gather 10,000 petition signatures by May 16.

Anderson urged Democrats and Republicans to "take a leave of absence" from party loyalties and support his "new politics" candidacy.

Reagan contemplates VP

GOP presidential candidate Ronald Reagan relaxed at his California home and canceled plans for weekend appearances in Nebraska and Maryland, both sites of GOP primaries Tuesday. An aide, Joe Holmes, denied the former California governor was "overconfident," but acknowledged Reagan was preparing to contemplate a choice of a vice presidential running mate.

★ Budget

CONT. FROM PAGE 1

Cohen said.

Student Attorney General Ann Bolger acknowledged the violations of the Constitution, but did not consider the violations serious.

"Historically, when you look at our Constitution, there are things in there that have been ignored and we use other processes de facto and they become our procedure. We have received no complaints from any groups funded or not, or any student in the SGA," Bolger said.

TOC LOUNGE

presents

JULIA BURROUGHS
Friday, May 9th
9:30 - 12:30
TOC sticker and valid ID required to purchase alcohol

BLUE WALL campus center at u mass

Fri. May 9
Spring Concert Warmup
MICHAEL GREGORY JACKSON
with his new band
$2 per person, $3 per couple

Sat. May 10
HYPERTENSION
Powerful Funk
$2.00 Cover Charge

ALL AGES WELCOME TOC sticker and valid ID required to purchase alcohol
in association with UPC Productions info: call 545-2892

WELCOME TO OUR NEW HADLEY STORE!

OVERSEAS AUTO PARTS

CARRYING THE MOST COMPLETE STOCK OF FOREIGN AUTO PARTS AND ACCESSORIES IN THE PIONEER VALLEY!

Route 9 Shopping Center on Hadley/Amherst line

HOURS
Mon.-Fri. 8-5:30
Sat. 8:30-2

PHONE
253-3403

SPRING INSPECTION EXHAUST SPECIALS!

COMPLETE VOLVO EXHAUST SYSTEM
Fits 1986-1972 140 series 889.95
TO FIT 1973-1975 VOLVO SERIES 140 SERIES
FRONT MUFFLER 831.95
REAR TAILPIPE/RESONATOR 816.95
COMPLETE VW BEETLE EXHAUST SYSTEM
fits all bugs 1966-1973 824.95

20% DISCOUNT WITH THIS COUPON
GOOD ON ALL MERCHANDISE*
NAME _____
ADDRESS _____
YR..MAKE.
MODEL _____
GOOD TILL MAY 20, 1980
*EXCLUDING SPRING EXHAUST SPECIALS
C

Friday and Saturday
2 for 1
Happy Hour
9:30-11:00
— All Mixed Drinks —
— Disco — 9 til 1
THE PUB
15 East Pleasant St. AMHERST

OMEGA BOOKS
COMICS GAME POSTERS BUY & SELL (SOME TRADE) QUALITY USED BOOKS
10-6:30 2-5:00 MON-SAT

FREE WHEELING
A MUST FOR THE BICYCLIST SEND $1.00 TO FREE WHEELING • P.O. BOX 5 • AMESBURY, MA. 01913.

Carlo of Naples
foods of Italy
Now serving wine and beer.
45 State Street, Northampton, Mass. 01060, 584-9722

THE VELVET HAMMER INN

BACK-SIDE SALOON
GOOD FOOD & DRINK BEING SERVED
OPEN DAILY 11:30 A.M.
BEST PIZZA & HOT OVEN GRINDERS ON CAPE COD
TAKE OUT 771-0727
Our Kitchen Keeps Cookin' til 12:30 AM

CAFÉ RITZ hyannis
LUNCHEON
DAILY HAPPY HOUR
RAW BAR
DELI-COUNTER
Specialty desserts & coffees
Approx May 1-Oct 13

ANYBODY WHO'S ANYBODY
WILL BE DANCING AT THE VELVET HAMMER

209 MAIN STREET HYANNIS, MASS 775-5505

THE IN-SPOT TO RALLY ON CAPE COD THIS SUMMER
VELVET HAMMER FEATURING A SUMMER OF POPULAR ROCK WITH "THE STOMPERS", "ACES & 8", "JET", "BREAKERS", "ARROW", "OMEGA", "BRANCH BROS.", "SUNDANCE", ETC. HAPPY HOURS WITH "THE SHOES"
Applications for Summer Employment now being accepted.

record village sale

ENTIRE INVENTORY OF
LP'S • 8-TRACKS • CASSETTES

40% OFF MFG. LIST

EXAMPLE OF THE SAVINGS:

LIST	REGULAR	SALE
798	699	4.79
989	799	5.39
998	897	5.99

6 HOUR
4 p.m. to 10 p.m. ONLY
FRIDAY, MAY 9
(OUR STORE WILL BE CLOSED FROM 3 PM. to 4 P.M. IN ORDER TO PREPARE FOR THIS SALE)
EVERY FAMOUS LABEL & ALL YOUR FAVORITE ARTISTS ON SALE!!!

EVERY MUSICAL CATEGORY:
•POP
•ROCK
•JAZZ
•CLASSICAL
•EASY LISTENING
•SHOW
•DISCO
•MALE & FEMALE VOCAL
•COUNTRY
•NEW WAVE
•SOUNDTRACKS
...PLUS MANY MORE

CBS RECORDS

BOZ SCAGGS "MIDDLEMAN"

JOE PERRY PROJECT "LET THE MUSIC DO THE TALKING"

maxell
UDC 90 MINUTE BLANK CASSETTES
$2.49 each
$4.98 PACKAGE OF TWO

HAMPSHIRE MALL
ROUTE 9
HADLEY, MASS.
PHONE 586-6351
STORE HOURS 10-9:30 MON. THRU SAT.
Give the gift of music.
PLUS MANY UNADVERTISED SPECIALS!
record village

To place a Collegian Classified
•Come to Collegian Office CC 113
•8:45 to 3:45 Mon-Fri
•Classified deadline is 3:45 two days prior to publication day

Collegian Classifieds

Collegian Classified Rates
•15c per word
•Student rate 10c per word
•Cash in advance
•5 consecutive days 5 % discount
•Phone number FREE

AUDIO

Stereo for sale Yamaha 600 receiver, Aup 103 speakers Hi Tachips-10 turntable great condition $500 or BO Kevin 549-4600 x 335

Kenwood Amplifier Marantz Cassette Deck, Phillips Turntable, Rally Sport Camero, BO Jon 253-3791

AUTO FOR SALE

1966 Jeep CJ5 V-6 4WD, new top, price negotiable 549-1098

1978 AMC Gremlin 4-cylinder, 4-speed, 16000 miles, $2900. Visit 1022 Lincoln Apts., Amherst, after 3 pm

Honda Civic 1975 very good condition recent tune up AM/FM stereo excellent mileage $1800 negotiable 253-2226

Olds Cutlass 1968 runs well first $250 takes it call 549-6468

MG Midget Michelin radials $900

1970 VW Squareback excellent mechanical condition, body rusted $400 665-2802

1973 Chevy Laguna 2 dr vinyl top, AM FM cassette, Jensen co-axial speakers, must see, $1400 or BO Paul 6-5998

1977 Triumph TR-7 coupe Excellent condition, sunroof, green with tan interior, 37,000 handles superbly $4400.00 545-3540 days, 1-498-2466 eves

1967 Dodge Dart body fair good condition $400 GRC1028 or Ph 549-4457

1969 Olds Wagon: $150 549-0713 nites

(Must Sell) 67 Impala Convertible BO Peter 549-0618

1968 Mustang Cheap call Bill at 546-6187

BEER

Beer, homemade, fun, simple, inexpensive, original German beer recipes, $2.00 Wine recipes $2.00, Kalua Recipe $2.00 #6 Williams Box 1685 Pompano, Fla 33060

BRANDYWINE

Summer sublet with Fall option one bedroom in two bedroom apt 549-5831

CAR INSPECTION

Get ready for Spring Inspection May 15 See S.A.W.

EXAM WEEK SPECIAL

Hungry? See Rooster's Exam Week Special, May 15-21

BUSINESS OPPORTUNITIES

Address and stuff envelopes at home. Any area. $800 per month, possible. Offer, send $1 (refundable) to: Triple "S" 869-MI Juniper, Pinon Hills, CA 92372

FOR RENT

2 bedroom Apt available June 1 with Fall option $240 includes all utilities Call 549-5935

1 room for rent Amherst Center call mornings or evenings 256-6997

Large 2 bedroom apt in Nhampton $275 per mo. & utilities 584-2430 keep trying

Economy Apt 3 bedrooms, extra storage rooms. June and Sept terms $235 plus partial utilities Call 5-6 pm Skibiski Realtors Northampton 584-3428

Cliffside 1 bedroom sub lease Avail May 19. $200 Fall option 665-2802

Southwood 2 bdrm townhouse Dirt Cheap call 256-6089

FREE, one months rent. 4 bdr apt Summer sublet w Fall opt 256-0778

6 bedroom Belchertown farmhouse Summer sublet/Fall option on bus line $500/month 323-7682

1 or 2 bedrooms in 3 bedroom apt in Puffton for Summer rent negotiable call 549-6321

Room in house for rent end of May-Aug $90 per month 10 min from Campus and Amherst Center call Laurie eve 256-0637

Rooms for Summer rental Amherst price negotiable call 6-5081 or 546-5100

2 bedroom apt Squire Village bus route Summer with Fall option air, pool, hot water 665-4919

Summer rooms for rent $70, $80 and $90 price includes utilities use of kitchen color TV much more singles, doubles, and triples at 395 No Pleasant St. 253-9987

Three big bedrooms 10 minute walk from campus $330/month call after 6 549-0699

2 bedroom Colonial Village Apt bus route June 1 with option call Lisa Robin evenings 253-3740

Summer rooms for rent in S. Amherst on bus route price neg. call 546-4364/546-4362/546-4285 keep trying

2 bdrm apt Colonial Village nice, across from bus stop Rt neg June 1 Fall option 253-3195

FOR SALE

Frigerator 2½ cu ft $75 or BO 6-8452

Sanyo Cube Refridgerator best offer 253-5083

For sale two Spring Concert tickets best offer 549-6574

Dacor tank 72 CI & reg $150 Steve 256-6388

Couch, two easy chairs, footstool $100 or best offer 665-7526

5 cu ft refrigerator excellent condition $75 call 549-4083 after 6 pm

Hanglider Sky Sports Bobcat 19' standard $450 David 253-2779

200 New England Patriots Cheerleaders Posters $75.00 549-4058

5 cubic foot refrigerator must sell moving off campus excellent condition $40 or BO call 546-7940 call after 4:00

Spaulding Executive Irons 2-PW, 2 yrs old $125 serious golfers only

Epiphone studio amplifier stylized electric, hollow body, guitar, $75 each or $140 package; Extra's! 549-2832

Ohaus 311 cent-a-gram accurate 311 g to X. $100 new $60 or BO 546-6498

For sale 3 piece lvg rm set price $140 or best offer excellent cond. call Deb or Joan 253-2107

Spring Concert Ticket best offer 665-7795

Electric Mandolin $75 Medeira banjo 6-5693

Yamaha FG512 12-string guitar perfect condition $220 new $190 firm Roger 665-4786 665-7923

Nike Pro Racing Flats size 11 used once $20 Steve 6-6863

Carpet new rust shag 546-4008

Campus Ctr Hotel reservations Spring Concert weekend call Barry 546-5465

Refrigerator 4 cu ft excel cond $95 6-8133 PM

Twin bed, Boxspring $40 or BO call Mary 549-0029

Fender electric guitar $250 or BO ask for Mike 5-0850 or 6-1055

Double bed box spring and mattress will deliver best offer 253-7978 Gary

FOUND

Found: a set of keys outside Hampshire DC call Dave 6-7834 to ID key chain

Keys found at Southwest Spring Concert six keys on a key ring. Please call 545-0960 or come to the Southwest Asssembly Office in Hamden Center!!!

A Kwikset key found behind Curry Hicks Cage 5/6/80 call Mark 546-5362

Sweater at Orchard Hill concert 546-1294

Pair of glasses in Tobin 665-3976 ask for Larry

GAS

Does your car suck gas? See S.A.W.

GUITAR FOR SALE

Gibson Les Paul Deluxe excellent condition $400 Ampeg 60-watt amplifier $225 call George before 2 AM 542-2539 or 253-9284

HELP WANTED

Back-to-School Editor position available responsible for coordinating Collegian Back-to-School Issue must be available end of August through first week of Sept editing, lay-out and reporting skills a must. Contact Rob Stein or Fran Basche, Collegian Office, 545-3500

Summer work with the oldest, largest and best-paying student program in the country, Call 253-2597 for interviews.

Collegian Photo Dept. needs asst. editors for next semester. See Paul Price at Collegian Office, 113 Campus Center or call 545-3500

Summer work-study person Personnel Office Assistants at Southwest. For info contact Jean Steiner, Business Mgr 5-1552

We provide a house, a salary range of $10,000 to 14,800 + additional stuff. We are looking for a couple who can create a home, in our house, with 4 to 6 teens. Couple should have knowledge of court related adolescents, an ability to relate and set limits, plus a sense of humor. For more info call the home finder at the Center for Human Development at 733-6624 or send resume to CHD 52 Maple Court, Springfield, Mass 01105

Part-time writer/editor (2) Sports and Community Affairs apply at Amherst Record, 109 Main Street, Amherst 256-8331

Address and stuff envelopes at home Any age or location $800 per month, possible. See ad under Business Opportunities. Triple "S"

HOUSE FOR RENT

Beautifully restored 200 year old Cape in Pelham. 5 rooms, 2 fireplaces & woodstove. Available January, 1981 $430 + utilities 253-7233

LOST

From NOPE Olympus key ring & wallet--reward $20 Matt 6-5631

Red folder notebook w/imp research papers 549-6744

Book "Floyd Gibsons Your Headline Hunter" reward for return 665-3976 Larry

Gold Cross Pen May 7th in Franklin DC call Carol at 6-8543

Anyone that found some tools in a gray toolbox and a tune up analyzer in a styrofoam box next to Cashin please contact Don at 546-5984 I need them!

Lost blue notebook contained 25 page paper in Spanish please call 549-5507

White Jack Daniels key chain w/2 keys and a "J" intial. . .same day Cheryline bowed to the bike rack and kissed the dirt. Call Julie 6-8390

MOTORCYCLES

Honda CL175 ex. cond. luggage rack $500 or BO 665-7744

Yamaha 750 excellent condition $1000.00 253-7324

1978 Kawasaki KZ650 excellent condition extras best offer 549-4547

Yamaha 76 Enduro $550 Suzuki 77 RM125 $500 549-3597 after 6:00 PM

MOVING HASSLES?

Co-operative moving of goods to Washington DC area. If interested call Susan 772-6259 after 8:00 PM

NEED A ROOMATE FOR FALL?

Call 546-6742, late

NEED A SUMMER JOB?

Staff members wanted for Summer co-ed camp in Maine If interested, please call (413) 567-6356 after 4 PM

PERSONALS

STICK IN YOUR EAR: Free ear piercing with purchase of studs. Silverscape Designs 253-3324

Attention: All alumni of Nancy Lamb's French 132 and 148 classes. Claas reunion May 9 (Friday) 6-9 PM Herter 3rd Floor Lounge venez tous

Concert Tickets for sale call 546-6426

Sporting Goods Co-op: Clearance sale open Mon-Fri 10-3 (next to Post Office in Student Union)

Slim Whitman T-Shirts!! Hallelujah! CC Concourse Thu-Fri

Kim from Wedbster—Can't wait for our 2nd date—Tom

Get Syched to watch the Band from the stands next year!!!

Doug Limone you broke my heart. Why Haven't you called? 546-6742

Dickinson—To the girls of 4 west This semester's been the best From floor meeting number 1 To the rising of the sun Utica Club and Unicorns all this week end Love, The Swamp Bros.

Tukes Congratualtions on California Barb

To whoever found my wallet Monday afternoon—thank you so much for bringing it back —C.M.

Newsbreak! J "Hot to Trot" Z. is back 13th floor JA go get them Zim! Wally

Snoots! Alias the Iowa Kid Have a good summer but don't go back to potato land Wally

Jimmie, here's the personal you wanted before you graduated: congratulations on your new job and good luck at your last track meet. Kat

Senutes—The IowaKid, you've amde my year. Judes—see Massachusetts isn't that bad

Mad--Happy belated Birthday!! Love Bec

BJB HGDTYX4 IHTOYC YEB

You-UMass up my life! —MRQ

Woody I'll miss you 143 BE

We're overstocked with peppermint lifesavers. I need a wink. Tattela

Norwood girls have ugly feet

Mel, Sharon, Darlene, Rose, Michele, and Mae (This is getting ridiculous!) If we survived Halloween, we can sure as hell survive the Allman Bros!!

Good Luck Alix Turner

Dearest Rosko, sending you love, warmth, laughterand friendship is worth more than flowers and short notes! Don't you think?! Chucklet

Sport and I'd trade all my tommorrows for a single yesterday HNNN

Scott—Happy Birthday! Enjoy the day. We'll celebrate tonight! Love ya, Nanci

Allman Brothers Bonnie Raitt, do up some ice cream before it's too late; "Harry's Ice Cream Trucks"

Best bet for munchies tommorrow Harry's Ice Cream Trucks be there or be square, Harry

Blappy Birthday, Blusan We'll REMIND you to brush your teeth Love Ann and Lizabeth

Martigras Happy Birthday Love Litteone

Get Psychedfor Band Camp!! (only 15 more weeks)

Cuke, four years of blending into very fine friends. Thank you Jennifer

Lambda DeltaPhi needs boarders for Fall Call 5-0939 ask for Mary stop by 389 North Pleasant

But the whole thing is Helen, have a happy 19th, but don't get too stiff

Paul—Happy 21st Birthday (5—11) Babe in the woods

Sue you are a true critter of LL&H! Don't go foxing off into the Summer sunsets until finals are over! Good Luck —BVM

To my Garp with the green underwear, 730 days later and YLT. Lets steal some langostinos!!

Have a Happy 20th Jeffery!

Gook: Happy 20th. Finally!! Love, Rat and Bombshell

M. Gannon—for Spring Concert booter! Happy Birthday! The Lord

Linda 438 V.M. Practice what you preach - Grow Up

Looking for roomate for June Manhattan or Queens call 549-3871

PSYCH MAJORS WANTED

$$$ or exp. credit available. Sign up in 4th fl. Lobby of Tobin for exp. S80-65 "Playing The ROLE OF A RESEARCHER" Many sessions available. Takes 40 min. for $3 or 1 exp. credit Other Social Science Majors welcome

RIDE WANTED

Yellowstone or thereabouts call 546-4949

From S. Hadley to Umass daily during Summer session call Nina 532-0218

N'hamp to UMass for 9:30 am class, 5 days all Summer share gas & conversation Rachael 586-0233

Looking for a ride to Cincinnati, Ohio on May 18th Call Leslie 586-6578

Ride needed to N Carolina or ptsSouth May 12-16 call Terese 532-3326

ROOMATE WANTED

3 quiet housemates seek 4th Pelham yard, woods. Summer, Fall option; $106 + negotiable 253-3528 after 6 pm

Male or female for Summer 2 bedroom Brandywine rent negotiable call Wendy 546-6970 Dan 546-6971

Townehouse Apt need 2 or 3 roomates June-Aug $70/mo fully furnished call 549-1420

Roomate wanted for Fall semester Brittany Manor call Mike or Mitch 546-5097

Own room in spacious Townehouse Apt Jun, Jul, Aug $90/mo Murray 6-5735

Puffton Village 1 bdrm in 3 bdrm apt for Summer pool, A.C., 549-4196

Roomate wanted for new house in Belchertown Summer, Fall option own room, on bus route $80 mo + 323-5572

West Yarmouth Cottage female roomate wanted very resonable Missy 586-1752

Roomates wanted to share Hampton Beach waterfront cottage with 2 working girls $180/month call Laurie (617) 534-9034 or Ann Marie (617) 537-2720

Two female non-smokers to share two bedroom Brandywine apartment call 546-7968 Rose or Laura

Summer roomate wanted Cliffside own large bedroom furnished pool, tennis courts 135.00/mo negotiable 665-2020 late evenings best

2 vacancies female preferred house mile from campus call 549-6882

Martha's Vineyard person needed to share ideal Summer home Walt 549-3981

Looking for responsible M/F to share Southwood Apt cheap rent 60 + util May 25 - Aug 31 546-4162

Roomate wanted to share large house in N Amherst from June 1 - Sept 1 rent $108.00 549-6547

Brandywine one or two roomates wanted Fall option Summer sublet call Kath or Lisa 549-4033 nice spacious place

Space for one Amherst house starting Fall sem call for details! 323-5262

Concert expected to draw at least 30,000

CONT. FROM PAGE 1

the 50s and 60s. The service said there is little chance of rain throughout the weekend.

Over 500 security personnel will be on hand at the stadium for the concert to help keep the peace and protect the throngs of concert goers. About 132 UMass police and Franklin County Sheriffs will be supplimented by nearly 400 student security workers, including members of the Greek community, the UMass wrestling team, karate club and various Recognized Student Organizations and dormitories.

"Everything has been moving real well.Everyone knows what is expected of them and everyone has a specific idea of what is to be accomplished," said UPC Security Coordinator Andy Gordon. "Last year we were new at it and it worked well, but there were a few problems and this year we've eliminated the problems we had."

In addition to the security, two first aid tents will be set up under the north end of the stadium, opposite the stage. The tents will be staffed by 20 UMass fire and first aid personnel, students trained as emergency medical technicians. Three ambulances will also be at the stadium, staffed by nine paramedics.

"We've had great cooperation from Health Services," Humphreys said. "There will be doctors on call and extra staff on duty in health services and Cooley-Dickinson Hospital."

Last year about 25 people had to be taken out of the stadium by ambulance, Humphreys said. Most of the victims were suffering from overdoses or a mixture of drugs and alcohol, he said.

Concert officials also said no bottles, cans, kegs or breakable containers will be allowed into the concert area and people entering the stadium will be searched.

Food, non-alcoholic beverages and merchandise will also be available at the concert and restrooms will be provided at the stage end of the stadium.

"I think everyone is going to be pretty well together. I don't think there are going to be any big problems," Dean of Students William F. Field said last night.

Ken Burnham, of the Office of Residential Life, also said he expected no major problems in the dormitories this weekend, partially due to the limitation if the number of guests allowed into the buildings.

"I expect things to go well. People know they have to keep guests in line. I hope everyone has a good time and keeps their activity in the dorms civilized," Burnham said.

"The production is the best we've ever had," UPC Promotion Director Darlene Lorkiewicz said last night. "The only thing that could mess up the show is the people."

Two rooms available (individually) for Summer sublet in three bedroom Townehouse apartment semi-furnished Fall opt for sublettors, on two bus routes Bay State phone, HBO--prefer non-smoker, student,very reasonable 549-5192

Female roomate needed for cottage on beach Harwichport, 575 Summer call Lisa 253-7788 or Niki 546-6070

2 rooms in 3 room Puffton apt available for Summer, 1 with Fall option. Air cond, tennis, swimming pool, on bus route call 549-5791

1 bdrm in 2 bdrm apt NE st $100/mo on bus rte Smmr w/Fall option Elaine 545-0878

2 females needed for W. Yarmouth cottage call nights 549-0339

ROOM WANTED

Two males seeking living arrangements for Fall semester PLEASE help us out call 253-5989 any time

Female needs housing for Fall call Pat 665-4197

S.A.W.

FIX YOUR OWN CAR at the Student Auto Workshopp. Space, tools, friendly mechanics Tue., Wed., Thurs., 3-9 Fri., 12-5 Sat., 10-5 545-0673

SERVICES

UMass Legal Services Office offers free legal services to fee-paying graduate and undergraduate students in the areas of University administrative problems; landlord/tenant disputes; and uncontested divorces and guardianships. LSO also gives advice on Small Claims Court, and limited counselling in criminal matters. Call 545-1995; Room 922 Campus Center UMass.

Need help moving? Student with truck will help or consider renting truck. Tim 253-3366

Canadian Immigration Loyan Consultants Ltd. (Established 1973), offices in Hong Kong and Vancouver. Experienced advice offered in connection with immigration to Canada. All enquiries will be treated in confidence. Please send all enquiries to: Suite 1205 IBM Tower P.O. Box 10153 Vancouver, B.C. Canada V7Y 1C6

STORAGE SPACE

Storage space available for Summer 256-6177

Going home for the Summer? Store your small furniture and personal propertyy in a totally secure and fully insured warehouse. Pick-up and delivery available. Call 594-0548 between 2:00-5:00 PM for reasonable rates

SUMMER BORDERS WANTED

Convenient on-campus location single and double rooms available first come first serve please call 253-3919 after 6:00 PM

SUMMER SUBLET

Inexpensive Summer sublet! Only $200. per month 2 bedroom fully furnished A/C, pool, garden plots, etc. to see it is to love it! Call now! 665-7756

Female roomates for scenic South Deerfield. Furnished, on bus route $75 month 665-7796

One bedroom Summer sublet Townhouse apts N. Amherst rent negotiable call 549-6282

Five bedroom house in Northampton Center Summer sublet Fall option 450.00 + 584-6385

3 furn bedrooms 70 + Amherst 253-7082

2 bdrm Amherst ctr 1 block from common $225 253-0204

Puffers Pond 2 bedroom apt June 1 to Aug 30 549-4055

TO SUBLET

2 bdr apt Colonial Vlg June-Aug $190/month bus rte 256-8454

1 4 bedroom apt Swiss Village bus rte Fall option scenic view 256-6344

Summer Sublet Swiss Village 4 bdrm 2 baths has sliding glass door on to second floor balcony. Best offer 253-9407 after 5:00

4 bdrm/2 bath 320/mo bus rt ut inc Fall opt 253-5570

2 bedroom Southwood AC pool, for Summer furnished 200/mo 665-4921

3 bdrm apt to sublet June 1-Aug 31 Townehouse Apts fully furnished $250 mo 549-5995

1 bedroom to sublet for Summer w/Fall option reasonable rent, nice area near waterful & nature trails call 549-3984 nights

Sublet house June-Aug in Northampton $341 per month plus utilities call 5-6 pm Skibiski Realtors 584-3428

2 bdrm Cliffside furn A/C pool all util Fall option 665-4644

Own rm in 2 rm apt bus pool, AC, furnished, June-Aug (Aug optional) 253-2742 eves

To sublet 2 bedroom Col Vill apt for Summer Fall option price negotiable August rent paid for 256-8809

June1 - August 31 2 bedroom Puffton Village rent negotiable 549-0455

3 bedroom Rolling Green June-August $265 a month or BO utilities inc 546-9637 546-9609 546-9748

3 mos for the price of 2! 3 bedroom Rolling Green Apt 6/1 - 8/29 546-9843 or 546-9853

1 bedroom in house in Sunderland bus, lawn, garage May rent paid $90/mo occ may 22. 665-4395

1 bedroom Colonial Vlg apt June-Aug price negotiable 253-2961

Pufton Summer lease 1 bd. Fall opt. 549-6637 again eves

Rent negotiable 2 bdrm apt Squire Vill Apts 665-3660

Larger bdrm in 2 bdrm Southwood Apt great for 2 friends Fall option rent negotiable call 253-5201

Two bedrooms Puffton furnished, rent negotiable eves 546-6236, 546-6247

Summer sublet two bedrooms in four bedroom apt. One with Fall option. On bus route. Call 253-7220 evenings price negotiable

3 bedroom Townehouse Apts fully furnished $225 or best offer 549-5897

1 bedroom in 3 bedroom Puffton Apt Summer sublet rent negotiable 549-6803

2 bedrooms available in Swiss Village cheap rent everything included for June to August call 253-3534 or 546-8079

Southwood 2 bd twnhs June-Aug w/Fall opt rent negotiable call Fred 549-2614

Two bedroomRolling Green A/C, pool, bus rt, all utilities, furnished 6/1-8/30 253-5210 $250 or Bo

3 bedroom Apt 215 month Amherst Center 256-0365

$75 own room in quiet 2 bdrm house Cushman, bus route, sublet June-Aug Sandy 549-0258 5-7 PM

2 bedroom apart Brandywine partly furnished A/C, pool,call Beaver, "D", WoJo 545-0210

1 br Cliffside apt, 2nd fl, dish washer, on bus rt, pool & tennis cts, $207 mo util inc avail July 1 with option to renew for Fall call 665-2814 after 6 or wkends rent negotiable

BEST BUY 2 BDRM PRESIDENTIAL APT CALL 549-2652

Summer sublet 3 bedroom apt furnished, exc. view, rent negotiable call 253-5214

2 bedrooms in Swiss Village apartment $75 each/month negotiable 6-1 9-1 call 253-7857

1 bedroom in house in N Amherst Fall option $90/month + utilities 549-1639

2 bedroom Brandywine fully furnished, on bus routes Summer only price negotiable 549-2832

Summer Sublet!! One room Colonial Village busroute, pool, $110, neg. 253-3956

2 bedroom Townhouse fully furnished clean busroute pool air conditioning 256-8883 $200/month

Cheap! $250/mo 2 bdrm apt in Southwood, on bus route, June-Aug with Fall option call 256-0316 or 549-0699

Unbelieveable bargain Brandywine Apt take it over June w/option for Fall at last yrs rental prices 549-6152

Colonial Village 2 bedroom furnished bus route, pool, Fall option $200 or best offer call 253-5028

2 bdrm apt Colonial Village for June 1 option for Fall furnished 545-2707 (ask for John Muggee) or 253-2204

Puffton 2 bedroom 2 bath June - August $280 negotiable 546-9202, 546-9183

Desparate sublet Colonial Village $175 2 bedoom Fall option call after 7:00 253-3141

Riverglade Apt 2 bdrm $255. Call 253-7478

Sunny 2 bdrm apt in Colonial Village bus rt swimming pool Fall option $225 253-7714

Room in Belch house 6/1-8/31 Fall option bus route $125 + negotiable 323-5784

Brandywine 1 bdr apt Summer sublet 549-6786

Bdrm 6/1 to 8/31 nr UM & Am Center great for Summer rent neg 549-6467

1 in 2 bdrm Squire AC pool 7500 opt 665-7564

Sublet with Summer Fall option two bedroom townhouse bus route pool 260 month Riverglade 253-7661

Luxurious 5 bedroom house Echo Hill, 3 bedrooms available washer/dryer tennis, pool, pond 253-2294

To sublet 3 bed rm apt in Puffton we need 1 roomate Summer only call Kerry 546-5482 or Cathy 253-2647

Rolling Green 2 bdrm June-Aug 546-6044 5546-6948 night rent negotiable

1 bdrm Cliffside Apt Summer with Fall option rent negotiable 665-2487 eves

2 bedroom apt Cliffside completely furnished 180/mo Summerw/Fall option call 665-4258

2 bedrm apt furn, air cond, pool call 253-7478 Summer only

Furnished 2 bedroom Townehouse rent negotiable 549-4734

2 bedroom Cliffside Apt Sunderland Summer w Fall option 200 mo 665-7703

YA CAN'T GO WRONG!! 2 bedroom sublet with possible Fall option Pool, tennis, dishwasher, disposal, "furnished completely" spoons, forks!!! $200 negotiable!! 665-3024

Puffton Village 3 bedroom apt lease June 1 call 549-0165

One minute from campus one room in large house Fall option 549-4409

3 bdrm Rolling Green for Summer Live for 3 months pay for 2 546-1199 546-9919

1 or 2 bedrooms in 3 bedroom Puffton apartment 75/mo Fall option 549-6482 George

2bed room Cliffside $177 month Summer sublet 665-3629 after 5:00

1 or 2 bedrooms in Puffton furnished rent negotiable Bill 546-6005 6-1-8-31

1 bdrm in 5 bdrm house 1 block from campus w/Fall option 549-4620

1 bdrm Cliffside apt on bus route pool tennis AC cable TV June-Aug w/Fall opt $200/month 665-4891 after 5 PM

Spacious 3 bedroom apt with porch over looking Holyoke Mtn range swimming pool tennis ct. lot of open space $315 + w Fall option 253-5978

1 bedroom/efficiency Fall option furnished Amherst 549-5038

Townhouse Apts 2 bdrms furnished rent negotiable June-August 549-4915

3 bedroom Puffton Apt. furnished rent negotiable 549-4874

Space for three people available in large house on bus route, two milesfrom Campus, yard, garden area 83/month + util option for Fall call Bob or Mark 256-0768

2 bedroom Colonial Village Summer sublet, pool, bus route, 225/mo 256-6281

Amherst Center Summer sublet negotiable 25[illegible]

Two bedroom Summer sublet at Rolling-Green at low $200 a month What a deal! Air cinditioning, pool, on bus route. June -August Call now! 546-7084

1, 2, or 3 bedrooms in Puffton apartment for Summer call Lisa or Janet 546-7190

2 bedroom apt 1½ mi from Campus near Puffers Pond AC utilities included available June 1 with Fall option 549-0098

Rooms in house Summer Fall option N Amherst acre of land bus rte 549-4001 eves

2 bedroom Colonial Village late May w/Fall option, bus, pool, reduced rent, 253-2457 3-7 PM

Swiss Village 4 bedroom apt on bus route/2nd floor--nice view subletting for Summer with option for Fall $110/mo call 253-5348

Puffton Village 2 bedroom furnished or unfurnished June 1 - August 31 $230 (negotiable) 549-6420

Sunderland two bedroom Summer sublet Fall option bus route 665-7954

Female roomate to share two bedroom apt between UMass and Amherst center rent reasonable negotiable 256-8867

2 bedroom Townhouse apt - Southwood $175 month June 1 Aug 31call 253-9447

3 bdrm Townehouse Apt 6/1 - 8/31 rent negotiable great location 546-5090

Female roomate wanted own room bus rt low rent June-Aug 253-3246

Squire Village 1 room availabel Summer attractive, on bus route rent negotiable/reasonable 665-4111 late

3 bedroom apt 2 baths 1.5 miles from campus ½ mile from Ams center close to bus stop $300/month available May 25thAugust 31 call 253-2657

2 bedroom Townhouse apt in Southwood apts furn, air cond, pool, June 1 - Aug 30 call 253-9447

2 bdr Southwood Townhouse apt Summer sublet w/Fall option bus route call mornings evenings rent negotiable 253-7884

WANTED

Cash for Gold or Silver items Antiques too call 546-7369 Cheryl

Cash! Top dollars for school rings, gold, ect. At Wendy Fun Funk & Punk CC Concourse twice a week

Female for breeding purposes for AKC Reg yellow Lab call Eve Genny 268-7594

Artists Student Union Gallery now accepting proposals for Fall semester stop by S.U. Rm. 115a

Are you leaving? I'm staying and need a desk, bike, bookcases or other good furniture 256-0337

WANTED TO RENT

Wanted: Two bedroom in Puffton for Summer with Fall option willing to pay full rent call Joanne anytime 253-7503 keep trying!

Room needed on Cape Cod within 30 miles of Sagamore Mike 546-6033

Wanted Summer and Fall one or two bedroom apt in RollingGreen garden style preferred will pay full rent call Isaac anytime 253-7790

Wanted studio in or near Amherst Ctr for Summer and or Fall Dave 253-5577

Professional couple with child seeking Summer rental call 914-969-5986

Wanted Amherst apt to trade for same in New Orleans June 8 - Aug 9 or apt to sublet or share Contact E. Soloway, 5535 Pitt St. New Orleans, LA 70115

WASH D.C.

Sublet available June 1 - Aug 1 1 br in a 2 br apt walk to Metro, pool, tennis, view of D.C. central A/C, dishwasher rent $240/month call 703-920-9226

ZOO MASS T-SHIRTS

The originals are back on the Concourse with some new designs too. Wednesday through Friday this week

Doonesbury by Garry Trudeau

Bean by Kevin X. McNamara

Wimpman by Evan Carlson

Crossword

ACROSS

1 Mama's mate
5 Gander
10 Gamin
14 Iowa city
15 Lessen
16 Defy
17 Desire
18 Stair face
19 Omen
20 Protect
22 Shadow
24 Prosecute
25 Kilmer poem
27 Most precious
29 Gifts
32 River: Sp.
33 Electron
34 Glacial ridge
36 Takes off
40 Every
42 Mellower
44 Small group
45 Slink
47 Made known
49 Miscalculate
50 Lacerate
52 Lee — —: Radio's Archer
54 Horse tender
58 Pits
59 Mil. address
60 Vehicle
62 Missive
65 — Crosby
67 Perfect
69 Learner
70 "Gloomy Dean"
71 Edge
72 Girl's name
73 Trial
74 Washed down
75 Whitetail

DOWN

1 Mauls
2 Nursemaid
3 Contrition
4 Flowers
5 Plant lover
6 Japanese sash
7 Kiln
8 Place
9 Wierder
10 Posters
11 Increase
12 Watchful guardian
13 American poet
21 Sediment
23 Put down
26 Furrow
28 Kind of beer
29 Desserts
30 Horse color
31 Palatable
35 Harvest deity
37 Swimming mode
38 Evergreens
39 Grade
41 Stag
43 Replenished
46 Scottish garb
48 Alms
51 Die
53 Decayed
54 Custom
55 Suppose
56 Berlin works
57 AM or FM
61 Docs
63 Gaelic
64 Bellow
66 Capture
68 Stout

UNITED Feature Syndicate
Thursday's Puzzle Solved

S	A	T	E	D	■	S	L	A	M	■	P	U	M	A
C	R	I	M	E	■	T	I	M	E	■	S	L	A	M
A	G	R	E	E	■	A	R	P	A	D	U	C	E	■
A	G	E	R	■	B	U	D	■	T	A	L	O	N	■
■	■	■	G	A	I	T	■	J	U	T	L	A	N	D
D	E	C	E	N	T	■	L	A	T	E	S	T	■	■
A	M	E	N	T	■	C	A	P	E	R	■	I	S	I
M	O	L	T	■	R	O	V	E	R	■	P	O	L	O
E	W	E	■	L	A	M	A	S	■	M	A	N	O	R
■	■	B	H	O	P	A	L	■	L	E	S	S	E	N
S	P	R	O	U	T	S	■	S	E	I	S	E	■	■
T	H	A	N	T	■	R	I	D	■	O	D	O	R	■
R	E	T	E	S	T	I	N	G	■	D	V	I	N	E
E	N	D	S	■	O	D	I	N	■	F	E	N	C	E
P	O	R	T	■	P	A	T	S	■	F	R	E	E	D

1	2	3	4	■	5	6	7	8	9	■	10	11	12	13
14				■	15					■	16
17				■	18					■	19
20				21		■	22			23	■	24
■	■	25				26	■	27			28
29	30						31	■	32				■	■
33				34				35	■	36		37	38	39
40			41	■	42				43	■	44
45				46	■	47				48	■	49
■	■	■	50		51	■	52				53
54	55	56				57	■	58					■	■
59			■	60			61	■	62				63	64
65			66	■	67			68		■	69
70				■	71					■	72
73				■	74					■	75

DC Menu

Lunch
Grilled Cheese Sandwich
Stuffed Pepper with Tomato Sauce

Dinner
Cheese Lasagna/Tomato Sauce,
Tomato Meat Sauce
Fried Cod/Tartar Sauce

Basics Lunch
Pineapple Yogurt Stuffed Pepper
Grilleld Cheese on Whole Wheat

STADIUM
U. Mass. Amherst

KEGS—
BEER—

LIQUORS
WINE—

LIQUORS

Schlitz 12 oz. can.....2.25 6 pack 7.49 case
Miller.....2.25 6 pack 7.99 case
Miller Lite.....2.25 6 pack 7.99 case
Budweiser.....2.25 6 pack 7.99 case
Old Milwaukee.....3.10 12 pack
Wiedeman.....1.40 6 pack 5.49 case
Anhauser Busch
Natural Light.....2.25 6 pack 7.49 case

Tuborg.....2.10 6 pack 6.90 case
Molson.....2.75 6 pack 10.49 case
Gallo 3 litre.....4.95
Cella 1.5 litre.....3.99
Sebastiani 3 litre.....4.99
Le Domaine
4 litre.....6.99 (Self Tapper - Disposable Container)
S.S. Pierce 1.75 litre.....7.95
Rose Garden Liebfraumilch
.....1.5 litre 3.95 750 ml 1.99

We Have
Coolers & Plastic Jugs

University Drive, Amherst, Mass.
Just past UMass Stadium, from SW dorms

500—Parking places
Soda—Ice—Munchies

Save money—Save gas—Save time
10 a.m. — 253-5595 — til 11 p.m.

Frank Wright of the Intramural Office (left) this week received a $1,000 check from Commercial Distributors which will go toward the UMass Athletic Scholarship Fund. The Intramural Office received the check for a Miller Tug-of-War it sponsored. At right are students Lori Schlager and Joel Biechele who helped organize the competition. (Staff photo by Ellen Davis)

Sports notice

GYM EQUIPMENT—Undergraduate and Graduate students are required to return gym equipment, clothes and locks signed out this semester to the Boyden or NOPE equipment rooms no later than 5:00 PM, Wednesday, May 21, 1980. Equipment, clothes and locks not turned in will be billed to the student through the Bursar's Office.

RUSSELL'S LIQUORS
18 Main St. Downtown Amherst 253-5441

Taylor Champagne State .....750 ml. $4.99
Giumara California Wine 1.5 L Mt. Vin Rose, Mt. Chablis, Mt. Burgundy.....$3.99
Vodka 80° special....$5.25 qt.
Harvey's Bristol Cream 750 ml.....$7.49
Chateau Laurent Champagne nat. fermented in bottle....$3.25 fifth
Liebfraumilch 23 oz..1.99 fifth & up

Check our other in-store specials
CHECK THESE PRICES!
Schlitz 12 oz. NR's.....6.99 cs 1.99/6
Falstaff.....12 oz. cans 1.60/6
6.25/case
BUD 12 oz. cans.....8.25 cs.
OVER 2,000 COLD CASES OF BEER FOR CONCERT WEEKEND

AMERICAN MULTI CINEMA
TIMES SHOWN FOR TODAY ONLY
ADULTS $2.75 STUDENTS & SR. CITIZENS WITH AMC CARD $2.25 TWI-LITE SHOW $1.50
SPECIAL ENGAGEMENTS EXCLUDED TWI-LITE SHOW - LIMITED TO SEATING

HAMPSHIRE 4 584-7550 HAMPSHIRE MALL ON CAFE SQ. RT. 9 HADLEY, MASS
WHERE THE BUFFALO ROAM
Fri-Sat (5:15 @ $1.50) 7:45 9:55
Sun-Thur (6:15 @ $1.50) 8:45
Matinee (Sat, Sun) 2:00
R
Walt Disney's Lady and the Tramp
Fri Sat (5:30 @ $1.50) 8:00
Sun Thur (6:30 @ $1.50) 8:30
Matinee (Sat, Sun) 2:30
G
Explicitly Free. Night Games
Fri Sat (5:00 @ $1.50) and 7:30 9:55
Sun Thur (6:00 @ $1.50) 8:45
Matinee (Sat, Sun) 2:15
R
THE ROCKY HORROR PICTURE SHOW
MIDNIGHT SHOW
Friday & Saturday
All Seats $2.50
R
Walter Matthau and Julie Andrews
LITTLE MISS MARKER
Fri Sat (5:00) @ $1.50) and 7:30 9:45
Sun Thur (6:00 @ $1.50) 8:30
Matinee (Sat, Sun) 2:00
PG

MOUNTAIN FARMS 4 584-9153 MOUNTAIN FARMS MALL ROUTE 9 HADLEY, MASS
ROBBY BENSON
DIE LAUGHING
Fri Sat (4:45 @ $1.50) 7:30 10:15
Sun Thur (6:00 @ $1.50) 8:30
Matinee (Sat, Sun) 2:00
PG
PETER SELLERS
SHIRLEY MacLAINE
BEING THERE
Best Supporting Actor
Fri Sat (4:30 @ $1.50) 7:15 9:55
Sun Thur (5:45 @ $1.50) 8:30
Matinee (Sat, Sun) 1:45
PG
the Black Stallion
Fri Sat (4:45 @ $1.50) 7:30 9:55
Sun Thur (6:00 @ $1.50) 8:45
Matinee (Sat, Sun) 2:00
G
FRIDAY the 13th
Fri Sat (5:00 @ $1.50) 7:45 10:15
Sun Thur (6:15 @ $1.50) 8:45
Matinee (Sat, Sun) 2:15
R

THE FINEST MOTHER'S DAY CARDS
Sunday May 11
American Greetings
The Fresh Idea Company
campus center, umass
the UNIVERSITY STORE

MIKE'S WESTVIEW CAFE
North Amherst

SPRING NITES
Saturday Nite all nite
No Cover 12 oz. Rolling Rock 2/$1 No Cover to wearers of Mikes Westview T-shirts
****
MIKES FAMOUS FREE BUFFET INCLUDED

Don't forget Friday afternoon attitude readjustment period and smorgie 4- 7 PM

Wed. 5-14 Free Beer Nite

Sports

Mittmen sting Yellow Jackets

By JANE WOLFSON
Collegian Staff

Sparked by a 20 hit attack including two homeruns and 6 RBI's by senior captain Mike McEvilly and three hits and a homerun from shortstop Vin Bonanno the Minutemen surged past the hapless Yellow Jackets of American International College 19-9. The rout took place yesterday afternoon in Springfield.

This was the Minutemen's first real offensive surge since they returned from Hershey, Penn. where they captured the Eastern Athletic Association tournament held last month. There they exploded for 17 runs against Rutgers and 15 against the Virginia Military Institute.

It seemed as though everyone wanted to get into the act: rightfielder Doug Aylward went 3 for 4 including a double, and catcher John Kraham had three hits and three runs batted in on the afternoon. Firstbaseman Warren McReddie turned in his first three hit game of the season and utility thirdbaseman Joe Larkin went 2 for 5, with four RBI's.

UMass took a 2-0 lead in the top of the first inning when leftfielder Mark Litano walked, setting the stage for McEvilly's first blast, just over the 400 mark in centerfield.

AIC took a surprising lead in the third inning when Yellow Jacket thirdbaseman Bob Foley hit a three run shot off starting and winning pitcher Chris Collins (6-1).

AIC's lead was shortlasted. At the top of the fourth UMass, now 17-11-1, began the offensive attack, and when the dust had finally cleared UMass had a 12-3 lead.

McReddie singled to start off the inning, Kraham then hit a shot just fair down the leftfield line, and a single by Bonanno loaded the bases for Larkin who delivered a two run single up the middle. Aylward then connected on a 2-1 pitch, from eventual loser Dave Pettengill, and drove the ball over the head of the rightfielder scoring Bonanno. Litano walked, loading the bases for McEvilly who sent his second straight shot out of the park.

Three batters later, with McReddie on third, (double) and Kraham on first, (single) Bonanno blasted the ball over the wall in left center accounting for the last runs of that inning.

Collins breezed through his half of the inning as the Minutemen continued their massacre at the top of the fifth, scoring four more runs.

The Minutemen's scoring attack was not quite over as they added individual runs in the sixth and seventh innings as well as a final two in the top of the ninth.

Vin Bonanno and the Minutemen defeated American International College yesterday afternoon in Springfield 19-9.

AIC rallied for three runs in their half of the fifth. Righthander sophomore Vin Todd pitched the eighth and ninth innings in relief of Collins and surrendered three runs in the bottom of the ninth.

This win represented the 252nd victory for UMass coach Dick Berquist, his 250th coming this past weekend against the University of Maine.

The Minutemen take on the Huskies from Northeastern University, saturday afternoon in Boston.

Laxmen visit Orangemen

By DONNA SULLIVAN
Collegian Staff

After two tough losses in a row to Harvard and Army, the UMass men's varsity lacrosse team will regroup and travel to Syracuse today for, as head coach Dick Garber says, "an opportunity to play one of the top teams in the country and win. The last few games were frustrating, this will be a chance to get back on the boards," he said.

Led by attackmen Tim O'Hara and Brad Short, Syracuse University is ranked fourth in the country with a 10-1 record. According to Garber, Syracuse has beaten such lacrosse powers as Cornell, Hobart, and Army. Both Cornell and Army tallied wins over the Gorillas.

"Syracuse is having a great season," Garber said. "They lost their first game and won the next ten in a row. They have a good chance of winning the national championship," he said. "It is their best team in years. They are a very veteran team. A lot of their key players are seniors."

O'Hara is tenth in the country in scoring with 32 goals and 29 assists. He is followed by Short who has chalked up 26 goals and 12 assists.

The Gorillas took care of the Orangemen last year at Boyden field 15-12. UMass is ranked thirteenth in the country and third in New England. Tonight at 7:30 in Syracuse the Gorillas will be looking to bring their record to 8-4 (currently 7-4).

UMass will be armed with sophomore attackman Jim Weller, who leads the team in goals with 38, assists with 21 and total points with 59. Attackmen Dave Martin and Skip Vosburgh follow close behind with 41 points each. Martin has tallied 25 goals and 16 assists and Vosburgh has 24 goals and 17 assists. Vosburgh is currently leading the team in career totals with 56 goals, 51 assists and 107 points.

Syracuse goalie Jamie Molloy is currently ranked fourth in division one with 165 saves and 81 goals allowed. Molloy is from Manhasset and was a high school teammate of a number of the Gorillas including Vosburgh, Chris Corin, Neil Brugal, Tim Cutler, and Mark Fierro.

Tonight's game will be the next to the last regular season game for the Gorillas. The final game of the season will be at Dartmouth on Tuesday.

UMass midfielder James Goodhart runs the ball past a Harvard defender in Tuesday's game. The Gorillas play Syracuse tonight. (Staff photo by Rich Newman)

Memories of UM softball

By MELISSA GALLAGHER
Collegian Staff

The regular softball season is over, but this weekend at Regionals will determine whether or not the UMass seniors will prolong their athletic careers.

Entering the season of no tomorrows in Kingston, R.I., are Sue Peters, Rhonda McManus, Fran Cornacchioli, Jennifer Parker and Debbie Stolecki. The following are some remembrances of the seniors:

Sue Peters: Roget's Thesaurus simply does not provide enough superlatives. Statistics speak loud and clear. This year she batted .569 and led the pitching staff with a 10-0 record. A varsity hurler since she was a freshman, Peters has compiled a 38-2-1 record. According to the stats, prior to the last two outings, the Southbridge resident had a career ERA of 1.34, 1.14 this season, and a .964 fielding percentage in left field. Her four-year hitting clip is .438 including more than thirty extra base hits. She has stolen 51 bases as well. A win on the mound and a couple of singles is a ho-hum day for the woman many consider to be UMass' greatest athlete.

Rhonda McManus: The second basewoman by trade kidded her teammates about her seasonal .750 batting average. "Ya," she said, "but I've only been up six times." The injury-riddled senior co-captain made her brief return felt with a three-run triple in the 3-1 win over UConn. She has a lifetime batting average of .376.

Senior mittwoman Jennifer Parker. (Staff photo by Ben Marsden)

Fran Cornacchioli: "Terrible," was what she thought of losing the final home game, UMass' lone loss in two years of regular season action. The Minutewomen looked sharper than they did in their last win. To the co-captain, a loss was still a loss no matter how well UMass performed. The veteran shortstop hit .280 and had a four-year fielding percentage of .879.

Jen Parker: It was Parker with her great memory who could tell Cornacchioli that when the Minutewomen lost their finale in '78, they responded with six errorless games en route to the Nationals. That same year first basewoman Parker dove for a pop bunt and threw to first for a double play in the Regionals. Parker called that defensive gem the highlight of her softball days because it helped the UMies reach the Nationals. Parker has a .290 batting clip and a solid .976 lifetime fielding percentage.

Debbie Stolecki: Out with a thumb injury for most of the year, Stolecki batted .290 and will be in the leadoff spot when UMass faces Rutgers in its tourney opener. Called "very consistent" by coach Elaine Marasco, Stolecki will be in right field.

Judy Liggon: She has managed the squad for two years. She has been "dependable, reliable and responsible," Marasco said.

Campus Sports Roundup

Chimps finish with win

In their season finale, the men's l.v. lacrosse team beated Harvard 5-3. After losing a close one to Brown University 10-7 in their first game, the Chimps roared back, sweeping the remainder of their opponents: Williams College, Naval Academy Prep., Dean Junior College, and Harvard. The team's final record is 4-1.

The Chimps were consistently strong defensively throughout their short season. Leading the defensive unit were Jim Scanlon, Joe Grab, Tom D'Normandie, and Tim Woods. Tom Seiler was very effective at his goalie position, allowing a total of 21 goals. Offensively the squad's performance was spotty, even though some of the final scores seemed to indicate a potentially awesome attack. "Sometimes we fell asleep offensively," coach Len Caffrey said.

In his last game, senoir co-captain Burke Biro lead the scoring attack with three goals. He was also team scoring leader for the season with 9 goals and 3 assists. Freshman Eric Conz was second with 7 goals and 3 assists, followed by attackers Scott Philpott and Ron Spelman, scoring 6 goals and 4 assists and 3 goals and 6 assists respectively.

After completing a very successful season, Caffrey anticipates losing some of his Chimps to the varsity squad next year.

SHARON PANNOZZO

Ruggers tourney-bound

Tomorrow morning the UMass rugby club will travel to Providence Rhode Island to compete in the New England Rugby Tournament. About 30 teams will compete in the tourney; six of them are college teams. In addition to UMass, the University of Rhode Island, Darmouth College, Boston University, Harvard University and Amherst College will be competing. The teams expected to do well are the town teams that have been practicing and playing together for years. The Boston Rugby Club and the Beacon Hill club could be the two to battle it out in the finals.

In the UMass final home game held last Saturday, UMass fell to the Boston Pilgrims Rugby Football Club in two of three games. Side C was the only succesful UMass side. Side A lost, 15-0, and side B lost, 16-13, after taking a substantial lead in the early going.

The tourney at URI will be the last rugby action for the UMass club. They are expected to compete at 12:30 Saturday afternoon.

DONNA SULLIVAN

A Look at Us

An Educational Introspective of UMass

Coming tomorrow:

Included in tomorrow's editions of the Collegian will be a special supplement devoted to the educational mission of the University. The 24-page special publication consists of articles and profiles designed to survey educational opportunities at UMass as well as try to put into perspective how well a job is being done. The supplement was put together over the past six weeks by about 35 Collegian staffers.

MASSACHUSETTS DAILY
Collegian
VOLUME CIX, ISSUE 139 Student newspaper of the University of Massachusetts/Amherst Monday, May 12, 1980

Gregg Allman and his band played to a full house Saturday at Alumni Stadium. (Staff photo by Doug Paulding)

A little chaos at the concert

By ED LEVINE
Collegian Staff

"When you have 30,000 people anything goes," Andy Gordon, Union Program Council security coordinator said following the Spring Concert.

Drunks, fights, people attempting to get backstage and people walking along the top of the stadium wall were the largest problems cited by Gordon, who said overall security went "a lot smoother" this year than in the past.

"Security wouldn't have been so bad if they didn't have to deal with the people who were drunk," UPC Administrative Coordinator Bob Humphreys said, expressing dismay at the behavior of some audience members. One of the largest problems, he said, was in front of the stage where numerous fights erupted.

"I think the heat had a lot to do with the situation in front of the stage," said Stage Manager Frank Gironda. The combination of alcohol, the sun and the large crowd aggravated tensions in the area.

"The biggest problem was backstage security," Gironda

TURN TO PAGE 9

A good day: Concert 1980

By ED LEVINE
Collegian Staff

About 30,000 people jammed into Alumni Stadium yesterday for Spring Concert 1980 and, despite reports of excessive drinking and some fights, Union Program Council officials said the concert was a success.

Although UMass police said they wouldn't have final reports available until today, there were apparently many arrests and observers reported a large number of intoxicated concert-goers.

The concert itself, UPC officials said, was a success and went as planned.

Bob Humphreys, UPC administrative coordinator, said the major problems encountered were with ticket sales and security. About 11,000 out of 14,000 guest tickets were sold, leaving the concert with about a $45,000 deficit, which will be taken out of next year's UPC budget, he said.

"We gave 100 percent on the production. I think there were a large number of students who really spoiled the day for a great amount of people at the show," Humphreys said.

Andy Gordon, UPC security coordinator, said the largest problem was with fights.

"There seemed to be a lot of fights this year, a lot more than last year," Gordon said. "The gates went real well and we didn't have a big problem with gate crashing."

Gordon said security was "a lot smoother" than last year.

First aid personnel reported a large number of health problems, mostly alcohol and drug related.

"This year was a lot worse than last year," John T. Anderson, President of the UMass Fire and Safety team said. "Last year there were problems with drugs. This year there was a tremendous amount of alcohol abuse."

Anderson said first aid units treated over 100 people, about 40 for cuts and minor injuries and about 50 for alcohol or drug related problems. Three ambulances, staffed by Emergency Medical Technicians were in use constantly, he

TURN TO PAGE 9

Fund frustration; dept. head calls it quits

By JACK GALLAGHER
Collegian Staff

Claiming "if jobs were easy to come by, I know a lot of people who would quit," Martha Francescato -- UMass' Spanish-Portuguese Department head -- said yesterday she is leaving for another university at semester's end.

"A lot of people are dying to leave," said Francescato -- who will assume a position as foreign language and literature head at George Mason University, Fairfax, Va., next year. She has been a UMass department head two years.

"There's no future here with the way things are being cut," Francescato said. "I've had to fight every year and I got tired of it."

She cited a lack of cooperation among the UMass ad-administrationc Gov. Edward J. King's office and faculty members as a main reason for her departure. "It's no use," she said. "How can you work under these conditions?"

"There's no way anything good is happening here," said Fransescato, who prior to UMass worked at the University of Illinois, Urbana, "for at least a couple of years." Without going into detail, she blamed King for UMass' ills.

Francescato's department, like all the others at UMass, schedules classes before knowing its actual budget. This year department heads were notified about their allocations just days before the semester began.

"With the hiring freeze," imposed statewide last fall, "What can you do?" Francescato asked.

TURN TO PAGE 9

Women's softball team shortstop fields a grounder recently. (Staff photo by Doug Paulding)

Softball team wins way into national tourney

By MELISSA GALLAGHER
Collegian Staff

Kingston, R.I. - The UMass softball team (23-1) defeated Rutgers and the University of Rhode Island twice to win the Eastern Regional championship Saturday and clinched a berth in the national tournament.

The Minutewomen travel to Norman, Oklahoma for the National Association for Intercollegiate Athletics for Women's World Series of Softball, a 16-team tourney which begins May 22.

UMass, seeded last in the four-team tourney, downed Rutgers, 6-0, and the University of Rhode Island, 4-3, on Friday before insuring a trip to Norman with a 2-0 triumph over URI Saturday.

A controversial umpire's call in the Minutewomen's morning game against Rutgers, seeded first, kept a UMass rally alive. With two outs, Jackie Gaw reached on a single, hurler Sue Peters advanced her battery mate with a bunt and Brenda Simmons was hit by a pitch.

Fran Cornacchioli hit a ball to the shortstop who flipped to second base for the force. Simmons was ruled out, but UMass coach Elaine Marasco questioned whether or not the second basewoman had control of the toss.

The umpires conferred and the decision was reversed. Designated hitter Rhonda McManus followed with a bases

TURN TO PAGE 9

Mother's Day ralliers ask rights, not flowers

By CARLOS VALDES
Special to the Collegian

Mother's Day was celebrated in an original way in Amherst Saturday in the form of a political event entitled "Repression and Resistance in Latin America: A Mother's Day Rally.

At the same time as the bands were playing at Alumni Stadium, approximately 150 people gathered on the Amherst Commons. The purpose of the rally, according to the organizers, was to demonstrate solidarity with the movements for national liberation in Latin America, to point out the role of women in the movements, and to condemn U.S. support for the El Salvador regime and other dictatorships in Latin America."

Marta Tapia, a member of Lucha Collective, said that the idea for the mother's day rally was inspired by "the courage of the women in Buenos Aires, Argentina who regularly gather in the city's Main square in silent vigils. They demand that the military dictatorship inform them of the whereabouts of their relatives who have disappeared. Political opponents of the regime are detained by government forces and then disappear. They could be in one of the concentration camps existing in Argentina, being tortured with torture systems designed by the CIA. The women themselves risk being disappeared."

In an introductory statement at the rally, Marta Tapia said "Businessmen would like us to believe that Mother's Day is a day for buying their goods. But what does it mean to get chocolates one day and be denied equality, respect and dignity year-round? We are going to reclaim this day and turn it into a celebration of mothers and women as survivors and fighters."

A speaker from the Committee of Central Americans in Boston spoke on the political situation in Central America, focusing on El Salvador. "Today the people of El Salvador are engaged in a mass revolutionary struggle against the dictatorship," he said. "The U.S. government is planning to send $5.7 million worth of military aid to the regime, and already a hundred people every week are being massacred by government troops."

The speaker also said the struggle in El Salvador is critical for the future of Central America as a whole.

"The revolutionary victory in Nicaragua had profound effects on the neighboring Central American countries, particularly El Salvador. The U.S. government realizes this and is determined to prevent another Nicaragua. But the Salvadorean people are organized in a united front and they will win. It is in the interests of the people of the United States, as well as around the world, to support the people of El Salvador at this critical point in time," the speaker said.

A labor union activist said, "it is the same corporations around the world that are responsible for inflation, unemployment, and runaway shops here in the U.S."

Other topics discussed by the various speakers at the rally were the draft; the threat of war; U.S. intervention in Iran; the impending deportations of Iranian students in the U.S.; human rights violations by the government of Colombia; the extreme anti-semetism of the Chilean and Argentinian governments; and the Puerto Rican struggle for independence and the role of women in that struggle.

Besides speeches, there was also music at the rally. Josy la Torre, Jose Trejo and Debbie Lyons each played guitar and sang songs about political struggle.

One of the many crazed Allman Brothers fans Saturday. (Staff photo by Doug Paulding)

New minor offered

By CAROLYN MOONEY
Collegian Staff

Under a new "Minor in Business German" program offered by the University, business students can for the first time receive language training geared toward the job market rather than toward an academic degree.

"Students start right out with professional texts and vocabulary instead of using the traditional four-skill (reading, speaking, writing and comprehension) approach," said program director Prof. Albert Reh of the German Department.

The minor in business German is offered jointly by the German Department and the School of Business Administration, which does not impose a language requirement on its majors. The French and Spanish departments also offer business courses, but have not established formal business minor programs.

With German firms accounting for nearly one-third of current foreign investments in the United States(only Japan invests more), a professional knowledge of German is definitely an asset in the business sector, Reh said.

"The Germans are especially big producers of chemicals and high-technology instruments," Reh said, citing as examples Kollmorgen Periscope, Inc. of Northampton, Hoechst Chemicals in Providence, and Agfa Photo Industries, which has New England Offices. German Export-Import branches and construction companies also make up a big chunk of foreign investments.

The business German minor consistes of two courses each in Elementary German Reading, Intermediate Business German, and Advanced Business German, plus two courses in German Civilization. Students also have the option of taking part in a work-study program in Germany, working for such companies as Mercedes-Benz or Bosch Electric (the German equivalent of German Electric).

Reh recently directed a workshop on teaching business German for German college professors in New England. Although no other schools have yet established such a program, the responses were highly enthusiastic, he said.

A proposal to establish UMass as a permanent summer institute for teaching foreign languages from a business perspective (including German, French, Spanish, Russian, Chinese, Japanese and Russian) is currently in planning stages, according to Fred Robinson of the Division of Continuing Education. The proposal was initiated by Humanities and Fine Arts Dean Richard Noland.

Fraternity initiates were "forced" to go for a dunk in the murky campus pond. They had to imitate ducks and frogs complete with arm movements, "quacks" and "ribbets." (Staff photo by Doug Paulding)

A bird, plane ...a balloon?

BY MICHAEL B. MCPHEE
Associated Press

BOSTON — The Kitty Hawk balloon, bobbing along effortlessly in strong winds at 24,500 feet, passed just south of Quebec City last evening in what appears will be the first non-stop, transcontinental balloon crossing.

Sunday evening, pilots Maxie Anderson, 45, and his son, Chris, 23, both of Albuquerque, N.M., decided they could remain aloft through the night without being carried out to sea and touch down somewhere on the Canadian coast at first light today.

The balloon was flying due east at about 45 mph, said Jim Mitchell, a spokesman at the balloon's tracking station in nearby Bedford, Mass.

For most of Sunday afternoon, the balloon averaged about 60 mph, and the pilots became concerned about being carried out to sea during the night.

"Apparently they think they have it under control," Mitchell said. "They plan to stay at 24,500 feet. When they come down (to a lower altitude) they get in trouble. But they may get in trouble anyway. It'll be another cold night, but what's new?

"They have maps and know how far they can go. If they get out to the water, they would probably bring it down after dark on the coast or any place that's clear. They're still quite a ways. They feel confident they can fly through the night. It was a tough, hard decision."

Food stamp hike on floor

By JAMES H. RUBIN
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Congress plans to move swiftly this week to preserve — and bolster — the food stamp program, which helps feed 21 million Americans.

A Senate-House conference committee was scheduled to convene today to consider a two-year, $6.5 billion expansion of the program. The administration says the boost is necessary to meet rising food costs and increased unemployment, which makes more people eligible for stamps.

Ready for action on the House floor, meanwhile, is a $3 billion appropriation to fund the expansion for the balance of the current fiscal year, which ends Sept. 30.

Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland has said the available money for food stamps this fiscal year, about $6.2 billion, will be exhausted by June 1 and he will have to suspend the program unless an expansion package is signed into law by Thursday.

Last Thursday, the House overwhelmingly approved a measure that would raise food stamp spending in fiscal 1980 to nearly $9.2 billion and to $9.5 billion in the 1981 fiscal year. The Senate last year approved an unlimited expansion of the food stamp program and it will be up to the Senate-House conference to agree on a plan.

Approximately one of every 10 Americans now qualifies for the food stamp program.

Allman Brothers reaffirm legend

By ROB HUFFMAN
Collegian Staff

At times, Georgia's Allman Brothers Band seems to go beyond legendary and approach mythical. Saturday's show, however, proved that this American institution is by no means content to rest on it's laurels.

Led by original band members Gregg Allman and Dickey Betts, the "brothers" stormed through a well-chosen selection of tunes designed to get the audience off.

Showcasing their unique sound which has influenced far too many southern rock bands, the "Allman joys" (as Bonnie Raitt referred to them) were very hot in instrumental tunes such as "In Memory of Elizabeth Reed," "Jessica" and "Pegasus," the latter tune featuring an extended percussion duet by drummers "Jaimoe" and Butch Trucks, who went wild on the tympani. Younger brother David "rock" Goldflies joined in on bass, and the whole stadium was boogeying. "Dangerous" Dan Toler's guitar style is so similar to Betts' that the dual leads played by these two (and there were many) came out well every time.

Gregg Allman, a man whose life has seen many ups and downs, channels all of his emotions into his gravelly voice, and remains the best white blues singer the south has produced. Classic Allman favorites like "Statesboro Blues," "One Way Out," "Midnight Rider," and the immortal "Whipping Post" were sung right from the gut like they should be.

Dickey sang some songs too. "Blue Sky," appropriate to the beautiful, sunny day, was dedicated to the Marshall Tucker Band. Bonnie Bramlett sung back-up for this tune as well as others, and during the second encore was joined by another Bonnie (Ms. Raitt, that is), to sing a funked-up version of "Will the Circle by Unbroken" as well as the big hit "Ramblin' Man."

While the Allman Brothers were wise in playing many of their older songs, the songs played from their most recent album Enlightened Rogues showed that they definitely haven't lost it. "Crazy Love" and "Cant Take it With You" were, in fact, highlights of the show, and left nearly thirty thousand sunburned UMass students eagerly anticipating the next "Brothers" album.

Dickie Betts and David (Rook) Goldflies jam with the band Saturday. (Staff photo by Doug Paulding)

Nearly 30,000 people basked in Saturday's sunshine while they were entertained by the Allman Brothers, Bonnie Raitt and Lonnie Liston Smith. (Staff photo by Jim Mahoney)

Smith starts off sunny concert

By ROB HUFFMAN
Collegian Staff

Keyboard stylist Lonnie Liston Smith invoked the sunshine Saturday morning to open the 1980 UMass Spring Concert. Smith's slightly cosmic fusion of jazz, pop, and soul was bright and cheery enough to rid the skies of the clouds that were hiding the sun. Many people were still arriving to Alumni Stadium while Smith's seven piece band performed, and as a result, the audience response was polite, though not overly enthusiastic.

As on his albums, Lonnie's music at it's best is fun pop/jazz, of a style similar to Chuck Mangione's. At times, however, it becomes a kind of lush muzdk, with pleasing textures, but no discernable melody. For those who had been partying late the night before, however, the music was very soothing, and an enjoyable way to start a day of solid music.

Lonnie Liston Smith opened Spring Concert Saturday. (Staff photo by Rich Newman)

Bonnie Raitt thrilled the crowd again. She came back for one of the Allman Brothers' encores. (Staff photo by Doug Paulding)

Bonnie: That special glow

By NORMA J. COATES
Collegian Staff

Bonnie Raitt, with a bit of help from the sun, warmed up the relaxed and appreciative audience for the Allman Brothers Saturday. Her band's funky blues pop heightened the glowing mood of the afternoon.

After asking the crowd if they were high yet, Bonnie and the band bounced into a set consisting of a good sprinkling of songs from her seven albums. The first third of the set consisted of her more recent work, recorded after she moved her home base from Cambridge to Los Angeles. Included here were the jaunty cover of Sam and Dave's "I Thank You" and "Your Good Thing is About to End" (dedicated to finals) from her latest album, The Glow, as well as selections from Sweet Forgiveness and Home Plate. Bonnie's distinctive slide guitar and Marty Greb's saxophone brightened the basic pop melodies of these numbers.

Then Bonnie got down to business — the blues. Reaching back to her earlier albums, Bonnie displayed the talent that gave her a large cult following in the mid-seventies among blues fan, before her recent, well-deserved mass popularity. The highlight of her set was included here, a long jam of Mississippi Fred McDowell's "Write Me a Few of Your Lines/Kokomo Blues" from Takin' My Time, her third album. Bonnie's voice was in fine, gusty form, as was her slide guitar work, outstanding as always. All this was complemented with foundational bass riffs by Freebo, her long-time sideman. For the next number, "Give It Up or Let Me Go", Freebo brought out his tuba for a playful, swinging rendition of one of Bonnie's own compositions.

From the blues, Bonnie went back into some of her newer, more well-known songs, infusing them with the rollicking energy picked up during the previous part of the performance. Especially appealing were "Runaway", the old Del Shannon standard, and Robert Palmer's "You're Gonna Get What's Coming." The band rocked out for these two, effectively segueing into a pleasant, jazzy jam on "Runaway."

Two members of the band, Rick Leadow on lead guitar and Walt Richman on keyboards, are apparently new to the outfit. It seemed as if they were a bit more influenced by the mellow L.A. sound than Freebo or drummer Dennis Whitted, who's been with Bonnie for a while now. The band still needs to "find itself" as a performing unit at this point, but Bonnie's voice and slide guitar are as hot as ever, and I'm

TURN TO PAGE 8

A look behind the scenes below and on stage for Spring Concert. (Photos by Doug Paulding)

THE SOUTHWEST ASSEMBLY

would like to thank the following for actively participating in SOUTHWEST WEEK:

Stadium Liquors	Pizza Hut
Bell's Pizza	Emerson
Radio Shack	Cance
The T.O.C.	Coolidge
Great Expectations	JA Lower
"Fullhouse"	JQA Lower
"The Move"	JQA Middle
"Icarus"	Melville
"The Kidz"	Pierpont
"Scientific Americans"	Center for Racial Studies
Jazz Quartet	SW Craft Center
Afro-Am Jazz Choir	U.Mass Men's Gymnastic Team

1/2 Barbecued Chicken, all the Fixin's & Coke

admission: University Meal Ticket or $3.25

everyone's invited to the U. of Mass. food service's 14th annual

ALL CAMPUS BARBECUE

FEATURING: the Elevators

and special guest ED VADAS

Tues., May 13th 4:30 - 7 pm
Southwest Playing Fields*

* In case of rain, meal will be served in all D.C.s. Franklin will be open for indoor service during BARBECUE.

Louis Foods Makes The Difference...

You're standing at the foot of the rainbow when you enter our Produce Department. Here the finest produce of the season has gathered together in one big Salad Bowl of Savings. What do you need for your salads? It's here beautifully groomed to go home with you. And you find each item priced as low as fine quality permits. Here's one of the finest departments of our store.

WITH COUPON PLUS $7.50 PURCHASE OR MORE EXCLUDING COUPON ITEMS & TOBACCO LU-83
SWEET LIFE Butter QUARTERS 1 LB PKG 99¢ Louis
LIMIT ONE VALID MAY 12-17

WITH COUPON PLUS $7.50 PURCHASE OR MORE EXCLUDING COUPON ITEMS & TOBACCO LU-84
NABISCO Ritz Crackers 12 OZ PKG 59¢ Louis
LIMIT ONE VALID MAY 12-17

WITH COUPON PLUS $7.50 PURCHASE OR MORE EXCLUDING COUPON ITEMS & TOBACCO LU-85
SWEET LIFE Facial Tissue 2-PLY 200 CT PKG 19¢ Louis
LIMIT ONE VALID MAY 12-17

REGULAR & DIET Pepsi-Cola 2 LITER BTL 88¢

WISK HEAVY DUTY Detergent 64 OZ BTL $2.29

Pork Sale

ARMOUR 5 STAR VERI BEST EXTRA LEAN BLADELESS

Rib Roast	4-6 LBS AVG	$1.09 LB
Loin Roast	3-6 LBS AVG	$1.19 LB
Boneless Roast	2-3 LBS AVG	$1.79 LB
Pork Chops	CENTER CUT	$1.49 LB
Spare Ribs		$1.29 LB

USDA CHOICE ROUND Tip Steak $2.29 LB

SWIFT PREMIUM Daisy Hams	1 LB PKG	$1.29 LB
SWIFT PREMIUM Bacon	1 LB PKG	99¢
USDA CHOICE ROUND Cube Steak		$2.39 LB
SWIFT PREMIUM SKINLESS Franks	1 LB PKG	$1.09

OCEAN SPRAY Crangrape Juice	48 OZ BTL	99¢
SUNSHINE Vienna Fingers	15 OZ PKG	99¢
PURE MAZOLA Corn Oil	24 OZ BTL	$1.29
NEW CHEF-BOY-AR-DEE Manicotti	15 OZ CAN	59¢
APPIAN WAY Pizza Mix	12½ OZ PKG	59¢
DOWNY 32¢ OFF LABEL Fabric Softener	64 OZ BTL	$1.79
CARNATION NON FAT Dry Milk	10 QT ENV	$2.99
PLANTERS SALT FREE 16 OZ JAR Dry Roasted Peanuts		$1.49
SWEET LIFE 12 OZ JAR Dry Roasted Peanuts		99¢
NEAR EAST Rice Pilaf	8 OZ PKG	79¢
BE FRESH ALL YEAR Bowl Deodorizer	1.7 OZ PKG	79¢
SWEET LIFE Softener Sheets	40 CT PKG	$1.49

Produce

If you're looking for fine quality at the lowest price, Louis Foods makes the difference

NEW ENGLAND SOY DAIRY HIGH IN PROTEIN NO CHOLESTEROL Tofu		89¢ 99¢ MED FIRM
EXCELLENT QUALITY RUSSET Maine Potatoes		5 LBS 69¢
FLORIDA SMALL SIZE Summer Squash		LB 39¢
FLORIDA VINE RIPENED Large Tomatoes		LB 69¢
SUPER SELECT Cucumbers		5 FOR $1
CALIFORNIA ICEBERG Lettuce		59¢ HD
GOOD EATING FROM NEW MEXICO Cantaloupe		EA 69¢
CHIQUITA OR DOLE Bananas		3 LBS $1
FRESH CUT Watermelon		LB 29¢
ANDY BOY Broccoli		BCH 89¢

Not responsible for typographical errors. We reserve the right to limit quantities.

Frozen Food

STOUFFER Main Dish CHICKEN TIPPY TETRAZZINI / BEEF STROGANOFF MACARONI & BEEF	10 OZ PKG	$1.29
FOREST LAKE AND ON FLOWERS TIME Vegetables	16 OZ PKG	79¢
INSTANT FOR ROYAL Cool Whip		75¢
SEALTEST ICE CREAM Sandwiches	7.7 OZ PKG	$1.39
WELCH 100% CAN Grape Juice		79¢
SARA LEE ORIGINAL Pound Cake	10¾ OZ PKG	$1.19

Dairy

Land O' Lakes Margarine	QTRS 1 LB PKG	49¢
Land o' Lakes Cheddar Stick SHARP OR EXTRA SHARP	10 OZ PKG	$1.35
C&F Mozzarella CURF	1 LB PKG	$1.75

Health & Beauty Aids

ANDREW & VAN Cream Rinse	15 OZ BTL	$1.49
CONNIE REACT PKG Cotton Balls		69¢
AVON'S VAN Shampoo	16 OZ BTL	$1.29
SWEETLY BABY Powder	14 OZ CONT	89¢

Terri Spearin, (right to left) Kathy Rugo and Karen Scanlon execute a move in Richard Jones's "Carmina Burana." They are all dance majors here and performed this past weekend in the Rand Theater. (Staff photo by Doug Paulding)

Talent, style at concert

By PEGGY SCHADER and DOUG PAULDING Collegian Staff

This weekend's dance concert celebrated the Board of Trustees autumn approval of the Dance Major.

The first number, "The Polovetsian Dances" (Gary Schaaf), began aggressively as tribal women danced with clenched fists and determined faces, but they soon melted into a mood of beauty and seduction with the alluring dance of a temptress and her slave women. The men who appeared as warriors danced with both strength and grace.

A delightful selection of music accompanied the dancers in the second piece, "Never Long Gone." Ranging from Brubeck's "Unsquare Dance" to the sounds of a pelting rainstorm, the number carried the charaacters gracefully from one theme to the next. Bold-colored costumes, original lighting and innovative choreography gave this catchy piece an amusing quality.

"If You Want To" made everyone want to. This sensual jazz dance, to the Brubeck and Jarreau versions of "Take Five", impressed the audience with its geometric movements and classy, slick style. Student Paul Nunes' choreography and participation in the number proved the highlight of the concert's first half.

Andrea Watkins piece, "Past Dance, Past Dancers", juxtaposed synthetic, electronic music on the emotional memories of the male dancer, Joe Rich. A machismo male, with the femininity epitomized by three beautiful women, gave one the feeling of separation and emotional mitosis. Joe Rich and Bonnie Novak carried the piece by their interchange of flirtatious smiles.

The final piece, choreographed by Richard Jones to "Carmina Burane", was based on a manuscript, found in a Bavarian monastery. The script, written by 13th century students, dealt with life, love, anger, joy, desire and destiny. And the portrayal of these in dance—by a cast who took on its roles so convincingly—was tremendous. The beauty and pageantry, the quality choreography, and the high-caliber performance of the dancers formed an exciting conclusion to a magnificent final concert.

Using more dancers for larger productions and marking strong performances by Paul Nunes, Andy Markham and Gene Niles, this UMass concert will long be remembered for its originality, versatility and wealth of talent.

Tired of Being Left Out in the Cold?

The Collegian advertising department is looking to warm up your life! If you have a car, 15 hours a week and a lot of motivation, then we would like you to be an advertising representative next semester. Sound interesting? Stop by the Collegian Office — 113 CC and talk it over with Katie Kress, Ken GrandPre, or Joan Daly. Or call 545-3500.

The Collegian is an affirmative action, equal opportunity employer.

ROOSTER'S Serves you best!

"Look for Rooster's Exam Week Special May 15-21"

138 Old Sunderland Road N. Amherst

Sub-let it, rent it, sell it, tell it. But most of all, DO IT in Collegian Classifieds

sound economy

End of Year Clearance Sale!

Our Super Inventory Clearance Sale!
$1.00 off our regul ar low prices on all 6.98, 7.98 and 8.98 series albums

Series	Our. Reg. Price	Super Sale Price
6.98	$4.77	$3.77
7.98	$5.97	$4.97
8.98	$6.47	$5.47

Sale and promotional albums not included. No special orders at sale prices.

in the campus center at umass
the UNIVERSITY STORE

AMTRAK
CAMPUS TRAVEL CENTER
CENTER UNIV OF MASS
AMHERST MASS 01003 413 545 0500

PUT A STOP TO BAD BRBRBRAKES

Precision Bendix brake parts are built to stop you on a dime. We feature a complete line of Bendix parts including shoes, pads, drums, rotors, master cylinders, for nearly every car. Bendix, it's a brand worth stopping for.

Inspection Special
$1. savings on any purchase over $10 with this coupon
(Expires May 15, 1980)

Specialists in Parts For:
*Foreign brake systems
*American passenger car & truck systems
*Drum & Rotor machining

Buy Bendix brake products at:
Campus Auto Parts
"Turn to us to keep your wheels turning"
Tel. 549-3945
107 Sunderland Road
No. Amherst, MA 01059
Bendix

Editorial/Opinion

Carter runs without it

It's been said that running for president should be rewarded, but not with the presidency. This is apt this year as Jimmy Carter, so accomplished running for office, is proving increasingly inept at running the country. Once again, in this flip-flopping, fun-loving, free-floating election year the policies of President Carter are suspect to less than pure re-election motivation. Carter's call to greet the Cuban refugees with "open hearts and open arms" is another in a long string of executive actions aimed at a next term rather than America's future. Due to the sway, foreign policy is wielding in popularity poles, and the renewed cold war. Carter's decision to wave legislative immigration quotas for the Cuban refugees is a cool political move in a hot, American political climate.

MARK WAGNER

The nature of the decision is twofold: first, accompanying the crisis in Iran, the image of America in the third world is flagging. Carter desires to show American strength and humanity by opening the doors to the Cubans. But, whereas our image in the third world needs a facelift, Carter's domestic policies and the recent fiasco in Iran are displaying anything but the humanitarian policies he's attempting to project. The only avenue to amending the injured relationships with the third world is through withdrawal of America's oppression-propagating, capitalist interests and institute a policy of economic friendship and self-determination; far from any policy we have ever offered to Cuba.

The renewed cold war mentality, which includes the Olympic boycott, is another driving force behind Carter's refugee decision. The rise of Ronald Reagan, Carter's most formidible opponent, makes combating Soviet communism a must in the 1980 re-election survival kit. Carter's hope is that the success usually endowed to Castro's social revolution will be tainted. This will display a weakness in the Soviet domain and, by accepting the refugees, a sign of American social and economic strength.

But Castro appears to be doing anything but fretting the problem. He has used the opportunity to clean up the streets of Cuba. Cuban officials are reserving one third of the exit visas for "escoria" or teash, which includes prisoners, skid row bums, and psychiatric patients. Are we being laughed at again? Regardless of policy, I do not expect America to bear the burden of foreign criminal elements.

Moreover, can America follow through with an open door policy in regards to personal freedom and economic security? I think not. The Cuban's prospects for employment in an already ailing employment market, with 40 percent of the black youths, and seven percent of the entire work force jobless, are very dim. And until the refugees can organize into a politically powerful ethnic population, they will suffer a biased legal system and populate our prisons. American society, in its present state, cannot offer the security and comfort President Carter promises to these refugees. In times of political and economic world instability, America should maintain a strict immigration policy.

Carter has turned his back as Congress slashes social spending, closed his heart to the working population, and opened his arms to a new military build up. Yet, smiling through his teeth, he is using deceptive politics to sweeten up America's image abroad. Carter is again rolling dice with our future and using presidential leverage for re-election. And what do we get from all this mess? Four more years of inept leadership? Well I'm hoping, with one of these fumbles, Carter will lose the ball.

Mark Wagner is a Collegian commentator.

Collegian

STEPHEN B. KLEIN, Editor in Chief; JULIE EAGLE, Managing Editor; FREDERIC M. KEILLOR, Business Manager; KEN GRANDPRE, Advertising manager; JACK GALLAGHER, News Editor; ROB BURBANK, Executive Editor; LISA CAPONE, Women's Editor; RENEE MOBLEY, Black Affairs Editor; JIM MAHONEY, Photo Editor; SUZETTE COURTMANCHE, Graphics Manager; JIM DEGNIM, Sports Editor; JIM MORAN, Fine Arts Editor.

The Collegian is the student newspaper of the University of Massachusetts. The staff is responsible for its content and no faculty member or administrators read it for accuracy or approval prior to publication.

Unsigned editorials represent the view of this paper. They do not necessarily reflect the views of the faculty, administration, or student body as a whole. Signed editorials, columns, reviews, cartoons and letters represent the personal views of the authors.

The Collegian is a member of the Associated Press. Publication of their material does not constitute endorsement.

The Collegian strives to print only advertising which is truthful and complete, but final responsibility for all advertisers lies with the individual advertisers.

USPS 333-220

Letters

Demanding disarmament

To President Carter and Members of Congress:

In any direct military engagement between the United States and the Soviet Union, each would be prepared to use nuclear weapons to avert defeat. For this reason, an open-ended policy of the United States to defend the Persian Gulf region is unwise.

We do not condone aggresssion by any country, but we believe the consequences of Soviet aggression could not be comparable to the tragedy of nuclear war. Though often repressive, empires in time subside, but nuclear war could leave the planet permanently uninhabitable.

We will not comply with military conscription before the United States Government: 1) ratifies SALT II and adopts for SALT III a goal of substantial reductions in the nuclear arsenals; 2) pledges never to initiate the use of nuclear weapons for lethal chemical, biological or radiological weapons; 3) terminates production and deployment of the MX missile, the Trident submarine, the neutron warhead, and intermediate-range missiles for Europe; 4) begins a reduction of its strategic and tactical nuclear arsenals (which together include over 30,000 warheads) by at least one third to be achieved in five years or less.

Further, the United States should reduce drastically its dependence on foreign oil. Our fifth condition for considering compliance with conscription is that Congress immediately adopt conservation measures to cut oil imports by half.

It is not our intention to set forth terms which are politically palatable; these are the minimal conditions under which we might agree to fight overseas. Our purpose is to act with foresight in the face of tremendous uncertainty—that posed by the existence of 50,000 nuclear weapons and Soviet and American leaders who are prepared to use them when circumstances "dictate." Nine times out of ten, deterrence may work, but it need fail only once.

Our conditions may entail costs, but the predicament in which we find ourselves is partly attributable to our acceptance of the risks of preparing for nuclear war over those of arms control. We have never made a concerted effort to halt the arms race. The Soviet record has not been any more commendable, but that state which we take to the be antagonist of everything we value should not be our standard of acceptability.

This world is not ours to destroy, regardless of any outrage we or any people might otherwise have to endure. Even threatening nuclear cataclysm is a departure from all that is good in our heritage, and it is our human right and obligation to resist governmental policies which contemplate mass slaughter. Of course, it is none too soon to begin the long and strenuous task of disarmament.

Courage,
Todd Buchanan
Tom Novak
Amherst College

Editor's Note:
This letter has also appeared in the Amherst Student and the Mt. Holyoke College Choragos. If you agree with this letter, the authors ask that you voice your concern by signing it and mailing it to your Congressman, Senator, and/or the President.

There goes the sun

To the Editor:

We, as concerned students and residents of Southwest, feel the need to inform the student body, and especially residents of Southwest, of the administration's plans for the low-rise lounges.

There are plans to remove all the sliding glass doors and screens in the lounges with balconies before next semester. These are to be replaced with concrete blocks and "louvered-type" windows.

Perhaps if the person requesting this work had lived in a low-rise, he/she would realize that the balconies are one of the nicest and most enjoyable aspects of living in those dorms. We feel that the ever-increasing amount of concrete and black-top is not only aesthetically distasteful, but expensive as well. We think everybody can come up with at least one better way to spend this money.

If you also find these plans disagreeable, speak out. Don't let them slip another one by you!

Timothy Schonman
Michelle Vuarney
and 3rd floor sunset
Cance

Supporting resistance

To the Editor:

With the semester nearly over, the time is drawing close for men to decide whether or not they are going to register for the draft. We at Students Against the Draft urge everyone to think clearly about the ramifications of registering. It should be remembered that this decision will affect the rest of your life. In a nation where freedom of speech and thought are fundamental rights, should a person be required to register for something that he doesn't believe in and feels is wrong? We don't think so. A person could better serve our country by working against militarism and for peace.

We understand that the decison not to register is a very difficult and personal one. Students Against the Draft offers legal and personal counseling on registration and the draft. At the SAD table on Monday and Tuesday, information will be available, as well as people to talk to. We urge all men not to register, and we will support anyone who chooses not to. With the unstable world situation and Carter or Reagan at the helm for the next four years, why give them a loaded gun. NO REGISTRATION AND NO DRAFT.

Students Against the Draft

Clarifying childcare

To the Editor:

Having been concerned by the Collegian*'s sparse coverage of childcare and related issues concerning the constantly growing population of non-traditional students and off-campus families, I was pleased to come across your article: "Childcare opportunities sparse in Amherst," (April 29, 1980), although it dealt with the UMass centers and not those in the outside community.*

The availability of quality day care is a crucial factor in the lives of many families in the University community and I hope that the Collegian will make an attempt to further explore the issues and to offer accurate information to its readers. The main point in the article written by Karen Partridge involves the amount of money that the University contributes to childcare. The article states: "The University currently spends around $200,000 a year on childcare services for the UMass community...." attributing the quote to Elizabeth Perkins, the Childcare Co-ordinator. That figure, Ms. Perkins said, represents the total monies from all sources, inside and outside the University, and that UMass' contribution is less than half of that amount.

I would also like to make a clarification in the description of the University centers. After a listing of three of the pre-schools, including the North Village Children's Center, Ms. Partridge continues: "There is also the New World Day School, which offers a multi-cultural program..." NWDS is not alone in that endeavor. During this academic year the children at NVCC have consisted of nine white "American" children, five black children, two Hispanic, two Japanese, a Malaysian, Saudi Arabian, Danish, Brazilian, and Korean; and the staff and parents of NVCC have worked to provide a truly multi-cultural program.

I hope that the Collegian will be more responsive to the needs and interests of the non-traditional students, the staff, and faculty families that are involved with the University. I would add, on behalf of the Childcare Office, that all people with further questions concerning childcare, not only women, as the article stated, are invited to call the Childcare Office.

David Zuccalo
Director/Head teacher
N. Village Children's Ctr.

Letters Policy

Letters to the editor should be kept as short as possible, preferably no longer than two pages. They should be typed at 67 characters per line, triple-spaced.

Masiello shows promise to be star Ward witness

By DAVID HERN

BOSTON (AP) — To the consternation of some political figures, William Masiello, the bon vivant of another day, is ready to let it all hang out before the state corruption commission.

"He knew everybody," a Beacon Hill regular said. "He can do a lot of damage." Commenting on the explosive investigation, another asked, "When are they going to back the wagon up to the Statehouse?"

A printer, who became owner of a powerful architectural firm, and now works at a Cape Cod delicatessen, Masiello is scheduled to be the commission's star witness today, and maybe a few more days.

It's been mainly downhill for Masiello and Albert (Toots) Manzi of Paxton, since kickbacks from the McKee-Berger—Mansueto contract for supervising the UMass-Boston surfaced.

Two senators — Joseph DiCarlo, D-Revere, and Ronald C. MacKenzie, R-Burlington — were imprisoned for extorting $40,000 from MBM, convictions that opened a Pandora's box.

The Worcester design business that grossed millions, the potent political contacts, the fat expense accounts are gone now.

Masiello and Manzi, Worcester County's top Republican for years, went through the wringer before winning acquittals on related MBM charges. The euphoria from the court victory was short-lived, once the commission probing abuses in state and county construction entered the scene.

Manzi has been ailing and unavailable for comment on the many allegations the commission has heard about his involvement in payoffs for architectural contracts, as well as other political favors.

The commission led off its hearings with Frank Masiello, who had immunity from prosecution for his five days of testimony, and plans to round off the present phase with Bill.

★ Raitt

CONT. FROM PAGE 3

sure that some good music will be on her next album.

The concert was quite a party, the music was enjoyable, and I don't know who booked the fantastic weather, but thank you.

FOR OUT OF THIS WORLD RESULTS

Going To Summer Session?? THETA CHI WANTS YOU!

Live in privacy and comfort at Theta Chi 496 N. Pleasant kitchen privledges, close to campus, newly decorated living room etc. Come down and sign up now. See Ron or "Count" Bring a friend! Call 253-9015

Theta Chi is going Great and needs Pledges - Come on down - Join the house that does plenty for its brothers - Call Ron for a free Supper Deal!! Call up and join 253-9015

The Following openings exist through the Upward Bound Program of
North Shore Community College
during the program 6 week live-in summer component to be held at the University of MA Amherst campus.

1. Reading Instructor/Counselor $200 per week
2. English Instructor/Counselor $200 per week
3. Math & Science Instructor/Counselor $200/wk
4. Tutor/Counselor $3.10 per hour
5. Dormitory Supervisor $200 per week

Applicants for instructional positions above should possess a Bachelor's Degree in the appropriate field. Tutor/Counselor must demonstrate experience and skills in counseling. BA required for Dorm supervisor position

All positions are 35 hours per week for 6 weeks from June 28th to Aug. 8th. Applications should be directed to

Beth Hogan, Coordinator
c/o YMCA
20 Neptune Blvd.
Lynn, MA 01902
By May 23, 1980. An Equal Opportunity Employer

1980 Commencement Information
University of Massachusetts at Amherst

Date: Saturday, May 24, 1980
Time: 10:00 am
Place: Alumni Stadium

Any undergraduate degree candidate who anticipates completing degree requirements by the end of the calendar year 1980 is eligible to participate in the 1980 ceremony. Questions concerning undergraduate academic status should be directed to the Records Office, Whitmore Building, 545-0555. Graduate students should direct questions to the Office of Degree Requirements, GRC, 545-0025.

COMMENCEMENT DAY SCHEDULE

9:00 am Robing for Commencement:
-Masters/Doctoral candidates assemble at the northwest end of the stadium (on the gravel area);
-Arts and Sciences graduates assemble at the southwest end of the stadium (on the gravel area between the facilities building and the stadium wall);
Physical Education, Health Sciences, Engineering, Education and Non-traditional Program candidates assemble at the southeast end of the stadium (on the gravel area between the facilities building and the stadium wall);
-Food & Natural Resources and Business candidates assemble at the northeast end of the stadium (on the gravel area).
-Signs will be displayed along the outside of the stadium walls. Appropriately colored signs, coordinated with tassel colors, will be displayed inside the stadium. All candidates should sit with their School or College.

9:30 am Seating of Graduates
10:00 am Commencement Procession begins
12 noon Commencement Ceremony ends

Distribution of Caps and Gowns
Where: University Store
Times: 10 am - 4 pm, Monday-Friday
When: April 28 - May 23, 1980
Also: 8 am - 10 am, Saturday, May 24th (at the stadium)
Doctoral Hoods are available at a cost of $26.00 each.
PLEASE BRING YOUR I.D.!

Accommodations: a limited number of rooms are available for relatives and other guests the nights of May 23 & 24 in University Housing. Please contact the University Conference Office at 545-2591.

In the event of rain: there is no alternative rain site. Commmencement will be held outside in the Alumni Stadium regardless of the weather. A delay of two (2) hours will be announced in the event of heavy rains and cancellation in the event of torrential rains. Please listen to local radio stations th morning of may 24 for announcements of delay or cancellation.

Invitations are not required for admittance. Seating for guests will be on a first come, first served basis.

If additional information is needed, contact the Office of Public Affairs at 545-2560.

★ Concert

CONT. FROM PAGE 1

said. Most of the injured were transported to UMass Health Services, except for one person with a fractured ankle and one with dental problems, who were taken to Cooley Dickinson Hospital in Northampton, he said.

Health Services officials said they would not have any reports on weekend activity until today.

"Considering the working conditions, everyone really performed well. I can't complain," Anderson said. About 30 first aid personnel, trained Emergency Medical Technicians, as well as about 10 drug crisis people from Health Services provided first aid, he said.

By 3 p.m. yesterday, the stage was gone and most of the stadium cleaned. About twenty Physical Plant employees worked eight hours yesterday morning cleaning the area, filling three small dump trucks, one large truck and two "packer" trucks with debris, said Physical Plant supervisor Jim LaRose.

"This is the first year the field was cleared the day after the concert. I'll feel good about it tomorrow," LaRose said. "We had good support all the way around. I think this shows everyone can work together. These people will look golden."

LaRose said it would take "a good week" to restore the field, and said the main problem would be digging bottle caps and glass out of the ground by hand.

At 8 a.m. yesterday, UPC stage crew members were back in Alumni Stadium to take down the stage. Manager Frank Gironda said. One stage crew worker broke her leg in a fall.

"I think the crew has been excellent. We worked with a stage crew of about 48 and they've been terrific," Gironda said. "Last year there was just a handful of people doing the work and by the end of the show they were burned out."

Dean of Students William F. Field said he did not know how the concert went and did not want to comment until he received reports from police and health officials.

"For the vast majority it was a good day. The question is whether it was bad for a minority," Field said.

★ Chaos

CONT. FROM PAGE 1

said. Throughout the day security personnel continuously stopped people from climbing over the walls and sneaking through the backstage perimeter.

Overall, however, there were no major problems and UPC officials said they were pleased with the results.

★ Frustration

CONT. FROM PAGE 1

In March, section seven of a Spanish 140 class was cancelled because of a lack of funding for that course. Its original instructor became ill, but when Jose Torres took over these teaching duties he was not paid for four weeks.

Students in section seven rescheduled their courses, in some cases, so that they would receive credit for the course. Many needed the course ton graduate, in order to fulfill the foreign language requirement which calls for completion of a language through the 140 level.

An agreement was reached among Spanish department instructors that they would teach the course on a rotating basis if necessary, and students have remained in section seven.

"My dean," Richard W. Noland of Humanities and Fine Arts, "has been very supportive," but no one else has been supportive, Francescato said.

"Personnally, I'm sorry to leave," she said. "But professionally..."

★ Softball

CONT. FROM PAGE 1

loaded double and Karen LaVerdiere also contributed a two-bagger, producing a five-run frame.

In the first URI contest, defense highlighted the 4-3 win. Marasco said shortstop Cornacchioli was "like a Hoover upright. She was brilliant." Third basewoman Chris Coughlin was also outstanding as the Minutewomen were errorless in the first two outings. The two miscues in the finale could have been called either way, according to Marasco.

"Kathy O'Connell pitched a good game," Marasco added. The junior allowed six hits in five innings. She was relieved in the last two frames by Peters.

Peters (12-0) fired a two-hitter in her second shutout of the series. She received all the cushion needed in the bottom of the first. Gaw's double and Peters' single provided the 2-run KO. UMass had 18 hits in the tourney.

A local chorus announced the end of URI's bid with a song from the musical "Oklahoma", the place where the Minutewomen take their talent for the Nationals.

2 MORE publishing days LEFT IN THE SEMESTER! PLACE THOSE classifieds NOW!

安城中國飯店
AMHERST CHINESE FOOD
62 Main St 253-7835
"Where you can get the best homestyle Chinese dishes at a very reasonable price."
Closed Wednesdays

Save Gas and Money! Amalie Imperial 2 saves gas—

up to 5% better gas mileage. And that saves you money!

NEW!

Pays for itself. And then some.

HAPCO AUTO PARTS
534 Main St. 256-6414 Amherst, MA 256-6415

SAVE Money & Time While You Enjoy the Summer!

Have you Payroll Check deposited directly to a FREE CHECKING Account at Old Colony Bank and enjoy the Summer without having to wait for the mailman to deliver your pay check. At Old Colony our checking accounts are free! No per check charge - no minimum balance - no monthly fee -Just Simply Free! And, if you sign up for direct deposit of your pay check during May, Old Colony will provide you with fully personalized checks at no cost to you. So stop in today and get started with your free checking account at Old Colony Bank.

1784
Old Colony Bank
OF HAMPDEN COUNTY N.A.
AN AFFILIATE OF THE FIRST NATIONAL BANK OF BOSTON

Office Hours
Mon-Wed 10am - 5 pm
Thurs-Fri 10 am - 8 pm
Sat 10 am - 5 pm

HAMPSHIRE MALL

other offices in Chicopee, Holyoke, Springfield, Westfield

Fla.refugee flood goes on

By DAN SEWELL
Associated Press

KEY WEST, Fla. — Thousands more refugees, including more than 600 in one boat, streamed across the Florida Straits yesterday as the re-juvenated, ragtag "Freedom Flotilla" claimed its eighth victim.

The Coast Guard rescued 265 refugees from overloaded vessels Sunday and one refugee said that as many as 2,000 inmates were released from a prison to come to the United States.

The eighth victim, a man in his late 50s, was picked up by a Coast Guard cutter from a 24- foot boat that was en route to Key West from the Cuban port of Mariel with no refugees, said Coast Guard Lt. J.G. Nimick.

"The boat apparently had lost its way and the crew was disoriented. They saw a tugboat pulling a barge and went over to ask directions," Nimick said. "They accidentally ran into the tow line and the man suffered a severed jugular vein. He had bled to death when we arrived."

British warn terrorists off

By ED BLANCHE
Associated Press

LONDON — Britain's commando assault last week on the occupied Iranian Embassy was a warning to terrorists — from the Middle East and elsewhere — to stay away.

Since 1977, at least a dozen Arabs and Israelis have been killed and many others wounded in attacks in London, and Britain's willingness to put up with imported political violence is fading fast.

Home Secretary William Whitelaw said the commando raid that freed 19 hostages showed: "We in Britain are not prepared to tolerate terrorism in our capital city. And that's something that has to be learned by everybody."

The government's new tough attitude is reflected in its use of the elite Special Air Services in the embassy assault — the SAS has rarely been used outside Northern Ireland.

201 Student Union — Record Records Unlimited — next to Hatch

END OF SEMESTER CLEARANCE SALE!
Till May 14
50c off all albums
* except cut outs, imports, direct masters
Stop in 10 am to 5 pm
Stock up on sounds for the Summer
your Student-run Record Store

NEWPORT R.I. America's Cup
Rooms available in a Bellevue Avenue Estate $700
For entire season includes kitchen privledges, utilities and 1 acre lawn. Walking distance to harbor and beaches.
CALL: Carol Abarno, Bellevue Realtors, 63 Bellevue Ave, 401-849-6084

IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE...ADVERTISE WHERE IT PAYS...
WANT ADS!

Theses Paper
Theses Binders
A.J. Hastings Inc.
newsdealer & stationer
45 S. Pleasant St., Amherst

Wear a sandal that's as good as gold.

You've probably heard just how comfortable Scholl Exercise Sandals can be. That's because they're shaped like the bottom of your foot—with a hollow to cradle your heel and a little crest that fits in right under your toes.

But it's that little crest that gives you something more than comfort from Exercise Sandals. That crest makes your toes hang on when you walk so your legs firm up and shape up. To help give you legs that are the best they can be.

And now you can get a little something else special from Scholl. A miniature gold-finished Exercise Sandal that looks as great around your neck as the real ones do on your feet. It even comes on its own 18" gold-finished "S" chain.

This charm of a sandal, available only through Scholl, is yours for just $4.95, including postage and handling. So step right up to the Scholl Exercise Sandal display, pick up an order blank (or send in the one on the right), and get the sandal that has the world on a chain.

Scholl Exercise Sandal Necklace Offer
Here's my check or money order payable to Scholl Necklace Offer for the exclusive Scholl Exercise Sandal gold-finished charm and chain. I have included $4.95 for each necklace. Mail to:
Scholl Exercise Sandal Necklace Offer, Dept. CR, P.O. Box 2622, Maple Plain, MN 55348
(Please print clearly)
Name ____
Street Address ____
City ____ State ____ Zip ____
Sex: Male ____ Female ____ Age: ____
Allow 4-6 weeks for delivery. Offer expires December 31, 1980. Offer good in U.S.A. only.
Scholl
© 1980 Scholl, Inc., 213 W. Schiller, Chicago, IL 60610

SALE-ON-TIRES
ROUTE 9 HADLEY, MA
2 MILES FROM NORTHAMPTON OR AMHERST
MICHELIN - CONTINENTAL - ZENITH - B.F. GOODRICH - ARMSTRONG - GOODYEAR - PLUS OTHER MAJOR BRANDS. SUPERSEDES ALL OTHER ADS.
Cash & Carry — TIRE SALE — Cash & Carry
All our tires are new and first line. No Blems or Seconds.
Wholesale to the Public.
We can arrange to have your tires mounted.

CONSUMER NOTE
WHEN COMPARING PRICES, MAKE SURE YOU ALSO COMPARE QUALITY GRADES, EFFECTIVE APRIL 1979 THE N.H.T.S.A. GRADED REGULAR BIAS-PLY TIRES (STANDARD =100) AS FOLLOWS:

NAME	QUALITY GRADE*
FIRESTONE (DLC)	80
ZENITH (PE)	80
GOODYEAR (POWERSTREAK)	70
WOOLCO (ALL AMERICAN)	70
SEARS (GUARDSMAN)	60
K-MART (KM-50)	50

*The higher the No.: the longer the tire will last.
DON'T FORGET IT'S YOUR MONEY

BIAS PLY POLYESTER SIZE	TYPE	PRICE	RADIAL PLY SIZE	TYPE	PRICE
A/8x13	Arm. Wht.	23.95	P155/80x13	WT. GLASS Goodyr. Tiva	37.95
B78x13	Zenith Blk.	25.95	BR78x13	Fire. 721 WT. STEEL	49.95
C78x13	Fire. Dlc. Blk.	25.95	P185/80x13	BFG Steel Wt.	49.00
C78x14	Fire Dlc. Wt.	27.95	CR78x14	BFG Steel Wt.	52.00
D78x14	Zenith Blk.	27.95	DR 78x14	BFG steel wt.	53.00
E78x14	Zenith Blk.	28.95	P195/75x14	BFG Steel Wt.	54.00
F78x14	Zenith Blk.	30.95	P205/75x14	BFG Steel Wt.	56.00
G78x14	Zenith Blk.	32.95	GR78x14	Zen. Glass Wt.	48.95
H78x14	Zenith Blk.	34.95	FR78x15	Fire. Glass Blk.	44.00
560x15	Zen Blk	25.95	P205/75x15	BFG Steel Wt.	57.00
G78x15	Zenith Blk.	33.95	P215/75x15	BFG Steel Wt.	61.00
H78x15	Zenith Blk.	35.95	P225/75x15	BFG Steel Wt.	64.00
L78x15	Zenith Wt.	39.95	P235/75x15	BFG Steel Wt.	69.00

WIDE SERIES
BFGoodrich T/A PERFORMANCE TIRES — 150 Rating

E70x14	48.00	G60x14	57.00
F70x14	50.00	L60x14	63.00
G70x14	51.00	G60x15	58.00
G70x15	53.00	L60x15	65.00

ALL PRICE PLUS F.E.TAX & SALES TAX
CASH AND CARRY VISA OR MASTER CHARGE
OPEN Mon.-Fri. 9:30-5:30 Sat., 9:30-3 p.m.
586-2544

All Stop & Shops open Sunday 9 am-5 pm

Come fill your life with "The Joy of Great Music"
Free section of Funk & Wagnalls Illustrated Encyclopedia of Music with each album you buy!
This Week Album 1 Albums 2 thru 24 only $2.99 each! with $5 food purchase. 99¢

you can always depend on our FILM DEVELOPING Quality & Convenience is what we strive to give you at Stop & Shop
• 2 PRINTS FOR THE PRICE OF 1 — 2 sets of prints for the price of one, absolutely free of extra charge! That's what you get at Stop & Shop every time you bring in your color print film for us to develop.
• WE ALWAYS USE KODAK PAPER to give you better-looking prints and extra prints
• WE WANT YOU TO BE PLEASED with every picture we develop for you or we will happily reprint it for you or refund its purchase price.

Stop & Shop Coupon K27
With this coupon and a $7.50 purchase
39¢ SUPER MOIST BETTY CROCKER CAKE MIX Assorted Flavors 18½ Ounce Package.
Good Sun, May 11-Sat, May 17, 1980. Limit one per customer. Grocery

Stop & Shop Coupon
With this coupon and a $7.50 purchase
59¢ 12 Ounce Can MINUTE MAID ORANGE JUICE Frozen Concentrate Good Sun, May 11-Sat, May 17, 1980. Limit one per customer. Frozen

Stop & Shop — Honest values are what we're all about.
Start saving on this page!
Continue saving with our circular! GET A COPY WHEN YOU SHOP!

New! Boil in Bag Gorton's Cod Frozen 6oz. pkg. Cheese, Butter, or White Sauce. $1.19 ea.
Fish Sticks with Shrimp Stuffing Gortons 10 ounce pkg. Frozen $1.79
Fish & Chips Gortons 14 oz pkg Frozen $1.19
Stuffed Scrod Gortons Bigeye 9 oz pkg Frozen $1.59
Fish Portions Gorton's Butter Dipped 10oz pkg Frozen $1.49

seafood — It's all really fresh!
Fresh Flounder Fillets $2.29 lb
FRESH DRESSED MACKEREL 99¢ lb
FRESH FILLET POLLOCK $1.69 lb
FRESH COD STEAKS $1.69 lb
FRESH BABY SALMON $3.79 lb
CHERRYSTONE FRESH CLAMS 89¢ lb

self service deli — Save!
1 lb. pkg. Stop & Shop Bacon Reg. 89¢ Maple or Thick Sliced
Bologna P&P Chow or Roger Style Loaf Stop & Shop 8 Ounce Package 59¢
Child Mild Franks Stop & Shop 1 Pound Pkg $1.19
Extra Mild Franks Stop & Shop 1 Pound Pkg 99¢
Chicken Hot Dogs Colonial 1 Pound Pkg or Colonial Chicken Bologna 89¢
Hillshire Kielbasi or Smoked Sausage $1.79 lb

corner deli — Pick up a meal!
Available in stores featuring a service deli
Carando Genoa Salami $2.99 lb — Natural Casing. $3.69 lb Artificial Casing
Carando Mortadella $1.89 lb
Carando Pepperoni $2.99 lb
Carando Hot Ham Alpine Brand $2.69 lb
Provolone Cheese For Slicing $2.29 lb
Cooked Ham Stop & Shop Baked & Glazed in our Kitchen $2.99 lb
Potato Salad Stop & Shop 49¢ lb
Macaroni Salad Stop & Shop 59¢ lb
Custard Pudding Stop & Shop Plain or Grapefruit 99¢ lb

Stop & Shop "Big Eye" Pork Sale! See the difference in meatiness...save the difference in price!
Assorted Pork Chops big eye pork ⅓ Blade Chops, ⅓ Center Chops, ⅓ Sirloin Chops. Cut from tender, young pork loins. 89¢ lb
Center Cut Pork Chops $1.29 lb — Center Cut Thin Sliced $1.39
Countrystyle Pork Ribs Lean and Meaty $1.19 lb
Boneless Pork Sirloin Cutlets $1.89 lb
Pork Loin Roast Rib End Portion 95¢ lb

USDA CHOICE Beef Top Round Roast "Great Beef"...only at Stop & Shop! $1.89 lb
Beef Round Tip Roast "Great Beef" USDA Choice $1.99 lb
Beef Top Round Steak "Great Beef" USDA Choice $2.29 lb
Top Round London Broil "Great Beef" USDA Choice $2.49 lb

26% GROUND BEEF — 26%* Ground Beef Consistently lean! Approx. 3 Pound Chub $1.49 lb
*26% Ground Beef. Contains not more than 26% fat.
Beef Round Tip Steak "Great Beef" USDA Choice $2.39 lb
Cube Steak Beef Round "Great Beef" USDA Choice $2.39 lb

Fresh Pork Spare Ribs Tasty with barbeque sauce! $1.29 lb
3lb. Rath Canned Ham Hickory Smoked $5.99
Beef Liver 89¢ lb Frozen, Skinned and Deveined produce — Pick and choose what's perfect for you!

Extra Large Iceberg Lettuce Size 24 Heads 2 for $1
Large Tomatoes Slicing 59¢ lb
Fresh Florida Sweet Corn 6 for $1

Stop & Shop Coupon K29
SAVE 30¢ on ANY STOP & SHOP PIZZA Sold Fresh in our Meat Dept.
Good Sun, May 11-Sat, May 17, 1980. Limit 1 p.k. per customer. MEAT

Stop & Shop Coupon K28
SAVE 25¢ on STOP & SHOP CHEESE Sharp White or Yellow Cheddar or Imported Irish Blarney Varied Weights Packaged
Good Sun, May 11-Sat, May 17, 1980. Limit 1 per customer. DAIRY

Lincoln Apple Juice Pure Natural 64 Ounce bottle 99¢
Elfwich Cookies Chocolate Creme Keebler Bonus Pack, 18oz pkg. 88¢
Libby Vegetables Cut or French Style Green Beans, Cut Waxed Beans or Whole Kernel Corn 4 8 oz cans $1
Prince Superoni Thin, Ridg, or Elbows 12 Ounce Package 2 for $1
Maxwell House Instant Coffee 14 Ounce Package $5.99
Stop & Shop Instant Rice 14 Ounce Package 69¢
Royal Gelatins All Varieties, 3oz pkg 5 for $1
Disposable Diapers "Our Own" Daytime Package of 60 $3.99
Wisk Liquid Detergent Heavy Duty Laundry 64 Ounce Jug $2.69
Stop & Shop Apple Pie 22 Ounce Package $1.19
Ban Roll-On Deodorant Reg., Quick Dry Unscented 1.5 oz. pkg 99¢
Whole Kernel Corn or Cream Style Stop & Shop 16oz can 4 for $1
Stop & Shop Apple Sauce 50 Ounce Jar 89¢
Fruit Cocktail Stop & Shop Buffet Style Sliced Yellow Cling Peaches, Sliced or Halves Bartlett Pears 3 8 oz cans $1
Welch's Grape Jelly or Jam 10 oz Jar 2 for $1
Zesta Saltines Salted or Unsalted 16 Ounce Package 69¢
Grapefruit or Orange Juice Stop & Shop 6 pk of 6 oz cans 99¢
Crisco Vegetable Oil 38 Ounce Bottle $1.69
Bounce Fabric Softener $2.49
9-Lives Cat Food Buffet Size All Varieties, 6½oz Can 3 for 85¢
Big Daisy Bread Sliced White 20oz Loaf 2 for 85¢
Aim Toothpaste 6.4 Ounce Tube 99¢

frozen foods — Save on entrees, vegetables, desserts!
Sealtest Ice Cream Asst'd Flavors Half Gallon Carton $1.69
Green Giant Vegetables in Cheese Sauce, Broccoli, Cauliflower or Rice & Broccoli, 10 Ounce Package 59¢
Sara Lee Pound Cake 10½ Ounce Package $1.19
Tuscan Yogurt Pops Frozen, 1.5oz pkg of 6 $1.39
BirdsEye Tasti Fries 20 Ounce Package 69¢
Freezer Queen Entrees Turkey, Salisbury, Char Broiled Patties or Man Size Patties 2lb pkg $1.39
Morton's Pies Chocolate or Banana Cream, 3½ oz pkg 2 for 79¢
Stop & Shop Cheese Pizza 16 Ounce Package $1.09

dairy — You can depend on the quality and freshness!
Parkay Margarine 1 lb pkg quarters lb sticks 2 for $1
Firm n' Fruity Yogurt Hood 5oz cup 4 for $1
Grapefruit Juice Stop & Shop Half Gallon Carton 99¢
Reddi Wip Topping Instant Whip Cream 7 Ounce Can 89¢
Stop & Shop Orange Juice Gallon Cont. From Concentrate $1.69
Sun Glory Low Fat Milk Gallon Container $1.39
Tropicana Orange Juice 100% Pure 32oz Container 59¢
Breakstone Sour Cream 8 Ounce Cup 2 for $1

HADLEY-AMHERST Route 9 at the Hadley-Amherst Line. 8a.m.-10p.m., Mon.-Sat.
We redeem your Federal Food Stamps.

Collegian Classifieds

To place a Collegian Classified
•Come to Collegian Office CC 113
•8:45 to 3:45 Mon-Fri
•Classified deadline is 3:45 two days prior to publication day

Collegian Classified Rates
•15c per word
•Student rate 10c per word
•Cash in advance
•5 consecutive days 5 % discount
•Phone number FREE

AUDIO

Stereo for sale Yamaha 600 receiver, Aup 103 speakers Hi Tachips-10 turntable great condition $500 or BO Kevin 549-4600 x 335

AUTO FOR SALE

1966 Jeep CJ5 V-6 4WD, new top, price negotiable 549-1098

Olds Cutlass 1968 runs well first $250 takes it call 549-6468

1970 VW Squareback excellent mechanical condition, body rusted $400 665-2802

1973 Chevy Laguna 2 dr vinyl top, AM-FM cassette, Jensen co-axial speakers, must see, $1400 or BO Paul 6-5998

1977 Triumph TR-7 coupe Excellent condition, sunroof, green with tan interior, 37,000, handles superbly $4400.00 545-3540 days; 1-498-2466 eves

(Must Sell) 67 Impala Convertible BO Peter 549-0618

1968 Mustang Cheap call Bill at 546-6187

1969 Mustang sedan 300.oo 527-3975

1973 Cadillac Coupe low mileage uses reg gas runs exc $1300.00 Brad 256-0200

Pont Lemans 1969 engine good, body fair, some work needed on interior and brakes, great for Summer must sell $400 negotiable 546-6985

73 Renault 12 30 mpg 4 door 4 speed very good condition $1425 must be seen 665-7567

CAR INSPECTION

Get ready for Spring Inspection May 15 See S.A.W.

EXAM WEEK SPECIAL

Hungry? See Rooster's Exam Week Special, May 15-21

FOR RENT

Economy Apt 3 bedrooms, extra storage rooms. June and Sept terms $235 plus partial utilities Call 5-6 pm Skibiski Realtors Northampton 584-3428

Cliffside 1 bedroom sub lease Avail May 19. $200 Fall option 665-2802

Southwood 2 bdrm townhouse Dirt Cheap call 256-6089

FREE, one months rent. 4 bdr apt Summer sublet w Fall opt 256-0778

Room in house for rent end of May-Aug $90 per month 10 min from Campus and Amherst Center call Laurie eve 256-0637

Rooms for Summer rental Amherst price negotiable call 6-5081 or 546-5100

2 bedroom apt Squire Village bus route Summer with Fall option air, pool, hot water 665-4919

Summer rooms for rent $70, $80 and $90 price includes utilities use of kitchen color TV much more singles, doubles, and triples at 395 No Pleasant St. 253-9987

2 bedroom Colonial Village Apt bus route June 1 with option call Lisa Robin evenings 253-3740

Summer rooms for rent in S. Amherst on bus route price neg. call 546-4364/546-4362/546-4285 keep trying

2 bdrm apt Colonial Village nice, across from bus stop Rt neg June 1 Fall option 253-3195

1 large bedroom in 4 bdrm house near center Nhampton avail July 1 $75 + util call 586-8192

One bedroom Townhouse many extras av. May 24 $185/month on bus route 253-3551

Summer Rentals at reasonable prices Zeta Psi Fraternity is one block from campus. Call 256-6845 for more information

House in North Amherst available June 1st w/Fall option, 5 minute walk to bus, bar, and groceries. $100/month/bedroom plus utilities call evenings 549-0319

One bedroom of three Puffton, swimming pool, tennis courts, Summer $95.00/mo call 549-1421

Summer Sublet/Fall option 1 bdrm apt Cliffside $192 incl util 665-7966

FOR SALE

Dacor tank 72 Cl & reg $150 Steve 256-6388

Couch, two easy chairs, footstool $100 or best offer 665-7526

200 New England Patriots Cheerleaders Posters $75.00 549-4058

5 cubic foot refrigerator must sell moving off campus excellent condition $40 or BO call 546-7940 call after 4:00

Spaulding Executive Irons 2-PW, 2 yrs old $125 serious golfers only

Electric Mandolin $75 Mederia banjo 6-5693

Yamaha FG512 12-string guitar perfect condition $220 new $190 firm Roger 665-4786 665-7923

Nike Pro Racing Flats size 11 used once $20 Steve 6-6863

Carpet new rust shag 546-4008

Refrigerator 4 cu ft excel cond $95 6-8133 PM

Twin bed, Boxspring $40 or BO call Mary 549-0029

Fender electric guitar $250 or BO ask for Mike 5-0850 or 6-1055

For Sale: ten speed bike good condition and a double burner hot plate cheap great for the dorms call Laura 6-9814

Sofa green, very comfortable, excellent condition $150 or BO 253-3787 after 6 keep trying

Single bed good cond, available May 19 offers call Julie 549-4882

Piccolo $150 Flute Gemienhardt open-hole M3 $250 both in perfect condition 546-5723 keep trying

Large bureau with mirror 549-4059

Sanyo cube refrigerator $50 call 546-7473

Refrgerator dorm-sized, excellent condition call 546-9181

FOUND

Keys found at Southwest Spring Concert six keys on a key ring. Please call 545-0960 or come to the Southwest Asssembly Office in Hamden Center!!!

GAS

Does your car suck gas? See S.A.W.

HELP WANTED

Back-to-School Editor position available responsible for coordinating Collegian Back-to-School Issue must be available end of August through first week of Sept editing, lay-out and reporting skills a must. Contact Rob Stein or Fran Basche, Collegian Office, 545-3500

Summer work with the oldest, largest and best-paying student program in the country, Call 253-2597 for interviews.

Collegian Photo Dept. needs asst. editors for next semester. See Paul Price at Collegian Office, 113 Campus Center or call 545-3500

We provide a house, a salary range of $10,000 to 14,800 + additional stuff. We are looking for a couple who can create a home, in our house, with 4 to 6 teens. Couple should have knowledge of court related adolescents, an ability to relate and set limits, plus a sense of humor. For more info—call the home finder at the Center for Human Development at 733-6624 or send resume to CHD 52 Maple Court, Springfield, Mass 01105

Part-time writer/editor (2) Sports and Community Affairs apply at Amherst Record, 109 Main Street, Amherst 256-8331

Summer workstudy on campus Organizing a teen conference and two international exchanges 219 Stockbridge Hall 545-2646

Summer Workstudy Ashland, Framingham Instructors in day-camp situation in nutrition, excercise, gardening or environment 219 Stockbridge Hall 545-2646

HOUSE FOR RENT 1981

Beautifully restored 200 year old Cape in Pelham. 5 rooms, 2 fireplaces & woodstove. Available January, 1981 $430 + utilities 253-7233

INSTRUCTION

Basic Auto-Mechanics Workshop. Summer class forming. 28 hours of instruction including classroom theory and shop. Limited enrollment. 253-7967

LOST

From NOPE Olympus key ring & wallet-reward $20 Matt 6-5631

Anyone that found some tools in a gray toolbox and a tune up analyzer in a styrofoam box next to Cashin please contact Don at 546-5984 I need them!

Lost blue notebook contained 25 page paper in Spanish please call 549-5507

Denim Jacket/Senate meeting Wednesday Ellen 6-4966

MOTORCYCLES

Yamaha 750 excellent condition $1000.00 253-7324

1978 Kawasaki KZ650 excellent condition extras best offer 549-4547

Yamaha 76 Enduro $550 Suzuki 77 RM125 $500 549-3597 after 6:00 PM

MOVING HASSLES?

Co-operative moving of goods to Washington DC area. If interested call Susan 772-6259 after 8:00 PM

NEED A ROOMATE FOR FALL?

Call 546-6742, late

NEED A SUMMER JOB?

Staff members wanted for Summer co-ed camp in Maine If interested, please call (413) 567-6356 after 4 PM

PERSONALS

Sporting Goods Co-op: Clearance sale open Mon-Fri 10-3 (next to Post Office in Student Union)

To whoever found my wallet Monday afternoon—thank you so much for bringing it back —C.M.

You-UMass up my life! —MRQ

We're overstocked with peppermint lifesavers. I need a wink. Tattela

Lambda DeltaPhi needs boarders for Fall Call 5-0939 ask for Mary stop by 389 North Pleasant

Dennis and Carlos KKK and Zipper Head wish you a kinky Summer. See you in September,and don't forget the handcuffs!

"Lets go trucking" Chevy pickup and cowboy will move your rags and riches at a reasonable rate leave message for Wayne 665-4721

Mary Miller too late in semester to study a walk into town return with two sexes go to the beach get buzzed and then. . .

Painter—Happy Graduation to our up-chucking Piccasso--Congratulations!! One more mural for Grad School Baker, Mr. Galvs, Smitty, Red, L.D., Vanilla Thunder

R.A.G. Here's your Valentine personal because you're special! Love you always

Bengy we've come a long way always remember the partnerships, the "trips", the early weekend parties,and drinking until dawn It's been great thanks for always being there, even in the hardest times, I'm gonna miss ya friend Love Arlyn

Donna, Sandy and Mike—we made it! Congratulations! Thanks for all the great times! Love, L.S.

Mooga-Peetoo—Congratulations on being elected social director of the Gay Cow's Alliance!

Here's to Haggerty Brown Zappa's biggest fan

Dave Can you believe it's been four already remember when in doubt whip it out Howie

Charismatic Bible Study CC 811-813 Tuesday May 13 8-10 PM

CAD 3045 - Whats a Jew from NJ who's rude got going for her? I've got you as a friend—it's only been a year—but feels like a lifetime MNC

Diza, in universal language, Happy 20th birthday Pamza

Marsha Pelczarski—You are the best friend a person could have. I wish you all the best in the future. Keep in touch. JMR

Who killed JFK? Find out! Mackimmie lounge Monday May 12th at 8 PM come get your questions answered!

Jenson Bummies!!

Eltona bids a tearful goodbye to all the swell kids who made 4 years fun! Love always Janet

PSYCH MAJORS WANTED

$$$ or exp. credit available. Sign up in 4th fl. Lobby of Tobin for exp. S80-65 "Playing The ROLE OF A RESEARCHER" Many sessions available. Takes 40 min. for $3 or 1 exp. credit Other Social Science Majors welcome

RIDE WANTED

From S. Hadley to Umass daily during Summer session call Nina 532-0218

N'hamp to UMass for 9:30 am class, 5 days a!! Summer share gas & conversation Rachael 586-0233

Looking for a ride to Cincinnati, Ohio on May 18th Call Leslie 586-6578

Ride needed to N Carolina or ptsSouth May 12-16 call Terese 532-3326

ROOMATE WANTED

3 quiet housemates seek 4th Pelham yard, woods. Summer, Fall option; $106+ negotiable 253-3528 after 6 pm

Townehouse Apt need 2 or 3 roomates June-Aug $70/mo fully furnished call 549-1420

Own room in spacious Townehouse Apt Jun, Jul, Aug $90/mo Murray 6-5735

Puffton Village 1 bdrm in 3 bdrm apt for Summer pool, A.C., 549-4196

West Yarmouth Cottage female roomate wanted very resonable Missy 586-1752

Summer roomate wanted Cliffside own large bedroom furnished pool, tennis courts 135.00/mo negotiable 665-2020 late evenings best

2 vacancies female preferred house mile from campus call 549-6882

Martha's Vineyard person needed to share ideal Summer home Walt 549-3981

Roomate wanted to share large house in N Amherst from June 1 - Sept 1 rent $108.00 549-6547

Brandywine one or two roomates wanted Fall option Summer sublet call Kath or Lisa 549-4033 nice spacious place

Space for one Amherst house starting Fall sem call for details! 323-5262

Two rooms available (individually) for Summer sublet in three bedroom Townehouse apartment semi-furnished Fall opt for sublettors, on two bus routes Bay State phone, HBO—prefer non-smoker, student,very reasonable 549-5192

Female roomate needed for cottage on beach Harwichport, 575 Summer call Lisa 253-7788 or Niki 546-6070

2 rooms in 3 room Puffton apt available for Summer, 1 with Fall option. Air cond, tennis, swimming pool, on bus route call 549-5791

1 bdrm in 2 bdrm apt NE st $100/mo on bus rte Smmr w/Fall option Elaine 545-0878

2 females needed for W. Yarmouth cottage call nights 549-0339

Two female nonsmokers to share two bedroom Brandywine Fall 546-7968 Rose, Laura

Wanted considerate female roomate for Brandywine Sep-June call 549-6632

Male roomate wanted for Fall Brittany manor Apt 256-6747

Share house for Summer on NE st $105 per month sng $90 per month dbl call 253-3919

Roomate wanted for two bedroom Townhouse Squire Village Summer large room with large walkin closet 665-2013

1 or 2 people Cottage in South Dennis May 23 to Sept 10 256-8704

ROOM WANTED

Two males seeking living arrangements for Fall semester PLEASE help us out call 253-5989 any time

Female needs housing for Fall call Pat 665-4197

S.A.W.

FIX YOUR OWN CAR at the Student Auto Workshopp. Space, tools, friendly mechanics Tue., Wed., Thurs., 3-9 Fri., 12-5 Sat., 10-5 545-0673

SERVICES

UMass Legal Services Office offers free legal services to fee-paying graduate and undergraduate students in the areas of University administrative problems; landlord/tenant disputes; and uncontested divorces and guardianships. LSO also gives advice on Small Claims Court, and limited counselling in criminal matters. Call 545-1995; Room 922 Campus Center UMass.

Need help moving? Student with truck will help or consider renting truck. Tim 253-3366

Canadian Immigration Loyan Consultants Ltd. (Established 1973), offices in Hong Kong and Vancouver. Experienced advice offered in connection with immigration to Canada. All enquiries will be treated in confidence. Please send all enquiries to: Suite 1205 IBM Tower P.O. Box 10153 Vancouver, B.C. Canada V7Y 1C6

STORAGE SPACE

Going home for the Summer? Store your small furniture and personal propertyy in a totally secure and fully insured warehouse. Pick-up and delivery available. Call 594-0548 between 2:00-5:00 PM for reasonable rates

SUMMER BORDERS WANTED

Convenient on-campus location single and double rooms available first come first serve please call 253-3919 after 6:00 PM

SUMMER SUBLET

Inexpensive Summer sublet! Only $200.-per month 2 bedroom fully furnished, A/C, pool, garden plots, etc. to see it is to love it! Call now! 665-7756

Female roomates for scenic South Deerfield. Furnished, on bus route $75/month 665-7796

3 furn bedrooms 70+ Amherst 253-7082

2 bdrm Amherst ctr 1 block from common $225 253-0204

Nuke the Whale by Danny Guidera

Bean by Kevin X. McNamara

Wimpman by Evan Carlson

Crossword

ACROSS
1 "— for Two"
4 Turk
9 Wire
14 Aged
15 Stay
16 Assuage
17 Canine: 2 words
19 Kindle
20 Month
21 Finial
22 Article
23 Letters
24 Impede legally
26 Alphabet
29 China dynasty
31 Comp. pt.
32 Chair
33 Trice
36 Valley
38 Arabian robe
39 Lived
41 Prosaic
43 Metal
44 Dry
46 Sconce item
47 Redact
49 Adam and —
50 — Baba
51 Foster
52 Parlor piece
54 Fat: Fr.
58 Careen
60 Pluto
61 Simper
62 Caribbean isle
64 Exacted a fine
66 Heals
67 Water wheel
68 Work unit
69 Lock of hair
70 Lets fall
71 Pygmy

DOWN
1 Gem
2 Flee
3 Revere
4 High
5 — Lincoln
6 Ebb and neap
7 Took on
8 Of an area
9 Vehicle
10 Hawaiian greetings
11 Wife killer
12 — Palmas
13 Ogle
18 Tableware
24 Went in
25 Bird
27 Plot
28 Old-hat
30 Column
33 Length unit
34 Chemical compound
35 Small
37 And others: 2 words
40 Bonus
42 Riddle
45 Testator
48 Families
53 Star: Prefix
55 Ceremonies
56 Attentive
57 Like marsh-plants
59 Go by
61 Water bodies
62 Play part
63 Robot drama
65 Tear

UNITED Feature Syndicate
Saturday's Puzzle Solved

DC Menu

Dinner
Roast Pork/Gravy, Applesauce
Beef Stew/Biscuit
Basics Dinner
Tofu Nut Loaf/White Sauce
Zucchini Parmesan

Lunch
Bacon, Lettuce and Tomato Sandwich
American Chop Suey
Basics Lunch
Garden Chili
Cheese, Lettuce and Tomato

TO SUBLET

2 bdr apt Colonial Vlg June-Aug $190/month bus rte 256-8454

1 4 bedroom apt Swiss Village bus rte Fall option scenic view 256-6344

Summer Sublet Swiss Village 4 bdrm 2 baths has sliding glass door on to second floor balcony. Best offer 253-9407 after 5:00

Sublet house June-Aug in Northampton $341 per month plus utilities call 5-6 pm Skibiski Realtors 584-3428

3 bedroom Rolling Green June-August $265 a month or BO utilities inc 546-9637 546-9609 546-9748

Pufton Summer lease 1 bd. Fall opt. 549-6637 again eves

Rent negotiable 2 bdrm apt Squire Vill Apts 665-3660

Larger bdrm in 2 bdrm Southwood Apt great for 2 friends Fall option rent negotiable call 253-5201

Summer sublet two bedrooms in four bedroom apt. One with Fall option. On bus route. Call 253-7220 evenings price negotiable

3 bedroom Townehouse Apts fully furnished $225 or best offer 549-5897

1 bedroom in 3 bedroom Puffton Apt Summer sublet rent negotiable 549-6803

2 bedrooms available in Swiss Village cheap rent everything included for June to August call 253-3534 or 546-8079

Southwood 2 bd twnhs June-Aug w/Fall opt rent negotiable call Fred 549-2614

Two bedroomRolling Green A/C, pool, bus rt, all utilities, furnished 6/1-8/30 253-5210 $250. or Bo

3 bedroom Apt 215/month Amherst Center 256-0365

$75 own room in quiet 2 bdrm house Cushman, bus route, sublet June-Aug Sandy 549-0258 5-7 PM

2 bedroom apart Brandywine partly furnished A/C, pool,call Beaver, "D", WoJo 545-0210

BEST BUY 2 BDRM PRESIDENTIAL APT CALL 549-2652

Summer sublet 3 bedroom apt furnished, exc. view, rent negotiable call 253-5214

2 bedrooms in Swiss Village apartment $75 each/month negotiable 6-1 9-1 call 253-7857

2 bedroom Brandywine fully furnished, on bus routes Summer only price negotiable 549-2832

Summer Sublet!! One room Colonial Village busroute, pool, $110, neg. 253-3956

New Listing 2 rooms house Amherst center SW pool across St. $100 549-0801 great location

2 bedroom Townhouse fully furnished clean busroute pool air conditioning 256-8883 $200/month

Cheap! $250/mo 2 bdrm apt in Southwood on bus route,June-Aug with Fall option call 256-0316 or 549-0699

Unbelieveable bargain Brandywine Apt take it over June w/option for Fall at last yrs rental prices 549-6152

Colonial Village 2 bedroom furnished bus route, pool, Fall option $200 or best offer call 253-5028

2 bdrm apt Colonial Village for June 1 option for Fall furnished 545-2707 (ask for John Muggee) or 253-2204

Desparate sublet Colonial Village $175 2 bedoom Fall option call after 7:00 253-3141

Two rooms available for Summer in beautiful Leverett duplex Fall option $113/mo 549-6846

3 bedroom house w/2 baths 1.5 miles from campus ½ mile from Ams center close to bus stop $300/month avail May 25th to Aug 31 call 253-2657 soon!

Free $100/extras if you rent our 2 bedroom apt for the Summer call for info 665-7787

5 bdrm apt 5 mins to town 15 mins to campus price negot call Mike 256-0378

Four bedroom Rolling Green AC, pool, bus rt, all utilities, very negotiable, call 546-9577, 546-4337, 546-8112

Spacious two bedroom Townhouse furnished, Riverglade,June-August $235 253-2069

Riverglade Apt 2 bdrm $255. Call 253-7478

Sunny 2 bdrm apt in Colonial Village bus rt swimming pool Fall option $225 253-7714

Room in Belch house 6/1-8/31 Fall option bus route $125+ negotiable 323-5784

Brandywine 1 bdr apt Summer sublet 549-6786

Bdrm 6/1 to 8/31 nr UM & Am Center great for Summer rent neg 549-6467

1 bdrm Cliffside Apt Summer with Fall option rent negotiable 665-2487 eves

2 bedroom Cliffside Apt Sunderland Summer w Fall option 200 mo 665-7703

Puffton Village 3 bedroom apt lease June 1 call 549-0165

3 bdrm Rolling Green for Summer Live for 3 months pay for 2 546-1199 546-9919

2bed room Cliffside $177 month Summer sublet 665-3629 after 5:00

Puffers Pond 2 bedroom apt June 1 to Aug 30 549-4055

1 or 2 bedrooms in Puffton furnished rent negotiable Bill 546-6005 6/1-8/31

1 bdrm in 5 bdrm house 1 block from campus w/Fall option 549-4620

1 bdrm Cliffside apt on bus route pool tennis AC cable TV June-Aug w/Fall opt $200/month 665-4891 after 5 PM

1 bedroom/efficiency Fall option furnished Amherst 549-5038

Townhouse Apts 2 bdrms furnished rent negot June-August 549-4915

3 bedroom Puffton Apt. furnished rent negotiable 549-4874

2 bedroom Colonial Village Summer sublet, pool, bus route, 225/mo 256-6281

Amherst Center Summer sublet negotiable 256-0304

Two bedroom Summer sublet at Rolling-Green at low $200 a month What a deal! Air cinditioning, pool, on bus route. June -August Call now! 546-7084

1, 2, or 3 bedrooms in Puffton apartment for Summer call Lisa or Janet 546-7190

2 bedroom apt 1½ mi from Campus near Puffers Pond AC utilities included available June 1 with Fall option 549-0098

Rooms in house Summer Fall option N Amherst acre of land bus rte 549-4001 eves

2 bedroom Colonial Village late May w/Fall option, bus, pool, reduced rent, 253-2457 3-7 PM

Swiss Village 4 bedroom apt on bus route/2nd floor--nice view subletting for Summer with option for Fall $110/mo call 253-5348

Puffton Village 2 bedroom furnished or unfurnished June 1 - August 31 $230 (negotiable) 549-6420

Sunderland two bedroom Summer sublet Fall option bus route 665-7954

Female roomate to share two bedroom apt between UMass and Amherst center rent reasonable negotiable 256-8867

2 bedroom Townhouse apt -Southwood $175 month June 1 Aug 31call 253-9447

3 bdrm Townehouse Apt 6/1 - 8/31 rent negotiable great location 546-5090

Female roomate wanted own room bus rt low rent June-Aug 253-3246

Squire Village 1 room availabel Summer attractive, on bus route rent negotiable/reasonable 665-4111 late

2 bedroom Townhouse apt in Southwood apts furn, air cond, pool, June 1 - Aug 30 call 253-9447

June 1 - August 30 Nutting Avenue partially furnished 3 bedroom apartment 325/month 546-4909/546-4919

2 bdr Southwood Townhouse apt Summer sublet w/Fall option bus route call mornings evenings rent negotiable 253-7884

Free color TV when you sublet one bedroom apt Cliffside bus route, bar, store, woods rent 175 incl utilities 665-7005 anytime

2 bedroom Townhouse apt $230 Fall option 549-1675

2 bedroom Puffton Village Summer w/Fall option $225 mo neg 549-0455

2 bdrm Lincoln apts Ju 22-Aug 30 under $200 mthly incl call 549-6279

4 out of 5 bedrooms Large S. Amherst house. For Summer. Pool, patio plus full usage near bus rent negotiable 546-1114, 546-1126

TOWNHOUSE SUMMER/FALL OPTION

Two bedroom A/C 549-2659

WANTED

Cash for Gold or Silver items Antiques too call 546-7369 Cheryl

Cash! Top dollars for school rings, gold, ect. At Wendy Fun Funk & Punk CC Concourse twice a week

Female for breeding purposes for AKC Reg yellow Lab call Eve Genny 268-7594

Artists Student Union Gallery now accepting proposals for Fall semester stop by S.U. Rm. 115a

Are you leaving? I'm staying and need a desk, bike, bookcases or other good furniture 256-0337

WANTED TO RENT

Wanted—Two bedroom in Puffton for Summer with Fall option willing to pay full rent call Joanne anytime 253-7503 keep trying!

Wanted Summer and Fall one or two bedroom apt in RollingGreen garden style preferred will pay full rent call Isaac anytime 253-7790

Professional couple with child seeking Summer rental call 914-969-5986

Wanted Amherst apt to trade for same in New Orleans June 8 - Aug 9 or apt to sublet or share Contact E. Soloway, 5535 Pitt St, New Orleans, LA 70115

WASH D.C.

Sublet available June 1 - Aug 1 1 br in a 2 br apt walk to Metro, pool, tennis, view of D.C. central A/C, dishwasher rent $240 month call 703-920-9226

Iran clerics win

By The Associated Press

The Islamic Republican Party and its hardline clerical allies have won a majority in the runoff round of the Iranian parliamentary election, Tehran Radio said yesterday. Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini appeared to be tightening controls over the military and the press.

The Iranian revolutionary leader has said the new Parliament will decide the fate of the American hostages. Many Islamic Republicans say the captives should go on trial as spies if deposed Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi, in exile in Egypt, is not returned to Iran to face charges of murder and corruption.

The Islamic Republican Party won 50 of 98 seats in the Parliament that were decided in the first round of voting March 14. Returns from Friday's second round showed that the IRP had won 60 of the 124 seats decided as of midday Sunday. Most of the other winners were independents, including Moslem fundamentalists expected to support the IRP. The radio report of a majority appeared to include some of these fundamentalist winners in the count.

The second round of voting in 23 districts has been postponed because of anti-government unrest in those areas. But the constitution allows the 270-seat Parliament to convene once 180 members are elected.

A Beirut-based newsletter reported Sunday that Iranian Foreign Minister Sadegh Ghotbzadeh expressed fears to Arab leaders that a long economic blockade by the West could force Tehran to turn to Moscow for help.

An-Nahar Arab Report said that during a recent Mideast tour, "Ghotbzadeh belied the air of self-confidence which he assumed in public once he was alone with his Arab hosts. The Arab leaders adopted an ambiguous attitude to Ghotbzadeh's pleas for help."

The United States has cut diplomatic and economic ties with Iran to pressure it into releasing the 53 American hostages.

Dickie Betts and his girlfriend relax between encores. (Staff photo by Doug Paulding)

Strawberry Patch

Handcrafts - Gifts

Opening May 17

Next Door to Carburs 586-6453

M - S 10 - 5 Sun 12 - 5

Resident Camp Position

Gymnastic Director, Waterfront Instructors with WSI, Smallcraft Director and Assistants with Red Cross certificates.

Salary with room and board for nine weeks. For application, write Connecticut Valley Girl Scouts, Tolland MA 01034 or call 258-4592.

FREE WHEELING

A MUST FOR THE BICYCLIST SEND $1.00 TO FREE WHEELING • P.O. BOX 5 • AMESBURY, MA. 01913.

EURAIL PASSES

CAMPUS TRAVEL CENTER

CENTER UNIV OF MASS

AMHERST, MASS 01003 413-545-0500

Aqua Vitae RTE. 9 HADLEY 584-9892

Pizza & Free Beer or Soft Drink

Every Monday from 4 pm till 11 PM only

A free 32 oz. Pitcher of SCHLITZ or Soft Drink with Any 12" Item Pizza!

OR

A Free 60 oz. Pitcher of SCHLITZ or Soft Drink with Any 15" Item Pizza!

expires 5/31/80

ACTIVISTS WORK FOR A CHANGE!

Petition, raise funds & educate public on issues of vital economic concern to low and middle income families from 2:00 p.m. to 10:30 p.m., M-F. Opportunity for advancement to organizing and research staffs.

Call 586-1150 from 9:00 a.m. to 1:00 p.m., M-F.

MASS FAIR SHARE

131 King St., Northampton

IDB TIPS

Final Exam Schedules

The Information Data Bank has final exam time and room schedules. If you need any of this information, give us a call at 545-1555.

The Information Data Bank

227 Whitmore

545-1555

Trackmen finish third at Dartmouth

By KENNETH D. ROLT
Collegian Staff

Despite finishing only third in a pentagular meet with Northeastern University winning with 129 points, Dartmouth College second with 87, and UMass' 60 beating out Plattsburg State Collge and Sienna College, the Minutemen came up with several strong individual performances.

Chris Omeltchenko, who equaled a Yankee Conference meet record last week with a 9:20.8 3000 meter steeplechase win, improved again to the tune of 9:17.7 for second place. Rick Cameron came out of nowhere to improve his best time by nearly 20 seconds, running fifth place in the 3000 meter steeplechase with 9:42.6.

The Minutemen excelled again in the 5000 meter run, taking first, third, and fifth places. Paul Beaulieu led the maroon and white winning in 14:27.3, Kevin Corcoran third in 14:37.5 and finishing fifth was Steve Snover at 15:08.

Freshman shotputter Steven Hyder had the best series of throws in his brief collegiate career. Hyder exploded for three throws over 48', with his best effort 48'5" taking fifth place.

Bill DeVarney returned to the long jump pit after not having competed in that even since indoors, and he leaped 21'4" for third place. The sophomore also took second in the 100 and third in the 200 meter runs, clocking 10.9 and 22.50 (fully automatic timing).

John Wright won the hurdles easily in 14.9 seconds. Paul King had his troubles in the high hurdles, but appeared to have none in the 400-meter intermediates, posting the best Minutemen effort for the season, 55.1 for second place. Bob Pearson followed King for third with 56.2.

The 400 meter relay team of Wright, DeVarney, Paul Zeggar, and Rick Trunfio really put things together for a second place in school record time of 42.6 seconds.

The Minutemen's last meet of the season will be the Coaches Invitational Meet to be held at Rutgers University May 25.

Jim Rice of the Red Sox slides in safely at third base as Kansas City third baseman George Brett awaits the throw. The Red Sox won the game, 5-2. (AP Laserphoto)

MASSACHUSETTS BAY COMMUNITY COLLEGE

Division of Continuing Education

MAKE UP THAT COURSE THIS SUMMER

First Day Session and Evening Session Begin June 2

50 Oakland St., Wellesley Hills, MA 02181

Tel. (617) 237-1100 ext. 132

OMEGA BOOKS galore!

COMICS MOVIE POSTERS BUY AND SELL (SOME TRADE) QUALITY USED BOOKS

213 MAIN STREET

10-12:30 2-5:00 MON-SAT

SELL IT

Collegian Classifieds

AMERICAN MULTI CINEMA

ADULTS $2.75 STUDENTS & SR. CITIZENS with AMC CARD $2.25 TWI-LITE SHOW $1.50 - Special Engagements Excluded Twi-Lite Show - Limited to Seating

TIMES SHOWN FOR TODAY ONLY

HAMPSHIRE 4 584-7550 HAMP. MALL ON CAFE SQ. - RT. 9, HADLEY, MASS.

WHERE THE BUFFALO ROAM — R (6:15 @ $1.50) 8:45

Walt Disney's Lady and the Tramp — G (6:30 @ $1.50) 8:30

LITTLE MISS MARKER — PG (6:00 @ $1.50) 8:30

Night Games — R (6:00 @ $1.50) 8:45

MOUNTAIN FARMS 4 584-9153 MOUNTAIN FARMS MALL ROUTE 5 - HADLEY, MASS.

PETER SELLERS SHIRLEY MacLAINE BEING THERE — PG (5:45 @ $1.50) 8:30

ROBBY BENSON Die Laughing — PG (6:00 @ $1.50) 8:30

FRIDAY the 13th — R (6:15 @ $1.50) 8:45

The Black Stallion — G (6:00 @ $1.50) 8:45

J. AUSTIN JEWELER

for the perfect graduation...

31 So. Pleasant St.
Amherst
253-3986

ACADEMY of MUSIC

Northampton, Mass.

Only Area Showing Now, Ends Thursday at 7:00 and 9:00

Everything is brilliant. "Kathleen Carroll N.Y. DAILY NEWS

"An exceptional work. With her stubbornness and sincerity she reminded me of a young Katharine Hepburn." Rex Reed

"Judy Davis is the gutsiest young woman to win our hearts since Katharine Hepburn." Judith Crist

Starring Judy Davis G

AT THE GATES OF SMITH COLLEGE

Cash for Books

CLOTH OR PAPER — WHETHER USED ON THIS CAMPUS OR NOT. WE BUY ALL TITLES HAVING RESALE MARKET VALUE!

SELL THEM AT:

the UNIVERSITY STORE'S

TEXTBOOK ANNEX

in the Physical Plant Building

9 am - 4 pm

MAY 14	MAY 15	MAY 16	MAY 19	MAY 20	MAY 21
Wed	THurs	Fri	Mon	Tues	Wed

the UNIVERSITY STORE'S TEXTBOOK ANNEX @ physical plant bldg

Sports

Orange halt Gorillas

By DONNA SULLIVAN
Collegian Staff

The fourth-ranked Orangemen of Syracuse University now have the nation's longest winning streak (11) with a 14-7 win over the Gorillas Friday night in Syracuse. Syracuse has nearly assured itself of a home field advantage in the NCAA Division One playoffs with the win.

"They were obviously an excellent team: quicker and physically stronger," UMass head coach Dick Garber said. "Our first quarter passing and ball handling was pretty shaky. We failed to keep the ball in the offensive half of the field," he said.

The UMass defensemen held the Orangemen to 14 goals of 54 shots taken. Mark Fierro, Joe Bellavia and Ray Cozzi got quite a workout Friday night; the ball was in the UMass defensive end of the field for much of the game. The three prevented what could have been a higher scoring gome for Syracuse. UMass played without defenseman Paul Kinnane, out with an infected knee.

Fierro held Syracuse attackman Tim O'Hara to three goals, two of them were on man-up situations. O'Hara is the tenth leading scorer in the country with an average of 5.1 goals per game. According to Fierro, O'Hara is the best attackman he has played against. "The intense, quick ball player he is makes him one of the best in the country," Fierro said.

Syracuse started the scoring off about a minute into the first quarter. Tim O'Hara got his first, unassisted. Senior midfielders Doug Sedgwick and Marty Whipple combined for two more before the Gorillas got on the bounds.

UMass attackman Jim Weller was involved in all but two of the scoring plays scoring the first goal off a pass from Dave Martin. He put his second in the net off a pass from freshman midfielder Pat Downes.

Early in the second quarter Tim O'Hara assisted his brother Pat in the first of two goals. The Orangemem increased their lead to 8-2 before UMass got a chance to retaliate.

The Gorillas scored two in a row; the first was slammed in the net by Mike Lavin off a pass from co-captain Peter Schmitz at 9:39. Paul Weller made it 8-4 with just two minutes left in the half and was assisted by brother Jim. The goal was the first of two for Paul, a sophomore midfielder.

The Orangemen did the only scoring in the third quarter, chalking up three goals for an 11-4 lead going into the final quarter. Goals by Syracuse's Brad Short, Pat O'Hara and Tim O'Hara started off the fourth quarter.

The Gorillas did the final scoring, getting three unanswered goals in the last seven minutes. Skip Vosburgh scored twice off passes from Jim Weller at 7:03 and 12:20. In between Vosburgh's two, Paul Weller got his second off a pass from Paul Fogarty.

The Gorillas play their final game of the season at Dartmouth Tuesday at 3:00 against the Big Green.

TWO MISSES AND A HIT— New York Yankees rightfielder Bobby Brown leaps and the ball drops under a fan's glove, both missing the ball good for a two-base hit by Minnesota Twins John Castino. (AP Laserphoto)

The UMass women's lacrosse team was defeated by Penn State, 8-3, Saturday in the semifinals of the nationals of the national Collegiate tournament. The Gazelles had defeated Temple University Friday to advance to the semis against Penn State, which defeated UMass in the finals last year. For more details, see Maureen Sullivan's story in tomorrow's Collegian. (Staff photo by Ben Marsden)

Crew captures national title

PHILADELPHIA—The UMass varsity heavyweight eight crew team rowed to the national Division II championship Saturday on the Schuylkill River in Philadelphia in the Dad Vail Regatta. The junior varsity eight finished fourth while the freshman eight was fifth and the freshman four eleventh.

In the finals, Florida Institute of Technology and Coast Guard moved ahead of the others after the first five strokes. At 750 meters, it was FIT with a one-half boat length lead over Coast Guard and UMass.

With about 650 meters to go it had become a three-team race between UMass, FIT and Western Ontario which was beginning to make its move on the others. UMass had over a boat length lead on FIT at this point as FIT began its sprint. They pulled to within one half length of UMass before UMass began to sprint themselves. Nearing the end of the race UMass got caught in the wake of a police boat upsetting their balance. FIT moved to within a few seats of UMass, in the last fifteen strokes, but began to tire. UMass finished strong and won going away in 6:37.6. Western Ontario finished second with a super sprint (6:39.7), followed by FIT (6:40.4), Coast Guard (6:49.4), Williams (6:50.1), and URI (6:55.6).

The varsity eight is made up of stroke Jack Frackleton, Kurt Kuehnel in seven, Bob Hanson in six, Chris Ives in five, John Dow in four, Jim Rogalski in three, Dave Kolazyk in two and Pat Bronder in the bow. The coxswain is John Cusick.

The junior varsity finished in fourth place in the finals behind the Coast Guard Academy (6:36.5), Western Ontario (6:38.3), and URI (6:43.2). UMass was 6:48.3.

Mittmen drop doubleheader

By JANE WOLFSON
Collegian Staff

Brookline—Any slight hopes the UMass baseball team may have entertained about receiving a birth in the NCAA tournament were erased as the Minutemen dropped a doubleheader to the Huskies of Northeastern University by the identical scores of 3-2, Saturday afternoon.

In the opener, starter and eventual loser Mark Brown (4-6) gave his team a 1-0 lead in the first inning with an RBI single driving in leftfielder Mark Litano, who had doubled.

Northeastern tied the game in the bottom of the first.

The Litano-Brown combination worked again in the third when Litano hit a dribbler just past the reach of the second basemen, advancing to second when Huskie starter and winner Bill Hart then walked center fielder Mike McEvilly. That set the stage for Brown's second hit, driving in Litano and giving the Minutemen a 2-1 lead.

Hart stifled the Minutemen offense through the next four innings allowing no hits and retiring 12 batters in a row.

Northeastern (11-12) added another run in the bottom of the third to even things up and scored the winning run in the fifth, on two singles and two walks.

In the second game the Minutemen (17-13-1) took an early 2-0 lead in the second inning. Shortstop Vin Bonanno leadoff with a walk and scored on a ground rule double by first basemen Warren McReddie. McReddie hit the ball into deep centerfield and bounced into the bleachers on a high top off the astro-turf.

McReddie scored on a single by Doug Aylward, 2 for 3. Going into Saturday's doubleheader Aylward was batting 410.

It looked as though UMass would add another run against the Huskies winning pitcher Paul Nickerson in the next inning when McEvilly led off the inning with a triple. UMass' offense shut off and McEvilly was stranded at third.

The Minutemen would gather only two more hits in the afternoon, a two-out single by freshman second baseman Dean Bennett in the fourth and Brown's third hit of the day in the sixth.

Northeaster scored all of its runs in the third inning off starter Chuck Thompson. Huskie third basemen Sal Degnon singled, followed by a hit by centerfielder Preston Carroll. A wild pitch brought in Degnon and a triple by rightfielder Jim Krelo scored Carroll and the winning run came on a single by third baseman Paul Lemiere.

Thompson struck out four and walked none. His record is now 5-4. The Minutemen face Brown University today for their last home game of the season. The doubleheader begins at 1:00.

Sixers' Darryl Dawkins turns and pushes a shot over Los Angeles Lakers' Kareem Abdul-Jabbar yesterday during NBA championship playoff during NBA championship series playoff game. Sixers won, 105-102. (AP Laserphoto)

NUMMO

VOLUME 8 ISSUE 25 12 MAY 1980

MINORITY STUDENT SYMPOSIUM

Rev. Gilbert H. Caldwell, Third World Campus Minister is leaving at he end of May to become a staff member of the Commission of Religion and Race in Washington, D.C.

Rev. Caldwell has taught the course on "The Black Church" in the Afro-American Studies Department. In addition he has sponsored once a month worship services in the Black Tradition and has provided counsel and support for students and staff.

The United Christian Foundation, Room 428 in the Student Union has begun the process of selecting a replacement.

Another School Year Comes to An End

Curtis Haynes Jr

Well, another school year is finally on the down swing. It has been long and full of events relevant to the Third World community. In keeping with its tradition, NUMMO News has kept the Third World community informed about important events around the world and nation. However, even more important, NUMMO has been able to provide consistent reporting concerning events within our own community.

Back in September of 1979 NUMMO conducted an interview with Tony Crayton, then, the new director of the Office of Third World Affairs. Tony remarked "My hands are tied in this position, so I can assist in being able to develop programs that people have wanted for a long time" Since that time, Tony Crayton has been very involved with programming in the community.

The commemoration rally for Seta Rampersad was a very important event held in September. The rally showed that the unexplained death of Seta Rampersad would not be forgotten.

Then there was the shooting of Darryl Williams, black high school football player while he was standing with his teamates during half-time. The Boston police claimed that it was not racially motivated. Here on campus, Ruth Green, an employee of Vice-chancellor for Student Affairs Dennis Madson, tried to bring the claims of reverse discrimination to the Student Senate. She sent a memo to the speaker of the Senate, David Barenburg. The memo was in regards to a North Carolina court decision concerning race and sex quotas. It seemed that Ms. Green did not feel it would be necessary to inform any Third World Organization of the decision. Such underhanded action was condemned by the Third World community.

In October W.E.B. DuBois was remembered when the U.S. government finally recognized his homesite as an historic landmark. NUMMO covered the event and dedicated their next issue to W.E.B. DuBois, one of the most influential black men this country has ever seen.

October also saw police brutality make headlines in the Amherst community as Ada Griffin, Gina Stevens and Sheila Johnson were forcibly arrested at Russell's liquor store under the pretense of disorderly conduct. In an interview with NUMMO, Sheila Johnson summed up her feeings about the American legal system as the result of his experience saying, "America is rotten to the core."

In Novemeber Pedro Serviat Rodriguez, a Cuban revolutionary spoke with NUMMO about his home country. He talked about how Cuban society has eliminated racial discrimination. He also spoke of Cuban solidarity with black Americans and their plight.

November was also a month of struggle for NUMMO, as the Collegian attempted to keep NUMMO from publishing by taking over their own office in a lock-out. They wanted NUMMO to give up its right to be an autonomous newspaper. This would never be agreed to because NUMMO exists as a result of prior struggles of black students to cover the news of the Third World. Then, NUMMO was accused of anti-semitism. However, these accusations did not hold any substancial evidence.

February was black history month and NUMMO was on the scence to cover it. Queen Mother moore was one of the many guest speakers to our campus. the "queen of our nation" spoke about police repression in the United States. Dr. Yosef Ben Yochannon, author and co-author of more than a dozen volumes on African and Caribbean cultural history, spoke on the brainwashing which blacks in America recieve in regards to their own distant hetory.

As a whole, black history month provided the community with a vast number of political, cultural, and educational events.

Our own community became very active in the news during the spring semester. The hispanic community responded to the racist actions of Robert Goldfarb through diplomacy, démonstration and a takeover which eventually lead to the reinstatement of "Que Tal Amigos" to prime time on WFCR. In Boston, similiar events took place as students occupied the chancellor's office in protest for the right of a fair and proper education.

continued on page 7

staff

eugenia a. yuille editor in chief carl e. yates assistant editor
graphics editor
carlos valdes assistant editor
jose trejo editor eco latino jocelyn lee editor asian affairs robert e. davis jr. photographer columnists

tony p. crayton
robert f. teixera
curtis haynes jr.
michelle l. laney hotline to health

Letters to the editor

We all live in an oppressive society and oppression takes many forms. Racism is a central form of oppression and the struggle against it is a major struggle. Anti-semitism is also a form of oppression which has been historically used to divert people from anger at the ruling class. It is also used as a testing ground for the divide and rule tactic. Unity among all groups is necessary in fighting all forms of oppression, and allowing ourselves to be pitted against each other only plays into the hands of the power structure.

After all the conflict at Everywoman's Center (EWC), some important issues remain unresolved. The nature of these issues and of their public representation are connected to a history and have a name: anti-semitism I mean the oppression of Jews as Jews.

I am the staffwoman at Everywoman's Center who raised the issue of anti-semitism in the International Women's Week process at a staff meeting at EWC. In raising the issue of anti-semitism my intention was never to attack individuals or to unleash racism. I meant to call attention to a process and a result during International Woman's Week which I will discuss below. I brought the issue to Everywoman's Center to ask their support as a sponsoring organzation in questioning this decision. The Center's representatives on the steering committee of IWW were the two Third World women on the staff. The Center has clarified that the "charge" of anti-semitism was directed to the entire IWW Steering Committee and not to any individuals. It is a positive step for the Center that the long-standing issue of racism within the institution has finally been addressed, and I am strongly in support of the concerns around this issue, being raised and dealt with. How it is time to address another important issue; anti-semitism.

An example of anti-semitism is the consistant refusal or inability to deal supportively and seriously with Jewish claims of anti-semitism. In order to work towards ending oppression of all kinds, a mutual respect for each other's struggles needs to exist. When a Jew is told that her perceptions of anti-semitism are invaid because they do not match the non-Jew's "criterion" for anti-semitism this needs to be confronted. These concerns are not just my own. They have been shared by many Jews and non-Jews since the beginning of this conflict and need to be heard. The IWW steering committee should reconvene to examine the IWW decision in view of these concerns.

We have seen anti-semitism operate in the following ways:

--A Jewish woman was prevented from speaking on "Jewish Women in Progressive Middle East movements" during International Women's Week. She was known to support Palestinian as well as Jewish self-determination. She is no way represented the Israeli government. Nonetheless, in the name of anti-Zionism, Jews were the only group prevented from speaking on the MidEast. This is due to a confusion of the Jewish people with the Israeli government, and is no more legitimate than preventing an American woman from speaking because of U.S. imperialism.

Censoring her had several effects. First, it singled out the Jewish workshop in a way different from any other. Second, it encourages the falsehood that Jews have nothing to say about Israel, and cannot be progressive. We know that none of the steering committee consciously wanted to "get" Jews. This is not the issue. The point is that the ideology which justified the censorship, and its effects, were objectively anti-Jewish.

--The workshop was never designed to have a Jew speak for Palestinians as was publicly claimed. The point was to have a Jew speak for Jews. In any case, she wanted to co-lead the workshop with a Palestinian women so that each of them could speak for their own people and dialogue. Distortion of progressive Jewish politics creates anti-Jewish politics creates anti-Jewish sentiments.

--It has been frequently claimed that the decision could not have been anti-semitic because Jewish women participated in making it. Likewise, (the claim of some women that they are not oppressed does not mean that feminists are wrong in their assertions.) This issue has to do with politics, not the people involved.

--Cancelling the workshop made many Jews angry. Yet we were told that our anger was "wrong," and the we should deal with political issues unemotionally. Both sides were sometimes calm and sometimes angry-why should the standards for Jews be so special? All oppressed groups have the right to stand up for themselves and express legitamate anger.

--Jews need to be listened to about what anti-semitism is and how we experience it. There is a tendency to believe that the only type of anti-semitism is Nazism, or believing in the extermination of Jews. Jewish genocide is only the most extreme form of anti-semitism, and the absence of anti-semitism is not proved by assertions that one does not promote killing Jews. This is similar to acknowledge that overt bigots are not the only racists.

--There is racism among Jews, just as there is anti-semitism among people of color. We all live in a society where these attitudes are part of our day to day experience, and nobody escapes the effects of this. This is not intended to say that only Third World people have these attitudes, but they are also not exempt from them. None of these oppressed graps benefit from anti-semitism. Only the power structure benefits.

--Throughout the conflict my criticisms of anti-semitism have been derided and then dismissed as the words of a middle-class white woman. That I am. I am also a Jew though, and I speak of anti-semitism as a Jew labelling my ideas as middle-class and white is a refusal to confront me as a Jew, and a denial of my identity.

--The emergence of a growing self-awareness among Jews is a very positive thing, but seems to make many people uncomfortable. This is similiar to the ways the women's movement was initially degraded. The inability to respect radical Jews (vs. Jewish radicals) is not our problem, and does not stop us.

My perceptions are shared by many Jews here. When a group of people call attention to our oppression, and the only response is indignant denials, the reality speaks loudest of all.

The EWC has tried to deal honestly and self-critically with the charges of racism. Unless this happens, there is no reason for Third World women to begin to trust us. Unless anti-semitism is also treated with seriousness, there is no reason for Jewish women to trust us. We must deal with all the political issues which have been raised-racism, anti-semitism, and homophobia-for the Center to claim the name of "Everywoman's."

In struggle,
Myra Hindus

special letter 2

I am writing this letter to thank Tony Crayton director of the Office of Third World Affairs, for his hard work that led to the release of Craemen Gether, well before I or anyone else expected.

Craemen has been incarerated for 5 years and was not scheduled to be released until 1983. It is good to see that we have someone that truly cares about the goals of the community and works to achieve those goals when other do nothing but talk.

Craemen Gethers will be released on May 26,1980 and will re-enroll at UMass in the fall. It is important that people talk to Craemen Gethers to help him get re-adjusted to UMass again. It is also important that people learn from Craemen's experience since it could very well happen to someone again.

Once again my personal thanks and appreciation to Tony Crayton for his efforts.

Bari Njiiri

Alcohol Education Project

We, the members of the Alcohol Education Project Peer Staff, would like to express our appreciation for the struggle in which the Third World Women's Task Force and the Everywomen's Center staff currently find themselves. We can identify with and understand the severe intensity of emotions that surface when any group of people forthrightly confront issues that are so deeply rooted. Within our agency we continually grapple with the issues of racism, sexism, homophobia, classism and other forms of oppression. This is a difficult and never ending process that takes times, energy and sincere dedication. We recognize that the struggle is not over when feelings are hurt and emotions run high. That is when the battle against prejudices has just begun.

We want to stress that all members of this community NOT focus their energy on criticizing the conflicts within this particular group of women struggling with these issues. Instead we encourage other agencies and community members to examing and re-examine these important issues within their own organizations and develop support systems to continue this process. We hope that this community will recognize that this struggle is not unique to the Third World Women's Task Force and Everywomen's Center, in fact, these issues affect all of our lives and each person needs to confront them both individually and collectively on a day to day basis.

Comrades in the struggle,
Alison J. Kenney
Michelle L. Laney
Carol A. Young
Lisa D. Thompson
Troy Shupert

Issues of anti-semitism

This letter is in response to the recent exchange of letters concerning racism and anti-semitism in the Everywoman's Center and in the planning of International Woman's Week.

In my opinion the issue of anti-semitism is a very real concern yet in the five years that I've been in this 5 College area, I can remember only Third World people being the targets of public accusations of anti-semitism. Not only that, but the accusations are often made in such a way as to thoroughly detract from other issues concerning Third World people.

Secondly, it is chauvinistic when speaking in the Middle East to say that solidarity with the P.L.O. is tantamount to anti-semitism since all are semitic peoples. Also, to consider oneself in solidarity with the P.L.O. does not mean one is anti-jewish.

Thirdly, it is important that all jews who consider themselves to be anti-imperialist take a close look at Israel and take a stand as to whether or not we can truely support the policies of the Israeli Govt.; a govt. which for example actively helps to uphold apartheid in South Africa.

Finally, timing is an important element of any criticism. The reality for Third World Women in this country is that they continue to be victims of such vicious genocidal attacks as the 13 women in Boston last year who were murdered within 12 weeks of each other and the very recent murders of several Black women in Hartford. A tighter focus brings us right here to Amherst where we've witnessed such atrocities as Seta Rampersadand Jose Pontes; the near fatal beating of Jill Dickenson and the police brutality experienced by Sheila Johnson, Ada Griffin and Gina Stevens during the Fall semester.

In closing I would like to reconfirm my support of the Third World Women's Task Force and their consistent work in struggling against a system that is at war with Third World peoples and couldn't really care less about the rest of us either. I also want to applaud the decision of the Everywoman's Center to meet the demands of the Task Force.

Sincerely, Melinda Goodman

Southwest Women's Center

This past week, we at Southwest Women's Center had to announce the withdrawal of our programming for Southwest Week. From the beginning, we set as our goal a comprehensive series of workshops and programs offered cooperatively by the three Southwest centers to address the concerns of Third World women. What began with a sense of commitment and excitement ended in disappointment. For a number of reasons--some related to organizational and scheduling difficulties, others more to our own lack of understanding and awareness--the planned programs didn't come off. We believe we have a responsibility to explain to the Southwest community, the Center for Racial Studies and Malcolm X Center, and other women's organizations on campus just why we failed to come through with the planned programs, including a multi-cultural coffeehouse. After a session of evaluation and self-criticism, we arrived at the following conclusions:

This programming failure during Southwest Week in no way diminishes our need and commitment to eliminating our own racism and to struggling against racism and sexism at this univeristy. In fact, we have learned much from this experience. It has offered us an opportunity to be self-critical and to rededicate ourselves to dealing with issues of racism in more immediate ways. These include giving priority to addressing our own racism as white women through workshops and colloquia or study groups, designating one of our paid staff as an anti-racism coordinator whose responsibility will be to work with other staff groups, designating one of our paid staff as an anti-racism coordinator whose responsibility will be to work with other staff and volunteers on this issue, and developing a workshop format for other white women on racism and sexism. In addition to these specific objectives, of struggles that take place at this university. We do not expect that this work will be completed in a semester, a year, or ten years. Our goal as a center is to see the connections between struggles and to develop a response that will help to end the oppression of all people.

The Southwest Women's Center

Billie Holiday, Fletcher Henderson, Art Tatum and Charlie Parker are among those who show that playing revolutionary music has always been a demanding, and even dangerous way of life. One way the musician expresses these hardships is through the development of virtuosity music. "Revolutionary music" means two things: that the music is revolutionary in an artistic way, and in a political way. Most music in this country is commercially oriented, and quite often earning take priority over artistry. When music is purely artistic it is inevitably not commercial. Because artistry and commerciality are mutually exclusive, revolutionary music and capitalism are in opposition to one another. When a musician decides to eliminate commercial success as a goal, there is a corresponding amount of musical freedom gained. The more musical freedon, the more potential for music which is artistically (and politically revolutionary.

Recently, the 9th Annual Black Musicians Conference brought many important musicians into the area. These players received a lot of support, but there are many musicians, and revolutionary artists in general, who also need support. If capitalism won't support revolutionary art, then people have to.

By Steven Mardem

Center of Racial Studies

The Center for Racial Studies agrees with the just demands of the Third World Women's Task Force which issued to Everywoman's Center April 23, 1980.

We at the Center for Racial Studies see these racist exclusions, cut-backs, attacks, etc., as part of an overall pattern to phase-out Third World people. These patterns and perceptions are, of course, aspects of institutional racism.

Therefore we feel solidarity with and endorse the action of the Third World Women's Task Force.

But too, given all the past good work at, and services provided by Everywoman's Center, we would urge a basis and common understanding towards a resolution of this problem and a move to begin to build real unity at Everywoman's Center. We at the Center for Racial Studies, however, feel that on this particular issue the white women in question at Everywoman's Center, however unwittingly, have capitulated to institutional racism and should begin to redress the grievances of the Third World Women's Task Force by accepting the very clear and just demands.

Center for Racial Studies
(Moorehouse)
Southwest Residential College

GSS Election or Fraud?

I would like to take this opportunity to thank all those graduate students who casted their vote on my favor in the Graduate Student Senate elections last week. As you might know already the final result according to the "count" made by John Furbish from the elections committee was: Jack Delmond 83 votes, Gerry Hush 57 votes and Jose Trejo 52 votes.

However, the circumnstances involved in this so- called"democratic" process clearly shows three important things to be learned.

1-. The greatest handicap that kept me from becoming President of the Senate was the color of my skin.

2-. The ballots where many minorities casted their vote were not stamped or put into a lacked ballot box.

And 3-. The person who did the counting is the person who decided the election.

I considered myself as a witness of the racist policies used in the GSS against people of darker skin during the last two years and I can provide testimony and documentation that backs this statement. As long as I live, I will always remember the names of: Monte Pearson, Jim Hewitt, John Minter, Donald Ross, Titziana Rota, John Furbish, among others, who promoted and furthered racism in the Graduate Student Senate.

JOSE G. TREJO.

* India's Dancers *

On Thursday May 8, a benefit was held to raise money for the reopening of the Seta Rampersad Case.

Money was raised by a performance by Shama Bhate and Pranati Pratap experts of Jusalkathak which is the dance of North India.

Shama and Pranati, are the most promising amongst the Kathak dance and recieved her master degree in dance.

Pranati was awarded the prestigious Scholarship of Bhulafhai Memorial Institute in Bombay.

Shama and Pranati, were part of India's cultural delegation to Sri-Lauka on January 1975. Both these artists have won kudos for their exquisite rendering of the intricacies in their art form, especially their rhythmic foot work.

The programe was sponsored by the Third World Women's Task Force, the Third World Women Center, La Familia, the Southwest Residential College Director, the Commuter Collective, the Undergraduate Student Senate, and the Che Lumumba School.

Special thanks was extended to the Indian Association, Roberta Uno, Loretta Messenger, and the staff of the Southwest Hampden theater Office.

Cointelpro at Large

By James Lewis

COINTELPRO is the FBI's counter-intelligence-program to infiltrate and destroy any resistance or threat to the great American Free enterprise system. The resistance or threat to the great American free enterprise system. The resistors and threats to the system were considered civil rights groups, the womens' movement, the Native American Indians' movement, black nationalist groups, in short, any group not white male, ultra right corporate motivated, capitalist valued and white supremacist.

The CONINTELPRO attack is based mainly on infiltration and espionage and what is call 'psycological warfare,' the exact same type that the CIA used in oerthrowing governments in Chile, Brazil, Indonesia, Vietnam, Kampuchea (Cambodia), Guatemala, the Dominican Republic, China, Cuba, Korea, Greece, Turkey, Iran, Lebannon and recently Nicaragua. Its agents uses tactics of disagreement and emotional, irrational argument to divide the organization and create disunity.

COINTELPRO affects an organization like bacteria or virus affects the body or an organ. It currupts the fabric and it keeps the group from functioning properly COINTEPROIS insidious, malitous, victious and evil. It destroys the image, the credibility, the objectives and purpose of the organization. It mars and obsecures the organization so effectively that is twart any possibly support from the masses of American people.

To illustrate the idea is to take two people who look different, come from totaly different backgrounds or classes or environments in the society. Say they are seemingly dedicated workers against the U.S. economic support of Apartheid in South Africa, or are Anti-Nuclear power organized, or one are involved with protecting reservation land from being taken away by the multinational corporations of the U.S. military, or say a group of blacks are organized to fight for black control over black education, food, housing, welfare, hospitals and economy. What these agents will do is work very hard to gain the respect and support of the members of that group. Then these two people are elected into the two top positions of the organization, like President or vice president.

What would happen is there would be a power struggle between these two people, organized and planned for the exact effect to disunite the group. One half of the group would support the Vice – President, the other the President. These two members would never resolve their fight and it would probably cause the group to faction.

An example of this in the infestation of the Womens movement. When the women's movement was gaining momentum in the late sixties and early seventies, it was gaining momentum in the system than the civil rights movement. Women are over half the population. Women are essential to any society. Women are in all levels of the society and come in all colors. The Women's movement has always run parallel to the liberation struggles of Third World People. The FBI immediately put COINIELPRO into action.

The attack centered around the abortion issues, lesbian extremist, racist women, and feminist extremist would ruled out any validity in any men at all. The main focus of the movement was lost site of, the elimination of the racist, sexist free enterprise capitalist system. The so called leaders of the movement began to dissagree to such an extent that the Women's movement is no longer a threat to the interest of the capitalist. The capitalist don't mind a women's movement divided, with some women trying to have the traditional role of other soleless heartless business person whose job may cause people to die. Male chauvanist pigs. That not what the women's movement was about changeing the patriarchal order which domination have always been based on domination of others, or as Margaret Murry put it in "The Splender That was Egypt", the souless domination of land and space. The patriarchal domination of others based on brute force and weapons, not intelligence, has been the cause of slavery, racism, sexism, wars, concorins, manifest destiny and the mass murder of hundreds of millions of people over history. Recently the issues were the civil rights movement and the Vietnam War another example of the focus was reduced to issues like the ERA or rape. They are important but more important is the preservation of human life.

Patriarchal domination and the mass murder of millions of innocent people. Now the womens movement is fragemented, disorganized, white middle class and racist with the same interest as the capitalist.

There are many, many other examples of this all around the country and the world because of U.S. comercial interest.

Another thing COINTELPRO does is kill civil rights leaders. Some of the suspected victim of COINTELPRO are Malcom X, Martin Luther King, Fred Hampton, Zayd Malih three black girls at church, Anna Mae Aquash, and many others. Other victims were put into prison as politicai prisoners, like Assata Shakus (recently escaped), Geronim Pratt, Leonard Peltier and at least another 250 persons.

COINTELPRO is still in operation another thing COINTELPRO does is infiltrate the media. Journalist are paid to work for the F.B.I. or COINTELPRO. One of their clear accomplishments has been the myth the soviets are ahead of U.S. militarily and that military spending produces more jobs, even though the Bureau of Labor Statistics produced studies that proved that any other way in this economy one billion dollars is spent, other than the military, more jobs are produced. The media and the government lie. Theycreate crisis and illusion when there is none to justify their murder.

Today our progressive organizations are infested with COINTELPRO personel. The image of the progressives are insane irrational reactionary radicals trying to destroy the great American Society. This is whats prevelant in all our institutions in our society today. ●

Letter From Task Force on Jewish Liberation

Cheri Brown was invited to speak at UMass during International Women's Week on a panel about Progressive Women in the Middle East. A Palestinian woman came to the Steering Committee objecting to having a Jewish woman speak on this panel. The Steering Committee considered her words and decided that Cheri Brown would speak separately on the issue she had originally intended to address, which was, the activities of progressive Jewish women in Israel and the United States toward building alliances betwen Jews and Arabs. She was planning to speak from the perspective of the two state solution; this means supporting the right of the Palestinians to have a homeland and state and national self determination, and also recognizing the historical and present need for a Jewish national homeland, both peoples having a just claim to the region. There is much confusion about the situation in the middle east and it may be difficult to see where stopping the voice of a progressive Jewish woman is unwittingly perpetuating anti-semitism. In this situation, where the survival of two peoples is at stake, there is a natural pull to support only one cause as the just and right cause. To make the assumption that the situation of the Palestinians' oppression is a result of Jewish survival and therefore Palestinian national rights can only be had if Israel is an established state and the Palestinians have no statehood. But it must be recognized that a vote denying an aspect of Jewish expression - the peoplehood of the Palestinians) is based on the wrong assumption that Jewish nationalism necessarily means no Palestinian nationalism.

There are many reason why people would feel this way. Some of the elements of anti-semitism make this comprehensible. Anti-semitism is a cyclical form of oppression used to oppress both Jews and nonJews. This cyclical aspect makes people question if anti-semitism is a relevant form of oppression to combat at this time. In the U.S. Anti-semitism is a relevant form of oppression to combat at this time. In the U.S. Anti-semitism intensities at certain times and then goes into periodic lulls in terms of overt persecution. Also it varies in intensity in different regions at different times (1 percent of the population in Argentina is Jewish, 10 percent of political prisoners are Jewish; Falashas are being decimated as Jews). Myths perpetuate anti-semitism. Historically the majority of Jews have been struggling to survive like everyone else. Jews today are not found in positions of control and power. (There are no Jewish managers in the corporate banking structure.) A few Jews have gained wealth (this didn't protect German Jews from annihilation). The Jewish community has made alliances with oppressive power structures to survive due to persecution. Israel's establishment is a complex modern day example of this. Both the Palestinians and the Jews have the right to a national homeland in the middle east. Palestinian-Jewish cooperation was discouraged by British and U.S. imperialism before and after Israel was founded. Both people continue to be pawns of greater political powers trying to control the region.

It was said that to allow Cheri Brown to speak was divisive and therefore International Women's Week Steering Committee's decision was correct in cancelling her. To say that addressing anti-semitism is divisive is actually describing anti-semitism. One of the basic elements of anti-semitism is that the oppressed are controlled by being isolated as groups, not trusting each other and pitted against each other, particularly against Jews. Jews become the vent for people's anger about their poverty (the notion of stingy, money hungry, capitalist, blood-sucking Jew is a picture which permeates our culture; Jew him down.) Anti-semitism helps mask people's ability to examine and directly attack a repressive, exploitive power structure which is detrimental to the majority of people. Anti-semitism makes the Jew into the extreme case, the least trustworthy and most offensive. Anti-semitism perpetuates class oppression by feeding peoples' fear of differences and further pitting people against each other.

The Task Force on Jewish Liberation see anti-semitism as a distinct form of oppression which must be examined and placed in the context of an analysis which addresses all forms of oppression. We support alliances between women to struggle together and meet the diverse needs of women and eliminate sexual oppression, patriarchy, and all forms of oppression which afflict women's lives. The TFJL feels that racism must be continually acted against and eliminated in its institutional and other forms. We are disturbed by the way that the oppressive society pits one form of oppression against the other, oppressed groups tending to feel their rights must be gained at the expense of other oppressed groups. We see each type of oppression as a distinct manifestation and all are interrelated and perpetuate each other.

We support the right of all oppressed people to speak out about their oppression and be listened to.

For Jews in our time survival is a real issue. It is important for Jewish women to be listened to by all groups working against the oppressive power structure. The TFJL demands that the International Women's Week Steering Committee reconvene to address the demand of the Everywoman's Center to discuss the issue of how the decision not to permit Cheri Brown to speak perpetuates anti-semitism.

We support the right of Myra Hindus and others to raise the issue of anti-semitism. We support the right of the Third World Women's Task Force to raise issues of racism. They are not mutually exclusive. Both must be seriously addressed and considered.

In Solidarity,
Task Force on Jewish Liberation ●

I want my taxes spent on Que Tal Amigos?
NOT
MX Missile
WILDER HA
bilingual Coll

middle east affairs 6

Iranian Revolution: Present and Future

If we are asked to label the Iranian revolution, our answer would unquestionabley be 'Anti Imperialist'. The main antagonisms of the society were those between the people of Iran on one side and the Comprador bourgeoisie supported by U.S. imperialism on the other. The main enemy of the people of Iran was, and still is, U.S. imperialism and the reactionaries supporting it. After the ousting of the Shah a struggle began between the progressive and revolutionary organizations on one hand to further continue the revolution, and on the other the Liberal bourgeoisie that needed urgently to halt any further changes. The present ruling class has preserved all previous institutions, revived the 'Labour Laws' under the Shah, and tried to reorganize the army under the leadership of the same generals who served the Shah so faithfully . All democratic movements and demands were crushed ruthlessly and a strong campaign was initiated to call back the fleeing capitalists and attract foreign capital (nationalization of banks which in fact was a repayment of imperialist debts). U.S. government meanwhile, supported the regime by words and deeds. When Kurdish people's resistance started in objection to the use of the old oppression methods and discriminations, the government launched a military attack on them in the name of fighting counter revolution. The U.S. not only supported the action as 'strengthening the central government of Iran against the left, but actually sent gas oil supplies for the tanks that were shelling Kurdish cities.

The awareness of the people continued to grow by the mounting oppression and by the unmasking of the governments true nature. The unquestionable backing the clergy enjoyed last year is deteriorating at a tremendous speed, for example in elections and among the minorities.The petty bourgeoisie, an important sector of the revolution, due to its nature has further polarized. The lower castes getting closer to the radical demands of the workers and revolutionary organizations, while the upper castes and the clergy have accepted thel leadership of the liberals. This was to be expected since the middle class due to its lack of independent ideology has either to employ bourgeois beaureaucrats (i.e. go to the right) and take the capitalist road throwing it back in the arms of imperialism, or go left, nationalize the production and rely on workers ideology and leadership. They followed the former course.

Middle class by nature is a follower of big bourgeoisie- unless led by a strong organized workers party. Such a party is non-existent in Iran due to extreme oppression under the Shah. The workers of Iran were not organized in their own rank and lacked the leadership of their party. The second reason for the right turn was the clergies historical link with the traditional bourgeoisie: the Bazar.

Antagonisms, however, exist among the ruling class. After the ousting of the Shah, the dominant sector of the comprador bourgeoisie was liquidated. This process weakened the hold of U.S. imperialism to a great extent, making room for the Liberal bourgeosisie to compete with segments of the traditional clergy. This sector enjoys the cooporation of the revisionist TUDEH party (pro Moscow).

The so called hardliners in the revolutionary council (Behesht, rafsanjani) represent this second tendency.

The embassy takeover must be studied in this light. The present ruling class in Iran can be labeled many things. 'Anti-Imperialist' however, is not one of them. The embassy takeover has been used by the ruling class so far as a tool to prevent the disillusionment of the masses, and to further step up aggression against progressive and revolutionary elements of the nation.

The militants holding the embassy, however, represent a wide spectrum of lower middle class militants. They enjoy immense popular and leftist backing. They have constantly exposed the liberals and their ties to imperialism. Their popularity has prevented the government to openly attack them or take aggressive action to free the hostages.

Meanwhile revolutionary workers and soldiers councils are being eliminated. Peasant councils in Kurdistan and Turkaman-Sahara , headed by revolutionary organizations, were suppressed militarily. All the progressive newspapers were shut down (leftist newspapers, forseeing this situation, have operated underground since last year). The offices of Mujahedin and Fedayian guerrillas came under siege and were taken over, while mobs were set up to attack all the opposition demonstrations. The latest event is the bloody shutdown of the universities and the expulsions of all the radical students (27 leftist sympathisers were martyred in this attack).

At a time when the threat of imperialist invasion is very real, suppressing anti-imperialist minorities and the revolutionary students is deliberately weakening the people's unity and power.

While the government rhetoric against U.S. has been sharp, it has lacked any action in deed. Military, political and economic ties were safeguarded against the will of the people.

Mass consciousness meanwhile is constantly rising and the left forces growing. Meanwhile, the unemployment is skyrocketing, inflation and scarcity are rampant, all the results of a halted revolution. The masses however, are further radicalized every day. The latest Fedayian meeting enjoyed the support of 800,000. The Moslem Mojahedin are extremely popular and the minorities are united and have unified with the revolutionary forces.

The present political outlook in Iran is grim. The danger of U.S. military attack being very real, yet the prospects for future are bright. The present antagonism between the demands of the revolutionized masses and the ruling class cannot last for a long time. The out come will, inevitably, be the victory of the revolution under the leadership of the organized working class of Iran and its leading party.

In their struggle against imperialism, the people of Iran will need any assistance and help they can get from progressives abroad. U.S. radicals can rally themselves on our side by exposing the new militarism and the plots of U.S. war mongers. The dangers of U.S. involvement in Iran and Persian Gulf area are very real. The Iranian and the American middle to lower class people will be the first to suffer. The Vietnam War (I,500,000 Vietnamese and 55,000 Americans killed) is our best witness.

Let us join hands today in our struggle against imperialism so thsat tomorrow we may celebrate our joined victory.

The Union of Iranian Students in Amherst (UISA) ●

Socialism, Zionism and Israel

By Foad Vafaei

The insanities of the "Left"-Zionist "school" of falsification: The case of Steven Shulman.

In reply to the "article I'd liketo point our a few facts. Recently there has been a growing opportunist trend within the Zionists movement. "Left"-Zionism. Mr Shulman, a "left-" Zionist, in his "article" he directed his Zionist slanders to Palestinian freedom lighters by calling them "terrorists." Mr Shulman had has implicity repeated the same notorious Zionist propaganda that "those who stand for the rights of the Palestinian people (i.e. people expelled from their homeland) are a bunch of "Anti-Semitics and terrorists." Thus for Mr Shulman all the revolutionary forces of the world are anti-Semitic and racist. These kinds of slanders can serve no one but the Western imperialist interests.

I ask Mr Shulman to look some words up in the dictionary for he has showed an extremely poor knowledge of English vocabulary first of all anti-Semitism (as I pointed out in my article of April 18) is a racist ideology directed against the Jews. It must be fought by attacking its social, economic, political and psychological roots in society. There is nothing inevitable, incomprehensible or mysterious about racism, and anti-Semitism is no exception. To fight racism effectively means to fight to abolish the social structure which engeder it (i.e. Capitalism).

The struggle against anti-Semitism can be won by the Jews only in alliance with all the oppressed of the world. But Zionism as one of the most reactionary ideologies of the modern world tries to persuade the Jews to immigrate into Palestine at the expense of the

Cont to page 7

Mr. Vafaei's Response

As a counter-response to the answer to my article, "Who runs the government in IRAN," I'ld like to make some points in defense of my article.

First of all by saying that "all desires, hopes and political beliefs have been expressed through Islam," I simply meant that the popular culture in Iran is highly Islamic. The existence of a few non-Islamic isolated intellectuals does not change anything. Because PEOPLE are the ones who make the revolutions not the "isolated intellectuals." (Among who that writer wishes to be).

What the writer of that article said about the "reason for the lack of nationalism as a leading ideology being weakness of the national bourgeoisis," is total nonsense! For a revolution which is anti-imperialist to be nationist, the leadership does not have to be procapitalist. (Unless the writer thinks Mao and Castro and Ho Chi Minh were all capitalists!).

Moreover, if the leadership of the Iranian was not Marxist, it was not simply because "there was a repression on the left." Unless the writer wants to be an apologist of the Shah, he should admit that ANY KIND OF OPPOSITION to the Shah was crushed by the Shah's repression. Even though as a Marxist I agree that the repression against the Marxists was more severe, I won't deny that to a certain extent that could contribute to the reasons of weakness of Marxism in Iranian revolution.

The term "Islamic" was not merely a brand given to the revolution by a clergy. The slogan of the masses in Iran during the revolution was:" Death to the Shah, long live Islamic republic," that does not mean that I support an "Islamic" republic. But I'm simply reminding him of a FACT.

The author said, "that there are leftist Islamic groups opposing the so-called "Islamic Republic" of Iran. All that means is that the sphere of politics in Iran is so much influenced by Islam, that even the leftist groups sometimes label themselves as Islamic.

If the "writer" had read my article more carefully, he would notice that I said: "the Iranian captalist class is in a process of consolidating its power over and the army. But Khomeini role is one of oscillation between the anti-imperialist masses and the conservative "revolutionary council."

I'm totally against the policies taken by Bani-Sader and the revolutionary council. But the "writer" can not trash the Iranian revolution by saying that" it has not achieved any progressive goal." The leadership of the revolution has been able to take many progressive measures which were enfavor of the masses (Under the pressure from the Mass) and objectively against the U.S. imperial.

Cutting off the relation with Israel and South Africa, Nationalizing many types of heavy industries and the banks, and most important than all. Khomeiny took the side of the people against the reactionary Bani-Sader over the hostage situation.

Now we see that it's that "writer" who does not understand the social reality of Iran by hypocritically ignoring the historical facts, by giving lip service to the Iranian revolutionary masses. Ironically our ultra-left writer hypocrically usually identifies big portions of the Iranian masses with "Islamic Fascism."

Foad Vafae

The Creation of the PLO Part II

By Foad Vafaei

Our age is the dynamic age of revolutions and national liberations. The people of the Third World exploited by the profit-mongerous Western corporations have risen to emancipate themselves.

American Imperialism provides the underdeveloped countries a wretched status-quo. There is a variety of tactics used to expolit the Third World people. Setting up military fascist dictatorships such as the Shah of Iran, Pinochet in Chile, Sadat in Egypt. There has been an other way however ie. the colonial settler states: that is to say creating colonies around the world by exporting a certain population from the Western World to the colonized area and setting up a state which would oppress and exploit the indignous people in that area by racist methods.

The stuggle against the policies of Israel is an anti-colonialist struggle to restore the national rights of the Palestinian people. It is a struggle against the global interests of the U.S. based monoplies, who control 85 percent of all the stocks in the American society.

The fact that a small minority of capitalists consisting mostly of big corporations control the American economy, has created many problems. This is a fact that there is an unemployment rate of 7 percent, an inflation rate of 18 percent and an extreme inequality of income in the U.S. today. For that matter the American people's support of the revolutionary movements in the world, will not be a question of abstract humanitarian sentiments but the condition of their own liberation from explotation and oppression.

And the importance of the Palestinian revolutionary movement is more than just a national liberation movement. Palestine for the Middle East is like the Vietnam for the Southeast Asia. For that, it is antagonistic to every big corporation's interests in the area and to every fascist Arab dictator such as Sadat.

The Palestinian revolutionary movement led by the PLO, is against the establishment of the Zionist state of Israel. (the state of Israel which has proved many times that it is not interested in any peace.) The PLO is against any kind of racism especially anti-semitism. There is already a small but important nucleus of Jews in Israel who are in favor of the PLO. The PLO is gaining more and more support from the international community. The Palestinian revolutionary movement is an integral part of all the entire world revolutionary movement. Anti-Semitism is simply a form of racism, and there is nothing inevitable about racism. To fight racism effectively means to fight the social system which engenders it (ie. capitalism) (eg. In Cuba, there is complete cultural and religious liberty for the Jewish community; see Rabbi Evertt Gendler's article in "Conservative Judaism". Winter, 1969. This Journal is published by the Jewish Theological Siminary in N.Y.) Therefore a Jewish community will be able to enjoy full cultural freedom in a socialist democratic Palestine free of exploitation by Imperialism.

Israel because of its very social structure is a racist , expansionist, imperialistic society. So the progressive movements in Israel who are limited to its structure, are not able to change its racist, Zionist, militaristic nature. Therefore the Palestinian revolution is asking for the abolition of the State of Israel, and its replacement by a secular democratic state in which, Moslems, Jews, and Christians may live peacefully. Jews are not "forever alien to the gentile society" as the Zionists say.

It has been asked that:"Why did Palestinians leave Palestine?" Well, the answer is:"For the same reason that they can't go back now!"

For many Palestinians it did not take too long to understand to get back their homeland, they can't rely on any so-called peace talk such as the Camp David. That's how the Palestinian liberation organization was created in 1965. Out of wreckage and the torture, out of the blood clotted walls, out of the quiverings of life and death. Yes! in response to the Zionist policies of war and aggression the Palestinian revolutionary movement began its struggle for the liberation.

The large profit-mongerous corporations who control the American Government are trying to conserve the wretched oppression status-quo in the underdeveloped world by increasing THE U.S. defence budget which already is 140 billion dollars, the biggest on the earth. ●

continued from page 6

native Palestinian population. Zionism is NOT the national liberation movement for Jews. Zionism is a political movement that developed for the purpose of establishing a settler-colonial state in Palestine and that rules the Israeli state today in alliance with world imperialism.

Zionism lead the Jewish masses into trap of opposing the national liberation of Arab masses, a just democratic struggle that will ultimately be victorious.

Zionism invented a nationalist part for the Jews that never existed. The rise of nationalism and the creation of a national state dates back only to the era of bourgeois revolutions against the yoke of feudal particularism, typified by the French revolution. Mr Shulman's speaking of 2,000 years-old nation state for the Jews (or any other people) is as much of an anachronism as a recent advertisement by one of the Japanese airlines which links itself to the glory of the part by calling itself the "1,000-year-old airline!"

Also Mr Shulman's lies about 4,000-year-old "cyclical" oppression of Jews are totally distorting the facts. (As though he is talking about "business cycles!). anti-Semitism in its political sense was institutionalized under capitalism. (refer to my article of April 18). The Zionist gangsters promulgate the lie that to be Jewish is to be Zionist, and thus a supporter of Israel and imperialism. Therefore they make it easier for racist demogogues to foster anti-Semitism among the masses. Cynically utilizing the crimes of the Nazi as a pretent, the imperialists and Zionist created the state of Israel at the expense of the Palestinians, who had nothing whatsoever to do with the Nazi crimes. Portraying the victim as the criminal, imperialist and Zionist propaganda now attempts to equate the Palestinian goal of national liberation with the barbaric actions of the Nazis The opposition of the Arab masses to the Zionist state has nothing to do with anti-Semitism. It is a simple solidarity with an oppressed, fraternal people (i.e. the heroic basic right of a nationality: the right of a homeland). Further, there was no anti-Jewish current in the Middle East before the birth of the Zionist movement. If any anti-Semitism exist in the region at present it is simply the result of the concious stimulation from the part of the Zionists leaders. If any, the anti-Jewish tendencies in the Arab countries is simply comparable to the anti-European feelings of the oppressed colonized Africans.

It is equally necessary to refute the grotesque myth of purported "historical rights" of the Jews in Palestine. Even before the Roman conquents of Judea (70 AD), three fourths of the Jewish population lived outside Palestine. As for the indigenous Jewish community, it was gradually absorbed by neighboring populations in the following centuries.

Israel was NOT born of the Nazi persecutions, the foundations of the Zionist colonization of Palestine were laid during the end of the 19th century. Israel makes no contribution to eliminating anti-Jewish racism. Anti-Semitism is independent of the existence or non-existence of a Jewish state.

Israel is primarily set up to act as a watch dog for the U.S. imperialist interests in the area: i.e. to stop by every means possible every resolutionary process. Israel is not a "democratic" state. It is a racist (and clerical) state, based on the expulsion of the indigenous Palestinian people and the oppression of the Arab minority which remains within Israel. The Arabs in Israel are subjected to colonialist "exceptional" laws. (Something similar to the Apartheid which are exerted against the black in South Africa).

Israel does not want "peace," unless what is meant by that is recognition of its conquests, of the expulsion of the Palestinians, and the establishment of a racist semitheocratic captialist exclusive pro-imperialist "stable Jewish" society in the area.

In 1947 and 1988 terrorist raids by its armed forces drove the Palestinian population from their towns and villages. Following the delirous racist dreams of a "holy great Israel," the Zionist leaders have created four bloody wars in the areas and constant policies of bombing more and more Arab villages in the neighboring countries are being carried out. The only future the Zionism and the very structures of the state of Israel offer to the Jews is WAR!

Therefore as we see the hypocrisy of Mr Shulman's screaming against the Palestinian "Terrorists" is clear when one knows about the historical facts. Hypocrisy gives way to embaracement for reactionary apologists of the state of Israel. Except in the dreams and imaginations of Mr Shulman, there is no possibility for peace in the Middle East as long as a Zionist exclusive society exists.

The only way out of that death-trap (i.e. State of Israel) for the Jewish population is their integration into a socialist secular democratic state in Palestine. This can be accomplished only through the alliance of the Arab and Jewish progressive anti-imperialist forces against Zionism and the Arab reactionary ruling classes (and dictators such as Sadat). This can be realized only through the progress for the Palestinian national liberation a struggle by the Palestinian people for their national self determination. ●

School Year 7

continued from page 1

Angela Davis brought a wave of radicalism to the valley when she showed up at UMass Boston in support of their cause. The next day she spoke to a capacity crowd in the SUB at UMass about an alterntive to the conventinal democratic and republican parties. Andrew Young also came to UMass and tried to drum up support for President Carter (so it seemed!) he left us with the impression that Mr. Carter is "the best thing that happoned to blacks politically in quite some time."

Again, back on the home front the fight aginst racism continued, this time at the Everywoman's Center. The members of the center admitted eventually that they condoned institutionalized racism.

The semester seems to be ending on a fine note with the news that the incarcerated Brother Craeman Gethers will soon be free. Also, Micheal Thellwell of the Afro-Am department broke out with a smoking novel, the harder they come.

It has been a long year, with many ups and downs. I would like to extend congratulations to my co-workers who helped in bringing the news to you and also to all of the other organizations, groups, and individuals who have made Amherst a bearable place to live. And to all you brothers sisters who stuck it out, more power to you because it is through you that the struggle continues. ●

****

SPECIAL THANKS TO:

Sylvia Rodriguez
Lucy Montes
Gretchen Figueroa
Jose Luis Marrero
Mariano Gutierez

Barron Roland
Joe Grenon
Lorrain Cox
Holly Marden
Ed Cohen
Richard Mei
Debra Williams
Bari Njiiri
Norma Vasquez
Greg Tarpinian
Kaveh Ehsani
Foad Vafai
Suman Bohm
Yvonne Chireau
Mauricio Hernandez

Racism and Secret War on Political Freedom

Article by Tony Cratyon

When white America's ruling elite decided in 1972 to end the draft it also corresponded with an extreme assault on social services. It was the end of the "Second Reconstruction of the 1960's for Black's political and social gains. It was also only less than a year after the government claimed to have ended April of 1971 its Cointelpro (counter intelligence program) operation of the FBI. Credibility is hard won and easily lost.

According to the final report of the Senate Select Committee on Government Operations, the 1970's were a period hot with intrigue and murder by U.S. Intelligence Agencies. Viewing a brief excerpt shows the committee's concern over the secret war in Laos , revulsion at the Phoenix program which took at least 20,000 lives in South Vietnam, army spying on U.S. civilians, "destablization" efforts in Chile and finally revelations concerning Operation CHAOS and the CIA's domestic intellignece role..." The problem is that it wasn't final; a brief reading of the index shows how they used "Academic " and "Voluntary organizations", they had "covert relationships with the United States media" and "covert use of U.S. religious groups."

Domestically, their counterparts in the U.S. were just as bad. There was a suit by nine SNCC members(Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee) of small consequence, against the U.S. Government. Their charges in part read as follows:(Section 8) "Shortly after the founding of SNCC in 1960 the defendant (President Nixon, FBI,etc.) agreed expressly and by adherence to a common design, to engage in a conspiracy to interfere with, disrupt and prevent SNCC from engaging in the foregoing activities; to neutralize and undermine its public effectiveness and importance· to deter and intimidate persons joining or associating with SNCC; systematically to spy upon the organization; and to advance the conspiracy by actions of the type alleged herein.

(Section 15) the defendants caused numerous secret government agents and informers to join or otherwise associate with SNCC...to purloin and surreptitiously copy SNCC documents...to participate actively in SNCC affairs, share in the determination of its policies and hold positions of authority, all in an attempt to provoke or exacerbate dissension within SNCC and hostility by others, and otherwise to interfere with and disrupt its activities.

(Section 19 the defendants regularly sought to harrass and harm SNCC members and associates because of their association with SNCC. To that end, the defendants disseminated to the public and press critical or derogatory characterizations of and information concerning such persons, including informaton about SNCC members and associates to their family, friends and associates by anonymous telephone calls and letters; contacted and informed employees, landlords and business associates of their association with SNCC and of their SNCC activities with the purpose and effect of causing said persons to fire, evict or otherwise cease doing business with SNCC members and associates. .

These tactics of COINTELPRO was part of what Nelson Blackstock refered to as the "FBI's Secret War on Political Freedom." His book entitled COINTELPRO published in 1975 through Vintage Books provided as did the evidence in the suit. The actual documents of the FBI that clearly outlined these tactics and who was to be targeted. they had several lists for this purpose; the security index; the Rabble Rouser Index; the Key Activists Lists, the Key Black Extremist list; the Black Nationalist Photograph Album and Index. They targeted and murdered such figures as Fred Hampton of the Black Panther Party as a setup arranged by an informant, William O'Neal. According to the Commission of Inquiry into his death by Roy Wilkins and Ramsey Clark, the murder of Fred Hampton and Mark Clark on December 4, 1969 in thier Chicago apartment while they were sleeping, was preceded by a rash of police murders of Black youth. Charles Cox, 20 years old, was murdered April 30,1969; the next month Pedro Medina(17 and others: Wayne Black (7), Linda Anderson (19), Harold David (15), James Nance (17), Steve Dixon (18), and James Alexander(15). With such a frightening record for that eight month period for one city alone it was easy for anyone to see why we charged genocide back in 1951 by the Civil Rights Congress and did again November 5,1979 in the National March at the UN on Black Solidarity Day. I write this not as a wild - eyed militant but as a member of a race that is fearful of becoming immuned almost to this daily genocide.

This rash of killings was not isolated either. In Florida three Blacks in May of 1973 were gunned down under authority of the "Fleeing Felons Act A. June 29,1973 article described the murders of Black children in Atlanta as an "epidemic of violence" where the mayor had to petition for an investigation of nineteen killings. Another September 10, 1972 article referred to "unprovoked shootings of Blacks by Dallas police" in which the seriousness was grave enoguh to charge that they were using Blacks for target practice."

My town of Boston was no different. The police killings between 1972 and 1975 there were as Frederick Douglas described decades ago, sufficient to "disgrace a nation of savages." Walter Robey, Nathaniel Smith and Cornell Thomas all are still fresh in my mind. In New York is was Claude Reese and 10 year old Clifford Glover to headline the genocidal madness that goes on everyday in America.

With this constant threat of violence by the government sworn to protect you and mortality, unemplyment and ill health level far in excess of the majority whites and our housing, hospitals, incomes and food far below them, it is baffling to me how anyone can rationalize sending our Black youth to kill Iranians so that whites can have more oil profit and hegemony. Yes, whites all across this country we are told "heat or eat" and now these duly appointed henchmen of the corporate class expect us to send our sons to die for America. The only ones who will, will be those too poor or too blind to confront the tyranny at home.

Let America get violent with the ku klux klan , the South Boston Marshalls, the American Nazi party and all the other perverted racist animals they cuddle behind their constitution while my people huddle in rat infested and deteriorating communities, murdered at whim without as much as a sigh of concern from the government or the majority of the white community that supports it. Note I have said majority...how's that for objectivity under fire.

We fought in all American wars and each time came home to the same degrading inhuman conditions that the law doesn,t even allow animals to endure. We aren't alone in this outburst of outrage at the nerve of America to ask us for anything. The Native American population across this country after having been murdered down to barely a million have more than a third of their women by the homicidal claims of populaton control. They "open arms," to gus anos from Cuba by the thousands while deporting wholesale Haitians and attempting the same against Iranian students in the same grossly discriminating way. They allow the ku klux klan to patrol the Mexican border to hunt entering Chicanos like game and shoot them at their convinience. America love it or leave it? If after really looking at America you still love it then you are accomplice to racist murderers and should leave with the Shahs, Sadats and Simozas of the world and be damned eternally for having known and still not cared.

So as you take your exams and contemplate the sea, sun, and surf remember that poem from the harlem renaissance called Justice.

That Justice is a blind goddess is a fact to which we
Blacks are wise
the bandaged face
hides two festering sores
that once perhaps were eyes. ●

Michelle Laney Hotline to Health

"was it all worth it"

This is the last of my Hotline to Health articles. In a few short days I will be graduating and leaving campus life. As the time draws to a close I sit back and wonder if the Hotline to Health was worth the effort I put into it, and I am most happy to say it has been. Many of you have literally stopped me on the street to find out more information about topics covered. As a result of the Hotline my Football friend whom I referred to a few articles back now takes more vitamins than I do, and swears by them. My friend with the headaches has his own personal cure that was a topic in the last Hotline, and many of my fellow staff workers drink water instead of everything else. What was especially rewarding was turning on my radio one morning and hearing my article broadcast on a Connecticut radio station.

In parting I would like to thank my five most dedicated readers and fans, who have brought out the best in me. Wayne , who never misses an article, K.Rock who collects all of them. Kim who learns from them, Asa who has almost convinced me that I should have been a nutrition major instead of a business major, and my dear roommate and friend Geni, who gave me the idea to write the column in the first place, and of course all of the rest of you with faces and names I have never seen.

I wish you all a pleasant and happy summer. So eat right drink plenty of water, excercise, and get into the B vitamins, but most of all remember "A vitamin a day could keep the doctor away."

CONGRATULATIONS

Nummo News would like to extend a warm congratulation to the newly elected officers of CABBS. Marcelina (Marci) Pina a graduating senior in management and current president of CABBS relinquished her position as president to Raymond Young. The two position of Vice president were filled by Nancy Brooks and Kenneth (KK) Makan. Terry Finley and Maxine Small were elected as the new Administrative Coordinators. The position ot Treasurer was filled by Richard Lawson.

announcements

Apartment for rent or sublet?
Two bedrooms, air conditioner, garbage disposal, dishwasher, spacious bath, wall to wall carpeting, pool, tennis, and basket ball court for your convience. On the bus route, located at Southwood Apts cost 240.00. For more information call 253 2154

Crisis at New World Day School

I am are deeply concerned by what appears to be the impending demise of New World Day School. New World Day School should not be allowed to die a quiet death. Those of us who remain in the Amherst Community and those of us who have benefited from the existence of New World Day School have an obligation to those who worked long and hard to establish the school and, most importantly, to our children not to let this happen. New World Day School should not be viewed as just another 14 slots in the University Day Care System. The School was founded out of a need felt by Third World families who came to Amherst when no such institution existed. That need still exists. New World Day School's photosophy of education is worth fighting for. That photosophy stresses a multi-cultural approach to education.

For those of you who do not know, New World Day School was moved to smaller quarters in January, 1980, and the maximum enrollment was reduced to 14 slots. There is currently under discussion a proposal to consolidate New World Day School with the North Village Day Care Center -a move that I feel would be the end of New World Day School. I feel that any proposal that would seriously affect the integrity of New World Cay School shows at best a lack of sensitivity to the needs of the Third World Community and, at worst, an intolerable form of racisim.

I write as a parent whose child has benefited immeasurably from having attented New World Day School. I also write on behalf of my Kolade and Moniola who might be denied the opportunity to attend New World Day School.

Let the University Child Care Office know that you support New World Day School. To be most effective inform Elizabeth Perkins in the Child Care Office, University of Massachusetts, preferably in writing, as soon as possible.

CCEBS

CCEBS Library will be open this weekend Saturday and Sunday 12:00 noon to 8:00pm.

China Enters the 80s

asian affairs

By Ross Terrill
Continued from last week

In foreign and domestic policy alike, China seems to have moved out of the pristine (and often inconsequential) world of black and white choices. More enmeshed with the real world, seriously bent on economic development without diversions, Beijing paradoxically finds its options narrowing as technical issues and the manipulation of complex balances dominate its heavy agenda.

One sees a China, after 30 years of its Marxist dynasty, at a moment of great hopefulness internally; yet involved in the tricky side effects of; a massive switch of emphasis from politics to economics; aware of how fundamental some of its unresolved problems are and how much smaller its purse is than its shopping list; open to the West and its ways as the PRC has never been before; experiencing internationally the limits of power and the burdens of success; gaining influence and at the same time losing its moral exceptionalism; finding (both at home and abroad) that the weight of Nature (man's selfishness, sheer biological momentum, race distrust) is often greater than the persuasion of Nurture (the ideas put into children's heads, international revolutionary solidarity, schemes of reason and morality); having to accept that while an elite was prepared to die for communism, the masses do not always seem prepared to work for communism; discovering that if making a revolution is not like a dinner party (as Mao said), neither is modernizing a land of one billion people, and neither is the cut and thrust of dissent as one generation ridicules the sacred values of another.

There is a hint of Sun Yat-senism in the air of Beijing; in both the pragmatic modernizing zeal of the Honolulu-educated organizer, and also in his sometimes unrealistic blending of incompatibles. As Maoism recedes the historical goals of the Chinese Revolution in its larger sense, first stated by Sun, are reasserting themselves: to lift the Chinese masses out of backwardness; to catch up with the West; to make China a great world power as befits a great civilization.

From the American sides (and that of quite a few other nations) the approach to China is today marked by a welcome new realism.

'Normalization' has proved somthing of an anticlimax, in many good ways and one or two not so good. We see a China less exotic and more quotidian than we used to. Its uniqueness does not seem clear-cut after all; China takes its place as part of our age, grappling soberly, like other nations, with issues of growth and justice at home and with the anarchy of a fragmenting world.

China is much closer to the West than six months ago (Mao's own split with Russia was the real starting point of an evolution that the Afghanistan crisis has brought to a new peak), and in some ways China promises to be a staunch partner in the containment of a U.S.S.R. whose intentions it has perhaps read more accurately than the west has. Yet whether we and the Chinese can actually do things together, rather than merely analyze a crumbling world in largely similar terms, is yet to be proved. The possibilities of it, from the Chinese side, and the limits, will stem from the domestic realities which my pages have probed.

It is well to be realistic , for the Chinese have become more realistic about themselves. In the long term Beijing cares deeply about the changing world politi cal map; yet for some years it would like to focus on domestic development. Our new friend is more nationally minded than we are, less inclined to be an international do-gooder; a ponderous land stirring only slowly from a siege mentality, not yet possessed of many positive ideas about a safer and healthier world, or resources to spare in the quest for it. China is with us, but any 'joint' international responsibilities will be ours much more than China's. The Chinese are trying to solve China's problems, and given the dimensions of these, they can hardly be expected to solve many of the world's problems.

CULTURAL WORKERS DELEGATION TO CUBA
From June 14-24 local area Third World Artists will travel to Cuba with Delegates from Boston, New York, Philadelphia. As representatives from the Western Mass. area, we invite contributions by local artists that can be taken to Cuba as gifts. Financial donations are needed to send these people, come out have a good time Dancing for the benefit of the CULTURAL WORKERS DELEGATION TO CUBA.

MALCOLM X BENEFIT DISCO Saturday, May 17, 11:00pm-5:00am Host: Brother E, invited local area D J's.
Benefit for CulturaL Workers Delegation to Cuba.

GRAN BAILE
ORQUESTA LA CHARANGA CACHE
LATIN D J Mike Diaz Friday, May 16, 9:00-5:00am Hampshire College Dining Commons Benefit for local area Cultural Workers Delegation to Cuba. Sponsored by LA FAMILIA, Third World Organization, Brigada Venceremos, Brigada Antonio Maceo.

FIESTA DE CUBA Revoluntionary Rum Punch, Slide Shows, People's Auction. Saturday, May 17, 8:00pm-until 79 North Prospect St. , Amherst (ABC HOUSE). There will also be an all day picnic and cultural and recreational activities on the lawn, from 12:00 noon. Everyone is invited. Come out and support the ABC House. Proceeds from the Dance will benefit the ABC House the Cultural Workers Delegation to Cuba.

Job
Peer Educator

Peer Educator Positions Available for 1980-1981 academic year
Alcohol Stress Education Program
Division of Community Health Education
University Health Services

General Description: The Alcohol Stress peer educators are undergraduate students who are trained and supervised in applying health education principles to the promotion of responsible decisions concerning alcohol use and stress management throughout the U.Mass Community and in specific subpopulations.

Responsibilities: Students selected to be peer educators must participate in a three hour weekly training session over both semesters. This training will focus on alcohol and stress education. Eight hours of service to students are expected weekly in the first semester; twelve hours weekly in the second semester. 'Service' may include providing workshops to residence halls or campus groups and other related outreach activities as well as assisting in certain media efforts.

Supervision: Selection, training, and supervision are coordinated by a staff health educator responsible for the alcohol and stress education programs.

Compensation: Three graded credits per semester are awarded for successful completion of the training each semester. Peers also earn $400 for the first semester of service and $600 for the second semester of service.

Qualifications:
1. Enrollment in an undergraduate program in the human services (e.g. education, public health, community services, psychology, nursing or a related field).
2. Some experience and or training in peer education, alcohol or stress education and outreach.
3. Ability to work effectively with college students from diverse cultural backgrounds.

For an application or more information: Contact the Alcohol Education Office, Room 366, University Health Services 549 2671 - Ext. 186.

Deadline for completed applications: May 16, 1980
The University Health Services is an Equal Opportunity, Affirmative Action Employer.

SCANN

On Wednesday April 30, at 11:30 in room 165 of the Campus Center, UMass Amherst, members of the UMass Amherst Student Coalition Against Nukes Nationwide (SCANN) and the Western Mass. May 24 Organizing Committee, working with the Coalition for Direct Action at Seabrook (CDAS), are holding a press conference to issue a statement and answer questions about the planned direct action at Seabrook on May 24. Simultaneous press conferences are being held in cities throughout the country. We will elaborate on our intentions to nonviolently halt the construction of the Seabrook Nuclear Power Plant by blockading the gates and occupying the site.

SCANN is a nationwide coalition of antinuclear activists. The Western Mass. May 24 Organizing Committee is the regional organizing group for the CDAS. We would like the public to know our plans and our organization in advance to reaffirm our nonviolent opposition to the Seabrook plant. Refreshments will be served.

Tutors needed (ABC)

A.B.C. Tutors Needed. "A Better Chance House" in Amherst need live-in tutors for the 1980-81 academic year. Room and board are provided. Competent in math and science or English and languages. To apply send undergraduate transcript and letters to Norvell Jackson, 34 Ponery Court Amherst, MA 01002 by Wednesday, May 14, 1980.

Third World Women's Center

There will be a VERY important meeting of all those interested in one of the (4) positions open in the Third World Women's Center next year. The meeting will take place Wednesday May 14th at 7:30pm in the New Africa House Library. Please be prompt. Anyone interested in receiving credits for being a member, please attend the first meeting next fall. The time and date will be announced. For more information contact Cheryl Watkins 253 3281.

A UMass education: Good? Bad?

Introduction

This special publication of the Collegian represents the work of about 30 University students over the last eight weeks. The task the newspaper has undertaken, as the name implies, is to take a look at education at UMass and see how well the job is being done. If not a hard look, we propose this work will be at least a good, long stare.

Education, ironically, is something that we at UMass perhaps don't spend too much time thinking or talking about. Many of us are too busy being conditioned by the liberal atmosphere of the Pioneer Valley to be "socially aware," or are engrossed in fighting racism, sexism or the cause of the moment. Doubly ironic, again, because education is why we're all here at UMass.

As the Collegian casts its journalistic eye about these 1,200 acres of space called UMass/Amherst, the picture we see, regardless of so many problems, is basically good. UMass certainly has problems, but rising from these problems is a University with many strengths.

The problems are well documented. Poor public image, funding problems, increasing enrollments with decreasing faculty, complaints of poor administration, and other weaknesses trouble the campus, often causing those from outside the University to look scornfully upon it and causing those within to grow increasingly dismayed and troubled at what they see.

If there is one word that encapsulates what UMass is today—with all its strengths and weaknesses—and the challenges UMass will face in the future, then doubtless that word is "budget." Those six letters run as a strand connecting all that currently exists and all that is planned. Money's influence cannot be escaped; it pervades the entire University. Ideas, problems and proposals are all discussed with a quiet and somber rejoinder: "But what about the budget..."

In the largest sense, this institution, and the level of services and quality it can provide, is intimately tied to money. In this inflationary economy as funds from the state are decreasing in real terms, the budget becomes the focal point for all the frustrations and anxieties that the fight for a shrinking "pie" produces.

It would be a misrepresentation, however, to report that money will not only solve the University's current problems, but also ensure a bright and sunny future. This is certainly not true. An institution's strength is tied not only to the money it receives but also how it uses its resources. Happily, we feel we can report, UMass fares well in this regard.

The faculty, based on the Collegian's research, interviews and opinion polls, seem extraordinarily dedicated to their jobs and to doing them well. There is "dead wood," as there is at any institution, but it appears that by and large the faculty is dedicated and concerned.

To us, this is most evident by their truly anguished cries as the University has begun to retrench, to cut back, to cut corners, and to tighten its belt as the budget—here's that word again—has slipped in recent years. There is a deep concern evident among the faculty. They care too much to see UMass and its strengths slip away while it appears no one cares. Gnashing of teeth goes on from the Graduate Research Center clear across campus to the older academic buildings near Southwest.

Faculty are frustrated and concerned. Nowhere are these feelings more evident than in comments by individuals, who seek to make others aware of the problems they face.

Indeed, concern for preservation of excellence permeates both the faculty and—perhaps surprisingly—the students as well. Students will express their feelings differently, but they are just as aware of the problems UMass has. We suspect they cringe, albeit inwardly, as they watch classes grow larger, buildings crumble about them, and anger mounts.

The importance of this is not to be missed. Bear in mind that students are generally perceived to be an apathetic lot, people not really concerned about anyone but themselves; the "Me-generation" triumphs.

Tell that to the 50 students who recently travelled to Boston to lobby state legislators for a higher budget—the word again—from the state.

Unquestionably, UMass is a strong institution. Its public image has been scarred by attacks, and we from within have used our natural cynicism and willingness to question to cast into doubt the mission of the University, but UMass remains strong.

Reading the information in this publication, and learning what the Collegian has learned from its research, we think you'll agree UMass is strong. There are strong faculty, concerned students, and certainly an instinct for survival. The giant that UMass is has been stumbling a bit lately; there can be no question of that. But if what we see as we look around is an indication, then the University seems well-equipped to begin its climb back not only to what it once was, but more importantly to what it has the potential to become.

We invite you to make that determination for yourself, as you read through this special publication.

Christopher H. Schmitt
Project Director

A Look at Us

Christopher H. Schmitt
Project Director

From an idea by
Alvin F. Oickle

Arranged by Steve Klein

Financial arrangements by Frederic Keillor

EDITORIAL STAFF

Dan Guidera, Jeff Baker, Joseph Quinlan, Laura Kenney, Carolyn Mooney, Sarah Hammann, Fran Basche, Lynne Wheeler, Bill Smith, Ellen Davis, J. Dwight, Rich Nagle, Steve Semple, Mark Curelop, Jane Wolfson, Dave LaChance, Marcia Murphy.

PHOTOGRAPHIC STAFF

Jim Mahoney, Doug Paulding, Nancy Nutile, Amira Rahman, Steve Semple.

PRODUCTION STAFF

Gerard P. Grenier, Mary Kinneavy, Suzette Courtmanche, Joanne Lawrence, Pam Dessigner, Madonna Malo, Janet Milstein, Eileen Foley, Jeanne Antill, Faye Whitney-Lussier, Jack Cavacco, Jeff Bianchi, Robert Carr.

"A Look at Us" was produced by the Massachusetts Daily Collegian with a grant from the University Provost's Office. The Collegian is the student newspaper of the University of Massachusetts. The staff is responsible for its content, and no administrator or faculty members reads it for accuracy or approval prior to publication.

Cover photo by Chuck Kidd, assisted by Jim Mahoney. Logo photos accompanying schools and colleges by Chuck Kidd and Jim Mahoney.

Contents

4
Cutting loose
Academics can't be "cut loose" from consideration of overall educational quality at UMass.

5
Coming about
Chancellor Henry Koffler will lead UMass as the University enters a different phase of its life where resource limits will force a "coming about" in programs and priorities.

6
Pulsing

Photo by Paul Price

UMass astronomers lead the way in pulsar research in the United States, having scored two major discoveries in the last two years.

7
All about King
History Prof. Stephen B. Oates is writing a biography of Martin Luther King, one he says will "rescue" King from mythology and be an honest presentation of his life.

8
Hard times ahead
Provost Jeremiah Allen, the chief academic officer on campus, sees some hard financial times ahead as more budget constraints are imposed.

9
The honorable way
The honors program isn't just for "brains" and can often provide many long-lasting benefits for students who elect the tougher courses.

10
Going (way) away
Ever thought of UMass in Germany? A multitude of possibilities exist for foreign study, ones that most likely will make you grow and be experiences you'll enjoy.

12
Surveying the school
A Collegian poll reveals some surprising and not-so-surprising things about how faculty and students view themselves and UMass.

The Schools
School of Engineering 14
College of Food and Natural Resources 15
School of Business Administration 16
Division of Humanities and Fine Arts 17
Division of Natural Sciences and Math 18
Division of Social and Behaviorial Sciences 19
School of Health Sciences 20
School of Physical Education 21
School of Education 22

Glimpses

Even if you look at everything there is here at UMass, you probably won't see it like Collegian artist Danny Guidera does. Presented here are some of his views of University life. Guidera spares neither students nor faculty in putting together this cartoon view of UMass.

HEW ruling threatens scholarship program

Athletic equality or mediocrity?

By DIANE CLEHANE
Collegian Staff

An alternative to raising the ... of scholarship money for wome... would involve cuts in the already ... amount of money available to m... ...aid. He said the cu... number of women's ... ut the men's schol... money needed to ... re to come out of ... ceipts or the Barb... $700,000 in the l... levised games ... rding to O'Conn... venue, members ... said they agree ...

The money needed to create the ratio outlined in the HEW decision would have to come from the state, which is currently ... on budget cuts, not in-... O'Connell.

King's budget: Cutbacks to hurt education quality

By MARC FAGELSON
and BRIAN O'CONNELL
Collegian Staff

The bottom line is this. Over the next couple of years, UMass students will be paying more for their education and getting less. According to Governor Edward J. King's 1981 UM budget proposals university faces dra... the areas of ... aintenance ... quipment, ar... l It—finar... The ... .6 ... dr... ...dget, ...

Seeks to link bribes, contracts
Building probe continues

By DAVID HERN
Associated Press

BOSTON — The state corruption commission seeks this week to bolster its contention that — despite the contrary views of ... Administration ...

extorting $40,000 from MBM, and his testimony, which ... the current investigation grew out days, Masiello said co... of that case. were demanded in advanc... In a telephone interview from he paid. In the two years o... he is a dicott Peabody's admin... Dwight said Sherwood (Woody) Tarlow... way concern- campaign funds from archit... information affected contract awards, ... said. ...n A. Volpe's ... in 1967 and Tarlow admitted his role a... ...n commis- backed up by William A. W... Peabody's administ... ...e office of ... ...nce h... ...rding ...

Academics can't 'be cut loose'

The Student Center for Educational Research and Advocacy is an arm of the Student Government Association at UMass. It's Academic Affairs team regularly watches academics and education on campus. Ellen Levy, co-chairwoman of the team, submitted the following at the Collegian's invitation.

BY ELLEN LEVY

When contemplating the quality of education, it is impossible to view the academia alone. Academics is dependent upon and cannot be cut loose from other facets of the institution. It is only fair, then, that we view the system as a whole while discussing academics.

To meet educational goals, academia is the primary concern of institutions of higher education. It is not the only area an individual can obtain knowledge, but let us deal with academics in its importance. It is above all, the major concern of both the university and its attending students. The emphasis rests without a doubt on the quality of education.

Today, the major question is not the quality of academics at UMass, but rather their preservation and enhancement. Continuing and long-standing pressures in various areas threaten to chip away at the educational foundation that has been built at UMass since 1863. Budgets, personnel, precedures and many other factors figure into the maintenance of quality education here in Amherst.

In pursuit of its goals, the University establishes an administration. Whether for private or public purposes, the administration is responsible for the insurance of quality education and efficient/effective practices. The University enters into contracts with professional staff (professors, educators) for these purposes. At UMass the professors are represented by a union, the Massachusetts Society of Professors. Together with the Massachusetts Teachers Association and the Faculty Senate, the faculty and administration work together to try and solve problems in order to align with the objectives of the University.

Currently, the MSP is battling an effort to have the union decertified by the state. This undermines the bargaining strength of the union. It is not certain that the MSP will prevail as the faculty's union, let alone agree upon a strong comprehensive contract with the administration. This in turn, again, affects the caliber of academics.

Since this institution is established to serve the publics, the government has a large hand in aiding and regulating the workings of the university. This comes in the form of budgeting. The trustees of the University request an amount needed for the upcoming year, and this goes to the state House of

TURN TO PAGE 24

Revamp in works at GRC

By MICHAEL FOLEY
Collegian Staff

Long-term policies to combat healt... problems in the Graduate Researc... Tower are currently in development... stages, according to University Healt... Services Director Barry Averill.

Policies proposed by Universit... administrators include filing em... ployees' health histories, monitorin... work practices and the tower en... vironment and developing a... emergency response team to in... vestigate such accidents as chemica... spills, Averill said.

Last week, Associate Chancello... Terrence Burke announced a con... sulting engineering firm would be hire... within one month to study and correct... the tower's faulty ventilation system.

UMass English Prof. Arlyn... Diamond, who has overseen a... grievance for the Massachusetts... Society of Professors concerning the... potential health haz... the GRC, said the griev... ...e is not "comple... ...h the ...

Tuition may rise to meet infl...

By JACK GALLAGHER
Collegian Staff

...mmittee on Student Affairs of the ...oard of Trustees was to discu... ...roposed tuition increase for ... Amherst campuses. The ... ...uld be reviewed ... be implemented ... ...ation ...

...effort begins ...mp faculty union

...CHMITT

... members is ...tion — ... ...o years, ...ng together, ...rom instructors ...achusetts Society ...rtification drive. Enou... ...force the state labor rel... ...n to hold an election when ...rs could elect to hold an elec... ...he three-year-old union. State ...the election if signatures can ...from 30 percent of union ...in this case about 1,000 ...

Section cut ...angers class

By MARC FAGELSON
Collegian Staff

Section seven of Spanish 140 class was cancelled yesterday and students, some of whom need the course to graduate, may not be able to reschedule it.

Alberto Rivas, the ...

Legislative committee underbids UM budget

By MARC FAGELSON
Collegian Staff

Ways and Means Committee ... their recommendations ... 1981 budget and ... Edward J. ...

How does Grad School tower?

By JEFF BAKER

The Graduate School towers over the rest of UMass, physically, if not academically. The spectre of the twin grad Towers and the Graduate Research Center dominate the north side of the Amherst campus. But how tall the grad school stands on campus and around the country is a matter of varying opinion.

This year there were 2,400 full- and 2,800 part-time students enrolled in the various graduate programs, making up about one-quarter of UMass/Amherst's total student population of 24,000. About 300 doctoral and 1,000 master's degrees were awarded last year.

Tuition for students from Massachusetts will be the same next year as it is this year: $670 for full-time residents and $33.50 per credit for those attending part-time. Out-of-state students matriculating to UMass will suffer an increase in full-time tuition from $2,150 to $2,750. Non-resident part-time grad students will pay $137.50 per credit, over $100 more than a Massachusetts resident pays. Annual fees for next year are set at $260.

Eugene B. Piedmont is currently acting dean of the grad school. However, a nation-wide search committee has selected Dr. Samuel Conti as the new dean. Conti will assume his duties this summer and will be installed in his new position when the fall semester opens in September.

* * *

The Graduate Student Senate is the elected representative body for grad students at UMass. It is financed through fees all graduate students pay and is organized to protect grad student interests on campus. The senate advocates grad student beliefs through representation of over fifty different campus committees, which deal with all facets of the University community of interest to grad students. In addition, the senate rebates money to graduate department student organizations in accordance with the number of fee-paying grads on the committee.

Some of the major campus agencies recieving GSS funding include the Legal Service Office, which provides free legal counsel to all registered graduate and undergraduate students; the transit service, which receives $22,000 and operates the comprehensive campus bus system; and the University Child Care service which is granted $8,000. Since many grad students are married with small children, this is a helpful service. Finally, the Off-Campus Housing Office is given a flat stipend of $2,500.

Current GSS president Monte Pearson recently discussed the grad school and aired several greivances students have. Pearson described the atmosphere of the school as "threatened." He listed the twin threats of lack of adequate funding and declining enrollment. "The University experienced a period of unprecented growth over a ten-year period. At that time all the grad school had to do was sit back and admit the students. The demand for professors was also great," Pearson continued, "so, in consequence, a number of teachers were quickly hired and given tenure who perhaps shouldn't have gotten it."

Today, Pearson believes the departments are mired in "an insulated traditional approach to education that reinforces the ivy-tower image of the University and ignores the community."

A disparity is currently believed to exist between programs which receive a large amount of government research grants and those which receive little outside research funds and suffer from shrinking enrollment. This is because there are diminishing employment opportunities for those who comlete some of the less well-off programs. Pearson named natural sciences, and polymer science and engineering as those programs which are now flourishing under a plethora of government money and said many departments in the Humanities,

TURN TO PAGE 23

Planning should be realistic. 'There's no sense making a wish list.'

—Henry Koffler

Photo by Jim Mahoney

Koffler at helm as UM comes about

By JOSEPH QUINLAN

UMass, an institution that frequently has awarded the first college degree to a second or third generation family, faces an immediate future of close scrutiny by state legislators who want to cut budgets without losing votes. In the past, plagued by an image of being a campus more concerned with trends in social movements than academic quality, UMass would be an easy target of fiscal conservatives.

But UMass has come full circle. In the 1950s and early '60s, it was a small institution with academia in the forefront; in the late '60s and early '70s, it was a fledgling flagship campus with plenty of money and equally as many new approaches to education; today, it is a large university with imminent budget restraints that demand a realistic review of the university's objectives.

And the administrator who will lead UMass through this vital phase is Chancellor Henry Koffler, someone very familar with the role of land grant universities and appreciative of the opportunities at a state university. As an Austrian with an international scholarship for his ticket to the United States in 1939, Koffler became an American citizen as he studied at the state Universities of Arizona and Wisconsin.

"Putting Koffler in that job (of chancellor) ensures academic quality will be respected during the hard times (of state budget cuts)," said Ralph L. Whitehead, a journalistic studies professor and an alumnus of the University of Wisconsin. "Not everybody in the lifeboat stays in during hard times, but academic quality will keep its seat (with Koffler).

"I think it's good to have the background of a strong Big Ten university which takes second place to nobody...(Koffler) brings to UMass a much bolder vision of what it can be."

Whitehead said he sees UMass becoming a "populist MIT," by 1990, a state university that rounds out its traditonal offerings of liberal curricula with programs that equip students with highly technical skills. MIT, the Massachusetts Institue of Technology, is making a name for itself in liberal arts now, Whitehead said. It would represent a major change from the UMass of the 1970s.

"Traditionally, the two duties of the chancellor in the '70s, were to be chief engineer and flak catcher," Whitehead said. "If you were the average hard working couple in Holyoke with two kids in high school and looked at TV and read newspapers for your image of UMass, you'd see, from watching the chancellor, that he had a lot of problems physically and politically on campus."

Since becoming chancellor nine months ago, Koffler has initiated policies that suggest he is determined to change the image of UMass. But as he explained in a recent interview, he is not embarking on a thin promotional campaign. Instead, Koffler said he wants to spread the news of quality at UMass by establishing relationships with students' families, alumni and state legislators who will help "tell the story."

This semester, Koffler has led a group of UMass admissions office administrators and college deans to eastern Massachusetts cities for evening sessions with parents and their high school-age children interested in attending UMass.

"If it wasn't for his attending you wouldn't get those deans to go," one administrator said.

He also has organized a committee on civility to report to him its study of anti-social behavior—racism, anti-semitism, reports of which attracted statewide media tention and embarassed UMass in 1979.

* * *

Koffler immerses himself in details and considers every side of an issue—"he doesn't shoot from the hip"—before making a decison, the adminstrator said.

He also has been forced to make decisions on problems inherited from previous administrations or beyond his control: an unsafe highrise library, a campus allegedly unsafe for female pedistrians at night, and a community protest about a cutback in airtime for an Hispanic program on WFCR, a public education radio station licensed by UMass.

Koffler's decisions in these problems didn't please everyone on campus, but he observed campus governance procedures and was receptive to advice, said political science Prof. Harvey Kline, who is also the secretary of the Faculty Senate.

"Personally, I think this is the kind of chancellor we need (at this time)...a chancellor who will not delay decisons for weeks or months," said Kline.

English Prof. Jules Chametzky, president of the faculty union, said Koffler and the union have enjoyed an "amicable relationship" in which the chancellor has observed his contractual obligations. Chametzky said Koffler adheres stricltly to the letter of the contract, and the union would prefer the chancellor follow a "generous adherance to the 'spirit' of collective bargaining."

Chametzky also said the union does not think Koffler intergrated enough the budget lights of the administration and union. He also said he would like to see Koffler insist on campus autonomy in settling union grievances, which are now ultimately settled in the central office in Boston. To Chametsky, Koffler's first nine months have been similar to a "shakedown cruise" on a ship. The union, which Chametzky said numbers 1137, will be entering contract negotioations in June for its second contract.

What all this means to the future of UMass should surface in the coming months when Koffler commissions a long-range planning study to evaluate priorities in academic areas. This study undoubtedly will recommend reallocating resources. The last time such an endeavor was undertaken, in 1977, the study's engineer, then Provost Paul L. Puryear, became entangled in his first of several bitter feuds over governance procedures with faculty and administrators. Puryear was fired in 1978 in his final showdown with the Chancellor Randolph W. Bromery.

Koffler said he is aware of the so-called Puryear Plan, but he said he does not want to compare its intentions with his plans.

He does say this study will follow the spirit of the mission of land grant university — begun in the 1860s to serve its state with educational opportunities and technical advice.

Koffler said planning should represent a "realistic expectability" of what can be done with available resources.

"There's no sense in making a wish list."

* * *

Koffler, asked when he came to the United States from Austria, smiled and said he arrived on Ellis Island, the historic immigration processing facility in the shadow of the Statue of Liberty, on Thanksgiving Day, 1939.

"I keep thinking it might be some kind of an omen," said Koffler, 57. He said he traveled to the United States, where an international scholarship awaited him with the idea that he probably would not return to Austria.

His mother left Vienna and came to the United States shortly afterwards and eventually moved to most of the academic communities where her son studied or worked. She now lives in the Echo Hill section of Amherst.

Koffler, the initiator and driving force behind the committee studying racism, sexism and other acts of anti-social behavior on campus, said his commitment to human rights is not the result of the horrors inflicted upon Europeans by Adolf Hilter's Nazi regime, which overran Austria in 1938.

It was a "personal upbringing" as a child in pre-war Vienna, Koffler said, that have led to his views today. He said he developed the attitude that "common humanity ties us together..the fact that human beings are born, that act alone..." means dignity for everyone.

Koffler said he likes to judge an "individual on their own basis of merit...how far they've gone...what one does with what one has..."

This attitude has expressed itself in Koffler's academic experience. "The notion of a public institution is terribly close to me," Koffler said. He received his bachelor of science degree from the University of Arizona and his masters and doctorate form the University of Wisconsin, colleges founded under the Morrill Act that promoted land grant insititutions.

He taught classes, conducted research and served as administrator at the Purdue University in Indiana and the University of Minnesota, like UMass, also land grant colleges.

Others on Koffler:

'I think this is the kind of chancellor we need. . .a chancellor who will not delay decisions for weeks or months'

—Harvey Kline

Koffler and the union have enjoyed an 'amicable relationship.' The union would prefer a 'generous adherance to the spirit of collective bargaining.'

—Jules Chametzky

Photos courtesy of UMass News Bureau

Con Ed division 'mixed up'

Reporter Laura Kenney was dispatched to research and write a story on the University's growing Division of Continuing Education, and to talk to students involved in the program. What she found was a bureaucratic mess, one where nobody really seemed to know what was going on. She files the following report.

By LAURA M. KENNEY

Once upon a time I was intent on writing a story profiling a few older students enrolled in the UMass Division of Continuing Education. However, in attempting to obtain a list of students I might contact, I encountered an overwhelming number of obstacles.

The first step was the publicity office for Continuing Education in the Hasbrouck building. I spoke to the director, asking for some basic information on the program. She said she had no material on hand, but told me to return the following day. On my return, she said she really had nothing to give me, but suggested I go to the different division heads for information on each program. (There are several departments within Continuing Education, including the credit program, credit-free workshops, and the Arts Extension Sevice.)

So down the hall I went to speak to the head of the credit program, who told me to speak to the director. I told her secretary that I specifically wanted some statistics on older students in the program, and she said the person I should contact was the registrar for Continuing Ed; however, she was not in her office in Hasbrouck, so I would have to catch her the next day in her office in Whitmore.

• • •

The following day I went to Whitmore, determined at least to get some figures. I obtained some statistics, and next needed names of people to call for interviews. So I spoke to an academic adviser, who told me to come back after the weekend to give him time to come up with a list. I returned on Monday afternoon, but was told that this person was at a meeting. A woman in his office told me I might get what I needed from the coordinator of the Older Student Services Network in Berkshire House.

As I expected, she was not in her office, and I found she only keeps a few office hours each week. A secretary there told me the coordinator might not have specific names of older students to give me anyway. So, knowing that my deadline was coming up at the end of the week, and knowing that even if I got names of people to contact I would still have to schedule interviews, the focus of my assignment changed.

The people who shuffled me from office to office were all very nice about it; I don't want to criticize them personally. But the bureaucracy involved here was immense. The Division of Continuing Education is confused and disorganized, which I suppose is to be expected in a program so diverse. Yet there must be some way to unify the program, for the sake of bewildered newcomers who want to know what their options are. As a start, I would suggest that University officials consolidate some positions and offices, and locate all Continuing Education offices in one building, either Hasbrouck or Whitmore.

Is this realiy too much to ask?

'People should be growing as they work, not dying or being oppressed. In any well-run organization, people grow while they're working.'

—George S. Odiorne

Odiorne's MBO — for business, for you

By CAROLYN MOONEY

"If you're not committed to something, you're dead," believes Dr. George S Odiorne, UMass professor in the School of Business Administration and founder of a widely-used managerial system called "Management by Objectives." The method, which Odiorne describes as a balance between "systematic and humanistic management," thrives on getting individuals to make commitments and shape goals.

Glancing around his office where honorary diplomas from numerous business groups and children's drawings cover the walls, and listening to him squeeze in time for a fraternity speaking engagement between a Westfield bankers' convention and the symphony later that same night, it's obvious Odiorne has struck such a balance in his own life.

"People should be growing as they work, not dying of apathy or being oppressed," he explains. "In any well-run organization, people grow while they're working."

Odiorne, who describes himself as "middle-of-the-road, slightly liberal," first published his book Management by Objectives in 1965. It contains managerial ideas used by Alfred P. Sloan, the first president of General Motors, whose ideas still make up the backbone of GM management currently. Today, MBO has become the dominant form of management both in large corporations and in government, but it can also be applied to non-profit organizations, clubs, fraternities, and an individual's own life. Odiorne's new book, MBO II, is a reflection of that evolutionary growth.

MBO can be broken down into two parts: strategic objectives, which involve formulating a five-year plan and revising it every year; and operational objectives in which local commitments are made. Odiorne defines a local commitment as a loyalty declared to "the smallest unit of which we're a member—our boss rather than our entire company; a close friend rather than a group of people."

Odiorne names IBM, Xerox, and the Bell Telephone System as the best current examples of successful MBO application. "Making a profit is a given for any business," he points out. "But making people grow at the same time is the difference between a good business and a bad business."

On the other end of the scale are businesses which had good products but whose management was "so bad they couldn't survive," Ordione says. He tells how National Cash Register and John Deere—both successful—have museums full of obsolete machines of competitors they forced out of business, proof of their successful management.

If any trend can be found in business management today, it is that management is becoming more professional, Odiorne says. And so, apparently, are his students. "My students now, particularly the women, are far superior to those of five years ago. They're assertive and aggressive," he says, adding that women have boosted SBA entrance standards to the highest level ever.

• • •

And what are students attitudes toward big business today, at a time when all bureacratic institutions are regarded somewhat suspiciously?

Photo by Doug Paulding

"Well, the students have a healthy skepticism," is how he sees it. "There's no sense of reverence, but they're not hostile toward it." In general, he believes, people who like their jobs, their bosses and their work situations tend to be more trustful of large institutions, including the federal government.

Under a recent Civil Service Reform Act, all federal government employees are now required to state their job objectives and their performances are measured against those objectives, Odiorne says. Locally, the reform act extends to the Veterans' Administration Hospital in Northampton.

Some 28 state governments currently use the MBO system in running their affairs, according to Odiorne. Massachusetts does not. "In my opinion, the Massachusetts government has not been run to achieve the objectives the people think it should," he says flatly, citing the Ward Commission (to

TURN TO PAGE 23

Star gazing

UMass team leads the way in pulsar research

By CHRISTOPHER H. SCHMITT

Think for a moment about the history. Sir Isaac Newton made centuries ago when the apple fell from the tree and struck him on the head.

For Newton, it was a happening that led him to formulate the powerfully explanatory theory of gravity.

Think what pioneering work in gravitation is being done today. Cal Tech, Berkeley, and Princeton are the big names that come to mind.

Wrong.

Sit back and meet Joe Taylor.

He's the UMass radio astronomer who led a team of researchers here in proving a major discovery supporting a theory of gravity put forth by Albert Einstein 60 years ago.

That was in late 1978. More recently, he's followed up his success by doing it again. He just recently announced another big discovery to a group of scientific heavyweights in Washington.

Sit back and meet him. You're in for a chat with an internationally-known astronomer, and a lesson on the "glue" that holds our solar system and universe together.

• • •

It was in December 1978 that Dr. Joseph H. Taylor went before several hundred leading astrophysicists on astrophysics in Munich, Germany to announce his finding: He and his team from UMass had produced the first experimental evidence directly supporting the existence of gravity waves.

Such waves, long hypothesized but never observed directly, are in some ways similar to radio waves you might receive on your stereo, but are based on the forces of gravity rather than those of electricity and magnetism. Gravitational waves are one of the long-standing, but previously untested predictions of Einstein's landmark work on the general theory of relativity.

The theory of relativity, for a moment, means that everything is relative. It was put forth by Einstein to correct deficiencies in Newton's earlier theory. It has some pretty far-out ideas, too. More on those later.

Taylor's new experimental data came as a result of a four-year program of monitoring radio emmissions from a pulsar located some 15,000 light years from earth. A light year is the distance light travels in a year about 6,000,000,000,000 miles. Pulsars are believed to be the remains of dying stars that have exploded, leaving behind small, rapidly spinning remnants so dense that a teaspoonful of the material might weigh a billion tons. They emit intense and very regular bursts of energy.

This pulsar, discovered in 1974 by the same research group, is known to be orbiting another massive object—perhaps another pulsar—because its repetitive "beeps" of emission speed up and slow down over a regular pattern lasting a little less than 8 hours.

Einstein's theory predicts that such a system should emit gravitational waves, which in turn slowly extract energy from the orbit, causing the pulsar and its companion to move closer together. As the size of the orbit decreases, the length of time for the pulsar to complete an orbit also decreases.

According to Taylor, relativity theory predicts that the length of time for the orbit to be completed should decrease by about one ten-thousandth of a second per year. Taylor found that after four years of observation, the time lapsed for the orbit had decreased by more ten-thousandths of a second, a result exactly in the time predicted by Einstein—over 60 years earlier. An important prediction had been verified.

Until recently, the only pulsar known to be a member of an orbiting pair was the one discovered by Taylor. Now there are two. Taylor and his group on April 28 announced discovery of a second "binary pulsar" to the annual meeting of the American Physical Society in Washington. This one, though, will tell more about stellar evolution than gravitational waves. In all, there are about 330 known pulsars, about two-thirds of them discovered by scientists at UMass.

Observations of the orbiting pulsar were made with instruments at the Five College Radio Astronomy center at the Quabbin Reservoir near Belchertown, and the 1000-foot diameter radio antenna operated by the National Astronomy and Ionosphere Center near Arecibo, Puerto Rico.

Speaking in his office recently, Taylor described his discoveries and what they've meant to him personally, to science, and to other astronomers.

In a field that's been pretty quiet

TURN TO PAGE 24

Rescuing MLK from mythology

UMass professor sets out to write 'honest' biography

By SARAH HAMMANN

He walks briskly with hands placed confidently at this sides, eyes focused on the stage podium. The class catches sight of him; there is a hush, and a final settling into seats ripples through the auditorium. Placing his uncluttered folder on the podium, he methodically opens to the note sheets, meticulously straightens them and lifts his head to launch into another capacity lecture. His name is Stehpen B. Oates, and his self-proclaimed mission is to dispel larger-than life myths about great historical figures.

As a history professor at UMass and a former Guggenheim fellow, Oates has develped a tradition of literary biography. His current work, to be published by Harper and Row in 1982, centers on the life of Martin Luther King, the black civil rights movement leader from 1956-1968.

"I want to bring King back to life, stress the meaning of and significance of that unique human life, and I want to write it with as much artistry as I can. When reading of King, that man should come to life on the written page; the reader should feel transported back to his time to relate to King's mistakes, honestly portrayed and admitted," Oates explained.

Oates said he will explore realistic facts of King's personality. "The book must be used for a source book, and I must write it with literary value. It must measure up to the man, a genuine work of art that captures King and some of the most creative and courageous people who lived in this century, and certainly in this country. I must place it in its historical context, the roots in drew from the Civil War, the old South, slavery, Reconstruction days — a big task...," he said as he stared out his office window.

He is the author of six books and editor of four others. In 1966 he started a Civil War trilogy with a biography of John Brown: To Purge This Land with Blood. Since then, he has completed the trilogy with The Fires of Jubilee: Nat Turner's Fierce Rebellion (1975) and With Malice Toward None: The Life of Abraham Lincoln (1977). The King biography is part of Oates' desire to produce a major biography to rescue King from mythmakers.

Oates had the opportunity to rummage through private collections of King's friends, including documents and diaries stored among some 83,000 documents in the Martin Luther King Collection at Boston University.

Since Oates has gotten access to people and information that future people will not have, he has a great obligation — and he knows it. "People will die, and I have had access to archives of the mind, never to be interviewed again; the private letter collections never to find way to the library. For four years of research, I have put these together to find a realistic portrayal of King."

"Martin Luther King had the most sane approach to surviving in our increasingly crowded and troubled plantet than did any other single individual in this centruy," Oates believes. "The Peaceful Warrior," as close friend and civil rights co-leader Reverend Ralph Abernathy called King, was a man who worked emphatically within the system.

King embodied that contradiction of terms of the peaceful warrior in his use of military metaphors to describe the kinds of civil rights demonstrations that he planned. He preached for a non-violent army in tactical and strategical terms. And even though King emphatically opposed war and violence, he lived in a violent, military-oriented world. His psychological pitch to motivate people for the civil rights movement appealed to more people when they thought they would go out, join an army and capture victories for a cause. With this exceptional sense of history, King understood that this kind of military language had motivated poeple to fight for causes throughout the course of mankind.

The vast majority of blacks in King's day were nonviolent. His movement "enlisted" one in every ten of 20 million blacks in America, according to a 1965 Ebony magazine study. And in each of his strikes or marches, the groups who followed King killed no one. At such civil rights campaigns violence was brought on by whites. The white mobs, redneck sheriffs, cops, and city officials, however, characteristically hoped for the blacks to be violent so that they could call them a lynch mob and have an excuse for violence in return.

The deeply religious and insightful movement leader knew the folly of an attempted insurrection to bring about social justice. It had never succeeded.

King's philosophy to bring about change within the political system was in effect an appeal to the conscience of the power structure; he confronted its racism and said, "I am not going to kill for you to be just to me. I will demostrate, petition, point it out to you, stand in, and sit in; beat me if you want to, but you are still wrong."

Pursuing this ideal of nonviolent passive resistance, King spent considerable periods in prison.

• • •

'Martin Luther King had the most sane approach to surviving in our increasingly crowded and troubled planet...'

—Stephen B. Oates

Photo by Jim Mahoney

AP photo

Underlying this complex individual existed a solid philosophical, religious and distinctly middle-class black training that comprised the erudite and intellecutal King. Like white revolutionary John Brown who thought Kansas should enter the Union in 1856 as a free state, slave Nat Turner who led the famous insurrectionist rebellion in 1831, and Civil War President Abraham Lincoln who drafted and signed the Enamcipation Proclamation of 1863, Martin Luther King, too, had a vision. Each of the four followed a calling by a providential god, Oates said.

For this reason, Oates decided to expand his Civil War triology to a quartet to include another leader who had a keen historical perspective and understood that race was the central social problem of the country, and always had been, since 1776. "Each of the four lives hang on that central issue. And each of the four are profoundly affected by, scarred by or caught up by the massive contradiction of racial discrmination in a country based on the Declaration of Independence.

"Lincoln's emancipation of the slaves served as only the starting point which freed blacks; although is demolished institutional bondage, the far greater problem of race and discriminatin remained. King addressed himself so eloquently to that problem, and took up the torch where Lincoln left off," Oates said.

Oates explained that King's extraordinary sense of history made him a visionary leader that ranks him one notch above some of the other great black leaders of his time, a sense of history that rivalled Loncoln's. King understood that the civil rights was part and parcel of a worldwide movement of Third World nations throwing off the yoke of oppression, imperialism and the Old European past.

The most glaring examples of racism and segregation existed in the South, so it was obvious there the movement would start. Oates claims King knew he had to fight and conquer attitudes set in the South that hadn't changed since the slavery days of the Civil War.

TURN TO PAGE 24

AP photo

ON THE MARCH FOR CIVIL RIGHTS: King and the Rev. Ralph Abernathy lead a procession during the struggles of the 1960s.

'We're in for some difficult years'

The juggler of funds looks to the future

By FRAN BASCHE

He may be the provost and vice chancellor for academic affairs, but for the past two-and-a-half years Jerimiah Allen has been more of a moneyman, juggling an expanding budget to meet a shrinking dollar.

"At this level of administration you're mostly dealing with money. You can't run the institution without it," he says.

He speaks slowly, chuckling occasionaly as he recounts his own history. He came to UMass seven years ago after teaching English full-time at the University of Colorado. A tenured professor at UMass, he has held administrative positions since arriving here, as associate provost, teaching perhaps one course a semester.

Does he still consider himself a member of the facutly? "Oh, yes," he answers without hesitating.

He will be glad to get back to his position as dean of Fine Arts and Humanities. "You get isolated," he says, from the facutly, the research, the students.

"I've had a funny career as an administrator. Unlike a good many deans I've had campus-wide experience," he says refering to his stint as associate provost. After serving more than two years as provost, his attitudes toward University administration have "not really changed."

In a recent interview, Allen talked about UMass, how the University currently operates, some of its problems, and what lies ahead.

"We're in for some difficult years — it's an economic fact of life," he says as he talks about sections of Spanish that were cancelled and later rescheduled at the start of this semester.

"The problem really is the language requirement. The theory is that educated people ought to know more than one language. I agree with that. But I don't think the language requirement is a very effective way to acheive that goal," he said on the first day back in his office after it was occupied by 30 people protesting foreign language program changes on WFCR. (A public station whose license is held by UMass.)

"As the result of the requirement more students are taking the courses than are really interested in it or are very good at it. The instructors have to pace themselves for the uninterested students. It's furstrating for the instructors. I know, I've taught required courses," he says. Here at UMass? "No, in Colorado."

The rhetoric requirement, however, is not as debatable. "I think fewer students resist the idea of taking rhetoric. The notion that you need to develop skills in your native language is not as controversial."

UMass currently appears to be in between the proverbial rock and a hard place, because, says the highest ranking academic official on campus, "Things are going to get worse."

The problem stems from budget allocation methods. Courses are listed for preregistration, but the University does not know what its allocation is until the end of January, this year two days before the classes were set to begin.

"At this particular public university we are treated by the state almost like other state agencies. You have to make contractural commitments in advance, and then suddenly, we get a bad budget." "But you've got to offer required courses," Allen says, yet the UMass budget shrinks even as it grows.

"All the departments will be affected," by budget cuts this year. "We would try to protect our high priority units," he says.

• • •

Double-digit inflation has also forced a "gradual shift in enrollments and pressures form liberal arts to more career-oriented studies," he says.

"There's been a growth in engineering and a corresponding drop in discipline such as English, history — although journalism has become more popular. It's more career oriented."

And what of state industry's involvement with the University? The engineering school recently began a drive to raise $5.5 million from private industry. "The theory of the capital fund drive is that it will provide added resources to make it less necessary to transfer resources from the other departments," he said. The money will go to the department that does research for various companies, he said.

When the fund drive first started it was purely engineering — since then natural sciences have become involved. I don't think it will effect fine arts and humanities or the social sciences. We've had a series of very tight budgets and the enrollment patterns have shifted away from those areas," he said, leaving the University to expand in more demanded disciplines.

The shift is reflected in declining number of faculty in the fine arts and humanities The number of faculty has dropped from 406 in 1973 to 375 currently.

Because of declining enrollments in these departments, the student-facutly ration has not changed.

"Ours is about 17, or 16 overall (students to faculty)," Allen says, comparing it to Amherst College's 12 to 1 ration. "I'd say we're about average nationally to similar universities this size." But, he cautions, those are averages. "You can't just compare. Some of the disciplines require a higher number of faculty to students than other." Nursing is at about 3 or 4 to 1 while journalistic studies is 20 to 1. He says the social sciences and business courses have the highest number of students per faculty.

• • •

Sheer economics forces faculty union to negotiate for contracts that provide healthy salary increases, Allen said. "Even so, if they get a 10 percent salary increase that's probably been reduced to 7 percent after taxes," he said. "We're starting negotiations again soon. It doesn't exactly bring out the best in anyone."

Allen says "it's too early to say what the effect in the long run will be," of faculty unionization on education. The faculty organized for the first time in 1977. Does he ever feel torn between his role as a faculty member and administrator? "Yes."

Another effect money, and perhaps prestige, has on academic life at UMass is the loss of professors. "We're beginning to lose a few, to institutions that offer more money, better opportunites for research, or a more prestigious department. "When we lose people to better places it's recognition," he says "I don't think the quality of education will suffer — everybody's in the same boat. There are very few institutions that have enough money to go out and raid other institutions."

'At this particular public university we are treated by the state almost like other state agencies. You have to make contractual commitments in advance, and then suddenly, we get a bad budget.'

—Jeremiah Allen

Allen says the opportunities for scientific research are far better at a large school such as UMass than at smaller places. And publishing and research are "particularly important" in achieving recognition in the sciences.

• • •

But what about the students here? Are they "anti-intellectual" as a recent self-study once charged?

"Students have changed," he says. "During the 1960s students to a large extent became seemingly uninterested in jobs." Then, "a period of high employment, if you needed money, you went out and got a job. There were plenty of jobs available." Now, high unemployment makes job security more competitive and a college diploma more a must, he said.

As a result of the changing demands, "There has been grade inflation," he says, although, "there's been less of it in the sciences." "Engineers are the most stiff markers.

"People used to grade more on a strict bell curve, which meant not as many A's were given out."

How would UMies fare at other, more competitive schools? "Within the same field, you'd get similar grades. People move around and they take their ideas about grades with them." Which brings us to the image of UMass and its effect on academics.

The gap between professors and students, between classroom experience and the dormitory or apartment "is probably a problem." "We (deans and department heads) talk about this a lot. "It's a matter of considerable concern to the chancellor." "Better communication," is the key to combatting it, he says.

He brings up the subject of sexual harrassment. "You get rumors, you get reports, but you have to get people to come out in the open." Reporting of this "is getting better," he said, but "I think we're going to have to develop some kind of procedure for dealing with this." He says work the women's issues team of the Student Center for Educational Research and Advocacy of the Student Government Association has done on this has been helpful. "It's the kind of behavior that's difficult to pinpoint. There are usually no witnesses. One person says one thing, one says another."

What does a provost do if this can be proven? "If it's a case of grades, some kind of coercion, I'd start dismissal proceedings. That's the only thing we can do. "I don't think we have (dismissed anyone for that reason) since I've been here."

The subject of tenure comes up. Allen said there are some departments here that are 100 percent tenured — slavic languages and microbiology. English is almost entirely tenured. To determine tenure, faculty members are evaluated on excellence and strength as a teacher and scholar, and "then we have to demonstrate that (tenure) is not going to take away from flexibility of changing departments, and it must be consistent with affirmative action goals."

TURN TO PAGE 23

"There has been grade inflation, although less in the sciences. Engineers are the most stiff markers."

"As a result of requirements, more students are taking the courses than are really interested."

Photos by Jim Mahoney

"There's been a growth in engineering and a corresponding drop in disciplines such as English, history..."

It's been an honor....

The courses are tough, and there's more work, but Honors can pay off

By LYNNE E. WHEELER

Are you one of those who thought only bookworms with 3.99 cums were in the Honors Program? Ever wonder why anyone would do all that extra work? Then consider these facts:

.Honors students receive better counseling, build up a better portfolio of letters of recommendation than do most students, have a better chance of getting into graduate school, and often start out with higher pay in their first jobs.

But you have to do the work.

The Honors Program offers these advantages and more, but is plagued by problems, such as not enough departments offering honors courses, courses not being despersed at all levels within departments, and in some cases, courses needed to graduate not even being offered. All the problems are related to the low budget and priority it receives.

• • •

The University offers two distinct honors options to students who desire a more intensive undergraduate curriculum.

The University Honors Program, also referred to as the Commonwealth Scholar's Program, offers an alternative to the distribution requirements for students of high academic motivation and proven ability. Any student who has successfully completed one honors course and one semester's work with at least a 3.2 cumulative grade average is eligible to apply for the program. Once accepted, the student is required to take one honors course each semester, with a minimum of six. After completion, the student graduates as a Commonwealth Scholar.

Those students who wish to graduate magna or summa cum laude must complete a departmental honors program, 61 of which are offered currently. An alternative to the University Honors Program, the Deaprtmental Honors Program is a series of courses and course options designed to allow more intensive involvement within student's department. Since the curriculum of the Departmental Honors Program varies widely from department to department, any student interested in pursuing honors in his major field should confer with the Honors Coordinator of that department.

Over 200 honors courses, open to all students, are offered each semester. The classes are usually small, allowing for small group instruction and closer contact with professors and other students.

• • •

Easier access to academic advisors and the opportunity to work closely with a faculty advisor in their major departments are seen by students as some of the advantages of an honors program.

"You get much better counseling than from other undergraduate counseling services," said Irwin Schwartz, an honor student currently serving on the University Honors Council

"Individuality" is the key to the program according to Jackie Dorfman, a new member of the University Honors Program. "You can go to your advisors and they know who you are and the courses you've taken. You're not just another number."

Barry Weinstein, a math honors student, regards the program as "a service more than a program" because it allows him to build up a good portfolio for recommendations to graduate schools.

While a student is in the Honors Program, a portfolio of written evaluations of performance in honors coursework is compiled, making it possible for the director of the program to write accurate and detailed letters of recommendation for jobs or graduate schools.

"We get very nice remarks, especially from law schools, about how significant our letters are in considering students for acceptance," commented Prof Jack Tager, director of the University Honors Program. "It really distinguishes the student. "There is no question that the honors student has a better shot."

Having the honors credentials is equally important in the job market, commented Schwartz. "A graduate with honors from both the political science departmental program and the University Honors Program may receive an estimated $3,000 higher starting pay form the federal government."

Aside from the prospects of better jobs and graduate schools, many students simply enjoy the recognition they receive as honors students. "The status thing is important," remarked Weinstein. "As an honors student, your name gets spread around. I've been nominated for scholarships that I probably wouldn't have been otherwise."

Closer contact with advisors, better counseling, compilation of good portfolio, and recognition are just a few of the many benefits enjoyed by honors students. "But remember," cautioned Dorfman, "you do have to work hard for it."

• • •

While the advantages of the program are many, so are the problems that are plaguing it — most of which stem from the low budget and priority given to the program.

According to Director Tager the University Honors Program, which also monitors the departmental programs, is "one from the bottom on the list of special programs as far as budget goes.

"Budget has become a real problem," he said. "We are making as much of an effort as we can with the budget that we have to work with."

Like most programs at the University, the honors program is facing even further cutbacks. "We don't even know where these cuts are going to be made," said Tager, "At present, we're struggling to stay alive. A former director agrees.

Photo by Doug Paulding

'We get very nice remarks especially from law schools, about how significant our letters are in considering students for acceptance. There is no question the honors student has a better shot.'

—Jack Tager

"I know from experience that the honors program has to be given a much higher priority if it is to funciton as it should," said Prof. John Sitter, former director of the University Honors Program and former English honors coordinator. "The University has a false economy because soon we will be seriously competing with other schools for students and the honors program is a potentially large drawing card which is being neglected." Other schools, he notes, have "much more ambitous honors programs."

The low budget and priority given the program is being felt at all levels.

Putting out publications to make students and potential students, aware of the program, holding symposiums, and conducting interdisciplinary seminars can all be costly, said Tager. "As it is, most of the work being done is by volunteers...If students haven't heard about the program this year," he said, "next year they may not hear anything about it because we won't have any money to do publications of any kind."

Budget related problems are being felt at the departmental levels as well. Many departments either do not have an honors program, or it is inactive because, according to Tager, "they don't want to, or are unable to, commit themselves to the extra time and effort that is involved in running an honors program."

Providing honors courses in large departments which are facing serious overenrollments, such in engineering and the School of Business, is often difficult. "It is a serious problem" said Lynn Santoro, assitant director of the University Honors Program, "especially for those departments which are overenrolled. It is very hard for them to teach an extra course."

Tager said there is one department at UMass, "which shall remain nameless," that requires the student to take certain courses to graduate with honors, but these courses aren't even offered. "It is impossible for the student to graduate with honors."

If honors courses are offered, a frequent problem is that they are not dispersed at all levels. "For example, the political science department has an excellent honors program at the junior and senior levels, but there is almost nothing at the freshman and sophomore levels," said Tager, "I can recommend that they have introductory honors courses, but each department has to make its own decisions."

• • •

Yet another problem, one cited by a number of professors is the need for the program to be "streamlined". "Organization needs to be cleaned up and streamlined," commented noted History Prof. Steven Oates. "There is a good deal of waste, overlapping, and confusion with the departmental and University honors programs. There is a definite need for centralization and consolidation.

Revisions are now underway to correct some of these problems, said Tager. "At this moment we're going through something called Program Review," he said. "In the process of Program Review I am going over each department and saying that you don't have enough honors courses and implementing changes. One half of the departments have been completed. They are being brought up to a conistent standard."

Although such attempts are being made to combat the problems facing the honors program, only so much can be done until the importance of the program is recognized and is given the proper budget and priority it requires, evidence indicates.

"There are many really good, highly motivated students in the honors program," said Oates, a strong advocated of the program, "and I fear that without this program, we would lose those students, as well as many potential students, or, at the very least, they would feel cheated by this University."

The honors office in located in E-25 Machmer.

'It took a long time to get used to the French. But I learned a lot about myself over there. I think everyone should go. . .'

—Ed McKay

'I chose Oxford because it was a good place to tie my interests in art history and literature.'

UMass around the world

Go abroad to learn and have fun

By CAROLYN MOONEY

Taichung, Taiwan is an industrial city outside of Taiwan's capital where the people speak a Chinese dialect known as Mandarin and ride bicycles everywhere. Taichung is about as far from Amherst as a place could possibly be. But UMass graduate Joseph Casson spent a year studying there, and after the normal physical problems ("You know, the runs and all"), adapted successfully to a culture far different from his own. "It was definitely a valuable experience," Casson said, "and a major factor in landing a job later."

Angers, France is a sleepy little city in the Leire Valley where every town has a chateau and every vineyard has a salle de degustation, or tasting room. "It took a long time to get used to the French," recalled UMass senior Ed McKay. "But I learned a lot about myself over there. I think everyone should go someplace different to see how other people live."

At the University of Surrey near London, they look, speak and dress like us. But even one of the most cosmopolitan cities in the world, noted UMass nutrition major Shelley Goldfarb, took a while to adjust to. "There was definitely a language barrier which I didn't expect," she said. But she adjusted quickly, became friendly with British students, and was sorry to leave.

Casson, McKay and Goldfarb are among the 200 or so UMass students who study abroad and receive academic credit each year, through University programs, exchanges, and independent study projects. During the summer, another 250 UMass students take part in foreign programs, according to the International Programs Office located in Whitmore Administration Building.

Judging from the enthusiastic reactions during interviews, the mostly positive letters to advisors, and the number of students who return to a country they studied in, it appears most of these students considered their time spent overseas one of their most significant and developmental college experiences.

Life in a foreign country, however, is not without its moments of loneliness and frustration: More than one student told of walking down the narrow streets of Paris and going inside a church to cry, not because they didn't want to be there but because suddenly they felt "very isolated." A student on exchange at a British university said she had a hard time fitting in with either the British students or the other foreign students. But, she said, "Even the loneliness was something in itself, a learning experience, and I would definitely do it again."

Seymour Weiner of the French Department, who directs the Angers program, tells students planning to go to Angers that their experience will probably resemble "a U-curve"—at first it's all new and exciting; then culture shock and language frustrations may discourage students for awhile; then they adjust and have positive feelings again.

Most programs have some kind of preparatory meetings and screen students wishing to go, and the Freiburg program offers a full-semester preparatory course.

Unlike many of the programs, Freiburg has a strict language requirement, since students are completely integrated into the university. Students wishing to study in Taiwan are also required to speak a certain level of Mandarin Chinese.

Most students interviewed agreed that studying abroad demands a certain degree of adaptability and open-mindedness, but a few said it was possible to adapt and to gain emotional maturity while over there. Most students also agreed that everybody—not just language majors—would benefit from studying in a foreign country.

Jean Shepard, assistant director of IPO, emphasized that most foreign programs are open to students of all majors.

According to Carol Shedoian, associate director of IPO, programs are directed by a faculty member who goes abroad with a group of students, while exchanges, which involve a reciprocal agreement with a foreign university and are negotiated through IPO, do not have a director who goes abroad.

Following is a list of overseas study programs and exchanges offered by the University:

Academic Year

Argentina (E)
Canada—University of Victoria, British Columbia
Finland—University of Helsinki
France—L'Universite Catholique de l'Ouest, Angers
University of Paris (UMass—Boston)
Germany—University of Freiburg
Great Britain & Ireland
Guatemala—Geography Field Methods
Japan—Sophia University, Tokyo
Nigeria—University of Lagos
Switzerland—Interpreters' School, Zurich
Taiwan—Tunghai University, Taichung

Summer Programs

England—Trinity College, Oxford
France—Photography Institute at Arles
University of Dijon
Germany—University of Freiburg
Japan—Hokkaide University, Sapporo
Portugal—University of Lisbon
Spain—Colegie de Espana, Salamanca

Intersession Programs

Canada—McGill University—Quebec
Panama—Smithsonian Tropical Research Institute, Barre Colorado Island

There are also a number of teaching exchanges and field study seminars.

If a student wants to study in a country where no program is offered, IPO will help facilitate the registration process in conjuction with the UMass department administering academic credits. Last year, students studying in 14 different countries received academic credits from the University. As an example, UMass senior Lane Mann, an anthropology major, went to Morocco on an archeological dig for which he received academic credits.

The programs and exchanges which currently have the highest enrollments are the Great Britain exchange; the Angers, France program; a program which Madrid offered to UMass students through St. Louis University; and the Freiburg, Germany program.

In most cases, a semester abroad (including transportation) ends up costing roughly the same as a semester at the University. Students usually live in dormitories, rooming houses, private rooms, or with families, and eat at government-subsidized student restuarants or with their host families.

Many travel extensively on weekends and during vacations, and spend their free time going to movies and cafes, sightseeing, and taking part in activities and excursions offered by their schools.

Tracy Burns, a senior French major, studied in Angers her junior year. She lived with a family but ate at the Restuarant Universitaire in order to meet French students, which many of whom went on the Angers program agreed, was often quite difficult. I tried to speak French as much as possible, but it was hard with so many American," Burns said.

For Ed McKay, a semester spent in Angers prepared him for studying on his own in Paris later.

Senior German major Barbara Jost lived in a studentheim or dormitory in Freiburg, which she said was the most advantageous living situation. Living among German students, she spoke German constantly and made German friends whom she traveled with and went out with at night.

UMass graduate Stephanie Cabell, who went to Freiburg her junior year, also lived in a dormitory. In here free time she sang with a choir, went hiking in the Black forest, or just stayed around the dormitory talking with German students. "We really did have kaffee klatches," she recalled.

Senior English major Leslie Hiller took part in the Oxford Summer Program, where she lived in a very old dormitory suite with a sitting room and a "scout" who straightened up and woke her every morning. "I chose Oxford because it was a

TURN TO PAGE 23

'For the first time I was looking at the U.S. as foreigners see it, and I realized how much waste there is here, especially with such big cars.'

'So much happened and I just couldn't relate it all to my family and friends at home. You never really can.'

A wealth of special programs

1 in 5 say that's why they came to UMass

By BILL SMITH

During their orientation in the summer of 1979, entering freshmen were asked their most important reason for attending UMass. Over 20 percent said it was for Special Programs.

There are 16 Special Programs which are funded mostly from the state, through the provost's office. They receive about $1.3 million.

All of the special programs are academic in nature, but free from many normal restriction and regulations. If each program was included in an existing school or college, its flexibility would be restricted, according to several of the program directors.

According to Administrative Officer Robert Welch, no program is suffering from declining enrollments or substantial reduction of funds. But then again, the dollar doesn't buy what it used to, either. A description of individual programs follows.

Communication Skills

Shirley DeShields, director of the Communication Skills Center said her staff has decreased as the student population has increased. The center developed out of the Rhetoric Department in 1974.

It is an academic support service which provides development and enrichment programs in study skills. Where else can you take a course in note-taking of test-taking? These are skills not ordinarily taught in secondary schools.

The CSC works closely with the Committee for the Collegiate Education of Black Students and the Bilingual Collegiate Program in diagnostic testing to determine a student's academic problems. Students are then told how they can get help. Most facilities are housed in Bartlett Hall and staffed by 11 workers.

BDIC

The Bachelor's Degree with Individual Concentration program was started as a one-year pilot program in 1972. To earn a B.A. or B.S. in this program, students must complete four semesters in BDIC, usually beginning as a second semester sophomore.

Since the academic areas of concentration are interdepartmental, BDIC can offer hundreds of different majors. Enrollment has leveled off lately, at about 200 students.

UWW

The University Without Walls program serves persons who have been unable to earn a Bachelor's Degree through a traditional degree program. This program was begun in Fall 1971 with 30 students. Today the UWW student community numbers more than 300 each semester. These students must fulfill the same core requirements demanded of full-time students.

Most UWW students hold full-time jobs and their area of concentration is usually related to their work. Practicum credits are possible but difficult to arrange. Many students are awarded as much as two semester's credit for related work experience. But the process of compiling a portfolio may take just as long.

Due to limited funding, only 10-15 of the 150 applications each year are accepted. Therefore, UWW has no recruiting problems. The staff has been decreasing since 1975 as the number of applications has been increasing.

The program can accomodate almost any area of concentration. Director Edward Marris said that the program could possibly develop into a state-wide organization rather than being Amherst-based.

Women's Studies

The Women's Studies program developed out of the Faculty Senate Subcommittee on the Status of Women. It started as a two-year pilot program in 1974. The official status of the program is still unclear. Currently, a Women's Studies major is graduated through the BDIC program.

The program offers individualized majors and certificate minors. Currently there are about 40 majors and 40 minors enrolled in the program. About 15 majors were graduated last year.

Some most recent course offerings include: Women's Folk Music, Black Women in the U.S., Women and the Law, and Woman as Hero. Almost all students work in an internship or field work.

Residential Areas

Courses are offered in residential colleges, Orchard Hill, Southwest, and Northeast-Sylvan to reduce the often impersonal atmosphere of a large university. Courses are offered in community development, urban and regional studies, rhetoric and other core subjects.

Although the courses are designed primarily for residents of the designated areas, some of them have limited space for other students. Special academic programs and credit-free workshops can be found throughout the five living areas on campus.

International Programs

Through the International Programs Office, a student can study at major universities abroad. In some cases, students go to learn the language, while others seek a broader variety of topics that might of interest. The University now has exchanges with more than twenty foreign colleges and universities.

Area Studies

The Area Studies program is another possible international alternative. A unique combination of area and language training is offered in five programs: Asian, Latin American, Near Eastern, Soviet and East European, and Western European. It provides a broader focus than can any one discipline.

CCEBS

The Committee for the Collegiate Education of Black Students is located in the New Africa House. They work with ethnic minorities and low-income white students. Currently, there are approximately 450 students enrolled in the program.

CCEBS offers career, academic and personal counseling as well as free tutoring. They work closely with the Admissions office in recruiting minorities to the University. The program employs 9 full-time and 5 part-time persons, excluding tutors whom are mostly graduate students.

BCP

The Bilingual Collegiate Program grew out of CCEBS in mid-August 1974, without any assigned space, established budget, typewriter or secretary. Even under such adverse conditions, the program still had recruited 45 Hispanic students during the following fall semester. Today, 332 students are in the program.

Currently BCP has about 30 employees working to serve the bilingual community and the state as a whole. The program provides free tutorial services as well as personal and academic counseling.

BCP has submitted a proposal to establish the equivalent of a five-year program at the university. This program would serve those students with great potential, who have been lacking the necessary basic skills to survive a traditional four-year program.

Upward Bound

The Upward Bound program was established during the Johnson Administration in the mid-60s to use "education as a vehicle for upward social mobility." The program is federally funded and serves high-school students with the potential, but not the basic skills, to attend college.

Upward Bound has offices in Springfield, Holyoke, Pittsfield and Worcester where counselors seek out students who meet criteria.

Legal Studies

The Legal Studies program teaches law in a unique manner, due to its liberal arts framework. Emphasis is placed on an understanding of law's effect on society, rather than memorizing case studies.

Although a traditional pre-law major is not offered, almost 80 percent of last year's Legal Studies graduates are now attending law school or working in law-related jobs, according to Director Janet Rifkin.

Legal Studies majors are required to take an independant study or internship. Most internships are done in Boston or Washington, D.C. Currently, there are about 130 majors. The program may offer a minor in the near future. Some introductory courses are open to non-majors.

Inquiry Program

The Inquiry Program offers an alternative form of learning during a student's first two years at the University. The program is based on the concept that people should take responsibility for their own education. The program's flexibility allows graduation after two semesters, although from three to five is more typical.

The process involves selecting a faculty sponsor, developing a contract, attending five seminars, and compiling a portfolio. Students are expected to work hard, but the results can be extremely satisfying. According to Director Charles Adams, the attrition rate for the program is about 6 percent.

Upon graduation from IP, students have fulfilled core requirements and achieved a junior standing.

Internships

The Office of Internships has information related to over 800 agencies which are requesting interns. Students must have accumulated at least 45 graduation credits. The most frequent interns are Communication Studies, Journalism and Psychology majors.

To begin, a student must attend a small, group informational meeting with a counselor to start a portfolio, which contains a cover letter and resume. Afterward, an individual appointment with a counselor is made to determine the student's intended direction.

Students are expected to do their own searching, but the office will provide any needed information.

Photos by Doug Paulding

Special Programs

Specially speaking

Close to 20 different Special Programs allow students to take courses of study in non-traditional and different areas. Most of the programs are also structured much more loosely than are traditional programs. Above is the University Without Walls building. Above left, is Carol Cox, a worker in the office of the Committee for the Collegiate Education of Black Students.

The academic pulse of UMass

Faculty: Complaints, but UM okay

By ELLEN DAVIS

Most faculty members feel the University is doing a reasonably good or very effective job educating its students, according to a poll conducted by the Collegian. But that educational quality could be severely impacted by continued tight budgets from the state, the survey also showed.

For this reason, most faculty members characterized the educational future of UMass as "marginally worse," "substantially worse," or "worse enough to jeopardize the University's effectiveness as a major center of learning."

The survey was sent at random to 200 faculty members in all departments, and drew 70 responses.

Of the faculty members responding, 63 percent said that according to their experience in their department, the University was doing a "reasonably effective" job educating students. Twenty-six percent said the University was doing a "very effective" job. Seven percent said the University was doing an "adequate/average" job, and 4 percent said "fair."

When asked if this was better, worse, or the same as five years ago, 36 percent said better, 40 percent said the same, and 24 percent said worse.

Those who felt the University is doing a better job now than five years ago listed such reasons as better quality and more experienced faculty, an increase in motivated students, an improved self-image of the University, more comittment to good teaching and research, improved and expanded curriculum, and better student advising.

Those who felt the Univeristy is doing a worse job now listed such reasons as vacant faculty postions, overcrowded classes, lowered academic standards, the "Zoo Mass image", a weak administration, student apathy, and low morale.

Almost all faculty members responding said they faced some problems in doing their job. Among the most common were:

–Inadequate salaries. One faculty member said his salary now has about 30 percent less buying power than it did 5 years ago. Such low salaries, the respondants noted, meant many good collegues are being lost to institutions with better salaries.

–Heavy teaching loads. The loss of faculty members has left many positons vacant due to a hiring freeze, the respondents said. One facutly member estimated the number of vacant positions as 175. As a result, remaining faculty have to teach more students, the respondants said. One faculty member said his department has a teaching ratio of 30:1. (The state mandated level is 15:1). Such heavy loads reduce the amount of contact faculty can have with students, the respondents said. Several also noted that the reduction in faculty members led to a reduction in course offerings.

–Lack of teaching assistants. One faculty member also said the quality of graduate assistants was declining because the students are now holding down several jobs to support themselves.

–Lack of secretarial support staff. Many faculty members also cited a need for administrative assistants in their departments.

–Inadequate funds. Faculty members complained of not having enough money in their departments for such things as labs, transportation to field work, guest speakers, and duplicating. One said in his department, 90 percent of the budget was required for salaries. "Nothing is left," he said.

–Lack of administrative leadership. Many faculty members said the University administration is weak and ineffective. Among the reasons given were excessive bureaucracy and a lack of administrators who stay for long periods. One faculty

TURN TO PAGE 23

A Collegian Poll

'I will leave soon—I'm demoralized with too many students and insufficient salary.'

'To a large extent, the quality of this institution depends on what we think it is. UMass faculty and students spend too much time complaining.'

'There are great people here and great possibilities, and if the University can survive the present hard times without lasting damage, it may yet attain something of its potential. For all its problems, UMass remains a stimulating and attractive place to be and teach.'

'Now I sense a lack of adventure, experimentation...There is nothing invigorating around right now.'

'We have excellent faculty and fine students. Now we need the state government to wake up and support their largest state university.'

'The academic 'inferiority complex' that many students and faculty have must be confronted and changed. If this could be done, the overall educational, physical, and social environment would improve markedly. UMass is by far the best educational bargain (in-state) anywhere and students and faculty must recognize this fact.'

'How can anyone be expected to be effective over a period of time with the pinch of inflation and inadequate maintenance, support, and equipment?'

'Students are lost, as they have been for 20 years, here at UMass. Especially freshmen.'

Faculty

Students

On the library question, sentiment was clearly against the current setup. Answering a yes or no question, 58 percent said the setup was 'inadequate.' Surprisingly, respondents said the second most conducive group to studying on campus is the administration, followed by students themselves.

How the survey was done...

For the faculty survey, poll forms were distributed by campus mail to about 225 faculty members at the end of March. Responses were collected until April 15, and then tabulated. Seventy responses were received. For the student survey, forms were distributed to 250 students in the Hatch cafeteria in a two-day period in mid April. Virtually all forms were returned, and the results tabulated. The Collegian does not pretend these polls are entirely scientifically accurate.

Students: Library bad, profs good

By J. DWIGHT

Fifty-three percent of students surveyed in a recent poll said they thought UMass is "reasonably effective" in providing them with an education, while two-thirds questioned said continued tight budgets from the state will "severely" affect the quality of that education.

Those results and others follow from a recent poll of 250 students by the Collegian.

Respondents said professors were the "most conducive" group to studying and learning on campus.

A clear majority of students said the current library situation on campus—where services are split between Goodell and the main tower—is inadequate to meet their needs.

About 53 percent of those surveyed said UMass is "reasonably effective" in providing an education, while 12 percent said the University is "very good" in accomplishing the task. Some said the responsibility falls on the student rather than the University.

"A university does not educate students,"said one respondent. "Students learn or do not learn as they please, but UMass gives students plenty of opportunity to obtain a good education."

* * *

Those surveyed expected continued tight budgets from the state and the administration of Gov. Edward J. King to have varying effects on the University, but most said they would be "severe." King is following a pattern first established by former Gov. Michael

'A university does not educate students. Students learn or do not learn as they please, but UMass gives students plenty of opportunities to obtain a good education.'

S. Dukakis, who began recommending tight budgets for the University after the campus stopped growing in the early and mid-1970s.

Just over 30 percent of those surveyed said the cuts will have "somewhat" of an impact on education. . . .

On the library question, sentiment was clearly against the current setup. Answering a yes or no question, 58 percent said the setup was "inadequate." Surprisingly, respondents said the second most conducive group to studying on campus is the administration, followed by students themselves. Forty-five percent said the administration was "very" or "reasonably"conducive to learning. They indicated their peers were "adequately" or "poorly" conducive.

The poll comes at a time when UMass has been hard hit by adverse public opinion, as the University faces more budget cuts from the state, and the situation of physical repairs and maintenance to buildings on campus has grown very serious, according to President David C. Knapp.

A bright idea

Jim Ford has what might be called a 'bright' idea. He's a chemistry graduate student currently utilizing a laser to study solutions. The process involves directing light from a small laser into a solution. By observing how the light is scattered by and through the solution, Ford determines the composition of the solution, along with other characteristics. Shown above is the laser itself, with its narrow, tightly-focused beam in the middle. At left is Ford with some of his equipment. Below, he's shown adjusting part of the apparatus. Photos by Amira Rahman.

Photos by Nancy Nuble

Heavy weights

An annual activity of Engineering is building and launching concrete canoes in the campus pond. At left, final preparations are made recently before launching, above. Dean Russel C. Jones, at right, presides over the school. He says things look bright for engineers.

Engineering: Good times

'There is a big void' in the state

By RICHARD NAGLE

It's looking good for engineers these days.

With an increasing demand in industry for engineers and a drive to raise $5.5 million for new equipment and facilities, the School of Engineering is looking towards an apparently bright future.

The job market for the approximately 2200 undergraduates and 380 graduate engineering students is "outstanding" said School of Engineering Dean Russel C. Jones.

"I don't foresee any slackening (of industry demand for engineers) in an upcoming recession," he said.

Over the next three years, industries expect a doubling of the need for engineers, Jones said.

To respond to the market demand for engineers, the School of Engineering has doubled its number of graduates since last year. In 1979, the school had 270 graduates, and expects 508 graduates this year.

"There is a big void in the state," of engineers, said Associate Dean Joseph S. Marcus.

Because of the increasing number of engineering students Jones said he and companies that hire engineers are "anxious" concerning quality of students.

"We have to make sure that the state of the art (of equipment and facilities) is reflected in training the students."

Jones said much of the equipment used by students is, in some cases, over 10 years old. He said the state provides new equipment only when a new building or facility is constructed. The newest engineering building, Engineering East, was built in 1965.

Because the state provides only 10 percent of the school's money for new equipment, the state and university administrations, in coordination with the School of Engineering, approached high technology companies in January for funding.

It was out of "enlightened self interest" that various state computer, chemical mechanical, and consulting engineering firms were "extremely receptive" to providing about $5.5 million to bring the school's equipment and facilities "up to speed," Jones said.

This capital campaign is the first time the University has sought to raise money from private industry.

Jones said the school could reach its $5.5 million goal by January next year. "We could receive more money if things fall right," he added.

Ten percent of that goal has already been raised from Digital Equipment Corporation and from UMass alumnus Andrew C. Knowles, vice president of DEC's technical group, Jones said.

Along with up-to-date equipment for students and faculty, the organizers of the drive also hope to establish a development office to conduct similar industry-university drives for other university departments, Jones said.

The School of Engineering's beginnings go back to the founding of Massachusetts' Agricultural College in 1863.

Primarily agricultural engineering courses were offered until a separate department was established, along with civil engineering and mathematics departments, in 1914.

Agricultural and civil engineering were combined to form a department of general engineering in 1936. Ten years later, the two fields were again separated.

At the end of World War II, large numbers of veterans seeking to use G.I. Bill educational benefits put pressure on the state for a full-scale engineering school. The facilities at then-Massachusetts State College were inadequate for the number of veterans who wanted an engineering degree, so a branch campus was operated at Ft. Devens in Ayer from 1946 to 1949.

The School of Engineering was founded in 1947 as part of legislation which changed Massachusetts State College to the University of Massachusetts.

From 1960 to 1970, the school's five engineering programs each expanded. In 1966, research grants to the school were less than $100,000. In 1977, they totalled more than $2 million.

The school now offers B.S., M.S., and Ph.D. degrees in mechanical, electrical and computer, chemical, civil, and industrial operations research engineering.

In addition, the school offers graduate degrees in manufacturing, polymer, alternative energy and environmental engineering.

The school's reputation "depends on the field," said Jones. He said the reputation is gauged on what companies hire the school's graduates, Jones said, it is "quite good." He said, as an example, that General Electric hired 10 percent of last year's class of 270. "We have yet to be discovered" by other industries and companies, he said.

Among scholars, the computer, alternative energy and environmental engineering departments are regarded as the best in the Northeast, and in the 10 best in the country, Jones said. He added the manufacturing and polymer engineering departments are "very good."

Jones said the school's philosophy is based on the land-grant tradition of the University. When the agricultural school was founded, it provided knowledge and resources to the state's farmers. Similarly today, the school provides state technological industry with engineers and research by students and faculty, Jones said.

The capital campaign is based on the land-grant tradition also, he said.

Both Jones and Associate Dean Marcus said the school's philosophy is to give students a broad-based engineering education. "We build the framework or skeleton and industry fleshes it out," Jones said.

He said social science and humanity courses now required of engineering students are a recent development, partly as a response to a perception that engineers realize the social impact of their work.

The school also provides women and minority engineering programs. Marcus said there is a trend where fewer minority students register for the minority program because they are aware of the difficulty of engineering studies.

They are more prepared for the degree program than in the past, he said.

There are about 300 women in the school, Marcus said, in addition to the first woman faculty member in the mechanical engineering department.

The women, Marcus said, are "indistinguishable" from the men in academic performance.

Because of increasing class sizes, the school has to hire more faculty. "It has not been easy," Jones said. He cited "stiff" competition from other schools and private industry in securing qualified people. He said a new faculty member, with a graduate degree and several years experience, receives about the same salary as a graduate with a B.S. degree and no experience.

Engineering

To keep student quality up, the school has developed a video instruction program within the Office of Extended Engineering Education. Courses are taped and sent out to 15 different receipients in industry, Jones said.

With the tapes, engineers already on the job can work towards a graduate degree. A similar program involves instructors "packing" their research findings and presenting them to industry.

Some taped courses are sent to various community and state colleges where students can prepare for the engineering program here, Jones said.

Undergraduate engineering students can also gain practical experience working for private industry under the Engineering Service to Industry and Community program. Under this program, students have worked with such companies as Millers Falls, Olin Ski, and Spaulding Corp., working on various problems and programs in place of some course work, Marcus said.

Jones said the high demand for engineers is due to "the energy pull," or the need to research alternative energy sources, and also because of what he called "the emergence of the computer age."

The scope of the demand for engineers is shown by Digital Equipment Corporation. They hire nearly 250 new engineers a week.

The Massachusetts High Technology

TURN TO PAGE 23

Want to work a sawmill? A farm?

That, plus more, can be done in school

By STEVE SEMPLE

The College of Food and Natural Resources is probably the most diversified area of the University, with programs in agricultural study, animal study, home economics, wildlife study and hotel, restaurant and travel administration.

About 21 percent of all major courses of study at the University are within the college, according to Acting Dean James B. Kring. Kring said the college is the sixth or seventh largest agricultural school in the nation.

The main difference between the college and others at UMass is that students receive more practical experience. Kring said he considers it more of a "professional school" where students can get hands-on training for a particular job.

In the Department of Forestry and Wildlife Management, for example, students interested in forestry are required to take a block of courses that brings them to University-owned forest, 2000 acres in all, where they manage the land. The university owns a variety of heavy equipment, such as bulldozers, tractors, trucks and other machinery, that is used to harvest and maintain the forests.

Wildlife biology majors utilize the Quabbin Resevoir preserve near Belchertown to get practical experience in observing, tagging and tracking wildlife. Fisheries biology majors do much the same with fish at nearby lakes and rivers. A 15-year project to bring salmon back into the Connecticut River has been somewhat successful, department head Donald R. Progulske said.

The college is divided into four main areas. The instruction division includes classroom work at graduate and undergraduate levels, as well as the two-year Stockbridge program. The college also has a control division that works with controlling products and processes involved in agriculture and food production. The West Experimental Station, for example, checks composition of fertilizers for the state to assure conformity to guidelines.

Two experimental stations in the college are located far from campus. One, the Suburban Experiment Station in Waltham, does research with plants and animals and the effects being near an urban environment has on them. Another, the Cranberry Experiment Station in Wareham, is working on a way to develop cranberry plants into feed for cattle, among other projects.

The college uses a cooperative extension program that works with county, state and federal governments to do research and fieldwork on agricultural and food-related problems. County agents, in conference with project supervisors from the University, decide what problems need work or research. Administrators then assign research teams to handle the projects, involving lab work, field work or other research.

• • •

The Stockbridge School of Agriculture, the only two-year program in the University, was founded in 1918 to "help feed the country" during World War I, according to John W. Denison, assistant dean and director of the school.

Denison said the school employs a "short, technical approach to agriculture." Basically, he said, Stockbridge trains people to go out and to work.

The Department of Entomology works to study insects and their importance in man's life. The department is involved in teaching, research and extension work, giving the student entomologist different education opportunities. Research projects focus on insects as destroyers of crops and the natural environment, and as carriers of disease.

Current research includes studying control of gypsy moths in Massachusetts, and the greenhead fly on the North Shore and Cape Cod. The department is also researching the control of black flies and mosquitos and is conducting a program of insect and pest management in the vegetable and apple industries.

These projects are state and federally funded, as well as by grants from other institutions. Two out of eight annual Competitive Grants given by the United States Dept. of Agriculture were awarded to UMass this year.

The Department of Food Engineering deals with processes for manufacturing food and developing new products. It was the first program of its type in the nation and works closely with graduate students from Third World countries, training them to start their own educational programs.

A typical project for the department would be designing new methods for extracting juice from apples, in hopes of increasing yield.

Food and Natural Resources

The Environmental Design Department concerns itself with landscape planning and architecture. Students learn how to design landscapes, including living areas, roads, buildings and other related structures.

The Environmental Sciences Program stresses the need for maintaining a viable life support system on the planet. Most of the work in the department centers on pollution control. In fact, one major project underway for about three years, has resulted in a fast and accurate method to detect pollution using a chemical found only in fecal material as an indicator.

The project discoveries will be included in a NATO publication devoted to drinking water safety that will be distributed worldwide to combat diseases caused by drinking bad water.

The Department of Hotel, Restaurant and Travel Administration, ranked among the top three in the nation according to Department Head Stevenson W. Fletcher, prepares students for management positions in food services, lodging and travel.

The department has about 550 student majors this year, and is forced to maintain that quota, although student interest and industry demand are at all-time high levels. Fletcher said 35 national corporations came to UMass to recruit this year.

Facilities for the department include two food preparation labs on campus, but most of the hands-on training comes from work at the Campus Center Hotel and other area establishments. Limited internship programs are also offered.

Additionally, the department sponsors food service and energy seminars. Overseas seminars, in conjunction with the American Hotel and Motel Association in Thailand, Guam and Hong Kong, are also a function of the department.

• • •

Animal science majors can choose from three options of concentrated study. A science option is designed for students interested in a pre-veterinary curriculum. An industries option trains people to become animal production managers and an equine studies option prepares students for careers in the horse industry.

A student can get experience in every facet of milk production and farm management, at the UMass dairy farm in South Deerfield. Tillson Farm is home for UMass horses and chickens.

The Equine Studies program is independently trying to raise $250,000 to build an equine center. The center will have an 80' x 200' indoor riding arena, lecture halls and will be capable of housing 40 animals.

• • •

The Department of Food and Resource Economics trains students to apply analytical tools of economics in the areas of natural resources, agriculture and food marketing.

Food science majors are concerned with scientific theories involved in processing, manufacturing, preserving and storing food. The Department of Food Engineering deals with methods to utilize the theories of food science.

• • •

Four programs of study in the Department of Home Economics offer students a variety of educational opportunities. In fashion marketing, they are prepared for careers in retail merchandising, store management and sales promotion. Consumer economics is designed for those who wish to work both with industry and consumers. The community services program prepares students for work in human services while the home economics education program combines all the above with an emphasis on teaching skills.

International agricultural studies is a specialized department dealing with problems of a growing population and the means to feed it. Overseas experience in an agricultural development program is con-

TURN TO PAGE 23

Photo by Nancy Nuble

Photos by Steve Semple

One of the most diverse

Food and Natural Resources offers a wide variety of hands-on experience, and some say it's the most diverse school in the University. Dean James Kring, left, is head of the school. Above, Equine studies instructor Sally Renear and "Playmate" demonstrate "lunging" to Martha Jane Carr at a Tillson Farm riding area. Below, a scene at the UMass sawmill.

'With a business sense'

SBA deluged by requests for courses

'In terms of skills, there is no school in the northeast which can match our MBA program.'
—Arthur Elkins

Seventy-five percent of undergraduates and MBAs are graduated already holding jobs, estimates Jack Wolf.

By J. DWIGHT

The School of Business Administration is caught between a rock and a hard place.

The rock is the University and the state legislature, and the hard place is the increasingly heavy demand for their courses and services. Despite the problem, SBA offers a lot.

"Our biggest problem is that we don't have the staff to meet demand," said Associate Dean and Prof. Jack S. Wolf. "Last year we had to turn away about 2000 course registrations because of overloads." Others echo that fact.

"Last fall, we had to scratch 350 students from our first level accounting courses," said accounting department Chairman Richard Simpson, "and 500 students from courses this spring."

Says Stanely Young, chairman of the management department: "The University must come to grips with a shift in student preferences to a more career oriented attitude."

Academic deans in SBA have been informing the provost and administration of the increasing demand for some time. The deans realize higher budgets and more money are unlikely at this time, yet they haven't actively been courting funds from private sources.

The school is accredited with the American Association of Collegiate Schools of Business, and offers doctorate, master, and undergraduate programs. It also offers courses through the University's Divison of Continuing Education. Next fall, SBA is scheduled to open a masters program with Holyoke Community College. To update middle and upper executives, the school is planning to offer more short, non-credit courses through Continuing Education.

The Campus Center for Economic Development is another service SBA offers. It give technical assistance to small- and medium-sized businesses and communities in the Commonwealth. Modest grants are given for research into areas including marketing space available in an industrial park, planning the rehabilitation of a downtown area, and others.

* * *

The goal of the school is to give the student a "well rounded liberal education, with a business sense," says Associate Dean Arthur Elkins, "We attempt to get this into programs on all levels."

The doctorate program takes from three to six years to complete. It requires the student to pass 'core' exams in statistics, economics, and behavioural science in an initial portion. In a second part, the student completes 30 credits in both major and minor course work. To pass the second part, the student must pass the "Comprehensive": A written and oral test on the student's major conducted by a tribunal. Last is a dissertation proposal and the dissertation itself.

"In terms of skills, there is no school in the northeast which can match our MBA program" said Elkins. "To my knowledge, we require things even Harvard doesn't, like calculus, English, and psychology." A student takes five courses per semester and must maintain a 3.0 cummulative average to graduate in two years.

On the undergraduate level, the school strives for the same ideal. Requirements for entering the school however, have often been termed elitist. But undergraduate Dean Nelson E. Pion responds in this way: "We are accredited with AACSB and they require that we meet certain standards: A proficiency in calculus , English,and basic business skills — accounting and statistics — and using basic computers.

"We are teaching students something with relatively limited life," explained Pion, "so we only require that forty percent of the courses be taken in the business. The student decides whether to diversify or specify. We recommend that students take sixty percent of the courses outside the School of Business."

The school requires students to broaden his or her education by taking three humanities courses, one social science course, and four non-business electives. All of those are in additon to requirements in calculus, economics, rhetoric, accounting and statistics. During their junior year, students must choose a major from one of the four departments — general business and finance, management, marketing, or accounting — and must meet certain requirements for graduation within the department.

SBA also offers courses where students can get practical experience during the spring semester. Student groups are involved in different areas. One is to develop a sales plan for a new packaging idea in a deli department at a local food store. Forecasting demand for sporting equipment, specifically golf balls, for Spaulding Corporation is the task of another group. A local sausage producer is getting help from some students to develop a booth for a Chicago trade show. And motivating older sales people is the study of another group.

How do students feel about SBA? One student put it this way: "Like any college there are good, bad, and indifferent professors, but there is one thing that separates these. They are teaching something which is pratical and applicable, not practically worthless. They are trying to educate you to deal with this confusing world. They are tough, but they are good."

* * *

Success, after all, is what the school is after. They appear to be fairly good at it. Seventy-five percent of undergraduates and MBAs are graduated already holding jobs, estimates Dean Wolf, and as are 100 percent of the Phds. Salaries are reported to run between $13-$17,000 for undergraduates, and between $17-25,000 for the MBAs. Doctoral graduates are reported to have an average starting salary of $25,000.

So despite its problems, the school does well. It remains to be seen, however, if it can do better, and if more funds can get a "well-rounded liberal education with a business sense."

Business Administration

Photos by Doug Paulding

THE SCHOOL OF BUSINESS ADMINISTRATION: Overenrollments are turning students away.

Division has varied offerings

Humanities and Fine Arts

Creativity

Humanities and Fine Arts is one of the largest divisions of the University. Above, a pair of dance slippers with an unlikely companion. At right, Bob Provost works on a mask. Below, the sparks fly as a student mills metal for use in a sculpture.

Languages

The language departments on campus have a vast array of courses and programs that go far beyond standard language programs and into the culture, literature, civilization, and even business aspects of other countries. Some of the language programs on campus are unlike those at any other state institutions in the United States.

The German language and literature department encompasses Dutch, Danish, and Swedish in addition to German. Their courses, some in English, include language, civilization, business, philosophy, and politics of Germany. The German studies courses in English focus on Germany in German civilization. Many of the students who take these courses are non-majors.

An exciting program in the German department is the minor in Business German. It is a six semester program that business, economics, and hotel and restaurant management majors find good preparation for international business. One of the few such programs in the country, the Business German minor starts from the elementary level.

The department has an annual exchange program with the University of Freiburg in Germany and the University of Linkoping in Sweden. UMass hosts guest lecturers and performers on such topics as literature and the arts, sent by the German and Scandinavian governments.

UMass has had a small but active Slavic Language and Literature department for six-and-a-half professors. The department offers Russian, Polish, Czechoslovakian, Hungarian, and Slovak languages. Many non-majors take literature courses in the Slavic department, offered mostly in English.

Should the Czechoslavakian government approve, Prof. Alzbeta Moravicokova will remain at UMass through December 1980. Moravicokova came to UMass from Comenius University in Bratislave, Czechoslovakia as a Fullbright Lecturer. She is teaching classes in Slovak language and culture.

The large Spanish and Portuguese department at UMass includes twenty-two professors and a visiting lecturer, Maria de Fatima Sequeira, from Portugal.

The department offers majors and minors in Portuguese and Spanish. Undergraduate majors in Spanish take linguistics, literature, and culture. A graduate program in Spanish bi-lingual culture and linguistics is also offered. The department also sponsors a four-week summer in Spain program.

The French and Italian departments appeal to majors and non-majors with their diverse variety of courses and programs.

In French the first major is in literature, but a new major is being developed in civilization. Some subjects of past civilization courses have been slang, art and society, and studies of countries that speak French, including Africa, the Carribean, and Quebec.

Like the German department, the French department has conducted a business French program for three years. This language course attracts business and hotel and restaurant majors from other departments who are interested in international business.

The French department has the only Interpreters Program at a public institution. Started in 1975, the program is a vocational approach to language that trains students for jobs in translating and interpreting. Interpreters Program graduates receive a certification in General Language Interpretation.

The Italian division of the department is smaller but offers courses that go beyond the language, and explore Italian art, literature, and civilization.

Journalism

Journalistic Studies is a fast-growing department of the Humanities and Fine Arts division of the University. With 172 interdepartmental majors, the department offers two options. A Journalistic Studies student may choose an interdepartmental major, combining journalism with another departmentally-approved course of study by taking 24 credit hours of journalism and 15 credit hours in the other field. Or, a student may combine 15 credit hours of journalism with an English major, providing a more literary background.

The department offers traditional basics of newswriting and technical aspects of the trade — such as copyediting, proofreading and magazine/article writing. In addition, a number of special topic courses, such as "Muckrackers," "New Journalism" and ethics studies, offer examination of contemporary issues and trends.

Journalistic Studies is geared more toward people with traditional newspaper career aspirations, but is a helpful background for those interested in advertising, electronic media, and public relations. Several faculty members have professional experience and significant academic backgrounds. Acting Department Chairman Howard Ziff is a former reporter for the Chicago Daily News; Frank Faulkner, a former United Press International correspondent, currently is a news reporter at the Springfield Daily News; department Chairman Lawrence Pinkham, formerly with the Wall Street Journal, is currently on leave organizing a journalism school in China; James Boylan is a former editor and founder of the Columbia Journalism Review and counsel to the House on the Nixon impeachment hearings; Sara Grimes is a former reporter for the Philadelphia Bulletin; Norman Sims is a former reporter for UPI; Dario Politella has extensive background in advertising and public relations; and Ralph Whitehead is a former political reporter in Chicago radio and television, and now on leave and working as a TV anchorman in Green Bay, Wisconsin.

In addition to these academic studies, the department offers internships in conjunction with the University's Office of Internships, linking students with professional experience in newspapers, electronic media outlets, and public relations positions with private and government organizations.

English

The faculty of the English department is made up of experienced teachers-scholars. They have won Fulbright professorships, Danforth Feliowships, National Endowment grants, and recently, five have been Guggenheim Fellows. They are published novelists and poets, well-known scholars and editors, and authors of books and articles. Department members also edit three professional journals of national distinction: The Massachusetts Review, Early American Literature, and English Literary Renaissance.

The department requires that ten courses be taken by majors, including one course in Shakespeare, a year's study of British writers, and a year's study in American literature. The department is particularly strong in writing, American literature, British literature, and Women and literature.

Special programs include the Departmental Honors Programs, the English Education Program, and the highly successful UMass Summer Seminar at Trinity College in Oxford, England.

Besides undergraduate programs, the department offers graduate study at the masters and doctoral levels.

History

The History department is a faculty with diverse and highly-specialized academic interests. With 42 faculty members, the department offers courses ranging from introductory level survey histories to specialized seminars. The 76 courses span the globe in information and professors, and include such geographic areas as Europe, America, Latin America, Asia and the Near East.

A few members of the faculty have recently published articles, including "Nurses and Doctors in Conflict: Piety and Medicine in the Paris Hotel-Dieu on the Eve of the French Revolution" by Louis S. Greenbaum. The husband-wife team of Franklin and Mary Wickwire have recently published their book Cornwallis, The Imperial Years, and in May, the UMass community will welcome Robert A. Potash's The Army and Politics in Argentina, 1945-1962 Peron to Frondizi.

Afro-Am

The W.E.B. Du Bois Department of Afro-American Sudies is one of the largest such departments in the country, and offers an undergraduate major for students studying the history and culture of black people in Africa and the new world. The major is interdisciplinary with courses in African and Afro-American history, art, political science and literature.

Students majoring in the department must complete introductory courses and specific

TURN TO PAGE 23

Middle member of CAS family

By MARCIA MURPHY

Of the three divisions of the College of Arts and Sciences, Natural Sciences and Math falls in between Humanities and Fine Arts, the largest, and Social Sciences, the smallest, in size.

There are 265 faculty members, 210-220 teaching assistants, and 1400-1500 student majors yearly in 10 departments: biochemistry, botany, chemistry, computer and information science, geology and geography, mathematics and statistics, microbiology, physics and astronomy, polymer science (a combination of physics and chemistry), engineering, and zoology.

Computer and information science and polymer science and engineering currently offer only graduate degree programs, but an undergraduate major in the latter is currently under consideration.

The largest number of majors are in zoology, with over 300, a majority of which are pre-med students. The smallest number is in polymer science and engineering.

"Back then (1967), the University was only half its present size," said Dean Fred Byron. "Polymer science and engineering was just a program and biochemistry hadn't even been invented yet.

"The University as a university really only began to grow in a significant way back in the 1960's — at both the undergraduate and graduate levels," he said.

The division of Natural Sciences and Math is a "very strong college and a very high quality unit," according to Byron.

Faculty research programs in this program are supported by about $5,500,000 annually from federal sources.

"The whole future depends on the question of resources," said Byron, "In terms of research funding, an important part of any university change in the future emphasizes the need to look for other research funding besides the federal government. We must start thinking of sources of industrial funding."

In the Natural Sciences and Math program, "it is natural to think of sources other than the federal government," according to Byron.

In polymer science and engineering, special research programs are being discussed between the federal government and industry and "many industries are as interested in basic research as the federal government is," he said.

Asked about the changes that will occur in the program because of shifts in the college age population, Byron stressed the needs of the "Commonwealth and society" in relation to college students.

"How well we can adapt our own program in the Natural Sciences and Math to the needs of young people is important," Byron said. "There will be a more applied tendency in the upcoming years. There will be changes — no doubt about it."

For example, in the math department emphasis is leaning toward applied math and "we'd like to change the balance and do some cooperative things with the Five College community with applied math," according to Byron.

"We want to try to tailor demand to the 1980s," Byron said.

• • •

The department recently accepted computer science and math as an undergraduate major and faculty members have been added in anticipation of demand in this area.

Asked about changes affecting UMass as a whole, Byron emphasized that it is important for UMass to deal with its image problem.

"A lot depends on how we can combat our image problem because of building problems, violence that gets publicity, etcetera," he said. "The effect of change on the institution as a whole and on every college in the institution is difficult to predict. Some universities will address problems differently than others," said Byron. He said that "people who survive reasonably well in the next decade must be fast on their feet."

• • •

A student has considerable freedom in choosing a major. However, a few of the major programs of study require sequences of courses which extend over seven or eight semesters. Students who do not take the right courses in their freshman year may have to use a summer session or extra semesters to accomodate these sequences if the ultimate major is astronomy, biochemistry, chemistry, mathematics, or physics.

Throughout the division, a number of different and special programs are available. Description of the Natural Sciences and Math fills over 35 pages in the course selection guide.

The chemistry department offers a unique exchange arrangement with the School of Chemical Sciences at the University of East Anglia in Norwich, England. The exchange allows students to obtain a quality chemistry major program, together with advantages of a year in England, without extending the normal four-year program.

Computer and information science has advantages for a modern society. An increasing number of students, regardless of major, find it useful to have the ability to work with modern computing equipment. Courses to fill this need are available in the department.

Photo by Amira Rahman

Natural Sciences and Math

In class

No matter what the discipline, most time is spent in the classroom. In Natural Sciences and Math, the subject can range from parabolas to stars. Below are scenes from a mathematics class in the Graduate Research Center. At left is a more intimate classroom setting, using a high contrast production technique.

Photo by Doug Paulding

Photo by Doug Paulding

Photos by Amira Rahman

On camera and collecting

One of the facilities provided by Social and Behavioral Sciences is the communication studies production center in South College. Above, l-r, David Lecuyer, Jeff Konowitch, Sarah Forbes, and Janet Halpin team up to run the television studio control room equipment of lights and sound. Above left, Janet Halpin, operating camera, zeros in on Sarah Forbes during a taping in the studio. Another department of the division is anthropology. At left, Tom Ulrich stands in front of a collection of about 97,000 cultural items from among over 400,000 items found during a dig project at the Indian Crossing site in the Connecticut River Valley in Chicopee.

Labs, 'pencils and paper'

Research and theories in division

By DAVE LaCHANCE

The division of Social and Behavioral Sciences is the branch of the College of Arts and Sciences containing one of the University's largest departments, psychology; three recently for re-organized departments, sociology, anthropology and communication studies; and two of the more traditional and conventional departments, political science and economics.

Anthropology, communication studies, psychology and sociology tend to be the more research-oriented fields, maintaining laboratories and conducting studies, while economics and political science are more "paper and pencil" oriented areas, which more emphasize theories.

Anthropology

The Department of Anthropology, according to Chairman H. Martin Wobst, is the most exciting such department in New England and on the East coast. What accounts for the excitement?

"As a department, we have a team spirit," Wobst said, "that has kept people here." Students and faculty often work together on research topics.

The department is one of the younger ones at UMass, and became independent of the sociology department in 1969. Since that time, it has become the largest anthropology department of any New England school, with 18 faculty members, 113 undergraduate majors, and 87 graduate students.

The department's facilities have grown to include a darkroom and photo studio, a drafting room, and six laboratories.

The department also owns a large collection of fossil casts, a teaching collection of anthropological materials, and a fairly complete map collection.

Anthropology, in general, is the study of cultures. It has diverse subdisciplines, including linguistics, social and cultural, biological anthropology, and archeology.

The faculty do much research, including studies of the Connecticut River Valley and human population ecology in the Pioneer Valley.

Many studies are related to modern problems, such as environmental impact studies and studies of adaptation by societies to new energy sources. Laws require state and federal agencies must conduct an archaeological study on any land they intend to build on, and the department is heavily involved in these areas.

The department's faculty include the current editor of the national anthropology newspaper reaching the nation's 10,000 anthropolgists, the editor of an archaeological journal and the editor of the memoirs of the American Anthropological Association.

The department distinguishes itself in the area of graduate students; five have Fullbright Fellowships, two have National Science Foundation fellowships, and two have Danforth Fellowships out of 40 awarded nationwide per year. The department also claims the highest cumulative number of recipients of UMass fellowships of any University department, and has one of the best placement records of any anthropology department nationwide.

Comm. Studies

In the past five years, the Department of Communication Studies has doubled its undergraduate major enrollment and become "one of the relatively few substantial departments in New England," according to director of undergraduate studies Director Jay Savereid.

The department emerged in its current form during the mid-1970s when the divisions of theatre and communication disorders left and became attached to other departments. The department now contains two major divisions, mass communication and film, and interpersonal communication and rhetoric. A third division of communication education bridges the two main divisions.

The department includes 20 faculty members, 590 undergraduate majors, and 61 graduate students. It has limited laboratory facilities in Machmer Hall, and a film facility and television studio in South College.

Much of the faculty comes from southern, western and midwestern universities, where communication studies departments are strong, according to Savereid.

With its increasing enrollment, the department has been forced to turn to larger classes and machine corrected exams, although small classes and seminars for advanced students have been protected.

Saveried warns prospective majors that the department is quite crowded and that the department concentrates on "social aspects" of communication and is not strong in training and production, the "vocational" aspects. The deparmtment has little budget to bring in visiting professors, like its sister departments in social and behavioral sciences. It is, however, strong on internships.

Economics

The main characteristic of the Department of Economics is its diversity. Its staff offers a wide range of varying opinions and viewpoints, covering comparative economic systems, econometrics, Marxian economics, history of economic thought, industrial organization and regulation, international economics, labor economics, monetary theory and policy, political economy, public finance, and economic history, development and theory (micro- and macro-economics).

The department has 475 undergraduate majors, 87 graduate students and a faculty of 27.

The department has experienced tremendous growth in its undergraduate enrollment, up 225 percent since 1973. Staff, however, has increased by only two members, or 8 percent in the same time.

The staff comes from 14 schools across the nation, including several from Harvard, the University of California at Berkeley, and MIT. Many of faculty members have national reputations, according to the department Chairman Donald Katzner.

Many of the faculty members are active in research and collaborate with members other departments, chief among them the political science department.

Political Science

The main strength of the Department of Political Science is the ability of its faculty members to respond to changes in student demand, which has allowed the department to maintain a relatively stable number of majors over the past ten years, according to Chairman Glen Gordon.

The department has 32 faculty members, some 500 undergraduate majors, and 112 graduate students enrolled.

Gordon describes the department as "fairly typical" of political science departments nationwide, perhaps a bit stronger in the fields of political theory and constitutional law than most. It focuses on theoretical, rather than statistical, approaches.

Social and Behavioral Sciences

The department participates in many interdepartmental courses and studies, such as Latin-American, Western European and Slavic studies.

Gordon cites a growing interest in public administration, energy, and environmental studies.

The department is basicall "paper and pencil," with over 90 percent of its costs in salaries. With current limited budgets, new professors cannot be added to the payroll, so new ideas have to come into the department through the existing faculty, or from visiting professors.

Many students participate in internships, with many going to Washington as assistants to administrators and elected officials.

"We shouldn't pretend we're in the business of training people," Gordon warns. "We don't train political scientists or politicians...political science is a member of the liberal arts, not a "professional" major.

Psychology

The Department of Psychology is the largest of the social and behavioral sciences, with almost 700 undergraduate majors, 150 graduate students, and 55 faculty members. The department serves over 5000 students in its various courses every semester, including

TURN TO PAGE 23

Teaching students to help others

Three divisions train students in health fields

By DEBBIE WALLACE

The School of Health Sciences is made up of three divisions: The Division of Nursing, the Division of Public Health, and the Department of Communication Disorders.

All three programs offer students a well-planned program and easy access to equipment, faculty, and learning materials. Undergraduate deans are more than eager to aid students or direct them to faculty members who teach in their area of specialty or concentration.

• • •

The Division of Nursing offers a wide range of pratical experience in numerous hospitals, nursing homes, day care centers, and medical centers. Due to an over-enrollment crisis in 1975-76, the nursing programs offers only limited admissions today. About 200 transfer and other students applied for September 1980, and about 55 per year are accepted into the program.

UMass nursing students have a wide range of academic backgrounds. High school graduates, second degree students with a bachelors or masters degree, students who want to change their career goals, registered nursing students who graduated from a hospital nursing program, and students with an associate degree all make up the student population.

Second degree students must plan on a three-year program because of the structured sequence of clinical courses, according to acting Nursing Director Ruth Smith. All students must take at least 4 credits in residence.

UMass nursing students become involved in a wide range of community and campus projects such as teaching dormitory classes, and working with handicapped services, according to Smith.

The UMass program is different from other nursing programs because it has a strong emphasis on family and community. Students are also trained in ambulatory, acute, and long-term care. About 10 percent of the UMass nursing students are men, according to Smith, which is "a little higher than the national norm," Smith said.

The Amherst campus is the only division of the three-campus UMass system with a nursing program. The Medical School in Worcester offers clinical experience to nursing students at the University Hopsital, but no nursing program is established there.

A learning laboratory located in Morrill is set up for nursing students to practice real-life hospital techniques on dummies. During their sophmore year, students are tested on various skills such as injections, tube feeding and catherization, and must prove their proficiency in the skill before they can use it in a hopsital or clinical setting.

The lab also has audio visual equipment, films and tapes on nursing issues, and extra resource materials and books used for papers and course work. Upper division students gather and talk with other nursing majors and use the resource materials.

The program lists its four purposes the undergraduate curriculum as being: To prepare generalists in the discipline of nursing; to prepare graduates who are committed to continued professional development; to contribute to the nursing profession and society; and to provide the foundation for graduate study.

• • •

The Public Health curriculum is designed to prepare students for health career opportunities or further studies in environmental health, health education, and health laboratory science. There are two concentrations with 50 students in community public health and 50 in the environmental health. Freshman can apply, and places are left open for transfer students from other schools and change of majors within UMass.

The environmental health program prepares students for sanitary work on boards of health, for entry level jobs in industrial hygiene, as well as for graduate school. Course work is heavily oriented toward laboratory work, chemistry, physics, math and zoology. Course work includes air pollution control, institutional sanitation, water quality and waste disposal. "There are a whole host of opportunities available in specialty areas," according to acting Director Paul Gage.

The Community Public Health concentration is aimed at giving the student a basic science background plus more courses in social and behavioral sciences, fundamental public health courses, community development and public health administration. Job opportunities are less specific than in the environmental public health concentration. A third or more go onto graduate school in some area related to public health.

The reason for a limited enrollment, according to Gage, is the large number of students who have applied to the program since 1975. Dr. Gage said instruction cannot be adequate if the ratio of students to faculty is too high.

There are five graduate public health areas students major in: Biostatics, community health education, environmental health, epidemilogy, and health administration.

Gage said there are not many other universitites with undergraduate public health programs in the country.

All applicants to the program must be interviewed before being accepted.

• • •

The Department of Communication Disorders has a very tight student and advisor relationship. According to Director Jay Melrose, "everyone knows who their advisor is and students drop in for a wide range of concerns." Melrose said he keeps an open-door policy to "encourage a close contact with students."

The curriculum leading to a Bachelor's degree in communications disorders is designed to provide the students with a broad introductory background to the normal processes of speech, hearing, language and related functions, as well as the basic understanding of cummunicative pathologies and a familiarization with various approaches to assessment and treatment.

In addition to required courses, the department has clinical facilities well-equipped to allow video-tape or direct observation by students, and clinical diagnoisis and treatment of communicative pathologies. Undergraduate students cannot have direct responsibility in the clinic but are able to observe and aid graduate students, Melrose said.

Each year about 50 students are admitted. The Admissions Office assigns 25 of the most qualified applicants and the remainder of the vacancies are left open for transfer students, change of majors and undeclared majors. Those who are not chosen by admissions can arrange an interview with Melrose, While there are 50 freshman admitted to the department , there are no freshman courses. Freshman are advised on good cores courses to serve as a base for the rest of their program.

The progrm was begun in 1945. A masters and Phd. program is offered for

TURN TO PAGE 23

Health Science

Photos by Amira Rahman

Helping

The three divisions of Health Sciences perform different functions. Above, Sherri Lubowitz, an undergraduate in communications disorders, works in a laboratory in Arnold House. At left, communication disorders Chairman Jay Melrose examines results from sound measuring equipment. Below, sophomore Peggy Carroll practices the "kiss of life" on a dummy.

A lot more than just for jocks, school has uncommon programs

By JANE WOLFSON

The School of Physical Education is more than just a haven for stereotyped dumb jocks.

Within the four departments in the school, athletics, excercise science, profesional preparation in physical education, and sports studies, there is a strong emphasis placed not only on sport, but on science and business as well.

Athletics, also known as General Physical Education, feels its goal is to provide activities for any student who wants them, and to meet the needs of every student on campus, according to Athletic Director Frank McInerny.

GPE offers athletics at many levels. Recreation and free play (doing whatever you want, when you want) begin the program, followed by one credit instructional courses, ranging from frisbee to lacrosse. Next comes an extensive intramural program offering practically every sport to both men and women on different levels of competition. The fourth and final phase of GPE is the Athletic Department and the 28 varsity sports offered for men and women.

"We think the program is structured to meet the students' needs," McInerny said. "It is extremely developed and the students themselves seem pleased with it."

The objective, said the school's Dean David Bischoff, is "to make the program more imaginitive.

"We have a broadly based intramural program as well as one of most extensive ranges of athletic teams. I think it creates a nice balance between academics and recreation, a place where people come and they're happy to be here," Bischoff explained.

• • •

"Our objective is to prepare students with a strong academic background for the multi-dimensional aspect of excercise science," said department head Dr. Frank Katch.

The Department of Exercise Science deals in six different areas of study, physiology, biomechanics, human anatomy, biochemistry, motor integration and biofeedback, with a professor in each in their own area of specialty.

"It's a very demanding program, a model program for excellence in training of undergradutes," Katch said.

He encourages students with a strong background in science as well as students with varied backgrounds outside of sport to join the program.

"Exercise science is separate from the school of Phys. Ed. We don't train them to go into public schools, we train them to be leaders in a variety of different areas," Katch explained.

After graduating, students enter medical school, the health profession, or the design of physical education programs for the handicapped, according to Katch.

UMass' Department of Exercise Science was the first established in the United States, he said, and the field is growing as more people become more health conscious.

There are excellent-paying jobs available, and tremendous graduate student opportunities, according to Katch.

• • •

The Department of Professional Preparation in Physical Education does just what the name implies — training students to be physcial education teachers and coaches.

"I feel very good about the department," said department head Arlan Barber. "We have now been given a golden opportunity to change our curriculum, to give it more academic rigor. "

As proposed by the state Board of Education, mandatory changes must be made in the curriculum to meet the certification standards.

This change must be made in all schools not just UMass. "These new standards clearly lay out what the program standards would be," Barber said.

Requirements of PEP now include a more science orientated background as part of the curriculum change.

Successful completion of the program will qualify the student for state teacher certification in grades K-12, as well as qualified athletic coaches.

The employment rate following graduation is very high for PEP. Seventy-six percent of graduates are now working full-time, and the rest for the most part are working part-time or are in graduate school, according to Barber.

Currently, there are 200 students enrolled in PEP.

• • •

The fourth and final department within the School of Physical Education is sport studies, the business end of the school. The department offers sports management for undergraduates and sports management/theory for graduate students and Phd. candidates.

"We are the only department of sport studies in the country," said department head Harold Vanderzwaag.

"Our programs are innovative, and along with Ohio University we have the top ranked sports management program in the country."

The sports management program is well known and highly respected, he said. Applying graduate students are the "cream of the crop," according to Vanderzwaag. Students apply from Ivy League schools and the best schools all over the country.

"Sport management is a whole diversified program in the sport world. It's a meaningful thing, people understand sports management, and there's no mystery in it. If you look in the world of sport, it's mostly broken down to managerial positions," Vanderzwaag said.

"In the graduate program we accept about one out of every four applicants and of those accepted, over 90 percent attend."

In the undergraduate program, the competition is not as fierce. In order to enter the major, a good academic standing is required as well as an interview with a selection committee.

"We're not trying to keep people out of the program with these interviews. We just want to put the right people in, people who will benefit from this major, whose goal we can help attain," Vanderzwaag explained.

Currently, there are 84 undergraduates and 40 graduate students enrolled in the program

• • •

"I'm pretty happy with the way things are," Dean Bischoff said. "We have one of the top schools of physical education in the country. Although undergraduate schools are not rated, UMass was rated seventh in the country in a doctoral program survey. We have the first department of exercise science, one of the first sport studies, and we have outstanding professors, with new programs always evolving."

Physical Education

Within the School of Physical Education, there is a very loose confederation looking at sport and athletics through different eyes, according to Bischoff.

"We have dedicated faculty in all departments which creates a real sense of pride throughout the entire school," Bischoff said.

Photos by Jim Mahoney

Competition

Athletic competition is very much a part of the School of Physical Education, whether on the intramural or interscholastic level. At top are members of the highly-rated men's lacrosse team in action. Above are gymnastics and voileyball in tramurals.

Educating to be educators

By MARK CURELOP

Some Amherst residents send their kindergarden-through grade-six children to the Marks Meadow School slightly north of campus on North Pleasant Street. Adjacent to the primary education building is the UMass School of Education.

Comprised mostly of graduate students, with a small undergraduate program by comparison, the central goals of the school are "the training and development of professional leaders not only in the field of teaching, but also in the non-teaching areas of research, administration, and the human services, too," according to Dean Mario D. Fantini.

"Our past goal has been, and our future goal remains, the betterment of the Commonwealth and advancement of its citizenry," Fantini said recently in the school's Annual Report. "As a professional school with faculty of diverse academic backgrounds working to train an equally diverse predominantly graduate student population, we are the people we serve."

The school is the only public institution in the state offering a doctoral degree in education. Approximately 60 percent of the school's doctoral candidates are professional people already in the field of education.

There are three major divisions in the school graduate program. There is a Certificate of Advanced Graduate Study, the master of education degree, and the doctor of education degree.

The certificate is not a University degree. It provides a student with an extended knowledge of the master's degree without the formal examinations of the doctoral program. The program extends 30 credits over the master degree requirements.

Divided into two sections, the master's degree program provides education for traditional and non-traditional students. "Some people just don't have the formal undergraduate training," one graduate student said. "There's a special master's program that allows people who have the backgrounds to continue their education," he said.

Permission of the dean of student affairs is necessary to enter the program. As well, review by the dean occurs in order to change the temporary status of the special master's program to a permanent graduate position.

According to the school's Annual Report, 33 credits must be taken to receive the degree. Eighteen credits are graded, 12 must be 600 level or above, and a minimum of 21 credits must be taken through the School of Education.

The doctorate program takes approximately two years beyond the masters degree or three years beyond the bachelors to complete. "It's a hard process, but it's worth it," said one doctoral candidate.

The doctoral program hopes to prepare students in three areas: Formulation of state and national educational policies; modification of existing education systems to an ever changing society; educational development of individuals and groups who've been denied equal opportunities in the past.

The program is designed to meet the needs of the individual while also meeting the school's requirements. The student chooses a faculty advising committee to assist in his/her program. To ensure the student is aware of trends of education, they must pass a Comprehensive/Qualifying Examination before completing the final stages of the doctoral program.

A faculty committee is chosen by the student for assistance in this area. Upon completion in this area, the doctoral dissertation is begun.

A three member dissertation committee is chosen by the candidate, who aids in the selection of topic and proposal. According to the School of Education Graduate Bulletin for 1976-77, the completed dissertation "will be judged largely upon the ability of the candidate to review and make crucial use of relevant literature; to formulate a problem, plan a method of attack, and work systematically toward a solution; to summarize his/her material or data and draw conclusions based thereon."

Once completed, the candidate takes an oral exam based on the dissertation. The committee decides whether the student passes. The doctoral trek is over when the exam is done.

• • •

Approximately 60 percent of students enrolled in the graduate program are men and women who are leading a professional life as school administrators, politicians, and lawyers, according to the school's annual report.

The undergraduate School of Education reflects the graduate school in thoughts and ideals, emphasizing both teaching and non-teaching. Roughly 265 undergraduate students are graduating from the school with Bachelor of Arts or Bachelor of Science degrees.

The undergraduate teaching staff is a group of "fine, talented people who have alot to offer," said Pauline Trow, a second-semester junior. "The people are fantastic, they couldn't be more helpful. They really give us the world," she said.

Trow is involved in the "Designs" program, or Designs for Effective Teaching and Learning.

Designs takes three semesters to fulfill requirements. A Designs major takes four courses during the week and spends three days in a classroom environment.

Pelham Elementary School is where Trow teaches eight-through-ten-year-old clusters. A cluster represents three grades. The students enter the cluster depending upon their academic achievements.

"The program meets the needs of the students," Trow said.

When asked if the older students thought they were slower in regards to the younger students, Trow responded that, "the kids know where they are with their levels."

TURN TO PAGE 23

Photos by Nancy Nutile

Education

Recess

One of the functions of the School of Education is operating an elementary school for students in grades K-6. One of the students' favorite times at school is, what else, recess. These photos were taken during a recent recess at the school.

★Allen

CONT. FROM PAGE 8

UMass professors won't perish if they don't publish, Allen says, "but we do expect them to do research." It contributes to the quality of the departments and the reputation of the school.

With a Phd. in English, Allen, the father of five children whose ages range from 37-year-old to 19, says "I wasn't a serious student when I first started." He smiles. He "might" consider returning to teaching and doesn't know when he'll retire. He's 60, "but you don't have to retire now."

★Grads

CONT. FROM PAGE 4

Education and Social Scineces are operating with a dearth of funds. Pearson blamed the type of traditional research conducted by some social science departments as being part of the reason for the lack of outside funds.

• • •

"The grad school has failed to recruit the non-tradional student," Pearson and GSS Committee Coordinator Don Ross charged. "It has remained geared toward the traditional just-out-of-college student rather than work at getting the older, less likely students.". This laconic recruitment process extends to recruiting minorities, Pearson asserts. "There's not a base in the community so it isn't really noticeable. There are only 200 or so minorities out of around 5,000 grad students and that isn't very many," Pearson said.

About half of the 3,300 full-time grad students serve as teaching assistants. They have not received a pay raise in about seven years, according to Ross. "More grads are able to participate only because the funds available for each positon are often split between two or more grads," Ross said. "They are being forced to do more work and take larger class loads," Pearson said. "Some TAs in Economics or Rhetoric have to teach sections of up to 40 students. TAs are a form of slave labor," he said.

Graduate School officials could not be reached for comment.

★Health

CONT. FROM PAGE 20

graduate students.

Melrose said, "The Department of Communication Disorders has three functions: Teaching, research, and the operation of a speech and hearing clinic." He continued: "We act as consultant to hospitals, schools, and work with the community on hearing, speech, and language problems."

An undergraduate degree is a pre-professional degree Melrose said. Thirty states have laws requiring a masters degree or the equivalent in order for a person to work in a school, hospital or clinic. The American Speech-Language-Hearing Association issues certificates to those with the following training: An undergraduate and graduate degree in communication disorders (60 credits); 325 supervised clinical hours working with a wide range of age groups and problems; and whose first job after earning their masters is in a place where they can be sponsored by someone who holds the same certificate they are working toward. A final step is to pass the National Board Examination.

Students who do not go on to graduate work are usually stuck in dead end jobs such as speech and hearing aids and will not be in a decision making position, according to Melrose.

★Foreign

CONT. FROM PAGE 10

good place to tie in my interests in art history and literature,"

For a significant number of students who studied overseas, coming home to the United States was an important part of their experience.

"For the first time I was looking at the U.S. as foreigners see it," said a student who went to England, "and I realized how much waste there is here, especially with such big cars. But I also realized how much freedom of choice there is, and how many ethnic groups we have."

"So much happened while I was in France," said another student, "and I just couldn't relate it all to my family and friends at home. You never really can."

Studying abroad, then apparently can be an invaluable and provocative experience if a student prepares for it and enters into it with an open mind. It's taxing: "I spoke so much Spanish that I went to bed with a headache at night," said a student who went to Spain. But the rewards are great: Besides challenging your inner resources and adaptability and allowing you to experience life in a different culture, "It shows you didn't just slump through your four years of college," is how a student who went to Taiwan put it.

★Social

CONT. FROM PAGE 19

many students who take a psychology course for "D" core credit.

Laboratories exist for experimentation in various areas of psychology, including biopsychology; clinical, cognative, developmental, educational and social psychology; and personality.

The department is very involved in research. Grants from agencies such as the National Institute of Mental Health and the National Science Foundation currently total almost $1 million. Faculty members are mainly involved in what might be called "traditional" research, rather than in newer and more controversial fields such as biofeedback and humanistic psychology.

The department has a practicum program where students participate in a research project with the supervision of the department's staff, and field work, where the student is involved in an on-site activity. Currently, 42 students are involved in departmental research, and eight are doing field work.

The department experienced a period of rapid growth between 1965 and 1967 reaching a peak undergraduate major enrollment of 1100 in 1972. A drop in enrollments followed, due in part to the popularity of more career-oriented fields. Since the drop, the department's enrollment has steadily risen, and it now totals 700 undergraduates.

Many psychology majors have an interest in working with people or are looking for answers about themselves. Many have career goals requiring graduate school, in which the department's placement record is very good.

Sociology

The Department of Sociology is nationally recognized, and one of the strongest sociology departments in the East, according to Chairman John Hewitt.

The department has 33 faculty members, 245 undergraduate majors, and 65 graduate students. Also included is the Social and Demographic Institute with computer facilities and other offices.

"We have more than our share of people who have arrived or who are going to arrive" Hewitt said.

The faculty is diverse, with different teaching styles, perspectives, and research interests. "Any good department puts emphasis on research," Hewitt said, citing the need of departments to be professionally active to teach its students well. The goal of the department is "not just to pass on knowledge, but to be in the forefront of creating knowledge."

The department puts an emphasis on applied research, such as a recent study on community responses to natural disasters, and an experiment in providing unemployment compensaion to former inmates.

Hewitt would like to see more exchange relationships with other universities, as a way of getting new faces and new ideas into the department at minimal cost. With declining enrollments and shrinking budgets, there will not be many new members coming into the department, at least through the 1980s.

Hewitt believes the student should be given some "specific, marketable skills." The department currently has an undergraduate traineeship in research and analysis sequence of courses, which provides students with a certificate stating that they have learned specific research skills.

★Odiorne

CONT. FROM PAGE 6

investigate state building corruption) as "clear evidence."

• • •

Odiorne teaches two large sections of Management 301, which all SBA majors, Hotel, Restaurant and Travel Administration majors, and Sports Administration majors are required to take. He also teaches Management 386, a graduate course, and has six doctoral candidates. Outside the University, he lectures frequently at business conventions and for the managements of major corporations. He serves on the board of directors of several corporations and civic institutions, and is the author of 10 books and over 100 articles.

★Food

CONT. FROM PAGE 15

sidered essential for a career in international agriculture.

Working together, the Departments of Plant Pathology and Plant and Soil Sciences research ways to combat diseases in plants. Richard A. Rohde, head to the Department of Plant Pathology, said one goal is to develop methods to reduce reliance on chemical pesticides in the agriculture industry. He said one project currently underway is a forecasting system that hopes to determine a schedule of pesticide-spraying by using weather systems.

Plant and soil sciences work mostly with soil-borne diseases, Rohde said. The departments conduct research at a farm in Belchertown that was donated to the University by area fruitgrowers.

★Education

CONT. FROM PAGE 22

"They're broken up depending on their skills. If they're good at reporting let's say, they're on a high level. It all depends on the child," she said.

• • •

Fiscal year 1980 brought the School of Education approximately $1.2 million dollars. This year however, with recent budget cuts by the state Legislature, the Designs program Trow is enrolled in will be affected.

"The School of Educatinn is probably second to last on a totem pole," she said, regarding the budget.

"Next year, Designs is being cut back from three semesters to two. The students will be forced to take 5 courses, and be in the classroom only two. It will be a cramped style compared to now when we're gradually worked in," she said.

Dean Mario D. Fantini could not be reached for comment.

★Engineering

CONT. FROM PAGE 14

Council, Inc., an organization of high technology industrial companies, expects between 3000 to 4000 new engineers will be needed every year for at least the next three years.

★Survey

CONT. FROM PAGE 12

member siad it has taken too long to fill the provost's position and noted that one college has been without a permanant dean for several years. Many faculty members also complained of a lack of educational philosophy and long-term goals for the University.

—The faculty union. Several faculty members said the union causes tensions between themselves and the administration, and takes power away from academic department heads.

—Students. Several faculty members said students at UMass were poorly prepared and slow to adjust to the rigors of a university education. One noted that students seem to be working for grades rather than knowledge. Others felt that many students suffered from an "inferiority complex" and had a bad attitude about attending UMass.

—Poor physical facilities. Complaints in this area included inadequate maintenance of equipment, lack of classroom space, and need for more custodial staff and security.

—The library. Many faculty members said the library was inadequate and that more acquisitons were neeeded immediately.

—Pressure to publish to gain tenure. Several faculty members suggested that advancement should result from good teaching not research.

Other suggestions offered by the faculty to deal with the problems facing them included a "fairer" distribution of teaching loads, reallocation of funds to high-enrollment areas, a rethinking of curriculum with a view towards interdisciplinary approaches, and better high schools.

When asked how the overall effectiveness of the University could be improved, responses included more support from the legislature, tighter control of admissions, higher demands made on students, better public relations, more faculty in the professional schools, better counseling, less administration, more required courses, more cooperation among elements of the University, improved living conditions for students, and less tolerance of vandalism.

One faculty member suggested modeling the school after universities in the Midwest.

Another suggested requiring those on the level of department chairmen and above to be subject to review on a regular basis.

★Humanities

CONT. FROM PAGE 17

requirements in history, culture, sciences and others before moving on to advanced studies. After these special studies have been completed, each major is required to write a senoir thesis under the supervision of two faculty members. This counts as six credits toward graduation.

The Afro-Am department offers courses to students outside the major, such as those who double major with another subject; also independent study courses and general interest courses for non-majors. The department works with the other members of the Five College system to offer a wide range of studies; the combined black studies faculties on the schools is approximately 40 professors, offering about 60 courses — the largest concentration of black studies offerings in the country.

Classics

The field of Classics includes the study of every aspect of Greek and Roman history and culture. Students in the department first master one of the classical languages (Greek, Latin) before they begin to unravel information about ancient history, mythology, archaeology, and others. A four-semester sequence of language courses is followed by at least 10 upper level courses, ranging from Egyptian and Indo-Iranian Mythology to the Material World of the Romans.

Classics students usually narrow their field of study along certain concentration areas and career opportunities. These areas include Latin education, Hellenic Studies, Religions of the Ancient World, Greek and Latin languages, Mediterranean Archaeology, Mythology, Ancient History, and Religions of the Greco-Roman World.

Beginning this semester, the department of Classics hopes to be able to offer minors to students in Greek, Latin, Modern Greek, and Classical Civilization. Honors courses, special topics, independent study, and seminars are also open to students each semester.

Theater

Theater is a growing department at UMass.It has 120 majors in the undergraduate program, approximately 15 graduate students, and a full-time faculty of 10. For undergraduates, the department offers a wide variety of opportunities in both performing and technical areas. There are two well-equipped theaters; the small, studio-size Curtain Theater, and the much larger Rand Theater. The department provides especially good opportunities in lighting design and execution (including work with a computerized lighting system), set design and construction (in a huge, generously stocked shop), and costuming.

Graduate theater students, according to program director Virginia Scott, gain advanced training in their areas of concentration by working on the staffs of department productions. Design students especially, who represent the largest group of Master of Fine Arts candidates, have plentiful opportunities to learn and to display thier talents.The directing program is the second largest, with five students.

The graduate program also offers training in scripts, and is one of only two such programs in the country. (The other is at Yale. (The department currently has one graduate student in playwriting. The department continues to operate through summer; its intern program provides opportunities for extra training between semesters.

Comp. Lit

The Comparative Literature department enrolls over 1000 students, and has fewer than 20 majors.

Part of the explanation for this apparent paradox is that while the department offers a wide range of courses, the requirements for a Comparative Literature major are extensive, requiring knowledge of two other languages besides English in most cases. Most all of the department's offerings remain popular among majors and non-majors alike, especially its film courses.

Prof. Don Levine, instructor of a course in Avant-Garde Film and Literature, notes that many students who take his course anticipating a "gut" invariably find it to be more than they bargained for. "The course, which examines the antecedents and major contemporary philosophies and techniques of experimental films and literature, proves a bit heavy for some." Levine described the major strengths of the department as lying in the fields of Medieval and Eastern literature.

Dance

The Dance department is a Five College department with 97 students. Although dance is not a Five-College major, dance students frequently enroll in dance classes at the other colleges.

The University Dancers Ensemble is an offshoot of the department. Comprised of approximately 30 dancers, the group, in conjunction with faculty, performs a few times during the academic year.

Andrea Watkins, on the UMass Dance Faculty, is well known for her innovative and energetic choreography, while Richard Jones is excitedly received by dance enthusiasts for his vibrant, electric performances.

The highly competitive admission to the department is determined by several auditions and is open only a few times each academic year.

This story compiled by Jim Moran, David Ambus, Sarah Hammann, Robert B. Cargill, Abbe Bjorkland, and Beth Segers.

★Pulsars

CONT. FROM PAGE 6

lately," he spoke from amid a mound of computer printouts and textbooks, "I think it's provided an impetus to theoretical physicists who study relativity. It's rekindled interest in the theory and in the basic foundations of nature.

"The prediction was there 60 years ago, but it appeared to be thought generally untestable," he said.

• • •

Taylor proudly says that pulsar research is done as well at UMass as it it anywhere in the country. The department began in 1969 when Taylor and his team—Richard Huguenin and technicians George Orsten, Albert Rodman, and Antal Hartia—established operations in a rapidly growing University in Amherst. Their work and discoveries, as it happened, were a bit of a lark. The binary pulsar and evidence backing Einstein was discovered while the group was working on another project.

"It's not too often an experiment is in a narrow area and it happens that you come across something fundamentally related to the underpinning of the world," Taylor said.

Here's the "far out" stuff. Taylor made his discovery in relativity, a mind-boggling field which intergrates high velocities, changing time, and expanding and contracting objects.

"Newton's theory came close to being accurate," said Taylor, "but it had some flaws, particularly with large velocities and large masses. Einstien recognized there were discrepancies with the laws of electricity and magnetism with regard to Newton's theory of gravitation."

Einstein's resulting theory of relativity has some rather interesting concepts to it. Particularly interesting are ideas concerning mass, time and speed. An object, the theory says, will expand its mass as it is accelerated faster and faster. If it ever were to get moving as fast as the speed of light—about 186,000 miles per second—its mass would become infinite. Similar distortions are postulated for time.

"But" Taylor isn't hesitant to point out, "It's all been verified experimentally.'

Taylor's pulsar moves at about 667,000 miles per shour, a big enough fraction of the speed of light to measure relativistic effects. "It's almost as if it was put there on a silver platter," he said. "If you wanted to design an experiment you'd want to do it just like this binary pulsar."

It lies in the constellation of Aquila, near the bright star of Altairx in the southern sky during the summer. But don't bother looking for it. It only makes radio noise; you can't see it.

What good is it?

"That's hard to tell," shoots back Taylor. "Practical applications are never easy to know. They tend to come in unforseen ways. Conceivably in a century, it could have interesting applications and benefits."

But now, he says, 'it's pretty close to zero."

Taylor moved to Amherst in 1969, after completing graduate school at Harvard. He grew up in southern New Jersey, "not the smelly part," he is quick to say. He was "always gadgeteering" while growing up on a peach farm, and once built a telescope with an older brother. He was a ham radio freak.

Today he lives with his four children and wife Marietta in the Echo Hill section of Amherst.

What has the discovery meant to the 39-year old scientist?

"When you get you name on the front page of the Globe, it's a big deal for a couple of weeks," he said. But his children quickly lost interest, he said, prompting him to not allow his head to swell too much. Colleagues and friends seek him out for information, and a book he has written is considered the standard reference now on pulsars.

What will he do for an encore?

"We haven't run out yet, " he said with a twinkle in this eye looking like a star in the nighttime sky, "of interesting question."

You can almost be sure Joe Taylor will find some more answers.

★SCERA

CONT. FROM PAGE 4

Representatives and the Senate via allocation recommendations from the governor.

For fiscal year 1981, the trustees requested $142,116,094. Governor Edward J. King has recommended a 6.71 percent decrease, and the House and Senate are looking for an even larger cutback. Soaring inflation compounds the decreases and cutbacks.

Budgets affect all areas of the University, from physical maintenance to student aid, and subsequently the entire quality of education. Fifty-six percent of UM/Amherst students receive aid in the form of loans, work study, scholarships, and grants. Next year threatens a 30 percent cut in aid. UMass President David Knapp is quoted as saying "the physical condition of the campuses, especially at Amherst, is becoming serious — we are already paying the price of past neglect in capital outlay appropriations for deferred maintenance."

The library is another problem. Despite efforts to reduce duplicate subscriptions, despite participation in library consortia, despite special library appropriations, we continue to face serious problems. The Amherst campus alone has a backlog of 30,000 requests for acquisitions.

— —

UMass is a large organization Idealistically, the most efficient and effective of such organizations are of a bureaucratic manner. Bureaucracy tends to breed red tape, though, and the fact that many different parties are involved seems to complicate matters all around. The interrelationships of students, admisistration, faculty, and state are no doubt complex. The extent of communications and shared decision making undoubtedly effects the quality of education.

Some students involve themselves by watching and reporting to others the workings of decision-making bodies of the University, some report the quality of a professor and/or courses by compiling opinions of an entire class (the course and Teacher Evaluation Guide), and some try to broaden the involvement of students in the decision-making process by trying to make the faculty and administration realize legal collective bargaining rights in contract negotiations.

Not everyone can get involved with decision-making processes to the extent where they are officially responsible for final outcomes. But at least we can all be aware of matters directly affecting us. Apathy is not only a UMass problem but one of the worst societal diseases. Students should be aware of the workings of the university and how they are effected by the outcomes. Student involvement in the operations will lead to far more control in various academic issues confronting us. Academics is affected by many sources, but the greatest effect can be procured by the student body collectively. Whether you realize it or not, whether you want to be or not, you are already involved in the system. The second you entered the University, you were involved. If you've ever utilized a coop, gone to a concert, or used a gymnasium, you are even further involved in the system. Dealing educationally within the university is the greatest involvement.

— —

There are advantages to a university this size. Though UMass' reputation has been questioned because it is a state university, the caliber of students and education on campus are quite comparable to most other public and private undergraduate institutions. The major academic difference between a university such as UMass and other private or smaller universities —size— is a plus for UMass.

There is such diversity of the student body at UMass, that through the years the University has offered not only basic departments and courses, but also more non-traditional programs outside the mainstream of academic life. These include Women's Studies, the University Without Walls program, the Bachelors Degree with Individual Concentration program, and others. But as budget cuts in recent years have jeopardized these non-traditional areas designed to offer more to different kinds of students, so have the hopes and aspirations of these students in those programs been jeopardized.

Quality education at UMass is not the major issue confronting the University today. Enhancement and insurance of that education is.

★Oates

CONT. FROM PAGE 7

The Civil War had to be fought more. Since the blacks would fight it this time on their own, financed by whites and whatever white allies would help, it would still be a Negro revolution, within the system, to bring about full Negro citizenship.

• • •

After close study, Oates has concluded that it is not by accident that Civil War symbolism resonates all the way through King's life story. "It was not coincidental that King gave his best known speech at the Lincoln Memorial, "I Have a Dream", on the 100th anniversary of the Emancipation Proclamation of 1863. His second most-noted speech at the end of the 1965 Selma march took place before the alabaster-white Alabama state house. "George Wallace sat in his third floor office window and watched the crowd grow as King orated in front of the whitest state house I've ever seen, the original capital of the Civil War Confederacy, while the Rebel flag flapped overhead. All the trappings of the Confederacy surrounded him. The crowd consisted mainly of Alabama blacks, descendants of former slaves. Jefferson Davis had been sworn in as president of the Confederacy in the same building, and a statue of him then looked down on King when he gave the speecah — the symbolism engulfed them — it was as though no time had gone by between 1865 and 1965."

The combination of the Selma march and the dramatic speech aroused the nation's consciences as much as Birmingham had done. "It put the pressure on President Johnson and the Congress to enact a voting rights act. They did in 1965 and forever changed the complexion of American politics, pun intended," Oates quipped.

After 1965, Martin Luther King expanded the movement from solely black civil rights, which he had legislatively secured by Johnson's 1965 Voting Rights Act, to encompass all poor people in a broad lower class 'Poor People's Movement.' King continued to appeal to the brighter, more positive and more noble sides of Americans.

By 1963, both the FBI and its leader, Hoover, were trying to discredit King among white organizations and white liberals. Hoover had the FBI compile a monograph of King's sexual activity, some fiction, some fact. He circulated it among all "big guns" of government as well as religious and civil leaders and humanitarians, generally trying to spread the message that King was a sexual pervert.

King did fool around and the FBI caught him. At the same time, Hoover also tried to prove King had communist sympathies. Oates concludes that the FBI was indefatigable in its pursuit to destroy and discredit King in order to replace him with a black leader it could manipulate.

• • •

Many individuals blamed King for being coopted by the white power structure. People jealous of his popularity, eloquence, education, general leadership, and vision, nicknamed him "Uncle Tom" or Booker T. King". Oates contends that these labels are inaccurate and based on ignorance of the facts of his life and career. King stood vehemently against war and poverty, and never liked capitalism "because of what it has done to my race."

In speaking out against the Vietnam War, he also alienated the president, much of Congress, and a great many white liberals. He did the same with his Poor People's campaign. "In no way was he coopted," Oates says.

"King was frustrated and becoming increasingly readical and revolutionary within the system. Working 20 hour days and barely sleeping four hours a night, with the aid of sleeping pills, King entered a period of mixed guilt and depression the few months before his 1968 Chicago assissination."

In Oates' interview with Ralph Abernathy, the reverend told the story of both his and King's April 1968 vacation-escape to Acapulco to wind down from the high-pressured Southern Christian Leadership Conference tour work. The two movement leaders were resting in their ocean-view hotel room. Abernathy awoke in the middle of the night to find King's bedsheets rumpled and him gone. He called out, but heard no response. After Abernathy looked around the room, he spotted King sitting on the terrace, staring out at the ocean as the moonlit waves crashed on the rocks. King was quoting the scripture. "I do not suggest that King was losing his marbles or deteriorating these last few months, but instead use this episode to illustrate the extent of pressure on that man, both internal and external, at the end," Oates added.

By that time, King was getting political and civil flack from all sides. But according to Lincoln's definition, "If you make everyone mad, then you must be doing the right thing." King could have used this comfort, for he needed to know that he hadn't catered to anyone's particular needs. As Oates described, King needed continual reassurance and fulfillment of love, a person who craved acceptance, among whites and blacks.

"I will not apologize for King; he needs no apology, even for this errors. Nobody was more honest about his mistakes than King and his unswerving honesty."

• • •

Oates' research draws mainly from letters, journals, and "diaries in which a person reveals something about him or herself. These things are the stuff of biography. When you're writing a letter to a friend that you think no one will read, you tend to let your hair down and tell the truth, or tell more of the truth." Activists like King do not write many letters, so Oates had to compile a substantial amount on the 'inner King' from all of King's own writings, a vast number of interviews, speeches and sermons, a great many of which are unpublished and inaccessible to the public. These gave good biographical material about his failures, crises of will, and religious motivations, Oates said.

He also interviewed religious movement leaders and personal friends closely associated with King. A 1978 grant from the National Endowment for the Humanities allowed him to make numerous trips to Washington, D.C., New York, Birmingham, Montgomery, Atlanta and other places across the South for interviews with top peole in the SCLC organization.

"It took me a long time to win over the confidence of people like Abernathy. Before he would grant me an interview, I had developed skills I never had. For weeks, I wrote him and he never responded to letters or calls. I could never get through his army of secretaries. I finally reached his appointment secretary, and she suggested I fly down to Atlanta to contact him personally. After a few days of fruitless attempts to see him I took a taxi to the Hunter St. Baptist Church where Abernathy gives the 7:00 servcie. He could no longer elude or evade me, I parked myself right outside his office door with a tape recorder in hand."

Abernathy and Oates made a lunch appointment for the next day, but Abernathy was called away to correct some SCLC financial problem at the last minute and told Oates he would return in "a few minutes. Well, I watied outside his office from one in the afternoon until six that evening, and finally he came to get me. By that time I had dismissed the taxi and cancelled our lunch reservation at a posh downtown restaurant."

The two eventually stepped out to grab some dinner, but the reverend had to leave shortly for his nightly service. Before leaving the table, he promised to give Oates an interview the following day. At dinner, however, "I memorized word for word everything that Ralph had told me, since I didn't have a tape recorder or pad."

The following day, Oates picked up Abernathy at the conference. "I had to literally claw and drag him away from throngs of conference attendants. I finally got him into a taxi, drove straight to the hotel where I locked the room door and took the phone off the hook, to keep this man entirely to myself. I finally had my interview with Abernathy. He talked for three hours straight about King the leader, and King his good friend and personal confidante.

Being a heavy man and having imbibed wine with dinner, he dozed off in mid-sentence. And I thought that was the end of this interview. But knowing what an egocentric man he was, I added, 'it's too bad I didn't get a chance to ask you about yourself.' Well...you never saw anyone snap to faster. He sat right up and gave me another hour on himself."

Only through the specific can you come to understand the general, Oates concludes. And through his extensive research on King, he will as realistically and accurately as possible recreate the life of Martin Luther King in his book.

"For it is only through Americans of all kinds, ilks, drives, colors, backgrounds, can we better understand the rich tapestry that is this country."

Inside today:

Section Two

A Look at Us

An Educational Introspective of UMass

MASSACHUSETTS DAILY

Collegian

VOLUME CIX, ISSUE 140 | Student newspaper of the University of Massachusetts/Amherst | Tuesday, May 13, 1980

Students extinguish Prince fire

By BRIAN FITZ MAURICE
Collegian Staff

An apparent electrical fire yesterday morning in a Southwest Residential Area dormitory room caused about $1,000 in damage, according to the UMass News Bureau. No injuries were reported.

Two unidentified students walking by Prince House on Sunset Avenue noticed smoke coming from room 210 at about 9 a.m., pulled a fire alarm in the dormitory minutes later, then took a fire extinguisher from its box on the second floor, proceeding up to room 210, the News Bureau said.

Two unidentified students walking by Prince House noticed smoke coming from room 210...

Janitor Walter Gelniski then telephoned the UMass Police Department which contacted the Amherst Fire Department. Two trucks responded to the call, but the fire had already been doused by the students who had first noticed the smoke, the News Bureau said.

The room's occupants, Ruth Reppeto and Lei Yu, were not in their room when the fire broke out.

Paul Dinerstin, Prince resident manager, said smoke filled the second-floor hall and a desk and bookshelf were destroyed. Dinerstin said an overloaded outlet apparently caused the blaze.

The cause of the fire is under investigation by the University Environmental Health and Safety Office.

David Marvin, of Spirit Haus Refrigerator Rental, sorts through a pile of contracts in hopes of finding the one which belongs to this Kennedy resident. Yesterday was the last day for collection; anyone who still has one much either deliver it to the store, or pay a 5-dollar late-pickup fee. (Staff photo by J. Ferrarone)

Town cops increase awareness

By DAVID FERRO
Collegian Staff

Last week, Amherst's precinct voters approved an Amherst Police Department proposal which would organize a racism and sexism awareness program for all town police officers.

The proposal was debated for about 45 minutes at the Amherst town meeting before it was approved. The debate sparked two motions for amendment, the first of which stated: that the program would "train police officers so that they can respond appropriately to protect women and Third Amherst's voters approved an Amherst Police Department proposal which would organize a racism and sexism program...

World members of all ages from verbal harrassment and physical attack."

The article calls for Town Manager Louis A. Haywood and Police Chief Donald Maia to work together to set up a racism and sexism awareness program that will come before a public board of examination for evaluation no later than February 1981.

Haywood said he was unsure whether the program would go into affect but that he was "shooting for early fall."

"What we want to do next is sit down with the petitioners of this program and get some idea of what they're looking for," Haywood said.

Maia said he is working on a program outline "right now" and that he is receiving guidelines from the state Criminal Justice Training Council. Maia added his force may work in conjunction with the UMass Police Department, which has had a similar program for two years.

Discrepency with male rates

UMass female professors get less pay

By JANET GREGORIAN
Special to the Collegian

Although women are now being hired more frequently as university professors, there are still only 200 female professors at UMass as opposed to 1002 males—and a national study shows that the problem is not confined to this university.

According to a study conducted by the Educational Testing Service in Princeton, New Jersey, women professors lag behind their male co-workers in numbers, rank, and salary nationwide.

The Fall 1979-80 Fact Book for the University of Massachusetts at Amherst reveals that, on all levels, the average salary for a tenured male professor is $27,782.

...the average salary for a tenured male professor is $27,782...(while) a female averages $24,392...

Tenured female professors' average salary is $24,392. The total for the 1,222 instructional faculty, tenured and non-tenured, averaging $26,080 for men and $21,324 for women.

"In general, if you take into account the age of the faculty member, how long he's been tenured, etc., it helps explain the difference," said David Rumpf of the Office of Budgeting and Institutional Studies.

About three years ago, there was a "regression analysis" study done at UMass which showed that even with those factors considered, female professors were still underpaid. According to Rumpf, equity and adjustments were made.

Alice Eagley, a full professor of psychology at UMass, said that no systematic attempt to document statistics had been made. She explained that in 1974 Emily Hoffman, of the Economics department at UMass, did her Ph.D dissertation on this subject—taking tenure, publishing and other factors into account.

The dissertation was so wel documented and systematic, that may women became interested, according to Eagley. The Massachusetts Society of Professors (MSP) Women's Caucus took on the issue. MSP sent out publicity to all faculty members, and filed grievances with state and local agencies on a class action suit.

"Then," Eagley said, "the Title IX committee was formed and the regression analysis study was conducted. All cases were reviewed and all adjustments were made at UMass, according to Eagley. "I feel it (the study) was one I was reasonably proud of," she said.

Still, Eagley said, there's the question of recruitment. Why aren't there more female professors? she asks. From 1974-79, the percentage of women professors increased from 14 percent to 18 percent, and most changes were in the lower ranks of instructors and lecturers, Eagley said.

'In general, if you take into account the age of the faculty member, how long he's been tenured, etc., it helps explain the difference.'

In 1974, 34 percent of the instructors and 31 percent of the lecturers were women. By 1979, the numbers rose to 62 percent and 60 percent. But, there was only a 2 percent rise in the higher ranks. Full, associate and assistant professors rose from 12 to 14 percent.

Eagley said the Faculty Senate on the Status of Women, of which she is a member, is researching this issue now.

DIGEST

The Associated Press

Official decries 'stampede'; Kennedy defends refugees

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter administration's refugee coordinator told Congress yesterday the government will not be "stampeded" into hasty decisions about the status of Cuban and Haitian refugees that would give others "an invitation to rush our shores."

Ambassador Victor H. Palmieri responded to critical questioning about the administration's refugee policies from Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, DMass., who broke off his campaign for the Democratic presidential nomination to preside over a hearing of the Senate Judiciary Committee on the refugee problem.

Kennedy demanded repeatedly that the administration invoke a law which expires Thursday to grant parole to the some 15,000 persons, who have fled to the United States in recent years.

"To define as refugees people who come in a sudden, rushed, uncontrolled manner is a very dangerous thing to do," Palmieri said.

"We ought not to inspire hysteria," he said. "We've got a tough problem to solve, and we're going to do our best to solve it."

He said that under existing law the Cubans and Haitians now are being treated as applicants for political asylum and not as "refugees" as such.

City of Miami workers put up the olive drab military tents in front of the Orange Bowl Stadium yesterday to house more incoming Cuban refugees as they arrive there from Cuba. (AP Laserphoto)

Sadat sacks Egypt cabinet; foreign policy intact

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — President Anwar Sadat accepted the resignations of all 31 Cabinet ministers yesterday in a reorganization move expected to place greater emphasis on Egypt's domestic problems of inflation, housing shortages and mounting religious strife. It was not believed there would be a significant shift in foreign affairs.

Sadat asked Premier Mostafa Khalil to head a caretaker government, but did not ask him to form a new government, and observers saw this as an indication Sadat might take over the premiership.

Khalil has been Egypt's chief negotiator in the stalled Palestinian autonomy talks with Israel, which were suspended Thursday at Sadat's request, and he was asked what effect the government shakeup would have.

He said the question "is premature. Everything will become clear in President Sadat's speech on Wednesday."

Sadat is to address Parliament Wednesday. The Cairo press has said his speech will be a major declaration on domestic policies.

Iran hardline clerics gain; Parliament majority assured

By The Associated Press

Islamic fundamentalists increased their lead yesterday in Iranian parliamentary voting and apparently handed Iranian President Abolhassan BaniSadr another defeat by blocking his efforts to name a prime minister. The hardliners' growing influence could further complicate the U. S. hostage crisis.

Tehran Radio said 229 of 247 seats in the Iranian parliament have been filled and that the Islamic Republican Party has won 113 of them, including three decided yesterday. Victories by Moslem fundamentalists running as independents will give the IRP a working majority in Parliament.

Iran's revolutionary leader, Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, has said the new Parliament, expected to convene in the next few weeks, will decide the fate of the 50 hostages held since last Nov. 4. Many IRP members have advocated spy trials for the Americans unless the deposed Shah of Iran is returned to Iran to face trial.

Muskie's mission: sanctions

Allies wavering

By BARRY SCHWEID
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Secretary of State Edmund S. Muskie's first overseas assignment, beginning today, is to urge the West European allies to stand firm on sanctions against Iran.

Some of the Europeans are considering exemptions to the decision taken by the Common Market last month to cut off all exports to Iran except food and medicine by next Saturday.

State Department spokesman Thomas Reston ackowledged yesterday that "some problems remain to be worked out" by the allies on the sanctions question.

But he said the United States still expects them to adopt the package of sanctions they tentatively approved last month.

Muskie, meeting with foreign and defense ministers in Brussels, hopes to persuade them to hold to the pledge even though President Carter's strategy of diplomatic and economic strictures has not gained release of the American hostages held in Tehran since Nov. 4.

The allies were never especially enthusiastic about cutting down on business with Iran or taking the risk of a retaliatory cutoff in oil shipments from Iran.

But they went along with the United States, at least partly to forestall any American military move against Iran. On April 25, three days after the Common Market decision, Carter launched an unsuccessful raid to try to free the hostages. Taken by surprise, the Europeans were further irritated.

If the Europeans water down their sanctions, Italy could complete $3 billion worth of construction contracts on which nearly 2,000 Italians are working in Iran, and Britain could continue exporting Chrysler U.K. automobile kits for assembly in Iran.

Muskie spent the weekend discussing his strategy with top aides and also preparing for talks in Vienna on Friday with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko.

Secretary of State Edmund Muskie met yesterday in Washington with members of the House and Senate leadership prior to leaving today for a trip to Brussels and Vienna. Muskie will go to Vienna to talk with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko. Here Muskie is seen meeting with Speaker of the House Thomas P. O'Neill, D-Mass. (AP Laserphoto)

Frontrunners expecting gains in Maryland, Nebraska races

By LEE BYRD
Associated Press

Maryland and Nebraska vote today in presidential primaries virtually ignored by the front-runners and, very likely, much of the electorate. Even so, President Carter and Ronald Reagan were assured of edging closer to cinching their party nominations.

The president and the former California governor were prohibitive favorites in the Nebraska contest, where 24 Democratic and 25 Republican delegates were at stake. An Omaha World-Herald poll published Sunday showed Reagan with a 7-to-1 edge over George Bush, indicating Reagan could sweep the GOP slate.

Carter, meanwhile, was rated 46 percent to Sen. Edward M. Kennedy's 19, though the former Massachusetts senator did put in a weekend appearance. The president's only campaigner was Vice President Walter F. Mondale's wife, Joan.

Kennedy and Bush tried harder in Maryland, where Carter and Reagan were soundly defeated in the 1976 campaign. But though neither front-runner has appeared in the state this year, each was favored in fights for 59 Democratic and 30 GOP delegates.

Kennedy was urged by 10 state Democratic chairmen Monday to abandon his challenge. Billy Goldberg of Texas, who authored the plea, declared that "funds and work being solicited of Democrats should be conserved for utilization against the Republicans."

"The race for the Democratic nomination is effectively over," said Goldberg in the statement addressed to Kennedy and signed, among others, by Richard O'Neill of California, a state critical to whatever hope remains for the senator.

Kennedy's Maryland campaign was fashioned around repeated personal appearances targeting the Jewish, black, Italian and Greek communities in Baltimore, and federal workers in the state's suburbs of Washington. Carter, meanwhile, relied on the surrogate campaigning of his wife, Rosalynn, and Gov. Harry Hughes.

The governor declared "there's no doubt that President Carter is going to be the nominee. ... So let's have Maryland in the win column and not make the mistake we did four years ago," when Democrats backed Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. of California.

Going into Tuesday's voting, Carter had 1,319 of the 1,666 delegates needed to win nomination, with Kennedy trailing at 734. Reagan had 778 of the 998 Republican delegates needed, while Bush had 171.

Bush, who relied heavily on media advertising in Maryland, spent the day in Michigan, which votes May 20. He once more brushed aside suggestions that he should withdraw for the sake of party unity.

Small Ads... Big Results! CLASSIFIED ADS!

Subscription rates

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian (USPS 333 220) is published daily Monday through Friday, excluding January, June, July, and August, for $15 at 113 Campus Center, University of Massachusetts at Amherst, MA 01003. Second class postage paid at Amherst, Mass. Postmaster: Send address changes to Massachusetts Daily Collegian, 113 Campus Center, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, MA 01003

EURAIL PASSES
CAMPUS TRAVEL CENTER
CENTER UNIV OF MASS
AMHERST, MASS 01003 413-545-0500

IDB TIPS
Final Exam Schedules
The Information Data Bank has final exam time and room schedules. If you need any of this information, give us a call at 545-1555.
The Information Data Bank
227 Whitmore
545-1555

Resident Camp Position
Gymnastic Director, Waterfront Instructors with WSI, Smallcraft Director and Assistants with Red Cross certificates.
Salary with room and board for nine weeks. For application, write Connecticut Valley Girl Scouts, Tolland MA 01034 or call 258-4592.

ACTIVISTS
WORK FOR A CHANGE!
Petition, raise funds & educate public on issues of vital economic concern to low and middle income families from 2:00 p.m. to 10:30 p.m., M-F. Opportunity for advancement to organizing and research staffs.
Call 586-1150 from 9:00 a.m. to 1:00 p.m., M-F.
MASS FAIR SHARE
131 King St., Northampton

AMTRAK
CAMPUS TRAVEL CENTER
CENTER UNIV OF MASS
AMHERST, MASS 01003 413-545-0500

Concertcasualties listed

Reactions mixed

By ED LEVINE
Collegian Staff

Although UMass officials said things could have been worse, campus police and the university health services reported a large number of arrests and injuries throughout Spring Concert weekend.

UMass police reported 34 arrests this weekend, including 19 protective custodies and 15 arrests for such crimes as disorderly conduct, malicious destruction of property and trespassing; Gerald T. O'Neil, director of Public Safety said yesterday.

There were 10 arrests on campus during last year's concert, O'Neil said.

"I would have hoped things could have gone better. There was a lot of drinking going on and that resulted in problems," O'Neil said. "It wasn't the best concert we've had. Last year we were fortunate—it rained. This year people stayed around and the show ran for a longer period of time."

Of the 34 persons arrested, 14 were UMass students and 20 were visitors, O'Neil said.

Amherst police reported 5 arrests, 15 protective custodies and 11 traffic accidents through the weekend. There were also 38 complaints of disturbances in the town, Sgt. Dave Jankowski said.

"At one time we had 29 people locked up in our jail and at 8 p.m. Saturday we informed the UMass police to look elsewhere," Jankowski said. "It was a busy weekend Everyone worked on 12-hour shifts. But spring weekends are generally busy," he said.

Officials at UMass Health Services said more than 50 people were treated on Saturday and 16 people were admitted to the infirmary. Two people were transported to Cooley-Dickinson Hospital in Northampton, one with a broken ankle and one with dental problems, said Art Clifford of the UMass News Bureau.

One student, Scott Griffin, 21, of Squire Village, apparently suffered head injuries in a fall from the 15-foot high stadium wall. Griffin was transported to Holyoke Hospital where officials listed him in "fair" condition last night.

Two UMass police officers were also injured while apprehending a person outside James House in the Southwest Residential Area. The officers were treated and released from Health Services, Clifford said. "Most of the problems were alcohol related," Clifford said. "There were a lot of trauma-type injuries and a couple of fractures. One person had a finger tip amputated."

In the dormitories, residence hall officials said security systems worked well and officials complimented the students who worked security throughout the weekend.

"I went and visited every single residence hall Saturday night," said Marjorie Lenn, Director of the Office of Residential Life. "Indeed there was some difficulty around the time the concert let out. In general the security went admirably and the student security did a great job in keeping out outsiders."

Lenn said she was pleased that the pass system designed for the weekend operated as planned.

"In each dorm I went into, the process working to the n-th degree. I needed a pass as well. I was pleased with the security arrangement, I was never pleased with the weekend," she said.

"I have several positive impressions and several negative ones," Vice Chancellor for Student Affairs Dennis L. Madson said last night. "The concert itself went reasonably well. A lot of people need to be complimented for pulling the thing together and making the thing run well."

Madson said he was dismayed at the number of arrests and injuries reported throughout the weekend. He also congratulated student security staffs in the residence halls.

"In terms of running a large concert we do anticipate some problems and the problems were in the realm of what we would expect. But are the problems really worth the investment? You can't expect people to come to a major concert and not have problems. But, are those kinds of problems we want to buy into? I'd like to see us work together to find other ways of having a good time," Madson said.

An avid Allman Bros. fan waves a 'Rebel' flag over the crowd Saturday at the Spring Concert. (Staff photo by J. Ferrarone)

Swami makes connection of mind, body

By MARC FAGELSON
Collegian Staff

The connection between mind and body, the potential of such a link to increase physical and mental health, were two topics discussed yesterday by Microbiology 160 class guest speaker, Swami Gopalananda.

Gopalananda described yoga and meditation as a "different kind of science" but added that they are practical and applicable to everyday life. He added that the science of yoga and meditation has existed for thousands of years.

"In yoga, the mind is one of the main things we study," he said. The mind is a contracted form of the energy which that flows through the universe, but at the same time, it serves as a barrier to inner peace because it can only act on its own past experience. The purpose of meditation, the Swami said, is to break down the mind's barriers to let an individual's universal inner energy come out.

When an individual's inner energy is realized, he said, better mental and physical health is possible because, "to get the energy moving through the body purifies it." Gopalananda described cases of his master, Swami Muktananda, healing cancer through speaking to the people and rubbing parts of their bodies.

Gopalananda denied that such cures were miracles, however, because the potential for such exists in universal energy, which is still largely untapped.

The energy is difficult to realize, he said, because the mind tends to concentrate on the negative aspects of itself and of the body. Meditation, in its varied forms, can be used to break the barriers the mind sets for itself, he added.

Gopalananda spoke to Professor Albey Reiner's "Biology of Cancer" class in Mahar Auditorium. Reiner said the purpose of having the Swami speak was to open students up to new type of thinking.

"Some of these principles have been tested and seen in laboratories, and someone who understands them is valuable. This is an absolutely true science, not a pseudo-science, we want to have an open view of it while remaining critical," Reiner said.

Gopalananda grew up in New Jersey and attended the University of Michigan, where he did his graduate work and later became a faculty member.

Records in Review

Reed's losing it

By JIM MORAN
Collegian Staff

Lou Reed
Growing Up In Public (Arista)

The latest offering from Brooklyn's inspirator of punk/New Wave, Lou Reed, represents a noticeable decline and considerable "mellowing out" by an important influence in modern rock music.

From the opening cut on side one, "How Do You Speak to an Angel?" Reed exhibits egoism, pretense and triteness in his lyrics, pumping them non-syntactically into out-of-place riffs. An example of Lou's state of mind at this point in time—"How do you/Speak to a/How do you speak to the prettiest girl/How do you speak to her/How do you dance on the head of a pin/When you're on the outside looking in."

Reed moves into the territory of complete self-indulgence, accompanied by vapid dribble about an unresolved Oedipal cycle, the most noteworthy examples of which are "My Old Man," and "Smiles," replete with misogonistic overtones, father-hating philosophy and dumb lines like this: "And then like everyone else I started to grow/And I didn't want to be like my father anymore/I was sick of his bullying/And having to hide under a desk on the floor." Right Lou—"like everyone else started to grow." And forget the Springsteen bridges.

The title track, although resting on the infamy of the singer's promiscuous songstyle, appears as "too cutely cool." If you're going to tell me you're a vulnerable artist, Lou, then you'll have to find more convincing modes of expression than noodling along with your shock-value, affected verbage. "Growing up in public with your pants down" is an unoriginal conception of vengeance against suitors better expressed by Dylan in "Idiot Wind," from Blood on the Tracks. And we know all about your "quasi-effeminate characters" wanting to give you head. Don't flatter yourself, sir.

The second side of the album gets better, though nowhere approaching the beautiful melodies on Transformer, or the fast-paced numbers on Rock and Roll Animal. "So Alone" has some nice bchoplexic guitar work. "Love Is Here To Stay" is the best song on the album, a short ballad about two hopelessly mismatched lovers. As the story goes: "She likes Truman Capote, he likes Gore Vidal" and yet the love remains—"It gets proven every day."

"Teach the Children," the last cut on the album is pastiche from Al Green's "Take Me to the River," tied-in somehow with the idealistic notion of educating youngsters before it's too late, a noble but flawed attempt at something CSNY did much better on Deja Vu. Methinks Lou needed some quick cash, though Reed and his keyboardist, Michael Fanfare did a great mixing job with the poor material.

Smokey's cool

By SARAH PATTEE
Collegian Staff

Smokey Robinson
Warm Thoughts (Motown)

It's almost impossible for me to say something mean about William "Smokey" Robinson; the man is incredible—the stuff legends are made of material, like something out of one of his many (very many) hit songs.

Starting in 1958, Smokey Robinson was resonsible for hit after hit, not only for his own Smokey Robinson and the Miracles, but for innumerable other Motown artists as well. Motown's first record, "Get a Job" was Smokey's, as were "Shop Around," "You Really Got A Hold On Me," "Ooh, Baby Baby," "Tracks of My Tears," and "Tears of A Clown," to name only a few of the Miracles' hit records during the 1960's.

Smokey also wrote a never-ending string of hits for other Motown artists, including "My Girl" (The Temptations), "My Guy" and "Get Ready" (Mary Wells), and Marvin Gaye's "Ain't That Peculiar." Wherever there was Smokey, there was fire—in the form of another hit.

Lately, however, some of the fire seems missing. Since 1971 Smokey has been going solo, first as vice-president at Motown, and then recording on his own. Not many people probably remember his last five albums, although last years' popular hit, "Cruisin' " proved Smokey's spark still flamed, although low and soulful, and not as powerful.

Eric's wreckless

By TOM ANDERSON
Collegian Staff
Wreckless Eric
Big Smash (Stiff/Epic)

The last year or so has generally been kind to the Stiffs, that eccentric bunch of New Wave rockers once loosely associated with the Stiff record label in Great Britain. Nick Lowe, Ian Dury, Ian Gomm and the Records have all had genuine hits here in America, and the popularity of Elvis Costello, Lene Lovich, Dave Edmunds and Rachel Sweet has been rising rapidly. But even in this collection of original and unusual musicians, Wreckless Eric has stood out as the real lunatic.

Although mostly ignored in the States until recently, Wreckless has put out a string of wonderful singles. This new double-record set is in fact two separate releases in one. The first disk is all new material, but the second captures the best of Wreckless' past work, including his best known hit "(I'd go the) Whole Wide World." One cannot help but notice the contrast between the two records.

To put it simply, most of the older material is just superb, with the third side being the real standout. In addition to "Whole Wide World," it includes "Take the Cash (K.A.S.H.)," "Walking on the Surface of the Moon" and "Hit and Miss Judy." the final side contains such other favorites as "Reconnez Cherie" and "Semaphore Signals." This material is also available on the album Whole Wide World, and so the obvious question is whether the new songs make Big Smash worth its price. The answer, at least from this reviewer, is a guarded "no."

The first disk is by no means a bad record. It's fairly straightforward New Wave along the lines of Graham Parker or Elvis Costello, but it just isn't up to their high standards. By itself, it would be much easier to evaluate the new material objectively. However, when pressed back-to-back with the older tunes, it just can't cut it. The pace is much slower than the manaical tempo of "Hit and Miss Judy" or "There Isn't Anything Else." The production is much less harsh, which saves the ears but sacrifices the gusty immediacy of the older songs.

In addition, the lyrics of the new songs don't really measure up with Eric's past efforts, either. One would expect to find titles like "Tonight (Is My Night)" or "Out of the Blue" on just about any run-of-the-mill New Wave album these days.

Wreckless Eric may still be quite a character, but Big Smash is a warning that he may be losing much of the eccentricity for which he's become known. That loss, alas, would be our loss also.

Author claims new JFK plot

LONDON (AP) — The 1963 assassination of President John F. Kennedy was the product of a conspiracy involving organized crime, the anti-Castro movement and a "renegade element" in U.S. intelligence, according to a book published yesterday.

The author of "Conspiracy," Anthony Summers, theorizes that Lee Harvey Oswald, named by the Warren Commission as the lone assassin, was manipulated by his intelligence contacts and may never have fired a gun the dav Kennedy was shot.

After interviewing witnesses in the United States, Mexico and Cuba, Summers also concluded that whoever controlled Oswald probably also arranged for his frameup and for his murder by Jack Ruby.

The motive for the assassination, Summers argues, was to wreck President Kennedy's moves toward improved relations with Fidel Castro's Cuba following the unsuccessful Bay of Pigs invasion in 1961, and toward detente with the Soviet Union.

AMHERST DELI
Bagels, Lox, Sandwiches & Salads
Open 2 AM
FRI & SAT
Mon - Thu till 10 PM

Work Study Positions for Summer
apply to the
Commuter Collective
404 SUB, 5-2145
The Commuter Collective, area government for students who live off-campus.

The precision haircut styled for you alone!

NO APPOINTMENT NECESSARY
GREAT EXPECTATIONS®
PRECISION HAIRCUTTERS

Get the Perfect Haircut for Graduation!

Shampoo, precision haircut, and blow-dry styling
. . . complete for $12
(Children, secondary students, & college students with ID.....
SPECIAL $10.00

WHAT'S THE ULTIMATE 4 LETTER WORD FOR THE MOVIE THAT MAKES YOU FLUSH BEFORE LEAVING?

COMING SOON TO A THEATRE NEAR YOU!

Cash for Books
CLOTH PAPER — WHETHER USED ON THIS CAMPUS OR NOT.
WE BUY ALL TITLES HAVING RESALE MARKET VALUE!
SELL THEM AT:
TEXTBOOK ANNEX
UNIV. OF MASSACHUSETTS
MAY 14 THRU 16
MAY 19 THRU 21
9:00 AM - 4:00 PM

Save Gas and Money! Amalie Imperial 2 saves gas—

up to 5% better gas mileage. And that saves you money!

NEW!

Pays for itself. And then some.

HAPCO AUTO PARTS
534 Main St. Amherst, MA
256-6414 256-6415

Editorial/Opinion

Summer bites the Big Apple

When speaking about New York City, people often use superlatives both positively and negatively. One hears tallest, biggest, brightest, and best as well as ugliest, dirtiest, coldest and meanest. Having spent most of my life in the Big Berg I would like to share a few of my impressions with you.

The city can be a vast playground. Central Park on a spring weekend is an incredible experience. The six-mile, three-lane roadway that loops its way past expanses of grass and trees is closed to automobile traffic, leaving plenty of room for people to rove around by means of whatever non-motorized transportation they wish. Standing by the road recently for a few minutes I saw people go by in a variety of ways. There were strollers, walkers, joggers and runners, bicyclists, tricyclists and unicyclists. Skateboarders came by in assorted positions—on their feet, bellies and hands, both backwards and forwards. Roller-skaters varied in quality from those barely able to stand to roller-disco virtuosos. One man came barreling down a hill on skates pushing a baby-stroller in front of him and the kid seemed to love every wind-buffeted minute of it.

EVERETT HARMAN

The park is a showcase of musical talent ranging in style from classical to rock, latin and jazz. There are violinists, chamber groups, banjo players and percussion ensembles. People just bring their instruments down and jam. One person might start playing a conga drum and a flutist might join in followed by a bongo player. Before long people are bumping and moving to the rhythm of the beat.

Food is one of the greatest resources of the city. Its diverse population has brought delicacies from all over the world. You can find souvlaki, Peking duck, truite munière, plantanos fritos, baba ganoush, weiner schnitzel, fettucine al fredo, poi, hot pastrami and whatever else you might want to nibble on. There are over 3,000 Chinese restaurants alone in the city. And it's not even necessary to go to a restaurant to find a tasty morsel as there are peddlars everywhere hawking hot dogs, hamburgers, ice cream and more exotic tidbits.

A walk through Manhattan can lead one through a vast variety of neighborhoods—from bustling and business like Wall Street to densly populated Chinatown with its hundreds of restaurants, food stores and novelty shops, to the clam-bars, pasta houses and dessert emporia of Little Italy, clubs, cafes and coffeehouses of Greenwich Village, skyscrapers, glittering lights, Broadway theaters and sleazy porno-houses of midtown, museums and posh residences of the upper east-side, art and culture of the upper west-side and the beat, rhythm and soul of black and Spanish Harlem.

Although it can be expensive to enjoy many of the pleasures of New York, there is much that costs little or nothing. One can ride the Staten Island ferry round trip for 25 cents and get a beautiful view of the Statue of Liberty and New York harbor. There are many free and low priced outdoor concerts given throughout the city during the summer. Many small theater, music and dance groups put on performances for a dollar or two and concerts in schools of music such as Julliard are often free. With a little nerve, one may indulge in "second-acting," a tradition among the less affluent aficionados of theater, wherein one walks in on the second act of a show, since tickets aren't rechecked after intermission. For the more honest or less daring of us there are tickets sold at half-price every afternoon for shows which have not sold out that day.

The subway system provides quick transportation and is itself a source of entertainment. The cars are painted both inside and out by neo-abstract-impressionists such as the young master "Angie 185 street." There is also a variety of live entertainers on the train such as flashers, drag queens and martial-artists. But fear not, there is a group of young volunteers sporting red berets and calling themselves the Guardian Angels who patrol the subways on their own time to protect the citizenry. When you see them, you feel good that they're on your side, because they look tough enough to scare the fuzz off a peach.

There's a long summer ahead of us. Try to spend a bit of it in the Big Apple. I think you'll enjoy it.

Everett Harman is a Collegian columnist.

"WHY DON'T YOU GO BACK AND HIDE IN THE TREES, AND LET ME TAKE OVER THE THUMBING FOR A WHILE!"

Applications for the position of Associate Executive (editorial page) Editor are due Wednesday, May 14. The position involves assisting the Executive Editor in editing columns and letters, laying out the editorial page, selecting material for publication, and more. So if you've filled out an application but haven't turned it in, or if you haven't filled one out and would like to, then come down to the Collegian office by 6:00 p.m. tomorrow. If you don't, I'll cry.

—E.J.

Letters

Concert comments

To the Editor:

I am enraged by the conduct of a number of UPC members at Spring Concert. It is a farce to call the security staff "security" when they actively exploit their positions and the people attending the concert whom they are ostensibly protecting. I have personally heard a surprising number of people who worked security brag of their money-making techniques. For a few bucks, they would play blind to liquor that was carried in containers that violated specifications, while others were busy reselling unripped collected tickets outside the gates for personal profits.

To think this conduct would not go on at all at such a large event is naive, but I am disgusted at the large number of people who participated. Spring Concert should not be a way for certain individuals to make HUNDREDS of dollars under the guise of "security." Perhaps if more responsible people worked security, UPC as an organization wouldn't be losing money on tickets while some of its members, wearing UPC T-shirts, were turning the event into such a profitable day.

Name withheld by request

To the Editors:

I think the campus owes a debt of gratitude to the students who worked dormitory security during the Spring Concert. Particularly the dormitory security coordinators who had to plan the operation not knowing how much internal back up they would have.

Many of these people, knowing exams are coming up, still worked long hours, depriving themselves of sleep to face tremendous peer pressure and untold numbers of aggressive drunks.

The amount of money earned will never pay these persons for the work they accomplished. The campus owes them recognition.

J.E. Fitzgerald
Housing Security Office
Dickinson Hall

A case of harassment

Dear Asshole,

This is difficult for me to do because you are the first one who has done this to me. No, I guess I'm wrong. You are the one who made me realize that it was a case of sexual harassment. You visually raped me. You verbally abused me. I did nothing to provoke your comment: "Will you use me?" you said. I'd like to, but as a punching bag and nothing else. From that, your friend picked up where you left off. He cornered me, leaving me with no room to escape his clutches and groping hands. I felt vulnerable and humiliated, and it was your fault. I didn't ask for you to step into my life and disrupt it this way, and I resent you for having the audacity to do so.

I also resent you for making me realize that I could be prone to harming someone physically and seriously because of your vulgar behavior. I am not the only woman on this campus who has been treated this way, and you're not the only male [?] who has acted this way. Why is it because we are women that we can't walk down the street confident of not having to deal with your harassment? You have that security and we are entitled to the same. It really bothers me. Why do I feel so low when you are the real scum of the earth?

Name withheld by request

Deliberate annoyance

Dear Editor:

I'd like to make an additional comment about disrespectful fraternity noise. As a Gorman resident living next to an obnoxious frat (I don't know, or care what its name is) I can easily say this frat is filled with both boozers and bozos.

Yesterday while trying to study I was delighted to hear twenty minutes of banging of sticks on kegs. It was a deliberate act to annoy the dorm's residents. I would think that with upcoming exams some of them might want to study, but I guess they had better things to do. This is not the first time I, or other people, have been irritated by this mob of clamorous babies that insist on doing whatever they please, regardless of others. This kind of action makes me want to blow fraternities off the face of the Earth, not Iran.

A Gorman resident

Misbehavior not typical

Dear Editor:

I would like to comment on the recent letter concerning Lambda Chi Alpha by Professor Peter Iron. I can honestly say that I know the brothers there very well and I feel just in voicing my opinion.

The letter that was written commenting on the behavior of the brothers was very biased and misleading. It concluded that these men act like that every night. During the course of this semester, they were loud and out of hand only two nights. One night was because of charter installations, when they became a National Fraternity. The other was because of newly initiated brothers celebrating. Both of these nights were very special to the brothers and it's very understandable as to why the party got too loud.

I just think that two nights in a semester should not constitute a letter like the one Professor Iron wrote. A letter like that puts down fraternities and the entire Greek System. Everyone has a couple nights in their life when things get out of hand. The solution is not to give the other party a degrading reputation for it. They're nice guys and would listen to your complaints, Professor Iron.

Carolyn R. Kearney
Chi Omega
Frat/Sorority Park

MASSACHUSETTS DAILY
Collegian

STEPHEN B. KLEIN, Editor in Chief, JULIE EAGLE, Managing Editor, FREDERIC M. KEILLOR, Business Manager, JACK GALLAGHER, News Editor, ROB BURBANK, Executive Editor, LISA CAPONE, Women's Editor, RENEE MOBLEY, Black Affairs Editor, JIM MAHONEY, Photo Editor, SUZETTE COURTMANCHE, Graphics Manager, JIM DEGNIM, Sports Editor, JIM MORAN, Fine Arts Editor.

The Collegian is the student newspaper of the University of Massachusetts at Amherst. The staff is responsible for its content and no faculty member or administration head is for accuracy or approval prior to publication.

Unsigned editorials represent the views of the paper. They do not necessarily reflect the views of the faculty, administration, or student body as a whole. Signed editorials, columns, reviews, cartoons and letters represent the personal views of the authors.

The Collegian is a member of the Associated Press. Publication of their material does not constitute endorsement.

The Collegian strives to print only advertising which is truthful and complete, but final responsibility for all advertisements lies with the actual advertisers.

USPS 333 220

SELL IT Collegian
SELL IT Classifieds

MASSACHUSETTS BAY COMMUNITY COLLEGE
Division of Continuing Education
MAKE UP THAT COURSE THIS SUMMER
First Day Session and Evening
Session Begin June 2
50 Oakland St., Wellesley Hills, MA 02181
Tel. (617) 237-1100 ext. 132

"ENDLESSLY FASCINATING"
—The New York Times
"Rich in historical and political background the novel has a raw energy and sensibility not often encountered". —Publishers Weekly
"A major work of fiction" —Black Scholar
"Laughter, love, suspense and startling insight. The novel deserves a cult of its own" —Essence Magazine

$7.95
now available at University Store
GROVE PRESS

Strawberry Patch
Handcrafts - Gifts
Opening May 17
Next Door to Carburs 586-6453
M - S 10 - 5 Sun 12 - 5

fly!

learn to fly this summer!
membership now available
for information call:
549-6854 or 549-3800
UMASS FLYING CLUB

Come on Down
to the
IMPROPER BOSTONIAN/GROGGERY
Enjoy Cape Cod's Finest "Happy Hour" Entertainment

IMPROPER BOSTONIAN	GROGGERY
Mon. Michael Jackson	Talk of the Town
Tues. Gordie Milne	closed Tues. Eves.
Wed. Two Way Street	Closed til July 4
Thurs. Two Way Street	Golden Joe Baker
Fri. Two Way Street	Talk of the Town
Sat. Jim Plunkett (Happy Hour)	J.D., Billy & Ken
Billy Whyte/Mike Sullivan (Eve)
Sun. Jim Plunkett (Happy Hour)	Closed Sun. Eves.
Moxie (Eve)

Featuring evening cocktail specials
Mon. thru Thurs.
Rt. 28 Dennisport, Mass.

1980 Commencement Information
University of Massachusetts at Amherst

Date: Saturday, May 24, 1980
Time: 10:00 am
Place: Alumni Stadium

Any undergraduate degree candidate who anticipates completing degree requirements by the end of the calendar year 1980 is eligible to participate in the 1980 ceremony. Questions concerning undergraduate academic status should be directed to the Records Office, Whitmore Building, 545-0555. Graduate students should direct questions to the Office of Degree Requirements, GRC, 545-0025.

COMMENCEMENT DAY SCHEDULE

9:00 am Robing for Commencement:
-Masters/Doctoral candidates assemble at the northwest end of the stadium (on the gravel area);
-Arts and Sciences graduates assemble at the southwest end of the stadium (on the gravel area between the facilities building and the stadium wall);
Physical Education, Health Sciences, Engineering, Education and Non-traditional Program candidates assemble at the southeast end of the stadium (on the gravel area between the facilities building and the stadium wall);
-Food & Natural Resources and Business candidates assemble at the northeast end of the stadium (on the gravel area).
-Signs will be displayed along the outside of the stadium walls. Appropriately colored signs, coordinated with tassel colors, will be displayed inside the stadium. All candidates should sit with their School or College.

9:30 am Seating of Graduates
10:00 am Commencement Procession begins
12 noon Commencement Ceremony ends

Distribution of Caps and Gowns
Where: University Store
Times: 10 am - 4 pm, Monday-Friday
When: April 28 - May 23, 1980
Also: 8 am - 10 am, Saturday, May 24th (at the stadium)
Doctoral Hoods are available at a cost of $26.00 each.
PLEASE BRING YOUR I.D.!

Accommodations: a limited number of rooms are available for relatives and other guests the nights of May 23 & 24 in University Housing. Please contact the University Conference Office at 545-2591.

In the event of rain: there is no alternative rain site. Commmencement will be held outside in the Alumni Stadium regardless of the weather. A delay of two (2) hours will be announced in the event of heavy rains and cancellation in the event of torrential rains. Please listen to local radio stations th morning of may 24 for announcements of delay or cancellation.

Invitations are not required for admittance. Seating for guests will be on a first come, first served basis.

If additional information is needed, contact the Office of Public Affairs at 545-2560.

Cuban refugee arrested as former US skyjacker

By DAN SEWELL
Associated Press

KEY WEST, Fla. — A Cuban refugee among the thousands streaming into Florida on the "Freedom Flotilla' was arrested yesterday and charged with hijacking a U.S. jetliner and diverting it to Cuba with 82 people aboard 11 years ago.

Meanwhile, the flow of refugees reaching Key West slowed to a trickle after 5,353 checked in Sunday, about 1,000 more than had arrived on any previous day.

Officials said weather conditions in the 90-mile stretch of the Straits of Florida between the Cuban port of Mariel and Key West were relatively calm and they didn't know what caused the slowdown.

"Anything I could tell you would be speculation and I don't want to get into that," said William Traugh of the Federal Emergency Management Agency.

Refugee processing also continued at Eglin Air Force Base in North Florida and Fort Chafee, Ark., and the White House announced plans to open new centers in Maryland and Pennsylvania.

The Carter administration said new centers at the Indiantown Gap National Guard Center near Harrisburg, Pa., and the former Bainbridge Naval Training Center northeast of Baltimore should be ready to open in several weeks.

The men's heavy-weight eight were the winners of the Division Two Nationals last weekend. Included in the boat are coxswain John Cusick (in middle), John Frackleton, Curt Kuehner, Robert Hanson, Chris Ives, John Dow, James Rogalski, David Kolazyk and Patrick Bronder. (Staff photo by Cheryl Senter)

Tired of Being Left Out in the Cold?
The Collegian advertising department is looking to warm up your life! If you have a car, 15 hours a week and a lot of motivation, then we would like you to be an advertising representative next semester. Sound interesting? Stop by the Collegian Office — 113 CC and talk it over with Katie Kress, Ken GrandPre, or Joan Daly. Or call 545-3500.
The Collegian is an affirmative action, equal opportunity employer.

WIN A $100.00 GIFT CERTIFICATE
Good at any participating AMHERST BUSINESS
5 - $20.00 second prizes, too!
Register at any participating store during
SIDEWALK SALE DAYS
May 15, 16, 17
Hours: Not Much Like Today's Amherst, Massachusetts
sponsored by the Amherst Downtown Council

A QUALITY MUSIC STORAGE SYSTEM THAT CAN BE YOURS FOR A SONG

Teac CX-211 Cassette Deck $159
Maxell UD & UDXL II Cassettes $2.10 to $4.05

To properly store music you need reliable cassettes, a rugged deck and performance equal to the task of preserving the integrity of the music. At Sound & Music our technician individually calibrates every Teac CX-211 for optimum performance with premium tapes such as Maxell UD & UDXL II. The result is sound quality we frankly wouldn't have thought posible at a price this low.

Come hear the entire line of Teac cassette decks at Sound & Music soon. (Authorized Teac warranty service available in our own shop.)

SOUND & MUSIC
Good Advice - Honest Price
Thursday & Friday 'til 9
Mon.-Sat. 10-5
584-9547
90-92 King St (Rte. 5) Northampton

campus center, umass
the UNIVERSITY STORE

Collegian Classifieds

To place a Collegian Classified
•Come to Collegian Office CC 113
•8:45 to 3:45 Mon-Fri
•Classified deadline is 3:45 two days prior to publication day

Collegian Classified Rates
•15c per word
•Student rate 10c per word
•Cash in advance
•5 consecutive days 5 % discount
•Phone number FREE

AUDIO

Must sell Sony Stereo System excellent condition $170 call Nory 546-6899

Panasonic Stereo w/built in cassette recorder & 2 speakers $150 546-6945

AUTO FOR SALE

1966 Jeep CJ5 V-6 4WD, new top, price negotiable 549-1098

1970 VW Squareback excellent mechanical condition, body rusted $400 665-2802

1977 Triumph TR-7 coupe Excellent condition, sunroof, green with tan interior, 37,000, handles superbly $4400.00 545-3540 days; 1-498-2466 eves

(Must Sell) 67 Impala Convertible BO Peter 549-0618

1968 Mustang Cheap call Bill at 546-6187

1969 Mustang sedan 300.oo 527-3975

1973 Cadillac Coupe low mileage uses reg gas runs exc $1300.00 Brad 256-0200

Pont Lemans 1969 engine good, body fair, some work needed on interior and brakes, great for Summer must sell $400 negotiable 546-6985

73 Renault 12 30 mpg 4 door 4 speed very good condition $1425 must be seen 665-7567

MG Midget wide open, winding roads $900 549-6146

1974 Austin Marina 2 cyl 4 speed good gas mileage 80,000 mi $450 or BO 546-7067

1975 Plymouth Scamp auto trans. power steering air condition ex. cond. 60,000 milers 549-6598 or 546-9871

1970 Maverick excellent gas mileage and mechanical condition $450 253-3540

EXAM WEEK SPECIAL

Hungry? See Rooster's Exam Week Special, May 15-21

FOR RENT

Economy Apt 3 bedrooms, extra storage rooms. June and Sept terms $235 plus partial utilities Call 5-6 pm Skibiski Realtors Northampton 584-3428

Cliffside 1 bedroom sub lease Avail May 19. $200 Fall option 665-2802

Southwood 2 bdrm townhouse Dirt Cheap call 256-6089

FREE, one months rent. 4 bdr apt Summer sublet w Fall opt 256-0778

Room in house for rent end of May-Aug $90 per month 10 min from Campus and Amherst Center call Laurie eve 256-0637

Rooms for Summer rental Amherst price negotiable call 6-5081 or 546-5100

Summer rooms for rent $70, $80 and $90 price includes utilities use of kitchen color TV much more singles, doubles, and triples at 395 No Pleasant St. 253-9987

2 bedroom Colonial Village Apt bus route June 1 with option call Lisa Robin evenings 253-3740

2 bdrm apt Colonial Village nice, across from bus stop Rt neg June 1 Fall option 253-3195

1 large bedroom in 4 bdrm house near center Nhampton avail July 1 $75 + util call 586-8192

Summer Rentals at reasonable prices Zeta Psi Fraternity is one block from campus. Call 256-6845 for more information

House in North Amherst available June 1st w/Fall option. 5 minute walk to bus, bar, and groceries. $100/month/bedroom plus utilities call evenings 549-0319

One bedroom of three Puffton, swimming pool, tennis courts, Summer $95.00/mo; call 549-1421

Summer Sublet/Fall option 1 bdrm apt Cliffside $192 incl utl 665-7966

2 bedrooms available $85 per month inc electriucity, bus route, Fall option, perfect for nonsmoker who likes animals 253-7573

2 bedroom Colonial Village apt June 1 with Fall option, bus route evenings 549-3926

2 bedroom apt available June 1 with Fall option $240 includes all utilities call 549-5935

FOR SALE

Dacor tank 72 Cl & reg $150 Steve 256-6388

Couch, two easy chairs, footstool $100 or best offer 665-7526

5 cubic foot refrigerator must sell moving off campus excellent condition $40 or BO call 546-7940 call after 4:00

Electric Mandolin $75 Mederia banjo 5-5693

Refrigerator 4 cu ft excel cond $95 6-8133 PM

Twin bed, Boxspring $40 or BO call Mary 549-0029

Fender electric guitar $250 or BO ask for Mike 5-0850 or 6-1055

For Sale: ten speed bike good condition and a double burner hot plate cheap great for the dorms call Laura 6-9814

Sofa green, very comfortable, excellent condition $150 or BO 253-3787 after 6 keep trying

Single bed good cond, available May 19 offers call Julie 549-4882

Piccolo $150 Flute Gemienhardt open-hole M3 $250 both in perfect condition 546-5723 keep trying

Large bureau with mirror 549-4059

Refrgerator dorm-sized, excellent condition call 546-9181

5 sp. Ross bike good condition. $100 call John 253-7841

Attention Big Sale moving to warm climate, selling winter clothes 549-5129 after 6:00 PM

Single bed brass headboard BO 256-6352

FOUND

Keys found at Southwest Spring Concert six keys on a key ring. Please call 545-0960 or come to the Southwest Asssembly Office in Hamden Center!!!

A set of keys near Herter Stop by Collegian

1 key chain outside Hampshire DC ID call 6-7834

To the former Greenough Snackbar regular you left your calculator at the campus center coffee shop 5/8 call Anne 546-1176

HELP WANTED

Summer work with the oldest, largest and best-paying student program in the country. Call 253-2597 for interviews.

Collegian Photo Dept. needs asst. editors for next semester. See Paul Price at Collegian Office, 113 Campus Center or call 545-3500

We provide a house, a salary range of $10,000 to 14,800 + additional stuff. We are looking for a couple who can create a home, in our house, with 4 to 6 teens. Couple should have knowledge of court related adolescents, an ability to relate and set limits, plus a sense of humor. For more info – call the home finder at the Center for Human Development at 733-6624 or send resume to CHD 52 Maple Court, Springfield, Mass 01105

Summer workstudy on campus Organizing a teen conference and two international exchanges 219 Stockbridge Hall 545-2646

Summer Workstudy Ashland, Framingham Instructors in day-camp situation in nutrition, excercise, gardening or environment 219 Stockbridge Hall 545-2646

Senior business major – hasa job – needs a wife. Preferably a good cook. Call Steve for an interview 549-5875.

HOUSE FOR RENT 1981

Beautifully restored 200 year old Cape in Pelham. 5 rooms, 2 fireplaces & woodstove. Available January, 1981 $430 + utilities 253-7233

INSTRUCTION

Basic Auto-Mechanics Workshop. Summer class forming, 28 hours of instruction including classroom theory and shop. Limited enrollment. 253-7967

LOST

Anyone that found some tools in a gray toolbox and a tune up analyzer in a styrofoam box next to Cashin please contact Don at 546-5984 I need them!

Lost blue notebook contained 25 page paper in Spanish please call 549-5507

Denim Jacket/Senate meeting Wednesday Ellen 6-4966

MOTORCYCLES

Yamaha 750 excellent condition $1000.00 253-7324

1978 Kawasaki KZ650 excellent condition extras best offer 549-4547

Yamaha 76 Enduro $550 Suzuki 77 RM125 $500 549-3597 after 6:00 PM

MOVING HASSLES?

Co-operative moving of goods to Washington DC area. If interested call Susan 772-6259 after 8:00 PM

NEED A ROOMATE FOR FALL?

Call 546-6742, late

NEED A SUMMER JOB?

Staff members wanted for Summer co-ed camp in Maine If interested, please call (413) 567-6356 after 4 PM

PERSONALS

Sporting Goods Co-op: Clearance sale open Mon-Fri 10-3 (next to Post Office in Student Union)

Lambda DeltaPhi needs boarders for Fall Call 5-0939 ask for Mary stop by 389 North Pleasant

"Lets go trucking" Chevy pickup and cowboy will move your rags and riches at a reasonable rate leave message for Wayne 665-4721

Painter—Happy Graduation to our upchucking Piccasso--Congratulations!! One more mural for Grad School Baker, Mr. Galvs, Smitty, Red, L.D., Vanilla Thunder

Here's to Haggerty Brown Zappa's biggest fan

Dave Can you believe it's been four already remember when in doubt whip it out Howie

Charismatic Bible Study CC 811-813 Tuesday May 13 8-10 PM

Jenson Bummies!!

Marsha good luck this Summer I'll miss you Matt

Thatcher 3rd Take it easy this Summer Real easy! - 306

Steve—One last time (maybe) Thanks for the use of your car. You Know Who Lost Thursday 5/8 Brown Wallet with Connecticut license, birthdate 4/3/59, UMass ID, and press card. Also silver rimmed glasses in turquoise case Call Julie 549-2664 or 545-3500

Lost at Spring Concert Kodak tote bag with Canonet camera and film with sentimental value. Reward. 549-2664

Kim Dutton—Five years later and finally a personal that leaves no doubt. It's for you. Happy Birthday!

Hi Charlotte—Just a little messsage from a good friend wishing you a Happy Graduation. Good luck on your finals. Have a good Summer. Tim

To Beth and Michelle—Thanks to a great group of officers, I couldn't have done it without you. Anne

Congratulations Beth you'll be a great President call me if you need any help Best of Luck Anne

Karylyn, Cyndi, Diana, Stew, Patty, and Donna—UMass track will never be the same! Don't get "scrod" out there. Good luck always! Love, the team

Happy 22nd Jeanne Maybe someday you'll look it. Munch and Persie

404 Cashin Senior: Thanks for a very interesting year

Michelle—Cape Cod or bust? Wilbur

Bob, Now it's your turn, hop you are happy now. My

Seniors—Thanx for everything in and out of the Corps and AAS—Good Luck—Disco

Tardy smile I.L.Y. Lori

Super friends does a super semester make. Spinners and hairbrushes forever!

Mom, Auntie D, Nanarosanna and past and present staff of Coolidge—You've made it all worthwhile! Lots of love 9th RA

Jeehn-NY, my honey----you make me melt all over

To my brothers in Zeta Psi, I wish you the best of luck for the future. You've got the best! (Don't let it Go!) Your Brother in TKI, Scott-AZ 1980

To Sigma Kappa, We cannot repay you for all you've done for us. You are the best! Thank you, Scott-Zeta Psi '80

PROFESSORS SPECIAL

Exterior House Painting experienced grads. References, free estimates, quality work. Please call Steve 256-6644

RIDE WANTED

From S. Hadley to Umass daily during Summer session call Nina 532-0218

Ride wanted to NYC May 15-16 call Alison 549-1046

ROOMATE WANTED

Female roommate wanted for Brdywne apt., start 9/1, Janet or Nancy—545-2800 btwn 9-4

3 quiet housemates seek 4th Pelham yard, woods. Summer, Fall option; $106 + negotiable 253-3528 after 6 pm

Townehouse Apt need 2 or 3 roomates June-Aug $70/mo fully furnished call 549-1420

Puffton Village 1 bdrm in 3 bdrm apt for Summer pool, A.C., 549-4196

West Yarmouth Cottage female roomate wanted very resonable Missy 586-1752

Summer roomate wanted Cliffside own large bedroom furnished pool, tennis courts 135.00/mo negotiable 665-2020 late evenings best

2 vacancies female preferred house mile from campus call 549-6882

Martha's Vineyard person needed to share ideal Summer home Walt 549-3981

Roomate wanted to share large house in N Amherst from June 1 - Sept 1 rent $108.00 549-6547

Brandywine one or two roomates wanted Fall option Summer sublet call Kath or Lisa 549-4033 nice spacious place

Space for one Amherst house starting Fall sem call for details! 323-5262

Two rooms available (individually) for Summer sublet in three bedroom Townehouse apartment semi-furnished Fall opt for sublettors, on two bus routes Bay State phone, HBO---prefer non-smoker, student,very reasonable 549-5192

Female roomate needed for cottage on beach Harwichport, 575 Summer call Lisa 253-7788 or Niki 546-6070

2 rooms in 3 room Puffton apt available for Summer, 1 with Fall option. Air cond, tennis, swimming pool, on bus route call 549-5791

2 females needed for W. Yarmouth cottage call nights 549-0339

Two female nonsmokers to share two bedroom Brandywine Fall 546-7968 Rose, Laura

Wanted considerate female roomate for Brandywine Sep-June call 549-6632

Male roomate wanted for Fall Brittany manor Apt 256-6747

Roomate wanted for two bedroom Townhouse Squire Village Summer large room with large walkin closet 665-2013

1 or 2 people Cottage in South Dennis May 23 to Sept 10 256-8704

Summer roomate, furnished, inexpensive Colonial Village 253-9553

Male/fem to share lg apt w/2 others So Deerfield, smokers OK 105/mo util incl on bus rte beg June 665-3092

Puffton Vill one room for two $75 each 549-6146

One roomate wanted for Fall semester in sedate 3 bedroom Townhouse in North Amherst ½ mile from Campus 549-5134

Male roomate wanted to share room in 2 bdr. apt. Summer only $60 a mo. call 546-8026

Female non-smoker wanted to share country house, 6 miles from campus, bus route, low rent 253-3540/665-4807

ROOM WANTED

Female needs housing for Fall call Pat 665-4197

Fall semester—female needs room near Campus/bus Call karen 549-3677

SERVICES

UMass Legal Services Office offers free legal services to fee-paying graduate and undergraduate students in the areas of University administrative problems; landlord/tenant disputes; and uncontested divorces and guardianships. LSO also gives advice on Small Claims Court, and limited counselling in criminal matters. Call 545-1995; Room 922 Campus Center UMass.

Need help moving? Student with truck will help or consider renting truck. Tim 253-3366

Canadian Immigration Loyan Consultants Ltd. (Established 1973), offices in Hong Kong and Vancouver. Experienced advice offered in connection with immigration to Canada. All enquiries will be treated in confidence. Please send all enquiries to: Suite 1205 IBM Tower P.O. Box 10153 Vancouver, B.C. Canada V7Y 1C6

Mover—Low rates no job too small call Will morn 586-1263 1 PM - 9 PM 545-0997

STORAGE SPACE

Going home for the Summer? Store your small furniture and personal propertyy in a totally secure and fully insured warehouse. Pick-up and delivery available. Call 594-0548 between 2:00-5:00 PM for reasonable rates

SUMMER BORDERS WANTED

Convenient on-campus location single and double rooms available first come-first serve please call 253-3919 after 6:00 PM

SUMMER SUBLET

Inexpensive Summer sublet! Only $200.-per month 2 bedroom fully furnished, A/C, pool, garden plots, etc. to see it is to love it! Call now! 665-7756

3 furn bedrooms 70+ Amherst 253-7082

2 bdrm Amherst ctr 1 block from common $225 253-0204

Puffers Pond 2 bedroom apt June 1 to Aug 30 549-4055

Nuke the Whale by Danny Guidera

Bean by Kevin X. McNamara

4 by Frank Emery

Crossword

UNITED Feature Syndicate
Monday's Puzzle Solved

ACROSS
1 Mops up: Var.
6 War god
10 Betel: Var.
14 Scarlett —
15 Infant
16 German river
17 Reposition
18 Swiss commune
19 Opera star
20 Impose
22 Embarrassed
24 Journey
26 Northwest city
27 North Carolinians
31 Map abbr.
32 Lilies
33 After Fr.
35 Lick
38 Twinkling body
39 Endured
40 Strong wind
41 Grass
42 Turn aside
43 Move easily
44 Holy fig.
45 Bull's foe
47 Make believe
51 Sprints
52 Avenges
54 Sewed
58 Constantly
59 Oriental nurse
61 Coronet
62 Certain
63 Moon goddess
64 Inward
65 Asian holidays
66 Bothers
67 Otaries

DOWN
1 Angry
2 At what time
3 Kiln
4 Recess
5 Lampoons
6 Recipe abbr.
7 Filament
8 Hautboys
9 Depicted
10 Staid
11 Decree
12 Have fun
13 Turkish decree
21 Untruth
23 Tallows
25 Overlay
27 News agcy.
28 Singer
29 Highway
30 Wear
34 Helicopter part
35 Placed
36 Man's name
37 Equal
39 Du Maurier character
40 Wrapping paper
42 Sun disk
43 D.C. and Ottawa
44 Cubic meters
46 Scrape
47 Wage advance
48 Stage show
49 Turn inside out
50 Object
53 Subsided
55 Bye-bye
56 Of an age
57 Moms and —
60 Possesses

Lunch
Deli Beef Sandwich
Eggs Foo Yung/Duc Sauce

Basics Lunch
Spinach Wheat Croquettes/Tomato Sauce
Eggs Foo Yung/Duc Sauce

Dinner
14th Annual BBQ
Franklin Indoor Menu:
Barbecued Chicken
Macaroni and Cheese
Baked Beans with Pork

June 1 - August 30 Nutting Avenue partially furnished 3 bedroom apartment 325/month 546-4909/546-4919

New Listing 2 rooms house Amherst center SW pool across St. $100 549-0801 great location

Furn Rm in house rate neg 546-5684

Brandywine two bedroom apt great deal fully furnished 200 per month call 549-0128 for details

TO SUBLET

2 bdr apt Colonial Vlg June-Aug $190/month bus rte 256-8454

1 4 bedroom apt Swiss Village bus rte Fall option scenic view 256-6344

Summer Sublet Swiss Village 4 bdrm 2 baths has sliding glass door on to second floor balcony. Best offer 253-9407 after 5:00

Sublet house June-Aug in Northampton $341 per month plus utilities call 5-6 pm Skibiski Realtors 584-3428

3 bedroom Rolling Green June-August $265 a month or BO utilities inc 546-9637 546-9609 546-9748

Pufton Summer lease 1 bd. Fall opt. 549-6637 again eves

Summer sublet two bedrooms in four bedroom apt. One with Fall option. On bus route. Call 253-7220 evenings price negotiable

3 bedroom Townehouse Apts fully furnished $225 or best offer 549-5897

1 bedroom in 3 bedroom Puffton Apt Summer sublet rent negotiable 549-6803

2 bedrooms available in Swiss Village cheap rent everything included for June to August call 253-3534 or 546-8079

Southwood 2 bd twnhs June-Aug w/Fall opt rent negotiable call Fred 549-2614

Two bedroomRolling Green A/C, pool, bus rt, all utilities, furnished 6/1-8/30 253-5210 $250. or Bo

3 bedroom Apt 215/month Amherst Center 256-0365

$75 own room in quiet 2 bdrm house Cushman, bus route, sublet June-Aug Sandy 549-0258 5-7 PM

2 bedroom apart Brandywine partly furnished A/C, pool,call Beaver, "D", WoJo 545-0210

BEST BUY 2 BDRM PRESIDENTIAL APT CALL 549-2652

2 bedrooms in Swiss Village apartment $75 each/month negotiable 6-1 9-1 call 253-7857

2 bedroom Brandywine fully furnished, on bus routes Summer only price negotiable 549-2832

Riverglade Apt 2 bdrm $255. Call 253-7478

Sunny 2 bdrm apt in Colonial Village bus rt swimming pool Fall option $225 253-7714

Bdrm 6/1 to 8/31 nr UM & Am Center great for Summer rent neg 549-6467

1 bdrm Cliffside Apt Summer with Fall option rent negotiable 665-2487 eves

2 bedroom Cliffside Apt Sunderland Summer w Fall option 200 mo 665-7703

Puffton Village 3 bedroom apt lease June 1 call 549-0165

1 or 2 bedrooms in Puffton furnished rent negotiable Bill 546-6005 6/1-8/31

1 bdrm in 5 bdrm house 1 block from campus w/Fall option 549-4620

1 bdrm Cliffside apt on bus route pool tennis AC cable TV June-Aug w/Fall opt $200/month 665-4891 after 5 PM

1 bedroom/efficiency Fall option furnished Amherst 549-5038

Townhouse Apts 2 bdrms furnished rent negot June-August 549-4915

3 bedroom Puffton Apt. furnished rent negotiable 549-4874

2 bedroom Colonial Village Summer sublet, pool, bus route, 225/mo 256-6281

Amherst Center Summer sublet negotiable 256-0304

2 bedroom apt 1½ mi from Campus near Puffers Pond AC utilities included available June 1 with Fall option 549-0098

Rooms in house Summer Fall option N Amherst acre of land bus rte 549-4001 eves

2 bedroom Colonial Village late May w/Fall option, bus, pool, reduced rent, 253-2457 3-7 PM

Swiss Village 4 bedroom apt on bus route/2nd floor--nice view subletting for Summer with option for Fall $110/mo call 253-5348

Puffton Village 2 bedroom furnished or unfurnished June 1 - August 31 $230 (negotiable) 549-6420

Sunderland two bedroom Summer sublet Fall option bus route 665-7954

Female roomate to share two bedroom apt between UMass and Amherst center rent reasonable negotiable 256-8867

2 bedroom Townhouse apt -Southwood $175 month June 1 Aug 31call 253-9447

3 bdrm Townehouse Apt 6/1 - 8/31 rent negotiable great location 546-5090

Female roomate wanted own room bus rt low rent June-Aug 253-3246

Squire Village 1 room availabel Summer attractive, on bus route rent negotiable/reasonable 665-4111 late

2 bedroom Townhouse apt in Southwood apts furn, air cond, pool, June 1 - Aug 30 call 253-9447

2 bdr Southwood Townhouse apt Summer sublet w/Fall option bus route call mornings evenings rent negotiable 253-7884

Free color TV when you sublet one bedroom apt Cliffside bus route, bar, store, woods rent 175 incl utilities 665-7005 anytime

2 bedroom Townhouse apt $230 Fall option 549-1675

2 bedroom Puffton Village Summer w/Fall option $225 mo neg 549-0455

2 bdrm Lincoln apts Ju 22-Aug 30 under $200 mthly incl call 549-6279

4 out of 5 bedrooms Large S. Amherst house. For Summer. Pool, patio plus full usage near bus rent negotiable 546-1114, 546-1126

Townhouse in Sunderland for Summer, pool, tennis. Rent negotiable 665-2077 after 5:00

2 rm apt in Amherst June - August $150/month including utilities exc Summer locale call Michael or Jeannie 253-7284 after 5

1 bedroom Swiss Village 90 month incl. util. call Sue 256-8610

Summer Sublet!! One room Colonial Village busroute, pool, $110, neg. 253-3956

2 bedroom Townhouse fully furnished clean busroute pool air conditioning 256-8883 $200/month

Unbelieveable bargain Brandywine Apt take it over June w/option for Fall at last yrs rental prices 549-6152

2 bdrm apt Colonial Village for June 1 option for Fall furnished 545-2707 (ask for John Muggee) or 253-2204

Desparate sublet Colonial Village $175 2 bedoom Fall option call after 7:00 253-3141

Two rooms available for Summer in beautiful Leverett duplex Fall option $113/mo 549-6846

3 bedroom house w/2 baths 1.5 miles from campus ½ mile from Ams center close to bus stop $300/month avail May 25th to Aug 31 call 253-2657 soon!

Free $100/extras if you rent our 2 bedroom apt for the Summer call for info 665-7787

TOWNHOUSE SUMMER/FALL OPTION

Two bedroom A/C 549-2659

WANTED

Cash for Gold or Silver items Antiques too call 546-7369 Cheryl

Cash! Top dollars for school rings, gold, ect. At Wendy Fun Funk & Punk CC Concourse twice a week

Are you leaving? I'm staying and need a desk, bike, bookcases or other good furniture 256-0337

WANTED TO RENT

Wanted—Two bedroom in Puffton for Summer with Fall option willing to pay full rent call Joanne anytime 253-7503 keep trying!

Wanted Summer and Fall one or two bedroom apt in RollingGreen garden style preferred will pay full rent call Isaac anytime 253-7790

Professional couple with child seeking Summer rental call 914-969-5986

WASH D.C.

Sublet available June 1 - Aug 1 1 br in a 2 br apt walk to Metro, pool, tennis, view of D.C. central A/C, dishwasher rent $240/month call 703-920-9226

5 bdrm apt 5 mins to town 15 mins to campus price negot call Mike 256-0378

Four bedroom Rolling Green AC, pool, bus rt, all utilities, very negotiable, call 546-9577, 546-4337, 546-8112

Spacious two bedroom Townhouse furnished, Riverglade, June-August $235 253-2069

Rolling Green 3 bed townhouse for June July August 180 month inclusive 253-7978

Townhouse Apt one bedroom available for Summer 549-1233 negotiable

Rolling Green A/C, pool; willing to sublet during Summer for best offer. Also need two roomates for school year 253-3231

1 bedroom apt Brandywine Summer sublet w/Fall opt. negotiable 549-0095

King signs a school prayer bill

BOSTON (AP) — A bill requiring a period of silence for meditation or prayer in the public schools has been signed into law by Gov. Edward J. King.

The measure, signed by King yesterday, replaces a prayer statute struck down earlier this year by the state Supreme Court. The courts previously had upheld a law providing for silent meditation.

The prayer law, rejected by the court on constitutional grounds, was signed by King late last year and took effect in February. It required teachers to ask for a volunteer to lead the class in prayer each day, and students not wishing to participate could leave the room.

Suits initiated by students and their parents were filed as soon as the law took effect, and several communities refused to enforce it pending the outcome.

As action to force compliance was about to be taken by the state Department of Education and the attorney general's office, the court struck down the law on grounds that it represented state sponsorship of religion.

The prayer statute had replaced a meditation law, upheld in a court challenge, similar to that signed by King yesterday.

WHAT'S THE ULTIMATE 4 LETTER WORD FOR THE MOVIE THAT MOUTHS OFF?

COMING SOON TO A THEATRE NEAR YOU!

Commuter Spokesperson Election

Thursday May 15, 1980

in front of the
Candy Counter SUB
Voting Hours 10 - 4

The Commuter Collective is the Area Government for students who live Off - Campus

Absentee ballots are available by calling 5-2145

THE FABULOUS

D.J. SULLIVAN

RETURNS

TUESDAY, MAY 13th

TWO FOR ONE 9 til 11

All Mixed Drinks

• OLDIES • • T-SHIRTS •
• SING-A-LONG • • CONTESTS • • PRIZES • • BEER •

THE PUB
Eating & Drinking
AMHERST

ROOSTER'S Serves you best!

"Look for Rooster's Exam Week Special May 15-21"

138 Old Sunderland Road
N. Amherst

NEWPORT R.I. America's Cup

Rooms available in a Bellevue Avenue Estate $700

For entire season includes kitchen privledges, utilities and 1 acre lawn. Walking distance to harbor and beaches.

CALL:
Carol Abarno
Bellevue Realtors
63 Bellevue Ave
401-849-6084

Ooops, Seabrook may be falling

Did you know that the Seabrook Nuclear Power Plant is being built by Daniel O'Connel and Sons, the same contractor that built our faulty library? The UMass members of SCANN (Student Coalition Against Nukes Nationwide) will be Occupying Seabrook to stop construction on May 24. They are looking for support people who can help with transportation, food, medical aide, communications, and more. If you would like to support the occupiers please call Alan Campagnon at 253-5980 or the SCANN office at 545-3429.

ATTENTION STUDENT NURSES!

Kaiser-Permanente, the country's largest Health Maintenance Organization, currently has excellent opportunities available in our 583 bed Los Angeles Medical Center. Located 7 miles from downtown Los Angeles, close to many of California's finest universities, this teaching hospital offers RN's a unique chance to further their careers in such areas as: OR, Med/Surg, Maternal Child Health & Critical Care. Kaiser offers an attractive array of fringe benefits including relocation assistance, full medical, dental & health coverage, continuing education, advanced training available in the Nurse Practitioner & CRNA Programs, individualized orientation, tuition reimbursement, and no rotating shifts. Excellent 8-10 week New Grad Program.

For more information, please write or call collect:

KAISER PERMANENTE
MEDICAL CARE PROGRAM
PULLING TOGETHER TO HELP PEOPLE

Ann Marcus, RN
Kaiser Hospital/Sunset
4867 Sunset Blvd.
Los Angeles, CA 90027
(213) 667-8374

Equal Opportunity Employer

UMIES

Congradulations on graduations

Love
FUD
of Oregon

There's no place like home, and we make it easy to get there. TRAILWAYS and PETER PAN offer convenient express service to Boston, New York, and many other points.

TRAILWAYS & PETER PAN BUS LINES

MAKE LIFE SIMPLER FOR YOU.

For Information, Schedules and Prices, contact: Springfield Bus Campus Center Bus Office - 545-2006, or 549-6000

1/2 Barbecued Chicken, all the Fixin's & Coke

admission: University Meal Ticket or $3.25

everyone's invited to the U. of Mass. food services 14th annual

ALL CAMPUS BARBECUE

FEATURING: the Elevators

and special guest ED VADAS

Tues., May 13th 4:30 - 7 pm
Southwest Playing Fields*

* In case of rain, meal will be served in all D.C.s. Franklin will be open for indoor service during BARBECUE.

AMERICAN MULTI CINEMA

ADULTS $2.75 STUDENTS & SR. CITIZENS with AMC CARD $2.25 TWI-LITE SHOW $1.50 Special Engagements Excluded Twi-Lite Show - Limited to Seating

TIMES SHOWN FOR TODAY ONLY

HAMPSHIRE 4 584-7550 HAMP. MALL ON CAFE SQ. - RT. 9, HADLEY, MASS.

WHERE THE BUFFALO ROAM — R (6:15 @ $1.50) 8:45

Walt Disney's Lady and the Tramp — G (6:30 @ $1.50) 8:30

LITTLE MISS MARKER — PG (6:00 @ $1.50) 8:30

Night Games — R (6:00 @ $1.50) 8:45

MOUNTAIN FARMS 4 584-9153 MOUNTAIN FARMS MALL ROUTE 9-HADLEY, MASS.

PETER SELLERS SHIRLEY MacLAINE BEING THERE — PG (5:45 @ $1.50) 8:30

ROBBY BENSON Die Laughing — PG (6:00 @ $1.50) 8:30

FRIDAY the 13th — R (6:15 @ $1.50) 8:45

The Black Stallion — G (6:00 @ $1.50) 8:45

Date—Thurs May 22
Rain or Shine
Place—Metawampee Lawn & The Hatch
Time—12 - 5 pm
Seniors 2.50
Guests 3.50

SENIOR 1980 DAY

Featuring—
Robin Lane & the Chartbusters, Beaver Brown, Lazarus
Tickets on sale through finals on the concourse
Positive Proof of Age Required

Minutemen top Bruins, 15-2, 14-6

By DAVE BRADLEY
Collegian Staff

There was a hitting festival yesterday afternoon on Earl Lorden Field as the UMass baseball team flogged 28 hits in 14 innings to take a doubleheader from Brown University, 15-2, 14-6.

UMass hits ranged from just-out-of-the-infield bloopers to home run shots like the one catcher John Kraham laced into the trees behind the 405-foot mark on the center field wall.

"Hitting is contagious," said assistant coach Jim Bedard. "We just took advantage of some bad pitching."

The wins weren't really crucial to UMass, the team having been knocked out of any playoff contention with two losses over the weekend, but they sure didn't hurt the UMass ego.

"We're taking out a lot of frustrations in these games," said third baseman Barry Bennett. "It's just for pride now," added pitcher Jim Lewis (2-2) who picked up the win in the second game.

The games had a few highlights worth noting:

Senior Dave Stoller picked up his first win of the season while going the distance. Stoler had one save going into the game.

Doug Aylward hit his second grand slam of his career in the first game, the other coming earlier this season.

Mark Brown went four for five in the first game including two doubles and a solo home run.

Barry Bennett was knocked silly in the fifth inning of game one when a sharply hit ground ball took a bad hop and hit him in the mouth. "I didn't know what happened," he said later. "For some reason I thought we were in infield practice."

The Bruins came into today's games with a 10-25 record and a "loosey goosey" attitude, according to UMass coach Dick Berquist. And it was easy to see why their record was so bad. UMass took a 2-0 lead in the first inning of the first game when Mark Brown banged a double to bring in Mike McEvilly (walk) and Mark Litrono (double). They increased that lead to 6-0 in the next inning on Aylward's slam with Vic Bonanno and Barry and Dean Bennett on base.

The third inning saw UMass bat around the order for three more runs and after the Minutemen scored two more in the fourth on Brown's homer and a single by Dean Bennett with brother Barry on second, it was UMass 11, Brown 2.

UMass scored four more runs on five more hits to bring its game total to 15 runs on 16 hits with four errors. Brown's total for the first game was 2-12-3.

The second game was almost a mirror image of the first. Lewis and the Minutemen shut out the Bruins through the first three innings while taking a 12-0 lead on eight hits.

UMass took a 3-0 lead in the first when Warren McReddie cleared a bases loaded situation with a double to right field. With McReddie on second, Bonanno placed a long ball into right field to score the runner, but he was thrown out by a proverbial mile when he tried to stretch the double into a three-bagger.

The Minutemen picked up five more in the second with the help of five walks and three passed balls mixed in with doubles by McEvilly and Aylward, and a single by Jim Aulenback. After two innings it was a 9-0 UMass laugher.

Indeed the players seemed to get a little giddy from that point on. UMass went up 12-0 after three innings and 13-3 after four. Happy hour was climaxed late in the game when a routine pop foul to catcher Kraham popped out of his glove. The players and coaches on both teams laughed. Kraham smiled. It was that kind of a day for UMass.

The Minutemen play their last two games today at 1:00 p.m. away against Dartmouth.

UMass outfielder Tom Grimes slides safely into second base during the second game of the doubleheader yesterday with Brown University. UMass swept the doubleheader 15-2 and 14-6. (Staff photo by Ben Marsden)

Third-seeded Gazelles finish fourth in Nationals

By MAUREEN SULLIVAN
Collegian Staff

PRINCETON, N.J. – About half of the UMass women's lacrosse team were in their "civvies" ten minutes after they had lost to the University of Pennsylvania 8-5, in the consolation round of the United States Women's Lacrosse Association Nation Collegiate Championship Sunday. The third-seeded Gazelles finished fourth in the weekend-long tournament.

Some cheered for the University of Maryland, some rooted for eventual champion Penn State University in the final game. All stood or sat quietly, thinking about what had happened to them throughout the weekend.

UMass first faced Temple University on Friday afternoon. After shaking off some of those "first-game jitters" that slows down a team, UMass overcame passing and catching problems to post a 4-2 lead at the half. Thanks to some great saves by goalie Robin Jennings and the Gazelle defense, UMass went on to the semifinals with a 7-4 win. Scoring for the Gazelles were Jean Hackett, Whitney Thayer, Lynn Herbert, Maria Minicucci and Cari Nickerson with two tallies.

For the third time in three years, Penn State took UMass, 8-3. Despite coming back from a 3-0 deficit in the first half to tie at halftime, the Gazelles were contained by the lady Lions. Outchecked and unable to get a good passing game going, the Gazelles saw their chances for the title fade with a five-goal eruption in the second half by Penn State.

"We were outplayed," UMass coach Pam Hixon said, "we came back on these goals by Jean Hackett, Cari and Maria, but we were outplayed by the better team."

Sunday morning saw the threat of rain at the fields behind Jadwin Gym and the game between fifth-seeded Penn and third-seeded UMass for the third and fourth spots.

Herbert got UMass on the board first, but Penn came back with a shot that bounced off Robin Jennings' back. Margie Anderson gave the Gazelles a 2-1 lead at 11:50 of the first half. Penn tied it six minutes later on a line shot that Jennings missed grabbing with her free hand. Penn scored the go-ahead with 30 seconds left on the clock.

In the second half, Penn used the long pass and tight checking to keep the ball away from UMass. Defensively, Penn doubled-teamed the Gazelles; offensively, its lead over UMass stretched to 5-2 before Whitney Thayer scored next for UMass. The Gazelles managed to pass the ball as far as the Penn goal, but checking and dropped passes spoiled any chances to score. On the other end, the defense, led by Laura O'Neil and Judy Strong, kept Penn running and passing, keeping shots on goal to a minimum. UMass scored its last two goals in the last three minutes (by Anderson and Herbert), but couldn't catch up to Penn.

"Again, we were outplayed," Hixon said, "we couldn't play our game."

After the Championship game, in which Penn State won 3-1, players were chosen for a try-out with the American squad. Laura O'Neil was the lone Gazelle invited.

O'Neil ended her UMass lacrosse career last weekend, along with team captain Jean Hackett, Cari Nickerson, Julie McHugh, Robin Jennings and Julie Hall.

Kinnane and Schmitz: leaders of the pack

By DONNA SULLIVAN
Collegian Staff

The UMass laxmen were losing their third game in a row. The Gorillas were out of playoff contention and the game with Syracuse was almost out of reach but there was still a small feeling of "maybe we can get a few more goals." Co-captain Peter Schmitz was kneeling in the substitution box watching the action intently. Coach Dick Garber called "red middies!" and Schmitz was off to join the action.

The other co-captain, Paul Kinnane stood on the bench, also keeping his eyes on the field. He usually spent most or all of each game on the field but an infected knee was forcing him to miss this one.

Schmitz ran off the field and sought out another player, giving him a few pointers on the way the last play had gone. He was in the habit of being helpful, "we have a young team, anything people can tell each other helps," he said.

Schmitz and Kinnane were elected co-captains of the varsity lacrosse team – the Gorillas, last spring. During the recent loss to Syracuse and in every game all semester the two play the game and look for ways to help the other team mates. According to Schmitz it is part of the job of a captain.

"He gave me a lot of tips my first season," Kinnane said of fellow captain Schmitz. It was Schmitz's help along with coach Garber's that helped Kinnane make the varsity squad his sophomore year. Kinnane had never played lacrosse seriously until he came to UMass.

The 23 year-old native of Westport had been on the track team at Portsmouth Abbey prep school in Rhode Island. His brother Brendon was a lacrosse player and the two frequently tossed a ball around on the beach. He had traded a brand new basketball for a lacrosse stick. "People around there don't know what a lacrosse stick is. They thought we were scooping crabs," he said.

Paul then took two years off before coming to UMass. He spent the time surfing in Hawaii and California. "I went there to surf and hang out," he said. In California he worked as a carpenter two nights a week and in Hawaii he worked at a raceway to earn money for food. As far as lodging goes, Kinnane "camped out every single night" he was there, "on the beach and at campgrounds."

"It was something I always wanted to do. Rather than doubt myself, I did it and then went to school. I took school more seriously than if I hadn't taken the time off," he said.

Kinnane entered UMass three years ago as a history major. He took a lacrosse class where he learned more of the rules. "It just snowballed," he said. The first semester he started palying eight times a week between the class the Fall club lacrosse. In the Spring, Kinnane played JV lax then moved up to the varsity squad the following Spring.

Peter Schmitz

Paul Kinnane

This spring, Kinnane is listed as an attackman but he has played in every position including goalie. At attack, he has seven carrer goals and two assists. "I like midfield the best, it brings in all the aspects of the game," he said. This season he has been playing a lot of defense, holding opponents to a little over half as many goals as the Gorillas themselves have scored.

Unlike Kinnane who has been playing organized lacrosse for only three years, Schmitz has been playing since he was in junior high school in Port Washington, New York. He had been on the baseball, gymnastics, and track teams. "I decided to try lacrosse in ninth grade and I like it best of all," he said.

In eleventh grade, Schmitz made the varsity squad. He was a midfielder since then and continues in that position at UMas. He originally came to UMass with intention of being on the gymnastics team but decided to play lacrosse instead.

Schmitz, called Schmitty, is a 21-year-old zoology major who plans to switch into some type of hospital administration program. "I love it," he says of UMass. "I'm glad I came here. UMass has an excellent reputation out of state."

Like Kinnane, Schmitz took time off from his college career. He spent last semester in Steam Boat Springs, Colorado, and this past intersession in Vail, skiing. He has been a skier as well as a sailor for pretty much all of his life.

This year he leads all midfielders in scoring with 11 goals and 19 assists. In three years at UMass he has tallied 28 goals and 39 assists.

Schmitz is a strong player and a natural leader. His strong passing and quickness make him most effective in the UMass style of lacrosse – a style that utilizes the fast break. He is a leader on and off the field, giving tips about lacrosse and occasionally keeping the young team in line.

Both captains, as well as the entire team and coaching staff devote a lot of time to practicing and games. Kinnane still finds time to hang out with his buddy Bruno at Pinnochio's Pizza. He was one of Bruno's first customers and even visited Bruno's brother Luciano at his pizza shop in Cambridge.

Schmitty and PK are the leaders of a team that is consistently nationally ranked. This year they seemed to be virtually unbeatable. Before a recent three game losing streak they were 7-2 with wins over Rutgers, Hofstra and New Hampshire.

Both players applaud head coach Garber. "He makes you feel like he cares about how you do," Kinnane said. "He keeps us inspired."

Today, the two captains and the rest of the lacrosse squad travel to Dartmouth for the final game of the season, a chance for an 8-5 record.

MASSACHUSETTS DAILY
Collegian
VOLUME CIX, ISSUE 141 Student newspaper of the University of Massachusetts/Amherst Wednesday, May 14, 1980

'80 budget figures out tomorrow

By MARC FAGELSON
Collegian Staff

The Massachusetts State Senate Ways and Means Committee will release their recommendations for next year's budget tomorrow, and members of the Student Senate's Public Policy Committee will continue to lobby the Senators for increases in the University's allotment.

The Student Senate Committee mailed 10,000 letters to parents of in-state students, Ken Moore, the committee chairman said yesterday. Last week, the committee mailed 3,500 letters to parents of students living in districts whose Senators are on the Ways and Means Committee. An additional 2,000 letters will be mailed to parents living in Senator John Olver's district, Moore added.

We're hoping the Senate Ways and Means Committee will give us an increase," Moore said. "It has happened in the past, but if their figues are the same as the House's recommendation, we're out of bargaining chips."

If the Senate Ways and Means Committee does not raise the University's funding, Moore said, amendments can still be added to the budget to raise the allotment. Last year, a state Senator made an amendment based on information from the Student Senate's office, Moore said.

"We're going to be lobbying Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of next week. It's a pain with finals, but we've been working on this budget all year and we can't just sit back now. It's like watching your baby go through," Moore said.

"It's important to watch for the reorganization plan in the committee, too. We're hoping Senate Ways and Means will kill the plan," Moore added. "If the committee cuts it out, there's a good chance the reorganization plan will not appear as part of the finished budget."

Why are these gentlemen trying to set this "contraption" on fire? For the answer see the page three photo.

Steady but slow gain for women

By DEBBIE WALLACE
Collegian Staff

Women in the Pioneer Valley are fortunate to have an active feminist community and network which includes locally and nationally known women who provide abundant resources for the area. Women's organizations, speakers, music, theater, poets, lecturers, and professors, as well as students, offer each other a wide variety of feminist thought and ideas.

During the past semester some gains were made concerning women's legislation, speakers and events, though many concerns remain.

Three major issues affecting the women's community are the sexual harassment bill, the lighting improvement plan and the passage of the Women's Studies major.

The sexual harassment bill, filed by Congresswoman Barbara Grey of Framinghan and the Student Center for Educational Research and Advocacy (SCERA) women's issues team, included testimony from women who were subject to sexual advances by professors that affected their grades if they did not comply. There are numerous forms of sexual harassment, on both local and national levels. this is not only a women's issue, and while primarily females report incidents of sexual harassment, "men may just as easily be victims of the problem," according to UMass Graduate student Ann O'Connor. The bill is presently pending legislative action.

The lighting situation at UMass is a concern to many UMass students. Vice Assistant Chancellor Terence Burke said 80 percent of all rapes occur indoors and that all the lighting put up "won't make one iota of a difference" for this 80 percent, 16 student groups disagree. "The present lighting plan calls for a $2.5 million to light seven miles of campus," Burke said. He added, "There is no financial possibility of lighting the whole campus."

Burke said "the whole point of the issue is

TURN TO PAGE 7

Don't let landlords beat you at the tenancy game

By CAROL MORTON

School is almost over and many students are planning to move out of their apartments or houses in the next few weeks. Many of these students are wondering how they can get their security deposits back from their landords. The following is a summary of tenant's rights compiled from information availble at the Legal Services Office on campus.

Security deposit

When you first move into an apartment, the landlord can ask for the first and last month's rent, the cost of changing the lock and key, and security deposit equal to no more than one month's rent.

This deposit continues to be the property of the tenant. The landlord must put it in a separate bank account, and the name and the location of the bank and the account number must be given to the tenant. If the landlord fails to inform the tenant of this within 30 days, the tenant may immediately get his security deposit back.

Interest

From the first day of tenancy, the landlord must pay five percent annual interest on the security deposit. The landlord is required to pay the interst only if he has "held" the deposit for a year or longer, and then must pay at the end of each year of tenancy.

So, if you have a 12-month lease, leave after nine months, and the landlord returns the deposit when you move out, then no interest is required. However, if the landlord waits to return the deposit until after your 12-month lease expires (i.e., the deposit is held for one year or longer), then the landlord owes you interest.

Deductions

Only unpaid rent, expenses of re-renting the dwelling if you move out before the lease expires, and damages in excess of "reasonable wear and tear" can be taken out of the security deposit. No other deductions are allowed. Reasonable wear and tear to an apartment is an expected business expense to the landlord. Unless there is special damage like writing on the walls, holes in the carpet or excessive filth, the expenses of cleaning or painting the place cannot be deducted.

TURN TO PAGE 11

Collegian staff says goodbye at the end of another year

A bulldozer clears away rubble as workmen demolish the tomb of Reza Shah, the founder of Iran's Peacock Throne and father of the exiled Shah of Iran. The supervisor of the demolition project, Ayatollah Sadegh Khalkhali, says a public lavatory is planned for the site. (AP Laserphoto)

DIGEST

French Olympic Committee votes against boycott of Moscow games

PARIS (AP) - The French National Olympic Committee rejected the American-led campaign to boycott the 1980 Olympic summer games and voted yesterday to send a team to Moscow.

The decision, announced by French Olympic Committee President Claude Collard, was approved unanimously with 22 votes for sending a team and one abstention.

Carter gas fee plan judged illegal; government to seek decision reverse

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal judge yesterday overturned President Carter's 10-cent-a-gallon gasoline fee that was to have shown up at gasoline pumps tomorrow.

The government was expected to appeal the decison by U.S. District Judge Aubrey E. Robinson.

After the court's ruling was announced, Carter told a group of visiting editors and broadcasters that the fee was "extremely important for our nation to maintain."

Tehran news, Russian agency report incendiary incident in Iran oil area

Several American helicopters flew over Iranian ships working in Persian Gulf oil fields but switched course after Iran's armed forces were alerted, Tehran Radio reported yesterday. The Pentagon denied the report.

But Iranian Oil Minister Ali Akbar Moinfar was quoted as saying security at Iran's oil fields would be stepped up following the reported incident Monday night, and the official Soviet news agency Tass denounced the "new provocation by the American military," as "fresh proof of the fact that Washington continues to make plans for new military ventures against Iran."

"ENDLESSLY FASCINATING"
—The New York Times
"Rich in historical and political background the novel has a raw energy and sensibility not often encountered". —Publishers Weekly
"A major work of fiction" —Black Scholar
"Laughter, love, suspense and startling insight. The novel deserves a cult of its own" —Essence Magazine
THE HARDER THEY COME
A Novel by MICHAEL THELWELL
$7.95
now available at University Store
GROVE PRESS

The Hungry-U
Thursday Night Pizza & Beer Special
Buy any large pizza get a pitcher of beer for Half-Price! 5-closing 549-5713
55 University Dr.

EURAIL PASSES
CAMPUS TRAVEL CENTER
CENTER UNIV OF MASS
AMHERST, MASS 01003 413-545-0500

Subscription rates

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian (USPS 333 220) is published daily Monday through Friday, excluding January, June, July, and August, fall 815 at 113 Campus Center, University of Massachusetts at Amherst, MA 01003. Second class postage paid at Amherst, Mass. Postmaster: Send address changes to Massachusetts Daily Collegian, 113 Campus Center, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, MA 01003.

the soup kitchen MENU
scrumptious homemade soups salads chili quiche lunch specials great desserts beer & wine
150 main st northampton 584-4458

YOUR INVITATION TO THE FINEST IN ITALIAN-AMERICAN DINING Tassone's RISTORANTE
A little Italy right in the heart of New England!
— Featuring —
Deliciously Prepared Veal • Savory Seafood • Juicy Beef Dinners • Homemade Pastas
Special facilities for parties, weddings & banquets
Tues.-Thurs., 11 a.m. to 1 a.m.
Fri. & Sat. 11 a.m. to 2 a.m.
Sun.-Noon to Midnight CLOSED MONDAY
Easthampton (Near Northampton Line)
536-4112 or 527-5991

NEWPORT R.I. America's Cup
Rooms available in a Bellevue Avenue Estate $700
For entire season includes kitchen privledges, utilities and 1 acre lawn. Walking distance to harbor and beaches.
CALL.
Carol Abarno
Bellevue Realtors
63 Bellevue Ave
401-849-6084

Going home for the Summer?
Travel by AIR or RAIL
CAMPUS TRAVEL CENTER
CENTER UNIV OF MASS
AMHERST, MASS 01003 413-545-0500

SENIOR DAY 1980
******
All Beer Pourers must attend one of the following BRIEF meetings:
Thursday 15th - 6:30
Monday 19th - 6:30
Campus Center Room 168
Any questions call Kathy or Winky at 545-0082

NITE OWL SPECIALS
6 PM-MIDNIGHT THURSDAY, MAY 15 up to 50% off
women's cotton sweaters skirts and slacks
men's sport jackets
and so much more!
supplies are limited, come early!
SIENNA FINE CLOTHING
243 Main Street, Northampton 586-6457

The answer is they are filling a balloon with hot air with the aid of propane torches for an area supermarket promotion. Balloon owner Richard Mickalski, of Sky Promotions, with help from Mark Alberding and Kirk Krebutzberg, floated the balloon into the air without any trouble. (Staff photo by Jim Mahoney)

Student survey probes campus police's rep

According to a survey released by UMass's Project Pulse, only 34 percent of the university students questioned approved of the "overall" performance of the UMass campus police.

In a similar poll taken by Project Pulse in 1975, 50 percent of the students surveyed approved of the job the campus police were doing.

The survey was conducted during the first week of March by the UMass Student Affairs Research and Evaluation Office, which funds the Project Pulse program. A total of 222 students were inlcuded in the survey.

Over 66 percent of the students questioned felt the campus police did an "adequate" to "poor"job overall. Specifically, 74 percent of the students questioned felt campus security had not improved since last year, although 20 percent felt campus security had improved during the 1980-81 school year.

Forty-nine percent of those surveyed approved of police effectiveness in reducing crime in the Southewest Residential Area, an area plagued by vandalism in recent years. In addition, almost 50 percent of students surveyed said that placing uniformed police in the dorms to prevent vandalism was "somewhat adequate."

Also, most students agreed that campus police were "very helpful" in giving information to students and reacting to crimes reported by either victims or witnesses.

Overall, 84 percent of all students questioned agreed that campus police were available if students required their help.

In addition, 37.4 percent of those questioned felt that the Library/Campus Center Complex area was the safest area on campus, while 36.5 percent of students surveyed said the university parking lots were the "least safe" areas to be on campus.

Student winners named in Linda Polemus raffle

The following students are winners in the Linda Polemus Raffle held this week in the Campus Center:

— One month membership at the Amherst Swim and Tennis Club: Roger Benoit, 40 South Park Terrace, Northampton.

— Dinner for two at Plumbley's Off the Common: Anjali Dandekar, 162F Brittany Manor.

— Dinner for two at the Rusty Scupper: Paul Proctor, 388C Crown Point Apts.

— Crepe entrees for two at the Crepewich, Hampshire Mall: Nora Mahoney, 601 Grayson, Univ. of Mass.

— $25 gift certificate at the House of Walsh: Thomas Newkett, 218 Dwight, Univ. of Mass.

— $15 gift certificate at The Cheese Gift Shop: Michael Cass, 207 N. Main St., Sunderland.

— $10 Faces of Earth gift certificate: John Burns, Amherst Police Department.

— Cross Pen and Pencil Set—Fred Houck Jewelers: Steve Deteresa, 84 Presidential Apts, Amherst.

— $10 Fenton's Athletic Supply gift certificate: Mary Lou Sullivan, 166 Glendale Rd., Amherst.

— Teddy bear—H.L. Childs Inc.: Jim Keller, 60 Rolling Green, Amherst.

— Guest passes to Multi Cinemas, Mountain Farms Mall: Grace Giorgioe, John Novelli, Nick Poshkus, Caroline Sampore.

Center helps abuse victims

By ANNE MERCIER
Collegian Staff

The New England Learning Center for Women in Transition, (NELCWIT) located at 310 Main Street in Greenfield, offers free counseling, advocacy, referrals, and safe shelter to women and children involved "in abusive situations revolving around domestic violence," said staff member Kathy Curtin.

A 1978 NELCWIT survey conducted in Franklin County revealed that 44 percent of the women responding said they had been abused during their lifetime. According to an organization publication, this high percentage suggests that abuse "is part of a severe social problem, rather than a private matter between a few women and men."

"We serve women from Franklin and Hampshire counties, women from all walks of life, including college students," said staff member Rose Bourbau.

A NELCWIT publication proposes that battering and rape "are two of the most common forms of violence against women and children of all ages, races, economic backgrounds and education levels."

It is illegal for anyone in a household or family to pysically harm, threaten serious harm, or force sexual relations on another household or family member, the publication also points out.

Other free services provided by NELCWIT include emotional support, counseling, and information for women having difficulty with divorce, separation, or parenting. Help for women returning to work or school and women having problems with the court and welfare systems is also offered.

Support groups are also available for women in transition or women in crisis, who meet with the counseling staff to discuss their experiences, Curtin said.

The NELCWIT staff consists of seven professional couselors; six volunteers; and eight shelter staff members; including UMass work-study students, said counselor Tish Sinclair.

All NELCWIT services are free and confidential, and childcare is provided. A 24-hour telephone number, 413-772-0806, is available for women who need counseling or shelter. NELCWIT also acts as a referral service for other resources for women in the Valley, including the Beacon House for Women, the Children's Emergency Services, Help for Children, Western Mass Legal Services — all in Greenfield, and the Women's Resource Center of Noonadidades in Northampton.

Leslie Quinn started driving for the UMass transit in the Fall of 1975. Yesterday was Leslie's last day of work. When asked what kept him going all these years, he replied, "My basic lack of sanity." (Staff photo by Wayne Rosenberg)

Jubilee

Summer celebration for Boston's 350th

By SARAH HAMMANN
Collegian Staff

There you sit pounding out that final term paper, or counting the hours available to cram before that ominous essay examination, which your "life depends on", at least at this moment.

But what about two weeks from today? The anxieties of finals will have dissipated, and the steamy, heavily-anticipated summer beckons. Many fortunate collegiates will head directly for the oceanside resorts, always a Utopic magnet for under-25-ers. Some of us will return to our hometown , not always the most desirable or attractive prospect. Sure, it's economical and almost a sure guarantee of a satisfied palate. But for those UMies returning to the stomping ground of Boston, be attentive! There will be great revelry and spectacular feats in the Hub to celebrate the 350th birthday of the NATION'S OLDEST STATE CAPITOL CITY. Daily events will be the focus of "Jubilee 350", the eclectic five-month public celebration dating from May to September.

Boston has traditionally hosted informative programs, displays and exhibits on the city's rich history, including the "Where's Boston?" show at Faneuil Hall, and the Freedom Trail Walk which hits such memorable spots as the Old North Church and Paul Revere's House.

"Jubilee 350" will highligh multi-skilled exhibits starting next with "Operation Sail 1980" in the Boston Harbor - the only US visit of the Tall Ships. ON June 1, Dorchester will celebrate with a parade and festival. Many remeber South Boston's St. Patrick's Day Parade, a favorite annual tradition.

To commemorate Boston's seaport heritage, the New England Aquarium will sponsor a grand smorgasbord and outdoor fair on "Fish Fare/Seafood fo the World." And to salute the abundant artistic culture fo the Yankee capitol, New England artists will display their work at the "Arts and Crafts of New England" at the City Hall Gallery.

See? Summer at home doesn't look so bad after all. It could be the time to shed those inhibitions, sprout those antennae and learn something new in the real classroom - the world.

Records in Review

Summer fun at 45 rpm

By BRETT MILANO
Collegian Staff

The end of the semester (not to mention the end of the century) is on its way, and the summer wouldn't be complete without a handful of great singles. There is usually a shortage of major albums released during the summer months, but there is also a larger amount of significant singles. Perhaps the immediate impact of an excellent single is more appropriate to the summer atmosphere. Think back to last summer, for example, and remember how much you appreciated it when "Rock Lobster" came on the radio every five minutes. Keeping that in mind, here's a wrapup of some of the better singles which have been released in recent weeks and should be well suited to this year's summer fun.

First off, a new one from Dave Edmunds, who scored a long-overdue U.S. success last year with his version of Elvis Costello's "Girls Talk." His new single is called—you guessed it—"Boys Talk," He co-wrote this one with Nick Lowe, and Lowe's famous cleverness is much in evidence here. The song is a tribute to all the girls whose names have been immortalized in rock songs, from Peggy Sue right up to Sheena and My Sharona. The other side, "Singing the Blues," is a typically energetic R&B workout. This single is essential for Rockpile fans.

Speaking of "Girls Talk," Elvis himself has finally released his own version of the song (an American release, on Columbia). His version is much different from Edmunds'—funkier tracks from the Get Happy!! album. He has deleted a few of the original lyrics, but the basic energy is still there, and that's what counts.

Another of my favorite people, the ever-intriguing Lene Lovich, has also put out a new single. Most of Lene's singles contain a rare track for collectors, and this one is no exception. A double set of two singeles—one live and one studio—it's an English release on Stiff. The studio single contains a version of "What Will I Do Without You" which is totally different from the version on Flex. She sings it in a lower key, and the instumental backing is sparser. Her vocal here is even more lethal than on the album. The live single contains new versions of four familiar songs, and if you saw her in concert last March, this should recapture some of the magic.

The Undertones have also produced their share of fine singles, and their new one is called "My Perfect Cousin." Like most Undertones songs, it combines a catchy pop melody with an energetic, punkish backbeat. The lyrics are especially clever on this one: the singer tells of his cousin who is always well-behaved, his parents' pride and joy. It has a happy ending, though: the cousin buys a synthesizer, and now he's playing music with all the kids from art school. And, like most Undertones singles, it has two new tunes on the B-side. The single is out in England, and should be released here before summer's end.

XTC are another of my current favorites, and with good reason: they have a unique ability to combine creative pop songs with instrumental experimentation. They also have a habit of releasing singles which aren't on albums, and their latest is "Wait Till Your Boat Goes Down" (import, on Virgin). Like most XTC songs, it takes a few listens to be fully absorbed, but is well worth the effort. The other side, is "Ten Feet Tall," a recorded version of a song which originally appeared on their superb Drums & Wires album. The new version is quicker and punchier than the original, and it still stands as one of this year's best love songs.

Speaking of love songs, another great one has recently emerged from an English band called the Tourists. Their new single is "I Only Want to Be With You," the same song that Dusty Springfield had a hit with in the mid-Sixties. The Tourists' version surpasses the original. It's a piece of consummate pop, with fine, deep vocals by Annie Lennox and a creative arrangement from the band. This has been released in America, along with an equally impressive Toursits album called Reality Effect. The rest of the album is less pop-oriented than the single, and leans more toward a mid-Seventies progressive sound. The overall effect, at times, resembles Blondie meeting Renaissance in a dark alley; the Tourists are recommendded to anyone with a taste for experimental pop.

GOODBYE GERRY AND GOOD LUCK!
****
THE GRAPHICS GANG

AMHERST DELI
Bagels, Lox, Sandwiches & Salads
Open 2 AM
FRI & SAT
Mon - Thu till 10 PM

BARSELOTTI'S
DON'T FORGET your LAST Undergraduate
Happy Hour on Friday!
$1 off on any name Pitcher of beer with this coupon
only valid on Thursdays
Barselotti's
Downtown Amherst
Don't forget our special Happy Hour
on Fridays 3 - 6!
FREE Whole Wheat Pizza
$2 pitchers of Old Milwaukee & Good Times

OFF-CAMPUS STUDENTS: RETURN YOUR PHONES OR GET TEMPORARY SUSPENSION.

University of Massachusetts students:
If you live off campus you now have two options. You can return your phone and get a $5 credit on your final bill.* Or, if you're going to be living in the same place next Fall, you can sign up for a terrific phone service called Temporary Suspension.

For a small monthly rate, Temporary Suspension lets you keep the same number, directory listing and equipment. You save money on reconnect charges too, and service can be restored more quickly in the Fall.

To sign up for Temporary Suspension, or to return your phone for a $5 credit, just stop by the PhoneCenter Store in the Hampshire Mall.

TEMPORARY SUSPENSION.
A money-saving alternative to returning your phone.

New England Telephone

*New England Telephone provides service with the understanding the customer may be required to pay for the cost of repair or replacement if a telephone is damaged or lost.

'Empty Glass' filled with fine music

By ED LEVINE
Collegian Staff
Pete Townshend
Empty Glass (ATCO)

When Pete Townshend talks, people listen.

Review

The guiding force behind The Who, one of rock's most powerful bands, Townshend has paved more pathways than a front-end loader. The pioneer of many musical innovations, Townshend has proved throughout his 17-year career that he is indeed one of rock's biggest influences.

Regarded by many to be a musical genius, Townshend has consistently cranked out top quality material for The Who as well as for his solo efforts. His new album, Empty Glass, is no exception. Like his first solo album, Who Came First, and the unfortunately ignored Rough Mix on which he collaborated with Ronnie Lane, Empty Glass is a masterpiece.

The ten songs on the album reflect many different musical styles and moods. Townshend swings from hard rock and roll in "rough Boys" and the title cut, to tender ballads like I Am an Animal" and "I Moved," to the reggae-ish "Keep On Working."

But "Jools and Jim" is perhaps the album's most powerful song, and is enough to make this, and any other reviewer, think twice before attempting to analyze the album. While the theme of attacking music critics is by no means new, Townshend pulls it off by effectively combining fast paced hard rock with haunting lyrics to send anyone off on the ultimate guilt trip: "Anyone can have an opinion/Anyone can join in the jump/Anyone can pay or just stay away/Anyone can crash and thump/But did you read the stuff that Julie said/Or little Jimmy with his hair dyed red/They don't give a shit Keith Moon is dead/Is that exactly what I thought I read?"

Townshend's vocals, historically his weak point, really shine on this album. He delivers his material in both the traditional "accentless" style, strikingly similar to Roger Daltry, as well as the half-British "new-wave"-style accent. Townshend shifts registers effortlessly and makes the album pleasant to listen to.

The message of the album is refreshingly positive and, surprisingly, features a couple of straight-out love songs, uncharacteristic of Townshend.

Third Floor Greenough—
THANKS for a GREAT YEAR!
C.R.A. Lewis

TONIGHT
Jim Plunkett
with 25¢ Beers
with a
Pub Mug
9 'til 1
THE PUB
15 East Pleasant St.
AMHERST

Commuter Spokesperson Election
Thursday May 15, 1980
in front of the
Candy Counter SUB
Voting Hours 10 - 4

The Commuter Collective is the Area Government for students who live Off - Campus

Absentee ballots are available by calling
5-2145

SIDEWALK SALES
START TOMORROW
IN DOWNTOWN
AMHERST STORES
Watch for our 16 page circular
"We've dropped alot of them off around the Campus Center, UMass - pick one up!"

REGISTER TO WIN
A $100.00 GIFT CERTIFICATE
Good at any participating
Amherst business
5 - $20.00 second prizes too!

sponsored by the Amherst Downtown Council

There's No Place Like Downtown Amherst, Massachusetts

GRADUATION CARDS
American Greetings
Creative Excellence
is an American Tradition . . .
campus center, umass
the UNIVERSITY STORE

"Undertones"-Kicks for teens, and little more

By MARC FAGELSON
Collegian Staff
The Undertones
The Undertones*/(Sire)

The song titles on the Undertones' first album give away its unabashedly adolescent plot.

"Teenage Kicks," "Here Comes the Summer," "She's a Runaround" and "Girls Don't Like It" are perfect songs for a band that first built its reputation around its members' ages. Kids want something to relate to, we're told, and what's more relatable to a kid than another kid singing, "I want teenage kicks/Right through the night?"

Review

Nothing, I'm afraid, and that's what's wrong with this album... it's too easy.

When they first appeared on these shores, Ireland's Undertones were applauded by critics who said the equivalent of "They play every cliche in the book, but they're so young, they don't know that what they're playing is cliche, and that's why they're so great."

Sorry, but that argument couldn't hold its own breath.

The Undertones are great because they write songs that stick in your head ("Jimmy Jimmy") and that you can dance to all night ("Jump Boys"). Both songs were written by rhythm guitarist John O'Neill, the group's strongest writer.

The songs are basically three-chord bash-outs highlighted by one of the new wave's most recognizable voices, Feargal Sharkey. Sharkey saves the band from monotony and almost brings them to brilliance.

Mickey Bradley, bass, and Billy Doherty, drums, form a basically competent rhythm section, while Damian O'Neill (John's brother) plays a solid lead guitar reminiscent of Johnny Thunders' under-recorded screeching on the two New York Dolls albums.

Don't be deluded. These guys aren't messiahs (luckily they don't try to be) but they're not the Knack either.

The Undertones now have a new album out called "Hypnotised" and according to the New Musical Express, they've grown up admirably.

Carlo of Naples
foods of Italy
Now serving wine and beer.
45 State Street, Northampton, Mass. 01060, 584-9722

Work Study Positions for Summer
apply to the
Commuter Collective
404 SUB, 5-2145
The Commuter Collective, area government for students who live off-campus.

Adult Entertainment
84 Cottage St.
Majestic Theater
Easthampton
Tel. 527-2346
May 14-20
Love Secrets
7:30
Young Starlets
9:00

OMEGA BOOKS galore
COMICS
MOVIE POSTERS
BUY and SELL
(SOME TRADE)
QUALITY USED BOOKS
213 MAIN ST
10-12:30 2-5:00 MON-SAT

MIKE'S WESTVIEW CAFE
North Amherst
SPRING NITES
Saturday Nite all nite
No Cover 12 oz. Rolling Rock 2/$1 to wearers of Mikes Westview T-shirts No Cover
MIKES FAMOUS FREE BUFFET INCLUDED
Don't forget Friday afternoon attitude readjustment period and smorgie 4- 7 PM
Wed. 5-14 Free Beer Nite

sound economy
End of Year Clearance Sale!
Sale ends May 24
Our Super Inventory Clearance Sale!
$1.00 off our regul ar low prices on all 6.98, 7.98 and 8.98 series albums

Series	Our. Reg. Price	Super Sale Price
6.98	$4.77	$3.77
7.98	$5.97	$4.97
8.98	$6.47	$5.47

Sale and promotional albums not included. No special orders at sale prices.
in the campus center at umass
the UNIVERSITY STORE

UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS AMHERST
FINE ARTS CENTER CONCERT HALL invites you to order now! Don't miss out your FREE copy of our new 1980-81 season brochure--learn how you cab get more for your money at the Fine Arts Center by becoming a series subscriber to:
*Two brand-new Broadway thater series
The Duke Ellington Jazz series
Three all-different dance series
*Three celebrity, orchestra and chamber series
Plus Marcel Marceau, the Vienna Choir Boys and other special attractions
Send today for your FREE copy of our 12-page brochure; series and single tickets available now
Mail to: Fine Arts Center Brochure
129 Herter Hall
University of Massachusetts
Amherst, Mass. 01003
DC
Name_____
Address_____
Town/City ____ State ____ Zip ____
I am especially interested in (check all that apply): ____threater____dance____opera __classical music__jazz__other (specify)

★ Women

CONT. FROM PAGE 1

that we need time and we need money. We are not going to cure it overnight." The plan has not been finalized and, according to Burke, probably will not be until sometime this summer. Burke added that the administration has not awaited the final plan. "We've already started making lighting improvements," he said. Thousands of women and men at UMass await the improvements that may add some security for those walking up Orchard Hill or other unlit paths.

The Women's Studies program was given the authority on May 1 to grant a Bachelor's degree separate from an affiliation with the Bachelor's Degree in Individual Concentration (BDIC).

Area women constantly confront and tackle these aforementioned issues, as well as the Equal Rights Amendment, abortion rights, displaced homemakers, equal work for equal pay, and sex role stereotypes, child care and health.

Collegian weather:

SEBASTIANI
Burgandy & Chablis 1.5 liters
$3.75
Schaefer Beer..... 12 oz. cans $7.45 case
Gilbey's Gin..... 1.75 liter $11.25
Pearl Lite ..... 12 oz NR's $7.29/cs
Utica Club..... 16 oz. ret $6.25 case & deposit
Shaefer Cream Ale ..... 12 oz. NR's $1.90/6
C & C LIQUORS
Behind the Police Station
For Off Campus Delivery
253-3091

Cruise Into Summer
NARCISSUS DISCOTHEQUE
KENMORE SQUARE
THURS. JUNE 12TH
ADMISSION $3.00 IN ADVANCE
8:00 P.M. PROPER DRESS PLEASE
HOWARD GREENE 444-0831
JULIE TANNER 444-3623

In Recognition of Sidewalk Sales for Community Fair. . . Fred Houck Jewelers will offer Pewter Mugs Regularly at $19.75 at a 20% reduction this weekend only
Fred J Houck Jeweler
65 North Pleasant St. Amherst, Mass.
253-7615
*engraving desired will be extra AGS

SUMMER WITH US.
AND SAVE ENERGY TOO!
Summer Session 1980
THIS SUMMER YOU CAN CHOOSE TO TAKE COURSES THAT MEET TWO AND/OR FOUR TIMES A WEEK
Day and Evening Classes

Business Administration
Accounting
Law
Management
Marketing
Communications
Internships
Special Interest
GED Preparation
Academic Skills
How To Study
Conservational Spanish
Consumer Law
Behavior Modification and Weight Control
C.P.R.
Introduction to Chess
Humanities
Art
Drawing
Painting
Photography
Music
English
History
Philosophy
Speech
Theatre
Early Childhood Education
Early Childhood
Secretarial Science
Shorthand
Typing
Criminal Justice
Law Enforcement
Corrections
Social Science
Government
Sociology
Psychology
Economics
Math and Science
Biology
Chemistry
Mathematics
Physics
Computer Science
Statistics
Life Science
Conservation

Classes begin on June 16. Advance registration is April 21 — June 6. Registration is June 10, 11 & 12 from 9a.m. to 4:30p.m. and 6p.m. to 8p.m.
For further information contact the Division of Continuing Education at Holyoke Community College, 303 Homestead Avenue, Holyoke, MA 01040. Telephone (413) 538-7000.
Send for our new energy and time saving summer schedule.
Tuition only $25 per credit • Air Conditioned Classrooms • Free Well Lighted Parking
Holyoke Community College

SOFT LUGGAGE
Rollbags, Travel Totes, Overnighters, Weekenders & Week-Longers, in canvas, nylon, and parachute cloth ...all in a dazzling array of colors.
Cosmetic Cases and Travel Kits in matching colors.
9.95 ~ 21.95
FACES
A Store-full of Ideas
Downtown Amherst /Open 10-6, Mon.-Sat.

Ward rails against State House bill

BOSTON (AP) — The chairman of the corruption commission lashed out yesterday at legislative attempts to water down reform proposals — particularly creation of a powerful inspector general.

John William Ward told a news conference that the contemplated restrictions on the IG would be "unacceptable."

One change would limit the IG's subpoena power to documents; the other would make the IG a gubernatorial appointment — instead of an appointment by the unanimous vote of a council consisting of the attorney general, the auditor and secretary of public safety.

Another amendment being weighed, according to legislative sources, would bar any member of Ward's commission from employment in the initial IG office.

Ward announced that the commission plans to file Thursday its major campaign financing measure.

Strawberry Patch
Handcrafts - Gifts
Opening May 17
Next Door to Carburs 586-6453
M - S 10 - 5 Sun 12 - 5

MASSACHUSETTS BAY COMMUNITY COLLEGE
Division of Continuing Education
MAKE UP THAT COURSE THIS SUMMER
First Day Session and Evening
Session Begin June 2
50 Oakland St., Wellesley Hills, MA 02181
Tel. (617) 237-1100 ext. 132

fly!
learn to fly
this summer!
membership now available
for information call:
549-6854 or 549-3800
UMASS FLYING CLUB

IDB TIPS

Final Exam Schedules

The Information Data Bank has final exam time and room schedules. If you need any of this information, give us a call at 545-1555.

The Information Data Bank
227 Whitmore
545-1555

OUR 41st YEAR
PREPARE FOR:
MCAT • DAT • LSAT • GMAT • GRE
GRE PSYCH • GRE BIO • PCAT
OCAT • VAT • MAT • SAT • TOEFL
NMB I, II, III • ECFMG • FLEX • VQE
NDB I, II • NPB I • NLE
Flexible Programs & Hours
Visit Any Center And See For Yourself
Why We Make The Difference
In Amherst:
264 N. Pleasant St. (413) 253-5108
Classes Begin
GMAT 6/16 LSAT 6/3
GRE 5/18
Stanley H. KAPLAN EDUCATIONAL CENTER
TEST PREPARATION SPECIALISTS SINCE 1938
Please call the Center for details
Outside N.Y. State Only CALL TOLL FREE: 800-223-1782
Centers in Major US Cities, Toronto, Puerto Rico and Lugano, Switzerland

PUT A STOP TO BAD BRRRRRRRBRAKES
Precision Bendix brake parts are built to stop you on a dime. We feature a complete line of Bendix parts including shoes, pads, drums, rotors, master cylinders, for nearly every car. Bendix, it's a brand worth stopping for.
Inspection Special
$1. savings on any purchase over $10 with this coupon
(Expires May 15, 1980)
Specialists in Parts For:
*Foreign brake systems
*American passenger car & truck systems
*Drum & Rotor machining
Buy Bendix brake products at:
Campus Auto Parts
"Turn to us to keep your wheels turning"
Tel. 549-3945
107 Sunderland Road
No. Amherst, MA 01059
Bendix

It's the war of the waiters...they capture the kitchen, demolish the dining room, and leave Camp Oskemo in ruins.

GORP*
*a bunch of fruits, nuts and flakes.
SAMUEL Z. ARKOFF presents A JEFFREY KONVITZ PRODUCTION
"GORP" MICHAEL LEMBECK • DENNIS QUAID • PHILIP CASNOFF
FRAN DRESCHER • DAVID HUDDLESTON
Story by JEFFREY KONVITZ and MARTIN ZWEIBACK Screenplay by JEFFREY KONVITZ
Produced by JEFFREY KONVITZ and LOUIS S. ARKOFF
Directed by JOSEPH RUBEN Color by MOVIELAB
A PICTURE BY AMERICAN INTERNATIONAL
R RESTRICTED UNDER 17 REQUIRES ACCOMPANYING PARENT OR ADULT GUARDIAN
COMING SOON TO A THEATRE OR DRIVE-IN NEAR YOU!

Wax n' Wane
sidewalk sale
Showers You with Savings
20% off
Blouses Skirts T-Shirts
Jeans Terry Outfits Dresses
Chic Jeans $21.95 by HIS
"Dickies" Chinos $10.95
Wax n' Wane
Downtown Amherst

Correction

In yesterday's Collegian it was incorrectly stated Daniel O'Connell and Sons are the contractors for the construction of the proposed Seabrook nuclear power plant. In fact, this firm is responsible for the site preparation only. Also, the number to call to help with any support work to stop the Seabrook plant is the SCANN office, 545-3429. The other number, 253-5980 was incorrect. Please disregard it.

★ Landlords

CONT. FROM PAGE 1

Getting your deposit back

The security deposit and interest, less any lawful itemized deductions, must be returned within 30 days of the termination of tenancy.

If you have a 12-month lease and leave after nine months (hopefully after subletting for the last three months), your landlord is required to return the deposit 30 days after the 12 months is up — not when you leave. However, if the landlord re-rents the apartment for those last three months, he must return the deposit within 30 days after you leave.

Moving out

When you actually move out, call your landlord or manager to arrange an inspection of the apartment. At the inspection, try to have someone else there who could be a witness in court if it becomes necessary. Try to get a signed inspection report from your landlord. If you don't get something in writing, try sending a signed letter (be sure to keep a copy) confirming the results of the inspection report.

If you don't think that you did as much damage as your landlord says you did, disagree in writing. Hopefully, you have a signed statement of the apartment's condition when you moved in. You are expected to leave the apartment in "broom clean" condition. Remember to let your landlord know where to send your deposit.

Penalties for your landlord

You may sue for triple the amount of the security deposit, plus interest and court costs, if the landlord:

1. fails to deposit the money in a separate bank account,
2. fails to give you an itemized list of damages within 30 days after the termination of the tenancy or deducts damages without that itemized list or
3. fails to return the part of the security deposit due to you within 30 days after the termination of tenancy.

This article is a general statement of readily available legal information and is in no way intended or is it to be construed as legal advice. Advice regarding your individual situation can be obtained by contacting Legal Services Office, 922 Campus Center, 545-1995. LSO is particularly interested in assuring that the laws relating to security deposits are followed by landlords.

You'll be amazed at all the opportunities and advantages the Army offers men and women with BSN degrees:
- Excellent starting salaries and benefits, including a liberal vacation policy.
- Real opportunity for advancement and professional growth—every Army Nurse is a commissioned officer.
- No basic training for nurses; just a basic orientation course to familiarize you with the Army Medical Department.
- The chance to travel; time to do the things you enjoy.
- Opportunity to qualify for specialized roles, teaching or additional education.

See if you qualify.
Call collect to
301-677-4891
The Army Nurse Corps.
For more information, write:
The Army Nurse Corps.
Northeast Region, U.S. Army Recruiting
Fort George G. Meade, MD 20755
Name
Address Apt.
City, State, ZIP
Phone Age
CASS/NERRC

Drinking is analogous to cooking:
You mix alcohol with the right ingredients like fun times, special dinners, social events, celebrations and good friends; it all tastes good.
You mix alcohol with the wrong ingredients like other drugs, anger, depression, avoidance and driving; it not only tastes bad but the after effects are worse than indigestion. Enjoy, but "think before you drink". Not every hour is happy hour.
Demonstration Alcohol Education Project
549-2671

Save Gas and Money! Amalie Imperial 2 saves gas—up to 5% better gas mileage. And that saves you money!
NEW!
Pays for itself. And then some.
HAPCO AUTO PARTS
534 Main St. 256-6414 Amherst, MA 256-6415

Cash for Books
CLOTH OR PAPER — WHETHER USED ON THIS CAMPUS OR NOT.
WE BUY ALL TITLES HAVING RESALE MARKET VALUE!
SELL THEM AT:
the UNIVERSITY STORE'S
TEXTBOOK ANNEX
in the Physical Plant Building
9 am - 4 pm
MAY 14 Wed | MAY 15 THurs | MAY 16 Fri | MAY 19 Mon | MAY 20 Tues | MAY 21 Wed
the UNIVERSITY STORE'S TEXTBOOK ANNEX @ physical plant bldg

Knowing how to play with Dante in Amherst

Amherst maintains its charismatic academic tedium the year 'round which, in the spring and fall, is leavened by the hustle-bustle, hurly-burly and addle-headed riot of the University fully occupied. But in the summertime, a slow tide of humid smog lumbers into the Valley like a sweating fat man, collapsing in the heat 'till the autumn winds revive him.

The summer days burn long under a glaring haze uninterrupted except by steaming rains that frequent each weekend or whenever you have any free time on your hands. The night's turgid air churns with insomniacs flop-flopping upon their damp beds, maddened to kill for a minute in the cooling breeze of a dryer's exhaust. In outlying towns, it's worse.

But maybe it's too late; you have a few courses to make up so you can graduate on (in) time, or you kept the job you've had all semester waiting tables, washing dishes, filing records or at something else such as that requiring at least a B.A. in Economics and Sociology. Or maybe you landed a job with the University and will crawl home (through the night's turgid air after a long day under the glaring haze) with a blue envelope full of other people's tax money to give to your landlord.

In any case, you have been committed by some treachery to stay behind while your friends escape to the Cape or the West Coast, to foreign lands or...home. Well, actually, it's not so bad here in the summer. But to stay sane you have to know how to entertain yourself.

For starters, try to think of new things to do; never do the same thing two days in a row. This is a common error made by summer Amherst area residents. They go to Puffer's Pond in the afternoon, jumping off the cliff and swinging from the rope into the slow-moving water which, by the end of August, is a rancid soup of human debris, in the evening they go to an inexpensive movie, usually bad; and at night they go to the Drake, play pool, sit around drinking and talking about how gross the water is at Puffer's and how bad the movie was and how hot it is—until they drink enough not to notice, and then they go home and pass out.

This gets around the insomnia problem but lays to waste the rich and glorious resources of the imagination and about 10 bucks a day that has to be saved.

Various and high quality self-entertainment are what you, a future summer Amherst area resident, will need to stay out of the madhouse. Just to give some idea of what scope of imagination is required I offer the following 19 varied samples.

* Read the Golden Notebook, Candide, and Under the Volcano.
* Borrow your downstairs neighbor's television to watch a Red Sox game.
* Break your toilet. Then call your landlord and tell him your toilet's broken. While he's fixing it, have friends go to his house and remove all the doors, inside and out, and load them into a pick-up truck. Hide the doors in your back yard.
* Go on a bike trip.
* Replace the "No Nukes" and "Anderson for President" stickers on your downstairs neighbors' '64 Volkswagon with "Go Nukes" and "Nixon: Now More Than Ever" stickers when the car is in the Sun Coop parking lot.
* Go get ice cream.
* Borrow your downstairs neighbors' stereo (with automatic turntable) for a "house get together."
* Build a giant tree house out of stolen doors in the largest tree nearest your house.
* Play dominoes.
* Dismantle a borrowed television.
* Play whiffle ball.
* Call friends who went to the Cape, the West Coast, or overseas and charge the calls to your downstairs neighbors' phone. Tell your friends how much fun it is being in Amherst for the summer.
* Invite your landlord to your "open tree house" celebration. Lock him inside the treehouse.
* Play loudly out the window recordings made of your downstairs neighbors arguing furiously about the 12 calls to Cape Cod, 24 calls to San Diego, 14 calls to Houston, 18 calls to London and 30 calls to Bangkok that are on their phone bill.
* Put the Dependents' version of "Satisfaction" on a borrowed stereo at full volume, with the turntable set to return automatically. Lock all the doors and go to Boston for the weekend.
* Visit Faneuil Hall.
* Vacate your house, leaving only the furniture that you've broken beyond repair.
* Cut down that huge tree nearest your house, but only after you've made sure no one is inside. Use the longest, most powerful chain saw you can rent. Do this at around three in the morning so no one will see you.
* Go swimming at Puffer's.

Eric Janszen has been the Collegian's Associate Executive Editor.

Eric Janszen

The Frantic Finals Finale

A cigarette with a two-inch ash burns forgotten in an ash tray; its smoke drifts lackadaisically to the ceiling. On a scrap-littered table sits a cold cup of coffee—ignored, soon to be tasted, scorned and disposed of. Nicotine-stained fingers attack typewriter keys in strains of unpremeditated errors and erasures, while bloodshot eyes stare at the semester's final pages. Hands clutching pens make last minute revisions, sinks fill with dirty dishes (the trash needs emptying too), and a hand, holding a less than sanitary spoon, rips the tinfoil off the last cold can of Chef Boy-ar-dee ravioli.

Final exams have finally arrived.

A forlorn-faced freshman forages frantically for books he fears he'll never find (chances are he never will). The blank dilated eyes of overworked undergrads tell tales of sleepless dexi-dreams as they flip desperately through notes trying to remember facts destined to be forgotten. Pissed-off profs push through piles of exams and poorly prepared papers while TAs, with barely the time to think, attempt to hold together until the term's termination.

I, for one, have had enough of academia. Accepting the summer's arrival, I chose to amuse myself by alliterating—harmlessly, aimlessly, and, admittedly, artlessly.

One down, three to go.

Bill Hallisey is a Collegian columnist.

Bill Hallisey

MASSACHUSETTS DAILY
Collegian

STEPHEN B. KLEIN, Editor in Chief; JULIE EAGLE, Managing Editor; FREDERIC M. KEILLOR, Business Manager; JACK GALLAGHER, News Editor; RUB BURBANK, Executive Editor; LISA CAPONE, Women's Editor; RENEE MOBLEY, Black Affairs Editor; JIM MAHONEY, Photo Editor; SUZETTE COURTMANCHE, Graphics Manager; JIM DEGNIM, Sports Editor; JIM MORAN, Fine Arts Editor.

The Collegian is the student newspaper of the University of Massachusetts at Amherst. The staff is responsible for its content and no faculty member or administration read it for accuracy or approval prior to publication.

Unsigned editorials represent the views of this paper. They do not necessarily reflect the views of the faculty, administration, or student body as a whole. Signed editorials, columns, reviews, cartoons and letters represent the personal views of the authors.

The Collegian is a member of the Associated Press. Publication of this material does not constitute endorsement.

The Collegian strives to print only advertising which is truthful and complete, but final responsibility for all advertisements lies with the actual advertisers.

USPS 333 220

Editorial/Opinion

Kennedy scenario to capture conscience

It appears now that Prezdent Cahtuh is in serious trouble, insofar as his chances of re-election this November are concerned. His latest "vertical sodomization" in the area of foreign diplomacy, with the failure of the Air Force plan to rescue the hostages held in Tehran, and the subsequent resignation of former Secretary of State Cyrus Vance, one of his chief advisors on international affairs, could well lead to his demise at the convention itself—given the already-excessive degree of disfavor in which the general public holds him.

The Chief Executive's repeated blunders lend credence to those who still claim a victory for Sen. Edward Kennedy at the Democratic National Convention in New York this August.

Kennedy may not have to work as hard at his "scenario" for capturing the nomination. That scheme—to challenge the Party's rules so as to release uncommitted and wavering delegates by virtue of the clause which reads "no delegate must vote against her/his own conscience" is still within the realm of political possibility, though.

Kennedy has proved one thing—Jimmy Carter is vulnerable within his own party. The senator's victories in Arizona, Alaska, the District of Columbia, Connecticut, Massachusetts, Michigan, New York, Pennsylvania and Vermont may not add up to a stab at the nomination. But by combining these victories with future wins in other states' caucuses and primaries, Kennedy could come within the proverbial "striking distance" and win by utilizing some last-minute convention strategy.

Cesar Chavez, leader of the United Farmworkers union, and an influential force in California state politics, endorsed Kennedy when Gov. Jerry Brown dropped out of the race. No Democrat candidate has won the Golden State's primary without the endorsement of the labor leader who took command of the migrant workers' union in 1968. Chavez endorsed Bobby Kennedy in 1968, George McGovern in 1972 and Jerry Brown in 1976.

In Arizona, Chavez has already helped Kennedy get 17 delegates, compared with Carter's 13. In California, home of the farmworkers, Kennedy has the potential to come even closer to the President. Though the state no longer maintains a "winner-take-all" system for Democratic delegates (as a result of the 1972 credentials challenge when Sen. Hubert Humphrey challenged the winner of the primary—George McGovern; McGovern won the fight and the nomination), it still sends the largest delegation to the convention. If the Massachusetts senator could gain enough popular votes, he could make a dramatic comeback, even under the proportionate system. That primary is set for June 3, along with several other contests, among which are the important Ohio and New Jersey primaries.

Another significant factor in this Presidential race will certainly be the candidacy of the "independent" candidate, Illinois congressman John Anderson. Anderson makes for good copy. He is intelligent, humorous, philosophical and commands attention. But let's face it—no candidate has ever been successful in a third party candidacy, the most recent examples of which are the campaigns of former Alabama Gov. George Wallace in 1968 and former Minnesota Sen. Eugene McCarthy in 1976.

Anderson is running for President now for one of two reasons—either because he has an insatiable ego which could be satisfied only by mounting a third party effort to get his name in the history books, or because he wants to make some sort of moral statement on the failure of the two-party system. While this writer is inclined to believe he is in it for the latter reason (as well as for the duration), it would seem to make little sense for Anderson to persist in this regard. For if he truly believes in the philosophy of "common sense" government, mixed with stands on issues to reflect a social concern, then what use is it contributing to an effort that will aid a demogogue (Ronald Reagan) in defeating an incompetent (Carter)?

Ted Kennedy has his problems, to be sure, and the "character" factor which has contributed to his negative personae, whether valid or not, is existent. Chappequidick and his flawed marriage, may not be in his favor. But are those factual "private" incidents sufficient reasons for invalidating his "public" record of competency and compassion for social change?

Personal life notwithstanding, the fact of the matter is: Sen. Kennedy is still the only candidate of the liberal persuasion who has demonstrated an ability to challenge the incumbent President, a desire to raise issues before the public and campaign extensively across the country. More than his brothers before him, he has earned the nomination through a lengthy Senate career, a well-organized staff, and a commitment to a "fight-to-the-end" campaign.

Jim Moran

Letters

The show you missed

To Whom It May Concern:

UMass has hosted another Spring Concert. Those of us who worked with security, in the "crisis tents" and at the Health Services that day had front row seats for the celebration. What we heard and saw was exemplified by the utterances of those left conscious in the aftermath, "it's hard to believe all those people drinking, tripping, puking, and passing out all over the place." Actually, that's not so hard to believe, because they missed the real events:

It's hard to believe that we had to admit more than twenty men and women to the Infirmary because they were near comatose from overdoses of drugs and alcohol.

It's hard to believe that we had many stuporous men and women lying on sheets on the Urgent Care Clinic floor where we could monitor their pulse, respirations, and blood pressure and give emergency assistance should they begin strangling on their own saliva and vomitus.

It's hard to believe that many UMass students invited high school aged brothers and sisters, friends, or loved ones to this concert, helped them ingest excessive amounts of alcohol, shared LSD, "angel dust," quaaludes, marijuana (to name a few), then had to bring them injured and/or unconscious for emergency care. The regret, anguish, worry and silent tears these students experienced almost justified their mistakes.

It's hard to believe the number of mangled faces, bruised, abraded, cut bodies and the broken bones of "stoned" people who needed emergency treatment as a direct result of injuries received in accidents and fights at the concert.

It's hard to believe that we repaired fractures and lacerations on drugged, drunken, and violent men and women who spat on, cursed at, and threatened harm to those of us trying to help them.

It's hard to believe the horrible, overwhelming fears realized by hallucinating drug victims who cowered in the corners crying and clutching at anyone and anything in a fruitless attempt to stabilize their minor insanities and psychotic emotions; terrifed and struggling between existence and meaninglessness.

It's hard to believe we treated a man so viciously beaten by his intoxicated peers that he nearly lost an eye.

It's hard to believe there were two women who fractured their spines at the concert.

It's hard to believe that we conducted triage on a comatose man who fell from the stadium. He was unresponsive and had shallow breathing with dilated, fixed pupils while we sped him to a nearby intensive care unit where he nearly died.

It's hard to believe the messes and sickness found in the "crisis tents" at the concert site and the screaming, macabre behavior of the concert-goers jailed for their irresponsible public acts. Someone said that those unfortunate men and women were "real animals." That's hard to believe because no other animal on earth exhibits such bizarre behavior.

It's hard to believe that the people responsible for the Spring Concert were careless enough to stage the event in the stadium. Such a ridiculous site selection greatly increased the number of injuries to the inebriated people stumbling, pushing, crawling, falling, jumping and climbing around in that structure.

It's hard to believe that this university engaged in such a celebration of banal mediocrity and catered to performers who took no responsibility for their audience; conducting their greedy robbery in the name of entertainment and letting others suffer the consequences of their act.

It's hard to believe that this university celebrated spring by creating a world of destruction full of neurotic, moronic, violent, ugly substitutes for joy.

Are we going to do it again next year? If so, let's put the jails, "crisis tents" and emergency medical care facilities on center stage so everyone gets the full show.

Respectfully Submitted,
James R. Abel, M.D.
Jeanne Borfitz, R.N., F.N.P.
Cynthia J. Prinsen, R.N., F.N.P.

UPC profiteer atypical

Dear Editor:

*In regard to the letter written in Concert Comments (*Collegian letters 5/12). Although there may have been questionable instances of some security staff exploiting their position, the great majority of us who did work for an orderly spring concert did not make HUNDREDS of dollars. Being a member of a group that did work at one of the gates, I was in the position to see this alleged profiteering. The time spent at the gate was not a money making venture, but a grueling experience for a UPC T-shirt and the chance to help make an orderly concert, so as to allow these events to continue.

I find it quite disheartening to find only negative comments and no thanks for those of us who spent our Spring Concert in an attempt to make it an enjoyable event for the student body and their guests. Only by using students can we afford to have these concerts in the future. If we were to have a professional security staff, the price would be way out of our range.

The only suggestion that I can forward, is that those who believe they can do a better job should come forward and work the next Spring Concert.

Name withheld by request

Funds overpolitisized

To the Editor:

This letter is in response to the letter by Terra Friedrichs ("Hampden Future Still Unclear" Collegian 4/17). There are a number of flaws in her letter I think the readers should be aware of.

The first paragraph states that the five students mentioned in an earlier article ("Hampden Future Unclear") did "not support the idea of a University Store (in Hampden), as alleged." In fact, those five students, did support the idea of a revenue-producing store of some kind to be situated in the large programming room in Hampden's Southside, until they finally talked to us. But they did not talk to us first, instead they talked to the administration—in effect going around us—which was the major controversy in this issue.

The 2nd, 3rd, & 4th paragraphs in Miss Friedrich's letter were basically the campaign platform of the Jacobson and Ross Candidacy for the Southwest Assembly presidency.

And then there was a very cheap shot to the Southwest Assembly leadership..."It is unfortunate that the SW leaders allow politics to get in the way providing services to the students." The Southwest Assembly supports the SW Residential College to the tune of approximately $20,000, we also support the Crisis Center, WZZZ (SW radio station), International Women's Week, resource centers in Person and the Malcolm X Center, and many more services to students.

With respect to Hampden, we support the computer terminals, the vital study space, the crafts center, the SW A/V Dept. Presently, we are working on a market place in Hampden Concourse, three more pinball machines (the revenue of which goes back into student programming), and more. With respect to programming the SWA, we sponsored several concerts in Hampden (Martian Highway, Scientific Americans, Fastbuck, the KIDZ, and SW Folk Concert), and don't forget a wimpout contest, a disco night, the Grateful Dead Night, and still more. And of course there was Southwest Week, April 27 through May 3.

The only thing coming between ourselves and providing more services to students is not politics, but finances. Had we more money, there would've been more services. However, our budget was cut by the Undergraduate Student Senate, and our funding ran thin.

In our opinion Miss Friedrichs' letter was politically motivated by the Jacobson and Ross campaign for the SWA presidency, along with their legal counsel, as a campaign on election day.

Had our intergrity not been attacked in the letter, we would not have responded as such. We felt it was necessary.

Scott Shuster, Bruce Levy
SWA Co-Presidents

Program funds needed

To the Editor:

As a potential Hotel, Restaurant and Travel Administration major, I am very disappointed at the lack of concern given to the hotel, restaurant program at UMass. In light of the fact that a university's reputation and academic well being depends on the success of its academic foundations, it seems to me that more of an effort should be made by UMass to maintain the reputation of its programs, especially that of its HRTA department. UMass houses one of the top five hospitality schools in the nation and it would be a shame to see all that hard work of establishing such a prestigious program unjustifiably wasted.

The problem now facing the HRTA program stems from the inability of UMass officials to secure sufficient funds from the state. These funds, if granted, should be used to compensate for the lack of teachers which now exists within the department. At the moment, the HRTA program is dealing with a student-teacher ratio of 30-1, whereas the average on campus is only nineteen to one. Clearly, this is unfair and everyone responsible should be made aware of this neglect experienced by the HRTA program.

My reasons for wanting to correct this injustice are not purely academic but also social in nature. I believe that an honest attempt should be made to keep up with the demands of the department in satisfying the hospitality industry's needs. Currently, there are six jobs for every one HRTA graduate at UMass. It would be advantageous, in the long run, for the state of Massachusetts to fill the industry's need with qualified personnel from its university; keeping in mind that the hospitality business is the third largest industry in the state and continually growing. Therefore, by allocating additional funds for the hotel, restaurant school at UMass it stands to reason that the state would ultimately benefit from this practice.

Aside from the financial point of view, it is my opinion that one of the basic and foremost responsibilities of a state is to further educate its citizens and future generations to the best of its ability. Obviously, the only way in a state is able to fulfill this duty to society is by allocating enough money to satisfy the needs of the system. In refusing to deal with this situation, the state not only damages the University's reputation but also forces potential HRTA majors into other fields of study and/or employment, minimizing the opportunity for these students to pursue their desired careers in the hospitality industry.

I call upon this university to voice, with greater conviction, its need to adequately fund its programs, in particular the hotel, restaurant school, and try to convince the state of the importance of the problem. Ultimately, it is up to the state to weigh these grievances and act accordingly, in favor of additional money for the HRTA budget.

J. Murray Regan
Sylvan

Clashing views on rock band

To the Editor

I'm simply underwhelmed to see that The Clash are worthy of publicity and rave reviews in UMass' very own Collegian.

Most of Jim Moran's errors can be overlooked, including the misspelling of ex-Blockhead Micky Gallagher's name. After all, he's only been playing onstage with the band since September of last year.

I could have also understood Jim's difficulty with understanding the band's pronounciation of certain words if the lyrics hadn't been printed on the inner sleeve.

But Jim, how much research does it take to get the correct name of a song, one that's being played on all the fab radio stations? The Clash's 'big hit single' "Train in Vain," does come after "Revolution Rock."

As to why the band chose to exclude the title from the record label, this will remain a mystery to those of you who don't know that The Clash had originally planned to give the single away with copies of New Musical Express.

So, Jim, if you want to write about the survivors, the only band that will ever matter, either get your facts straight or stick to covering exciting groups like the Grateful Dead.

Janie Jones
Southwest

Jim responds:

After having looked at the original copy of my review of the Clash's London Calling (Collegian 5/8), my original did, in fact, read "Micky" Gallagher, who was part of Ian Dury's original backup group.

On the second claim, of misrepresenting the original lyrics, one can hardly expect word-for-word paraphrasing. Even recording artists themselves flub or improvise in and out of the studio when doing repeated renditions of their own work. Besides which, the copy of the album I had had only one set of lyrics enclosed, for a two-record set. I did the best job of deciphering I could. And I think you will find the lyrics I chose to use are near-verbatim, if not precise.

As for the third point of contention, of getting the song title "Train in Vain" wrong, look again Janie. The title is interchangable. If you will notice on the copy of your 45, next to "Train in Vain," in parentheses is "Stand by Me." This is done because record companies, and sometimes the artist(s), feel a song would be more identifiable for playlist and review purposes by the usage of a repeated chorus as an alternate title. some comparable examples are: Bob Dylan's "Sooner or Later (One of Us Must Know), "the Beatles' "Norwegian Wood (This Bird Has Flown)", the Stones' "(I Can't Get No) Satisfaction," and the Four Tops' "Reach Out (I'll Be There)."

As for your fourth protestation, I stand corrected. I did not know the group planned to enclose a single (for publicity purposes) with the British pop music magazine to which you referred. What can I say? You read one more rock magazine than I did.

This last complaint is valid, however, because its informational factor provided a service to our readership, which lent a legitimizing aspect to your otherwise petty response. We try hard to be educative, entertaining and informative. We are not yet ready to admit absolute perfection. Why don't ya write for us Janie?

Masiello testifies, Dwight denies bribery

By STEVEN A. COHEN
Associated Press Writer

BOSTON (AP) — The former owner of a politically connected architectural firm said yesterday that he handed a $2,000 cash payoff to then-Lt. Gov. Donald R. Dwight in 1974, and that he gave former Senate Ways and Means Chairman James A. Kelly $18,000 over a four-year period.

William V. Masiello, testifying before the state corruption commission for a second day, said he delivered the payment to the lieutenant governor's office on election day in 1974 and told Dwight he hoped Dwight would be reelected "because it is nice to have an open door to his office."

Dwight, now a Minneapolis newspaper publisher, branded Masiello's allegations as "an absolute lie."

"I have no memory of ever meeting the guy," Dwight said in a telephone interview. "I don't know the man. He is a professional liar. He's a perjurer, a briber, a corrupter, all by his own admission."

Masiello was questioned extensively about alleged payoffs to former Sen. Keily, involving $500 a month for about four years in the early to mid 1970s. His brother, Frank R. Masiello, had testified that Masiello & Associates, the Worcester architectural firm, made the payments for accounting services never performed.

William Masiello, star witness of the Ward Commission, gestures at the commission as his attorney, Thomas Reilly, appears to ask for divine guidance. Masiello told the state construction commission that he handed then-Lt. Governor Donald Dwight a $2,000 payoff for an architectural contract in Dwight's office. (AP Laserphoto)

Union Records Unlimited

END OF SEMESTER CLEARANCE SALE!

Union Records Unlimited will close for the semester today at 5 p.m. We would like to thank our customers and friends for supporting their student-run record store throughout the year.

We will be open during the Summer session week days from 11:30-2:30. Hope to see you then. Have a Summer of UNLIMITED fun.

your Student-run Record Store

Nix on politics dismays priests

By ISAAC A. LEVI
Associated Press Writer

MEXICO CITY — Pope John Paul II's crackdown on political activism in the Roman Catholic clergy is stirring questions and concern in Latin America, where priests landed as partners of the conquistadors of four centuries ago, and where some take up arms with the guerrillas of today.

In Nicaragua, for example, six priests holding high office in the revolutionary government — including the foreign minister — may have to step down because of the Vatican pressure.

Clergymen active in liberal and leftist causes fear that the new ban on priest-officeholders could eventually mean they must end their decades-old fight against military regimes, corruption and social injustice.

"The pope himself daily says things that touch on politics," said one concerned clergyman, the Rev. Nestor Jaen, Jesuit provincial delegate in Panama. "As head of the Vatican state, the pope is a politician."

In Rome Monday, as he returned from his African tour, the pontiff stated his position simply — "Politics is the responsibility of laymen and a priest should be a priest."

©1980 BRIGHTON PRODUCTIONS, INC.

Resident Camp Position

Gymnastic Director, Waterfront Instructors with WSI, Smallcraft Director and Assistants with Red Cross certificates.
Salary with room and board for nine weeks. For application, write Connecticut Valley Girl Scouts, Tolland MA 01034 or call 258-4592.

OUR 41st YEAR

PREPARE FOR:

MCAT • DAT • LSAT • GMAT • GRE
GRE PSYCH • GRE BIO • PCAT
OCAT • VAT • MAT • SAT • TOEFL
NMB I, II, III • ECFMG • FLEX • VQE
NDB I, II • NPB I • NLE
Flexible Programs & Hours

Visit Any Center And See For Yourself
Why We Make The Difference

In Amherst:
264 N. Pleasant St. (413) 253-5108
Classes Begin:
GMAT 6/16 LSAT 6/3
GRE 5/18

Stanley H. KAPLAN EDUCATIONAL CENTER
TEST PREPARATION SPECIALISTS SINCE 1938

Please call the Center for details
Outside N.Y. State Only CALL TOLL FREE: 800-223-1782
Centers In Major U.S. Cities, Toronto, Puerto Rico and Lugano, Switzerland

sound economy

End of Year Clearance Sale!

Sale ends May 24

ROBIN LANE
Robin Lane and the Chartbusters
7.98 series
only $4.00

On Warner Bros. Records and Tapes

THE PRETENDERS
the Pretenders
7.98 series
only $4.00

On Sire Records and Tapes

CHRISTOPHER CROSS
Christopher Cross
7.98 series
only $4.00

On Warner Bros. Records and Tapes

GENESIS
Duke
8.98 series
only $5.30

Distributed by Atlantic Records

Records are your best entertainment value

PLUS!

VAN HALEN
Women & Children First
8.98 series
only $5.30

Distributed by Atlantic Records

Our super inventory clearance sale!
$1.00 off our regular low prices on 6.98, 7.98 and 8.98 series albums. Details at store your record store the UNIVERSITY STORE

Sale-on-Tires

ROUTE 9 HADLEY, MA.
2 MILES FROM NORTHAMPTON OR AMHERST

MICHELIN - CONTINENTAL - ZENITH - B.F. GOODRICH - ARMSTRONG - GOODYEAR - PLUS OTHER MAJOR BRANDS.
SUPERSEDES ALL OTHER ADS.

Cash & Carry — TIRE SALE — Cash & Carry

All our tires are new and first line. No Blems or Seconds.

Wholesale to the Public.
We can arrange to have your tires mounted.

CONSUMER NOTE

WHEN COMPARING PRICES, MAKE SURE YOU ALSO COMPARE QUALITY GRADES, EFFECTIVE APRIL 1979 THE N.H.T.S.A. GRADED REGULAR BIAS-PLY TIRES (STANDARD =100) AS FOLLOWS:

NAME	QUALITY GRADE*
FIRESTONE (DLC)	80
ZENITH (PE)	80
GOODYEAR (POWERSTREAK)	70
WOOLCO (ALL AMERICAN)	70
SEARS (GUARDSMAN)	60
K-MART (KM-50)	50

*The higher the No.: the longer the tire will last.

DON'T FORGET IT'S YOUR MONEY

BIAS PLY POLYESTER

SIZE	TYPE	PRICE
A78x13	Arm. Wht.	23.95
B78x13	Zenith Bk.	25.95
C78x13	Fire. Dlc. Bk.	25.95
C78x14	Fire Dlc. Wt.	27.95
D78x14	Zenith Bk.	27.95
E78x14	Zenith Bk.	28.95
F78x14	Zenith Bk.	30.95
G78x14	Zenith Bk.	32.95
H78x14	Zenith Bk.	34.95
560x15	Zen Bk.	25.95
G78x15	Zenith Bk.	33.95
H78x15	Zenith Bk.	35.95
L78x15	Zenith Wt.	39.95

RADIAL PLY

SIZE	TYPE	PRICE
P155/80x13	WT. GLASS Goodyr. Viva	37.95
BR78x13	Fire. 721 WT. STEEL	49.95
P185/80x13	BFG Steel Wt.	49.00
CR78x14	BFG Steel Wt.	52.00
DR 78x14	BFG Steel Wt.	53.00
P195/75x14	BFG Steel Wt.	54.00
P205/75x14	BFG Steel Wt.	56.00
GR78x14	Zen. Glass Wt.	48.95
FR78x15	Fire. Glass Bk.	44.00
P205/75x15	BFG Steel Wt.	57.00
P215/75x15	BFG Steel Wt.	61.00
P225/75x15	BFG Steel Wt.	64.00
P235/75x15	BFG Steel Wt.	69.00

WIDE SERIES

BFGoodrich T/A PERFORMANCE TIRES — 150 Rating

E70x14	48.00	G60x14	57.00
F70x14	50.00	L60x14	63.00
G70x14	51.00	G60x15	58.00
G70x15	53.00	L60x15	65.00

ALL PRICE PLUS F.E.TAX & SALES TAX

CASH AND CARRY VISA OR MASTER CHARGE

OPEN Mon.-Fri. 9:30-5:30 Sat., 9:30-3 p.m.

586-2544

Prof, students arrested in welfare fraud

By DANIEL Q. HANEY
Associated Press Writer

BOSTON — Female students flashing fake identification cards and claiming nonexistent children helped a Northeastern University physical education professor bilk the state out of as much as $1 million in fraudulent welfare money, a prosecutor said yesterday.

The professor, Robert Hayes, 34, was arrested Tuesday in Harrisburg, Pa., for his alleged role in running Interested Neighborhood Action, Inc., a counseling service described as the headquarters of the welfare-collecting scheme.

Stephen Delinsky, an assistant attorney general, described the operation as the largest case of welfare fraud ever discovered in Massachusetts.

"Certain female students used phony identification to apply for welfare benefits for themselves and nonexistent children," the prosecutor said. They and other neighborhood residents collected welfare payments, food stamps and Medicaid prescription drugs.

Hayes was one of five people indicted earlier this month by a Suffolk County grand jury on charges of larceny, consipiracy, and the forging and uttering of checks and public records.

So far, Delinsky said, prosecutors have documented serveral hundred thousand dollars worth of fraudulent claims, and by the time the investigation's over, "the potential for reaching an amount close to a million dollars is there."

REGISTRATION APRIL 1–JUNE 20
CLASSES JUNE 23–AUGUST 1
CLASSES MEET FOR SIX WEEKS FIVE DAYS A WEEK THREE HOURS PER DAY AM OR PM anatomy/drawing animation

b & w photography clay/ceramics
collage color photography color
design
drawing
exhibitions/gallery workshop film
graphic design life drawing
metals/silversmithing
movement as a medium

MUSEUM SCHOOL SUMMER SCHOOL

painting
paper as an artform pastel printmaking sculpture silkscreen

summer workshop is a non-credit pre-freshman course summer workshop watercolor

wood/woodworking

WRITE REQUESTING SPECIFIC COURSE INFORMATION:
SCHOOL OF THE MUSEUM OF FINE ARTS
230 THE FENWAY
BOSTON, MA 02115
OR PHONE: (617) 267-1219

KNOW SOMEONE WHO IS GRADUATING?

Extend your congratulations!

Greeting cards * UMass glassware

T-shirts * UMass bookends, pens, etc.

UMass kites * UMass rings

Give them something to remind them of the old alma mater...and you

Open commencement day!

the UNIVERSITY STORE

1980 Commencement Information

University of Massachusetts at Amherst

Date: Saturday, May 24, 1980
Time: 10:00 am
Place: Alumni Stadium

Any undergraduate degree candidate who anticipates completing degree requirements by the end of the calendar year 1980 is eligible to participate in the 1980 ceremony. Questions concerning undergraduate academic status should be directed to the Records Office, Whitmore Building, 545-0555. Graduate students should direct questions to the Office of Degree Requirements, GRC, 545-0025.

COMMENCEMENT DAY SCHEDULE

9:00 am Robing for Commencement:
-Masters/Doctoral candidates assemble at the northwest end of the stadium (on the gravel area);
-Arts and Sciences graduates assemble at the southwest end of the stadium (on the gravel area between the facilities building and the stadium wall);
Physical Education, Health Sciences, Engineering, Education and Non-traditional Program candidates assemble at the southeast end of the stadium (on the gravel area between the facilities building and the stadium wall);
-Food & Natural Resources and Business candidates assemble at the northeast end of the stadium (on the gravel area).
-Signs will be displayed along the outside of the stadium walls. Appropriately colored signs, coordinated with tassel colors, will be displayed inside the stadium. All candidates should sit with their School or College.

9:30 am Seating of Graduates
10:00 am Commencement Procession begins
12 noon Commencement Ceremony ends

Distribution of Caps and Gowns
Where: University Store
Times: 10 am - 4 pm, Monday-Friday
When: April 28 - May 23, 1980
Also: 8 am - 10 am, Saturday, May 24th (at the stadium)
Doctoral Hoods are available at a cost of $26.00 each.
PLEASE BRING YOUR I.D.!

Accommodations: a limited number of rooms are available for relatives and other guests the nights of May 23 & 24 in University Housing. Please contact the University Conference Office at 545-2591.

In the event of rain: there is no alternative rain site. Commmencement will be held outside in the Alumni Stadium regardless of the weather. A delay of two (2) hours will be announced in the event of heavy rains and cancellation in the event of torrential rains. Please listen to local radio stations th morning of may 24 for announcements of delay or cancellation.

Invitations are not required for admittance. Seating for guests will be on a first come, first served basis.

If additional information is needed, contact the Office of Public Affairs at 545-2560.

GOOD LUCK

GERRY

Collegian Classifieds

Congraduations.

and this isn't a typo!!!

FOR RENT

Economy Apt 3 bedrooms, extra storage rooms. June and Sept terms $235 plus partial utilities Call 5-6 pm Skibiski Realtors Northampton 584-3428

Room in house for rent end of May-Aug $90 per month 10 min from Campus and Amherst Center call Laurie eve 256-0637

Rooms for Summer rental Amherst price negotiable call 6-5081 or 546-5100

Summer rooms for rent $70, $80 and $90 price includes utilities use of kitchen color TV much more singles, doubles, and triples at 395 No Pleasant St. 253-9987

2 bedroom Colonial Village Apt bus route June 1 with option call Lisa Robin evenings 253-3740

2 bdrm apt Colonial Village nice, across from bus stop Rt neg June 1 Fall option 253-3195

Summer Rentals at reasonable prices Zeta Psi Fraternity is one block from campus. Call 256-6845 for more information

House in North Amherst available June 1st w/Fall option. 5 minute walk to bus, bar, and groceries. $100/month/bedroom plus utilities call evenings 549-0319

One bedroom of three Puffton, swimming pool, tennis courts, Summer $95.00/mo; call 549-1421

2 bedrooms available $85 per month inc electriucity, bus route, Fall option, perfect for nonsmoker who likes animals 253-7573

2 bedroom Colonial Village apt June 1 with Fall option, bus route evenings 549-3926

2 bedroom apt available June 1 with Fall option $240 includes all utilities call 549-5935

1 bedroom in 2 bdrm Townhouse Apt $120/month (negotiable) call 549-4920

1 room Amherst Center 256-6997 anytime

House with acreage in Williamsburg 4-5 bedrooms. Country location. Available Sept 1. Call after July 15. $500/mo. Skibiski Realtors 584-3428 Northampton

3 bedroom Townhouse Apt for the Summer rooms avail call 549-4049

Summer Sublet/Fall option 1 bdrm apt Cliffside $192 incl. util. 665-7966

5 bedroom house for Sept 1 $600 per month. Fireplace, large lot. Rt. 9 Skibiski Realtors 584-3428

4 bedroom house sublet for June 1-Aug 31 $341 per month, in Northampton. Skibiski Realtors 584-3428

Best Deal!!! call 549-0755 Best Deal !!! call 549-0755

FOR SALE

5 cubic foot refrigerator must sell moving off campus excellent condition $40 or BO call 546-7940 call after 4:00

Electric Mandolin $75 Mederia banjo 6-5693

Refrigerator 4 cu ft excel cond $95 6-8133 PM

For Sale: ten speed bike good condition and a double burner hot plate cheap great for the dorms call Laura 6-9814

Sofa green, very comfortable, excellent condition $150 or BO 253-3787 after 6 keep trying

Large bureau with mirror 549-4059

5 sp. Ross bike good condition. $100 call John 253-7841

Attention Big Sale moving to warm climate, selling winter clothes 549-5129 after 6:00 PM

Single bed brass headboard BO 256-6352

Rossignols & bindings & ski boots 546-5480

Refrigerator 5.5 cubic ft full freezer section excellent condition $95.00 call 546-9601 keep trying

FURNITURE

For sale—matching couch and chair good condition Lori 549-1739

FOUND

A set of keys near Herter Stop by Collegian

1 key chain outside Hampshire DC ID call 6-7834

To the former Greenough Snackbar regular you left your calculator at the campus center coffee shop 5/8 call Anne 546-1176

HELP WANTED

Summer work with the oldest, largest and best-paying student program in the country, Call 253-2597 for interviews.

Collegian Photo Dept. needs asst. editors for next semester. See Paul Price at Collegian Office, 113 Campus Center or call 545-3500

We provide a house, a salary range of $10,000 to 14,800 + additional stuff. We are looking for a couple who can create a home, in our house, with 4 to 6 teens. Couple should have knowledge of court related adolescents, an ability to relate and set limits, plus a sense of humor. For more info—call the home finder at the Center for Human Development at 733-6624 or send resume to CHD 52 Maple Court, Springfield, Mass 01105

Summer workstudy on campus Organizing a teen conference and two international exchanges 219 Stockbridge Hall 545-2646

Summer Workstudy Ashland, Framingham Instructors in day-camp situation in nutrition, excercise, gardening or environment 219 Stockbridge Hall 545-2646

Address and stuff envelopes at home any age or location, $800 per month, possible See ad under Business Opportunities Triple "S"

How did 5000 students last summer make $355.00 per week? Find out after your last final on May 19-21 Call 253-2597

Wanted: One free lance psyco linguist for cunning conversation 253-9315 fee negotiable

HOUSE FOR RENT 1981

Beautifully restored 200 year old Cape in Pelham. 5 rooms, 2 fireplaces & woodstove. Available January, 1981 $430 + utilities 253-7233

INSTRUCTION

Basic Auto-Mechanics Workshop. Summer class forming, 28 hours of instruction including classroom theory and shop. Limited enrollment. 253-7967

LOST

Anyone that found some tools in a gray toolbox and a tune up analyzer in a styrofoam box next to Cashin please contact Don at 546-5984 I need them!

Blue daypack Sat nite if found please call 253-7109

Women's leather dress boots at Coll Pizza parking lot call 546-9652

Lost blue 4 binder notebook very important reward if found call Bob 253-9339

Lost gold bracelet square charm emerald diamond chips reward! Dawn 546-4476

Green backpack lost on May 8 please return to Mary Lyon lounge no questions asked

MOTORCYCLES

1978 Kawasaki KZ650 excellent condition extras best offer 549-4547

Yamaha 76 Enduro $550 Suzuki 77 RM125 $500 549-3597 after 6:00 PM

NEED A ROOMATE FOR FALL?

Call 546-6742, late

NEED A SUMMER JOB?

Staff members wanted for Summer co-ed camp in Maine If interested, please call (413) 567-6356 after 4 PM

PERSONALS

Nance It's been one hell of a semester. Thanx for the good times...Janet

Sporting Goods Co-op: Clearance sale open Mon-Fri 10-3 (next to Post Office in Student Union)

Lambda DeltaPhi needs boarders for Fall Call 5-0939 ask for Mary stop by 389 North Pleasant

Painter—Happy Graduation to our upchucking Piccasso--Congratulations!! One more mural for Grad School Baker, Mr. Galvs, Smitty, Red, L.D., Vanilla Thunder

Jenson Bummies!!

Marsha good luck this Summer I'll miss you Matt

Thatcher 3rd Take it easy this Summer Real easy! - 306

Lost Thursday 5/8 Brown Wallet with Connecticut license, birthdate 4/3/59, UMass ID, and press card. Also silver rimmed glasses in turquoise case Call Julie 549-2664 or 545-3500

Lost at Spring Concert Kodak tote bag with Canonet camera and film with sentimental value. Reward. 549-2664

To Beth Ed and Michelle—Thanks to a great group of officers, I couldn't have done it without you. Anne

Jeehn-NY, my honey----you make me melt all over

Students—Please return completed Financial Aid Survey by 5/21 to SCERA

To the SBA Coffee Shop Crew: Had a great time pouring it on! Have a great Summer. See ya July 12 Love and kisses, Nancy and Edee

Collen Champman: Congratulations and good luck 4th floor JQA won't be the same without oscar and yourself! Love and kisses, Nancy and Edee

Wendy Jomes: Congratulations and good luck in the real world we'll miss you! Love and kisses, Nancy and Edee

Dear Bruce—"you have no idea" how much I'm gonna miss you next semester! Thank you for such a fantastic year. It was "ecstasty!" I love you, Donna

Dear Sandy Brown, Thank you for all the good times, sharing and caring! And, yes, I will sing at that special occasion! Love, your roomate

Dear Ellyn (with a "y") hey kid! (woman), thanks for all the night jogs and the talks that went along with them! You're a very special friend (even if you are a femiinist) Love your socially-aware ex-roomate

To the 4th floor Brett—I'll miss you all!! Love, "The Who" fanatic

Shroomly—Happy 19th Birthday! Ed King still sucks! Enjoy your day and your Summer. Signed—"Come on feet"

Big Brother Mark, Congratulations!!! Too bad the party is over. The time has come when you must put on a suit. I'll miss you next year. Love your little sis, Valerie

Will, you really are my buddy! Thanks for a great year!! Love, Terese

8th florr McNamara—Aways remember, we taught you how to party, you keep up the tradition! Love you—The Wild Women, Vito, Cleavage & Decibel

Sanja—To my favorite roomie. IFLA to FAC have a great Summer! Love, Terri

Valerie Hagfeldt: Have fun in Montana! Good luck with G, and in everything you do, we'll miss you—the junior birdman fan club

Mimi and Jill, Mephi and I are looking forward to a great Summer! Ken

To the Collegian Advertising Staff: I would like to thank you for a good year. Even though you're all jot shits, you're still a bunch of knuckeheads in my book. Ken

To my crazy roomates: Flowers in the living room, moons in Leverett, G.B.'s at KS on Wed Nights and nailing at the Pub Howcan I ever thank you I love you guys Mary John, Jack, Kurt, Bob, Chris, John, Jim, Dave, Pat way to hammer at the Vail!

Uncle Mark and Scottie you're the greatest! Econo-Ball been bery very good to us! The Econo-Kids

To Heidi, Andra, Nina, Karen you're all the best Brenda

Ronnie—Thanks for being such a good friend. The memories of this year are excellent, I'm glad we met. You're the best! Freinds always—Love Cathy

Kel and Trac, People they live from day to day and they do not count the time. They don't see the days slipping by, and neither did I. We love you guys, Love, Tor and Lyn

Markus Spagettihedus weus madeus itus alrightus!!!! Ius loveus youus, Beavus

Hey 3rd floor Melville, your the best Vickie, your okay too!!! Love Cheryl

Mary Foley--Keep on "flirtin' with disaster" all Summer long! Loe, Diane

Shnookums—Happy 21st to the most special man in my life. Love needs a heart and I'm yours. Babycakes PS I love you

Rita-The life of the druggie is a hard one, so stay out of there is no room in the drug world for the amateur-Dave

Applications now being accepted for the 2113 JQA Craig firing squad Large crowds expected so get your carbines now!!!

Bill McDonnell, They say California is loaded with business management jobs and I know there will be fierce competition to hire you! Good Luck from the Pocono counselor

Hey Oreillyheimer—you're fat. . .CP

My dear Freddie six semesters to late burp me your secret admirer

The paper phantom is running rampant on the 8th floor JA - Red, beware!

Ken and Joan, Get out of here you knuckleheads! We need more space! your Business Staff P.S. Ken, you throw the lousiest parties!!! We love you!

Melanie—again I say I'm going to miss you good luck Rich

To Duane the Flasher your show got rave reviews!! the crowd wants an encore!

Lois—I'm bored has it been 5 months yet I'm going to miss you. Weekend lover

Justin—I'm sorry for whatever I did Please let's be friends again-wanna get an ice cream? your friend- I hope- Karen

Hey 2nd DarknessPierpont!! I'll miss you all Paul (I.S.) and Debbles-the wild woman of Medfield Kisses Tome PS Thanx Mark

Goobba!! You big goobba you! You're a great roomie & I love ya! I had fun thissemester (especially when you hit me) Tom

Bev, Sheba, Geneva, Mother, John, Paul D., Cheryl L, Milly, Sally, Carratts, John, and all friends of Dorothy. It was the best semester Jans party, gong show, discos, I'll miss you all, be good girls Love and kisses Trixie

Kafween: Svann svann svann. .

Neal, Hope you're as brilliant down the Cape as in act one! See you there!

To the eighth floor JQA its part time residents and all my other friends who celebrated my birthday with me, thanks for making it so special, and for making my first year at umass fantastic. I love you all, you're the best! Maureen

Dedicated to my favorite bug man—how time flies when you're having fun gonna miss you George I'll think of you whenever I see a roach! Good luck

Caroline and Sue, little hellions if ever we met any, the semester hasn't ended yet, but wait until next!

Hey Gazelles—you too, Carol - I don't care where you placd. You're still the best thing going. Thanks for a marvelous season Sullivan

To all Collegian staffers: Thanks for a great semester, even the "loincloth" jokes were, well, funny—Love, J.E.

To the other two from Club 99: Thanks for a great semester, you fabulous roomies—Love, Julie

I.B.T.C.—Thank you all your dreams will come true Love ya always S.T.W.E.

Bagel sisters, Its nice to know that theres more to you thanb rasin bagels and 1 egg over light. P.S. There's really nothinmg wrong with drycleaning designer jeans! Its been a pleasure

To the Collegian Staff

What a fun year - I don't care what they say - the Collegian is a great place to work. I'm gonna miss you all. No more paging over the microphone, running around looking for the lost ads, smiling at irate customers, correcting those endless classifieds, sorting through stacks of mail, fixing all those errors the work-study made, and trying to explain what they've done, debating with Ken, running errands for Fred, getting breakfast for Maureen and Jim, but what I'm going to miss most of all is all of you smiling back at me everyday - it's been a pleasure working for you all - hope to see you when I stop by in the Fall. Have a super Summer. God bless you all, Kathy

Hey B.C. How is your henna? Don't worry, I'm only raging on you, but if you want to know who I am look for the man with the most experience

To the runt, Sir James, Mark, Tim, Dorsey, Joyce, John, George, Carol, Karen, Rott, Thomas, Miriam, Sue, Ed, Tami, Alan, Paul, Mike, Willaim, Sal, Weiner, Louis, Cathy, Craig, and Dave—You're wonderful. Love, City

Staz, Janet, Maryjane, Ellen good friends are like fine wine—they get better with age. Keep in touch and meet you in metropolis Love Al

SNAKW—I'll miss you this Summer! Keep in touch! Love, Kitten

Christopher—we got birds and bees, you got flowers and trees. . .Kinky & Tammy

Good girls of 205 McNamara—I'll miss you! Get psyched for Fall! Love, Kinky

Dearest Chucklet! Wishing you happiness on your graduation day and throughout your life! I've really enjoyed this semester with you and look forward to next. You're really a wonderful person. All my love, Rosko

To Pam, Janet, Mary, Hazel, Joanne, and Susi the best typesetters in the world. Thanks for taking some of the insanity out of my job. To all of you, best of luck. Gerry Collegian paste-up people and camera people (too numerous to mention) thanks so much for making life a bit easier for me to bear. And special thanks to Suzette, Jeff, & Schmitt The only thing I'll miss about this place is all of you. Gerry.

Amy Warden—we'll miss you. Hope that you have a wicked excellent summer. Maybe D. Eckersley will divorce his wife, afterall.

Collegian Classifieds

To place a Collegian Classified
•Come to Collegian Office CC 113
•8:45 to 3:45 Mon-Fri
•Classified deadline is 3:45 two days prior to publication day

Collegian Classified Rates
•15c per word
•Student rate 10c per word
•Cash in advance
•5 consecutive days 5 % discount
•Phone number FREE

Washington Dorm was OK JA was better, Dwight was great. . .but 711 Northeast Street--you are the balls! It's bee a pleasure UMass. Thanx CBT

Marykid—Thanks for your warm hospitality this semester—Bruce

To the original urge of Coolidge 2—Good luck—you will be missed thanks for everything! Love, the original itch

Simon—Happy 22nd! I'm glas to be sharing another one with you. Thanks for a beautiful 20 months Love Sylvia

Steve Drelick—Wish I had seen you before the end of the semester. Have a good Summer. Love, Margaret

Frankly Scarlett: I do give a damn, now that we're both 20 Happy Birthday on May 17, love you illegal little sister

Scarlett, Chief John, Doug, Nancy Rimmer, Ron DiGravio, Ronnie Dore, Andy Girard, Cathy Crogan, Joe McNulty, the toy cops, Tom and the Thrasher and all of your other favorite buudies, including me, Magrot, wish you the happiest, and most deserved, legal birthday -May 17

To Alison's Friends at UMass: It's hard to say goodbye! I've had such a wonderful time these past two years, I've learned so many important things from all of you. I'll miss everyone who has touched my life here; but Smith is only in Northampton, and I expect scads of visitors. Besides--you can't get rid of me this easily! I love you all. As always, Alison L.

Roger now your daughter has a college graduate for a father lucky her love Macky and Mickey

Howie—Thanks for last night. Love, Cardildo

Russell Congratulations! your own personal Lori

To all the friends I've made here, especially the 17th of JQA and ASSA, I'm gonna miss you! See you in Hawaii? Much love and aloha Celia

How Boutcha Maryanne? Have a wicked good Summer and you'd better write. I'm gonna miss you, I think? Love your roomie Cel

UMass thanks for the four best years ever lets do it again sometime you're the best 4911051 80

Peter, I love you! Happy first anniversary. Love, Robin

Thanks Theta Chi at the Concert esp. the Big Italian from the girl who cared

Sharon, darlene, Mac, Rose, Michelle, Mel (did I miss anyone?) Another semester gone. . . Have a wonderful Summer--put you feet up, relax and enjoy! I love you all!---Tish

Mel-Baby. . .Love you lots--gonna miss you!

Ellen you've made my past 2 semesters one of the best times of my life and I'm looking forward to a long lasting relationship Thanks love John

Kathy what's another year? Happy Birthday from the top of the hill

Watch out watch out for Wado watch out for Wado. You physical wreck have a good Summer in those pennsylvucky pubs miss you Kimberly

15th floor Coolidge you guys are great thanks for making this year so much fun have an excellent Summer and always remember the crazy times love Yael

Adventure. . .and Ecoli, Bus #4, coffee, cookies, carnations, clairvoyance, Chapel dust, cut it!! Dirt roads, easy open locker, have a good one, in a coule, jungle ball, Lady & the Tramp, M.T.M., midnight marauding, Molsens, Mt Tom Park, O.M.O., P.R.H., pondwater, R.H.P.S. 151, cemetaries, swins, security guards, sunrise, good times with good friends

Casey heart for heart and soul for soul let us be friends forever JP

Casey remember me as I do you, withall the tenderness which is possible for one to feel for another, which no time can obilterate, no distance alter, but which is always the same JP

Friskie, I don't mind that you still laugh, make horrendous jokes, and act dumb; I love you anyway Fluffie

To 5 North Field—Thanks for the best year ever! We're going to miss you. Love you all, Gina and Annie

Happy Birthday weirdo Luv Bo

605 C Brown we all love your feet—admirers from the Spring Concert

Is he really a narc?

SEA: the duck says ---!

Mul, Gabe, Dutts, Mark: don't see you guys much anymore, just wanted to say have a good Summer!

Ruth: thanx for a great year! roomie

Nanook of Dak—Let's rub noses temptress of frozen delights

Wree-knee the bank job is on have a good Summer Boris and Me

Nancy L of 711—Thanx for a fun and funny 2 semesters! Love, the one who trips in the dark!

Mike Sheridan as theroad rises to new horizons may you remember a piece of my heart travels with you always love Debbie

Peter—Have a super 20th birthday and an excellet time in Colorado maybe a ski trip to Colorado over spring break?? thanks for a great semester Ray

Nancy, thanks for all the good times over the past year. I'm going to miss you when you're gone I hope we can still be close despite the distance good luck in all your future endeavors love, Tim

Kim, -Lee, Shari—Thanks for making the weekend one wild party. No matter what the MUCS will live 4ever. Gonna miss you mucs love Jagger

Yoff you're the greatest I'm gonna miss you tons 143 HAR

Ruth Byrne I love you Rick Danko

Stephen D—Now that the end is near I just wanna say thanks for makin me so happy. You're a very special person and number one in my book! Love, Cands

Marcie currin chicken and prom noodies on you. Happy 21 love Julie and Ruth

PROFESSORS SPECIAL

Exterior House Painting experienced grads. References, free estimates, quality work. Please call Steve 256-6644

RIDE WANTED

From S. Hadley to Umass daily during Summer session call Nina 532-0218

Ride wanted to NYC May 15-16 call Alison 549-1046

ROOMATE WANTED

Female roommate wanted Brdywn apt, start 9/1, Nancy or Janet, 545-2800, btwn 9-4

3 quiet housemates seek 4th Peinam yard, woods. Summer, Fall option; $106+ negotiable 253-3528 after 6 pm

Townehouse Apt need 2 or 3 roomates June-Aug $70/mo fully furnished call 549-1420

Puffton Village 1 bdrm in 3 bdrm apt for Summer pool, A.C., 549-4196

Summer roomate wanted Cliffside own large bedroom furnished pool, tennis courts 135.00/mo negotiable 665-2020 late evenings best

2 vacancies female preferred house mile from campus call 549-6882

Martha's Vineyard person needed to share ideal Summer home Walt 549-3981

Roomate wanted to share large house in N Amherst from June 1 - Sept 1 rent $108.00 549-6547

Brandywine one or two roomates wanted Fall option Summer sublet call Kath or Lisa 549-4033 nice spacious place

Space for one Amherst house starting Fall sem call for details! 323-5262

Two rooms available (individually) for Summer sublet in three bedroom Townehouse apartment semi-furnished Fall opt for sublettors, on two bus routes Bay State phone, HBO---prefer non-smoker, student,very reasonable 549-5192

Female roomate needed for cottage on beach Harwichport, 575 Summer call Lisa 253-7788 or Niki 546-6070

2 rooms in 3 room Puffton apt available for Summer, 1 with Fall option. Air cond, tennis, swimming pool, on bus route call 549-5791

2 females needed for W. Yarmouth cottage call nights 549-0339

Two female nonsmokers to share two bedroom Brandywine Fall 546-7968 Rose, Laura

Roomate wanted for two bedroom Townhouse Squire Village Summer large room with large walkin closet 665-2013

1 or 2 people Cottage in South Dennis May 23 to Sept 10 256-8704

Summer roomate, furnished, inexpensive Colonial Village 253-9553

Male/fem to share lg apt w/2 others So Deerfield, smokers OK 105/mo util incl on bus rte beg June 665-3092

Puffton Vill one room for two $75 each 549-6146

One roomate wanted for Fall semester in sedate 3 bedroom Townhouse in North Amherst ½ mile from Campus 549-5134

Male roomate wanted to share room in 2 bdr. apt. Summer only $60 a mo. call 546-8026

Female non-smoker wanted to share country house, 6 miles from campus, bus route, low rent 253-3540/665-4807

Female roomate for Presidential for Summer with Fall option 549-6866

Female roomate for Cape house in E. Dennis call Gail or Cindy 549-1246

Fall semester: First semester male jr. looking for same to split $365/mo Brittany Manor Apt Heat included 256-6747

Female wanted to share room for Fall in Brittany Manor 256-8297

ROOM WANTED

Fall semester—female needs room near Campus/bus Call karen 549-3677

SERVICES

UMass Legal Services Office offers free legal services to fee-paying graduate and undergraduate students in the areas of University administrative problems; landlord/tenant disputes; and uncontested divorces and guardianships. LSO also gives advice on Small Claims Court, and limited counselling in criminal matters. Call 545-1995; Room 922 Campus Center UMass.

Need help moving? Student with truck will help or consider renting truck. Tim 253-3366

Mover—Low rates no job too small call Will morn 586-1263 1 PM - 9 PM 545-0997

SUMMER BORDERS WANTED

Convenient on-campus location single and double rooms available first come-first serve please call 253-3919 after 6:00 PM

SUMMER SUBLET

Inexpensive Summer sublet! Only $200.-per month 2 bedroom fully furnished, A/C, pool, garden plots, etc. to see it is to love it! Call now! 665-7756

3 furn bedrooms 70+ Amherst 253-7082

Puffers Pond 2 bedroom apt June 1 to Aug 30 549-4055

New Listing 2 rooms—house Amherst center SW pool across St. $100 549-0801 great location

Furn Rm in house rate neg 546-5684

Brandywine two bedroom apt great deal fully furnished 200 per month call 549-0128 for details

Great deal 3 bedroom Townhouse apt great locale, bus service - mins to campus. Furnished with A/C. 6/1-8/31 rent only $165 mo or $60 per room call soon 546-5090 546-9607

2 bdrm Bay Rd Hadley $275 (negotiable) washer/dryer sunny open space 586-6372

Large 2 bedroom apt, Amherst Center not a complex Summer poss Fall option 253-9481

1 of 3 bdrms Puffton Vlg pool, tennis, good location rent negotiable 549-4914

TO SUBLET

2 bdr apt Colonial Vlg June-Aug $190/month bus rte 256-8454

1 4 bedroom apt Swiss Village bus rte Fall option scenic view 256-6344

Summer Sublet Swiss Village 4 bdrm 2 baths has sliding glass door on to second floor balcony. Best offer 253-9407 after 5:00

Sublet house June-Aug in Northampton $341 per month plus utilities call 5-6 pm Skibiski Realtors 584-3428

3 bedroom Rolling Green June-August $265 a month or BC utilities inc 546-9637 546-9609 546-9748

Pufton Summer lease 1 bd. Fall opt. 549-6637 again eves

3 bedroom Townehouse Apts fully furnished $225 or best offer 549-5897

1 bedroom in 3 bedroom Puffton Apt Summer sublet rent negotiable 549-6803

2 bedrooms available in Swiss Village cheap rent everything included for June to August call 253-3534 or 546-8079

3 bedroom Apt 215/month Amherst Center 256-0365

$75 own room in quiet 2 bdrm house Cushman, bus route, sublet June-Aug Sandy 549-0258 5-7 PM

2 bedroom apart Brandywine partly furnished A/C, pool,call Beaver, "D", WoJo 545-0210

2 bedrooms in Swiss Village apartment $75 each/month negotiable 6-1 9-1 call 253-7857

2 bedroom Brandywine fully furnished, on bus routes. Summer only price negotiable 549-2832

Summer Sublet!! One room Colonial Village busroute, pool, $110, neg. 253-3956

2 bedroom Townhouse fully furnished clean busroute pool air conditioning 256-8883 $200/month

2 bdrm apt Colonial Village for June 1 option for Fall furnished 545-2707 (ask for John Muggee) or 253-2204

Two rooms available for Summer in beautiful Leverett duplex Fall option $113/mo 549-6846

3 bedroom house w/2 baths 1.5 miles from campus ½ mile from Ams center close to bus stop $300/month avail May 25th to Aug 31 call 253-2657 soon!

Free $100/extras if you rent our 2 bedroom apt for the Summer call for info 665-7787

5 bdrm apt 5 mins to town 15 mins to campus price negot call Mike 256-0378

Four bedroom Rolling Green AC, pool, bus rt, all utilities, very negotiable, call 546-9577, 546-4337, 546-8112

Spacious two bedroom Townhouse furnished, Riverglade,June-August $235 253-2069

Rolling Green 3 bed townhouse for June July August 180 month inclusive 253-7978

Townhouse Apt one bedroom available for Summer 549-1233 negotiable

Rolling Green A/C, pool; willing to sublet during Summer for best offer. Also need two roomates for school year 253-3231

1 bedroom apt Brandywine Summer sublet w/Fall opt. negotiable 549-0095

Furnished completely 2 bedroom apt across street from Puffers Pond cable TV 240.00 per month 549-4804

Echo Hill sublet 2 roomates needed for with Fall option $95 per month per room beautifully furnished call Ken or Carl 253-3054 after 6 pm

Last Chance! Cheap 2 bdrm apt, $250/mo in Southwood w/Fall option By all means call 256-0316 or 549-0699

2 bedroom Townhouse apt furnished A/C, dish washer Fall option rent negotiable call 549-4920

Room available in house next to Puffton Village Summer & possibly Fall 549-0469

June sublet two bedroom with option to cintinue Southwood on bus route call 256-8665

Riverglade Apt 2 bdrm $255. Call 253-7478

Sunny 2 bdrm apt in Colonial Village bus rt swimming pool Fall option $225 253-7714

Bdrm 6/1 to 8/31 nr UM & Am Center great for Summer rent neg 549-6467

1 bdrm Cliffside Apt Summer with Fall option rent negotiable 665-2487 eves

1 bdrm Cliffside apt on bus route pool tennis AC cable TV June-Aug w/Fall opt $200/month 665-4891 after 5 PM

2 bedroom Colonial Village Summer sublet, pool, bus route, 225/mo 256-6281

Amherst Center Summer sublet negotiable 256-0304

2 bedroom apt 1½ mi from Campus near Puffers Pond AC utilities included available June 1 with Fall option 549-0098

Rooms in house Summer Fall option N Amherst acre of land bus rte 549-4001 eves

2 bedroom Colonial Village late May w/Fall option, bus, pool, reduced rent, 253-2457 3-7 PM

Swiss Village 4 bedroom apt on bus route/2nd floor--nice view subletting for Summer with option for Fall $110/mo call 253-5348

Puffton Village 2 bedroom furnished or unfurnished June 1 - August 31 $230 (negotiable) 549-6420

Sunderland two bedroom Summer sublet Fall option bus route 665-7954

2 bedroom Townhouse apt -Southwood $175 month June 1 Aug 31call 253-9447

3 bdrm Townehouse Apt 6/1 - 8/31 rent negotiable great location 546-5050

Female roomate wanted own room bus rt low rent June-Aug 253-3246

Squire Village 1 room availabel Summer attractive, on bus route rent negotiable/reasonable 665-4111 late

2 bedroom Townhouse apt in Southwood apts furn, air cond, pool, June 1 - Aug 30 call 253-9447

2 bdr Southwood Townhouse apt Summer sublet w/Fall option bus route call mornings evenings rent negotiable 253-7884

Free color TV when you sublet one bedroom apt Cliffside bus route, bar, store, woods rent 175 incl utilities 665-7005 anytime

Nuke the Whale by Danny Guidera

Bean by Kevin X. McNamara

4 by Frank Emery

Wimpman by Evan Carlson

Doonesbury by Garry Trudeau

DOONESBURY by Garry Trudeau

Crossword

ACROSS
1 Coffeehouses
6 Caama
10 Stone
14 Love: It.
15 Peruse
16 God: Bib. var.
17 Pools
18 — service
20 Motor: Abbr.
21 Halt
23 Weasel's kin
24 The Hunter
26 Old French coins
28 Lawsuit
30 — Carlo
31 Dakota dialect
32 Marvelous
36 Canticle
37 Coins
38 Mountain: Prefix
39 Likings
42 N. Dakota city
44 Loathes
45 Fur-bearer
46 Wrinkles
49 Piquant
50 Send money
51 Slay
52 Appropriate
55 Reparation
58 Iron —: Magnetite
60 Smidgen
61 Sword
62 Excitement
63 Raced
64 Cravats
65 Refrigerant

DOWN
1 Arrived
2 Prayer word
3 Overlooked
4 Prior to
5 Assembly
6 Malicious burning
7 Percolate
8 "My Gal —"
9 Dutch commune
10 Meaner
11 Type style
12 Swain
13 Layers
19 Short tale
22 Cargo unit
25 — de Janeiro
26 Do's and —
27 Finishes
28 At the peak
29 Yield
30 Mountains: Fr.
32 Port, et al
33 Pistol
34 Goad
35 Diving bird
37 Partner
40 Shackled
41 Swiftness
42 Decline
43 Knack
45 — de mer
46 Gorges
47 Tilt again
48 Overact
49 Positions
51 Body joint
53 Thought: Prefix
54 Sea swallow
56 Encountered
57 Finial
59 Dry: Prefix

UNITED Feature Syndicate
Tuesday's Puzzle Solved

Lunch
Tuna Oriental
Hot Pastrami on Pumpernickle

Basics Lunch
Garden Medley Casserole
Tuna Oriental

Dinner
Salisbury Steak/Sauteed Onions
Fish Fry Plate/Tartar Sauce, Cocktail Sauce
Deviled Egg Cold Plate

Basics Dinner
Soybean Chop Suey/Dry Noodles
Fish Fry Plate/Tartar Sauce, Cocktail Sauce
Deviled Egg Cold Plate

UNITED Feature Syndicate
Wednesday's Puzzle Solved

TOWNHOUSE SUMMER/FALL OPTION

Two bedroom A/C 549-2659

WANTED

Cash for Gold or Silver items Antiques too call 546-7369 Cheryl

Cash! Top dollars for school rings, gold, ect. At Wendy Fun Funk & Punk CC Concourse twice a week

WANTED TO RENT

Wanted—Two bedroom in Puffton for Summer with Fall option willing to pay full rent call Joanne anytime 253-7503 keep trying!

WASH D.C.

Sublet available June 1 - Aug 1 1 br in a 2 br apt walk to Metro, pool, tennis, view of D.C. central A/C, dishwasher rent $240/month call 703-920-9226

BILL OVEREN FOR PRESIDENT

If elected I promis milkys for all!

2 bedroom Townhouse apt $230 Fall option 549-1675

2 bedroom Puffton Village Summer w/Fall option $225 mo neg 549-0455

2 bdrm Lincoln apts Ju 22-Aug 30 under $200 mthly incl call 549-6279

Townhouse in Sunderland for Summer, pool, tennis. Rent negotiable 665-2077 after 5:00

2 rm apt in Amherst June - August $150/month including utilities exc Summer locale call Michael or Jeannie 253-7284 after 5

1 bedroom Swiss Village 90 month incl. util. call Sue 256-8610

Brandywine 549-4058

Two bdrm Cliffside furnished, Bus, tennis, pool, dishwshr, woods. negotiable 665-2713

So. Amherst bus rt. pool, tennis, June 1 w/Fall option rent neg 253-5109

$150 for 1st Summer School session lg room N Amherst 2 bus rt beautiful house Andrea 549-4001

June 1 to Sept 1 one room cabin near lake in Belchertown $140 + 323-5518 eves

House to Sublet of Summer 3 bedroom less than ½ mile from campus private arrangement rent negotiable call Denise 546-1231 or Ellen 546-4773 late at night

ACTIVISTS WORK FOR A CHANGE!

Petition, raise funds & educate public on issues of vital economic concern to low and middle income families from 2:00 p.m. to 10:30 p.m., M-F. Opportunity for advancement to organizing and research staffs.
Call 586-1150 from 9:00 a.m. to 1:00 p.m., M-F.
MASS FAIR SHARE
131 King St., Northampton

Notices

GYM EQUIPMENT — Undergraduate and Graduate students are required to return gym equipment, clothes and locks signed out this semester to the Boyden or NOPE equipment rooms no later than 5:00 PM, Wednesday, May 21, 1980. Equipment, clothes and locks not turned in will be billed to the student through the Bursar's Office.

IM Softball finals today—Dogbreath will be playing Phi Sigma Kappa for the men's softball title today at 4:30 p.m.

Trackwomen end year with eighth at NEs

By JAMES GRAHAM
Collegian Staff

The UMass women's track team finished eighth out of more than 20 teams in the New England Championships last weekend at Dartmouth College in Hanover, New Hampshire. With the heavy rains and late arrival of several key members of the team counting against them, the UMass Minutewomen still managed to turn in some of their top performances of this season.

UMass' Karen Snow took third in the javelin with a throw of 139'10". Snow's effort was only an inch short of her personal best set at the UVM meet earlier in the season. Another UMass competitor who fared well in the field events as well as on the track was Julie Horgan who placed fifth overall in the pentathalon. Horgan broke the UMass school record with her attempt.

The highlight for UMass on the track was in the 800 meters when senior Cyndi Martin placed second with a 2:11.4. In her last meet of her college career Martin topped her previous best by five seconds and set a new school record. "I run well in the rain and since this was my last race I just decided to go for it. I went through the quarter in 65 seconds and that's right where I wanted to be," said Martin.

In a tactical race UMass's top distance runner, Judy McCrone, managed to take fourth in the 1500 meters after being boxed in for the first three laps. McCrone's time of 4:38 was still respectable and she hopes to compete well in the Nationals next week. Teammate Tricia Moores ran the 3000 meters in 10:14 which was good for seventh place and is the equivalent of a 10:59 two-mile, making it Moores' top race of the the season.

Although top sprinter Diana Sealy missed her 200 meter race and was disqualified from the mile relay, UMass managed to perform better than expected in the sprints. Sophmore Micki Callahan placed fifth in the 100 meter hurdles in 15.8. Both Angie Caouette and Jackie Budrow finished third in their separate heats of the 200 meters in 26.9, but failed to make the finals.

The highlight for the relay teams came in the two-mile relay when the team of Judy McCrone, Karolyn Shea, Cyndi Martin and Robyn Dally combined to take second with a 9:21. The mile relay team, minus Sealy, still was able to take sixth overall.

Date—Thurs May 22
Rain or Shine
Place—Metawampee
Lawn & The Hatch
Time—12 - 5 pm
Seniors 2.50
Guests 3.50

SENIOR 1980 DAY

Featuring—
Robin Lane & the Chartbusters,
Beaver Brown, Lazarus
Tickets on sale through finals on the concourse
Positive Proof of Age Required

THE ARK
(Episcopal Church at UMass)

Sundays at The Ark	6:00 PM	supper (potluck)
	7:00 PM	Bible Study, Prayer, Eucharist
Wednesdays	1:15 PM	At Newman

Rev. Ian Montgomery 758 N. Pleasant 549-5929

STADIUM
U. Mass. Amherst
LIQUORS
Congradulations Class of 1980
Thanks for your Patronage

Craig Merrill
Lee Howlett
Al Howlett
Carl Bergquist
Pete Ziomek
Jim Fitzgerald
Ned Fitzgerald
Steve Kzcowski
Rip Sullivan
Jim Seaman
Sandy and Gene Sojka

Have a Good Summer

UMass sports notebook
By Mike Estrada

Penn State University has been a thorn in the side of coach Pam Hixon for two years now. After taking four straight teams to national tournaments, Hixon has seen her squads lose to the Nittany Lions in three of those tournaments. The 1979 Gazelles lost to them in the finals. This year, they lost in the semi-finals. The same fate was suffered by last fall's field Hockey team. They lost in a flick-off with the Lady Lions in the semi-finals. In all, Hixon, in two years of coaching at UMass, has captured fourth place in the nation three times, (Field Hockey in 1978 and 1979; Lacrosse this year), and second place (the 1979 Gazelles) once.

Even if the baseball team finishes the season with a 21-13-1 record, they will not be an at-large team in the NCAA regional tournament. The only entry from the Northeast will be the ECAC tournament champ, which receives an automatic berth. The last time a UMass baseball team didn't make a post-season tournament was in 1977 when it finished with a 20-17 record. The tough losses to take were against Northeastern last weekend. If they finished at 23-11-1 the playoff picture might be different.

In one of those games, third baseman Barry Bennett was hit with a line drive that hit him in the face. It was not the first time Bennett has been hit. Last year during practice he lost some teeth when he was hit in the mouth. Of the shot Saturday that required two stitches, Bennett said: "I didn't even see the gall get hit."

Speaking of being hit, it was surprising to see Brown relief pitcher Eric Micheal man return to his feet after being hit on the knee by a Jim Aulenback rocket in the second game Monday. He left the game in lieu of designated hitter/pitcher Joe Craven.

If anyone is going to be in the area of Norman, Oklahoma on May 22, it would be worth your while to check out the national collegiate softball tournament. It is Sue Peters' last shot at bringing home a national championship.

UMass catcher John Kraham finally showed home fans the power which coach Dick Bergquist knew he was capable Monday.

AMERICAN MULTI CINEMA
ADULTS $2.75 STUDENTS & SR. CITIZENS with AMC CARD $2.25 TWI-LITE SHOW $1.50 - Special Engagements Excluded Twi-Lite Show - Limited to Seating
TIMES SHOWN FOR TODAY ONLY

HAMPSHIRE 4 — 584-7980 HAMPY MALL ON CAFE SQ.—RT. 9, HADLEY, MASS.
WHERE THE BUFFALO ROAM — R (6:15 @ $1.50) 8:45
Walt Disney's Lady and the Tramp — G (6:30 @ $1.50) 8:30
LITTLE MISS MARKER — PG (6:00 @ $1.50) 8:30
Night Games — R (6:00 @ $1.50) 8:45

MOUNTAIN FARMS 4 — 584-9153 MOUNTAIN FARMS MALL ROUTE 9—HADLEY, MASS.
PETER SELLERS SHIRLEY MacLAINE BEING THERE — PG (5:45 @ $1.50) 8:30
ROBBY BENSON Die Laughing — PG (6:00 @ $1.50) 8:30
FRIDAY the 13th — R (6:15 @ $1.50) 8:45
the Black Stallion — G (6:00 @ $1.50) 8:45

Theses Paper
Theses Binders
Typewriter Ribbons
A.J. Hastings Inc.
newsdealer & stationer
45 S. Pleasant St., Amherst

ACADEMY of MUSIC
Northampton, Mass.
Now, 5th Brilliant Week, Ends Tue. May 20th
On Screen Daily At 7:00 and 9:00
★★★½★ Everything is brilliant." Kathleen Carroll N.Y. DAILY NEWS
"An exceptional work. With her stubbornness and sincerity she reminded me of a young Katharine Hepburn." Rex Reed
"Judy Davis is the gutsiest young woman to win our hearts since Katharine Hepburn." Judith Crist
My Brilliant Career
ANALysis FILM RELEASING CORPORATION G
Starring Judy Davis and Sam Neill
AT THE GATES OF SMITH COLLEGE

CELEBRATE
the
SCHOOL END
Friendly Prices! at Friendly People!
Time Out
TWO TV's
Free popcorn at Amherst's biggest little bar
37 N. Pleasant St.

WHAT'S THE ULTIMATE 4 LETTER WORD FOR THE MOVIE THAT'S REBELIOUS, OUTSPOKEN AND COMPLETELY UNSANITARY?
GO--
R
OSKEMO
COMING SOON TO A THEATRE NEAR YOU!
©1980 BRIGHTON PRODUCTIONS, INC.

Exam Week Special • Exam Week Special • Exam Week Special
ROOSTER'S
EXAM WEEK
MAY 15 - 21
SPECIAL!
Open 3 AM - 9 PM May 15 - 21
2 free pancakes with purchase of any two eggs or omlette with juice (any size) breakfast
OPEN 4 AM - 9 PM
DURING
EXAM WEEK
MAY 15 - 21
256-6888
138 Old Sunderland Rd.

MIKE'S WESTVIEW CAFE
North Amherst
FREE BEER NITE
50c Cover TONITE 50c Cover
When the horn sounds its free beer till the horn sounds again. 15 minute segments for a total of 1 hour.
8:30 - close
Positive ID Required to drink in premises
Don't Miss
Thursday's Penny Nite
9 - Close

Late inning drive stifles Mittmen

By JANE WOLFSON
Collegian Staff

HANOVER, NH - The rains in Dartmouth college yesterday afternoon washed away the UMass baseball team's hopes of gaining their 20th win for the season. The best they could muster was a 6-6 tie after ten innings with the 4-22-1 Big Green. The second game of the scheduled doubleheader was rained out.

The situation was classic. UMass, 19-13-2, found itself sitting on top of a 4-3 lead in the bottom of the seventh. Their year-long stopper Chris (Pearl Harbor) Collins had been getting tougher as the innings wore on.

The batter stepped in the box, all of the sudden, came the familiar sound: BING! BING! and the game was tied at 4-4.

UMass struck again in the bottom of the tenth. Senior Captain Mike McEvilly led off with a walk. Designated hitter Mark Brown then sacrificed him to second base and with two outs Vin (Mousey) Bonanno cracked his 30th hit of the year scoring McEvilly. The Minutemen added another run and took the field with a 6-4 lead. Collins slammed the door in the next two Dartmouth batters but walked Brent Cole. Up stepped first baseman Tim Whall.

It was one pitch. The ball was thrown well, the batters body fooled, but his arms followed through to the tune of a crack!

The game was tied at six and called after a short rain delay.

"Maybe the rain was the best thing that happened," rightfielder Doug Aylward said.

"He (Whall) was off-balance, but he still whacked the ball," Collins said after the game. "I was so shocked I blew another two run lead. I didn't think he would hit that pitch."

Dartmouth had acquired a two run lead by the second inning on the strength of three walks and a sacrifice fly.

UMass got on the board in the fourth with a McEvilly walk and Bonanno's second triple of the seasson, scoring McEvilly.

The Minutemen added three runs in the next inning. Second baseman Kelly McDonald led off the inning by drawing a walk. Back to back singles by outfielders Aylward and Mark Litano tallied one run and a two run single by first baseman Warren McReddie accounted for the other runs.

The single by Aylward marked his 48th hit of the season, fifth on the all-time UMass list. Aylward also ended the year batting an amazing 400. This being the third highest average ever for a UMass hitter.

Thirdbasemen Barry Bennett fielding the ball during a game earlier this season. The Mittmen tied with Dartmouth yesterday afternoon, 6-6, to end the season. (Staff photo by Ben Marsden)

UMass defenseman Mark Fierro turned in another fine game yesterday in a season-ending 16-14 win over Dartmouth. (Staff photo by Jim Mahoney)

Gorillas' comeback gets Green, 16-14

By DONNA SULLIVAN
Collegian Staff

HANOVER, NH - In what UMass coach Dick Garber called "the greatest comeback I've ever seen," the UMass men's lacrosse team ripped by the Big Green of Dartmouth with a dazzling second half, 16-14, here yesterday.

Despite being out of playoff contention, the Gorillas finished their season on a high note and seniors John Connors, Dave Martin and Mike Lewis ended their college careers with a win.

In the third quarter, UMass was down 10-5. Chris Corin assisted Jim Weller on the Gorillas' first goal on the way to making up the deficit. Dartmouth brought the score to 12-6 before UMass could tally again. Again it was Corin on the set-up with Skip Vosburgh slamming in the seventh goal. Weller scored again, one of his seven goals, off a pass from Corin, who took a great pass from Peter Schmitz to make it 12-8, Dartmouth.

Weller brought the Gorillas one goal closer with his fifth (unassisted) with just over three minutes to go in the third quarter. A minute later, Martin (3 goals) scored, assisted by Corin, and UMass trailed 12-10 after three periods.

Vosburgh scored a minute and a half into the fourth quarter and twenty seconds later freshman mid-fielder Pat Downes, who played superbly all afternoon, tied the score at twelve with an unassisted goal.

Dartmouth's Chip McLaughlin gave the Big Green its final lead with a score at 3:10 into the last quarter. Vosburgh (4 goals) tied the score once more at 7:01 and two minutes later Corin got a goal of his own to go along with his five assists. The goal gave the Gorillas a lead they would hold. At 9:20, Weller capped off his seven-goal afternoon and UMass had a 16-14 win. Weller's output increased his team-leading score totals to 47 goals and 25 assists for 72 total points.

"We played more aggressively and went after the ball more in the second half," Garber said. "We just tried to refresh in our minds what we were trying to do. (Goalie) Tom Curran had some key saves. Chris Benedetto was playing alright but I wanted to get the heat off him," Garber added, in reference to his removal of starting goalie Benedetto in the third quarter.

The defensive unit of Ray Cozzi, Mark Fierro, and Joe Bellavia held Dartmouth's leading scorer Rob Olsson to two goals. The Gorillas finish the season with and 8-5 record, while the loss put Dartmouth at 4-7.

Peters and McEvilly: two of a kind

By MELISSA GALLAGHER
Collegian Staff

UMass seniors Sue Peters and Mike McEvilly have both enjoyed amazing athletic careers at UMass. Peters has excelled in softball and basketball while McEvilly has been an outstanding football and baseball player.

McEvilly, a six-foot, 190-pound Clinton native, is a rare two-sport captain. In his junior year, the left-handed quarterback led the Minutemen to one of their finest seasons ever and the Division 1AA national championship game against Florida A&M. An excellent running quarterback, McEvilly was named All-Yankee Conference in 1979. McEvilly has been a starter on the baseball team for the past four years and holds virtually every UMass career hitting record. He has the most hits, doubles, triples, homeruns (tied with Bob Hansen with 15) runs-batted-in, at-bats and games. He hit .300 every year except the present one, when he finished at .296.

Peters, the woman most consider to be the best female athlete in UMass history, preferred not to single out one event to highlight her sports career. The senior politely answered the over-used question by saying that "not one thing stands out."

Peters said she was still excited about the softball team's Eastern Regional championship. The whole squad "hung together" and played the "best ball" of the season to earn a berth in the upcoming Nationals, she said.

Peters, afterall, is a team player. In softball, she led the Minutewomen's charge with two shutouts in the three-game sweep at the Regionals. This season she is 12-0, credited with one no-hitter and two one-hitters. Overall, her record stands at 39-2-1. No slouch at the plate, either, Peters compiled a .372 batting average in her first three years and has hovered around .500 this season. She plays left field as well.

In basketball, the 5'7" guard scored more points than any other UMass player. Averaging 19.9 points a game, the Southbridge resident broke the 1000-point barrier in three years and finished with 1,858 total points. Peters said she hopes to be picked in the Women's Basketball League's draft on June 16.

McEvilly and Peters have given UMass four outstanding years on the athletic fields and courts and the Collegian salutes these two exceptional people.

Staff photo by Ben Marsden

Mike McEvilly

Staff photo by Ben Marsden

Sue Peters